WAUSAU GETS CUP BY TAKING FIRST LAURELS OF MEET

Win By Three Points

Gathering a total of 41.1 points, Wausau nosed out Antigo to win first honors in the 15th Annual C. W. I. meet after a closely contested afternoon last Saturday at the local fair grounds. Antigo led the field with 38 points until the broad jump, which was held last, gave Wausau victory.

Bob Eckerle, Wausau's versatile ace proceeded to win first and cinch the big cup for his brethren.

The Schools finished in the following order: Wausau, 41.1; Antigo 38; Merrill 21; Marshfield 15.2; Stevens Point, 13.2; Wild Rose 3.5; Wisconsin Rapids 3; Hancock 2; New Lisbon, 1.

The whole affair was handled in a most gratifying manner, under the capable management of Athletic Director Eggebrecht.

New Spear Record

Newmast of Merrill was the only one to shatter a state record, although several valley records were tied.

He tossed the javelin 173 feet 8 inches, out-distancing the record of 172 feet 9 1/2 inches made last year by Erdman of Kenosha.

Two valley meet records were equaled, one the mark of 10.1 in the 100 yard dash set by Bower of Kenosha last year, the other in the 220 which Hougén of Wisconsin Rapids set in 1922, covering the dash in 23.2.

Winters of Antigo tied the 10 mark, closely followed by Baker of the Point, while Beneditz of Wausau equaled Hougén's record run.

Notice To Seniors

The following announcement comes from the Registrar's office.

"All Seniors who expect to graduate in June must have paid their license fee of two dollars on or before Friday, June first."

Amusing Comedy

The "Mummy and the Mumps" is to be presented by the Rural Life Club in the auditorium to night at 8 o'clock. It is a lively farce comedy in three acts; every situation is amusing.

All three acts take place at Fenella, a girls' school in a small town near Boston. The principal of this exclusive school, Agatha Laidlow (Mae Korotev), is expecting an important addition to her faculty, Sir Hector Fish, a distinguished scientist (Alex Peterson) who speaks seventeen languages and one hundred thirteen dialects. He is bringing with him the recently discovered mummy of King Tut's Queen. Sir Hector arrives in a most unconventional manner. But how Sir Hector arrives is one of the mysteries of the plot upon which the play is based.

Complicated Circumstances

Harold Rudy as Miss Laidlow, dean of women, brings forth much laughter and many complicated circumstances, especially when the real Miss Laidlow appears and insists that Sir Hector stick to his diet of aerated oats and precipitated milk.

Issac Thompson, plays the part of James Stammon, "Racker" who ran so fast it took him six hours to walk back. Marjory Allen the Eastern girl, Opal Foate, the western girl, and Alice McLaughlin, the prime dumb dora of the school add much to the hilarity to say nothing of Phoebe Beebe (Annabelle Berg), a very inquisitive reporter from the Daily Deliverance.

William Laidlow (Kirkwood Likes) helps to complicate matters as much as he possibly can, and Perkins the sheriff (Clarence Teske) provokes much laughter.

Invitations Mailed For Alumni Banquet

Announcements have been mailed to alumni of the Central State Teachers' College of the annual alumni banquet, to be held at Hotel Whiting on Wednesday evening, June 13th at 6:30 o'clock. Attention is called to the fact that the institution became a teachers college on September 1st, 1927, and that June 14th of this year will be its first commencement as a teachers' College.

Miss Winifred H. Spindler, Secretary of the Alumni Association, says that Stevens Point alumni have a right to be proud of the progress of the school, and that it ranks high among the Teachers' Colleges of the state.

An invitation has been extended to all the Alumni to come back and renew their old friendships. Every member of the graduating class is especially invited to attend the banquet at Hotel Whiting where the entire Senior Class of 1928 will enjoy its initial alumni gathering. A grand good time is in store.

Teachers Of School Released For Study

Several of our faculty members are entitled to a leave of absence for the summer and ensuing year. Mr. Watson and Miss Carlsten will be absent for the summer only, while Miss Weston will be absent for all of next year. STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Student self-government will never be successful or even partially effective in this college if the present procedures are adhered to. This is certainly a broad statement, but the facts, both psychic and physical, justify it.

In the first place, student government, in any of its possible forms and extents of power, is very seldom found successful anywhere. There are some cases in which it is successful if it is true, but they are few. It is only when an interested student body, faculty, and administration are all willing to give thought and time to it, that the plan can have any success. Even then, the cards are stacked against it because of the extremely complicated process which must be gone through before any plan can be put into operation.

When the proposition of student government was first placed before the students, there was some chance of something worth while resulting from it. It was a bit late in the season, it is true, but the most influential students were for it, most of the important members of the faculty committees were for it, and the administration had expressed itself favorably disposed. Of course the student body was not much concerned; but student bodies are seldom concerned — and furthermore, they can always be relied upon to vote in favor of anything.

But now the whole situation has turned into a horse of an entirely different color. Let us review the history of an attempt at self government and the present status thereof.

1. A petition was presented to the President asking for student self-government.

2. The President addressed the students at the next assembly on Thursday and suggested that the students "think about it".

3. Two weeks later at an assembly on Thursday, Frank Joswick was empowered to appoint a committee to form plans for student government.

4. The next issue of the Pointer, which appeared on a Wednesday thirteen days later, contained the two plans formed by the committee.

5. Last Thursday the plans were read before the student body and Plan I. adopted. A committee was also appointed to form a constitution.

After two and a half months, and with only about a month of the school year left, only about half the process has been negotiated. At least, all that can be done is to leave the doubtful gift of a lame-duck constitution for next year's students to put into operation.

Now why has this idea which started out so promisingly come to such a pass? It is quite evident. What with the very obvious necessity of having singing every time assembly meets — come what may — and with the numerous speakers who have appeared, and with the many other important matters which had to be attended to, it has been impossible for the assembly to talk student government more than every two weeks, and in one case not for more than a month. This is the root of the whole difficulty. During those weeks in which nothing was done or said about student government, spring and graduation (as well as the end of the school term) loomed up.

How can anyone bother about what will be done next year when it is so nice out-of-doors, when the birds sing so beautifully, when commencement will soon be here, when one has not as yet signed up for a teaching position, when one has not yet found a job for the summer, when one is memorizing his part in a play, when one is writing his thesis, when...? As proof witness the utter lack of interest displayed when the plans were read last Thursday.

Had the administration been deliberately bent upon killing this movement no better method could have been found than to push the matter off from week to week until the middle of May.

Certain points are here set forth which may be false — let us hope so — consequently the Pointer throws open the columns of next week's issue for communications. Let there be no foolish actions, but rather an open-minded discussion in the student organ. Let anyone who has anything to say present his opinions to the Pointer before next Tuesday morning or forever hold his peace.

School Pupils Show For Motion Pictures

A pretty picture was presented on the College Campus Monday afternoon as Mr. Bach took a movie of the Children's operetta, "Midsummer Night's Dream". The little tots were dressed in the costumes which were worn when the operetta was given last Wednesday evening in the College Auditorium. A piano was moved on the lawn and the music was played by Misses Ann Sharff and Margaret Reading. Student Primary teachers as well as the critic helped in the management and arrangement of the cast.

The operetta was under the direction of Miss Gladys Pritchard, and Miss Edna Carlsten was director of costumes.

Plans Formulated By "Y" For Next Year

While there will be no more meetings of the Y. M. C. A. this year, the tentative plans for next year's meetings of this organization are being formed by the cabinet. They hope to make the meetings and accomplishments even better next year than this. The organization is new in this school having been organized only this year. With the spirit and interest that has been shown this year, there is no doubt that the boys will make much progress with their work next year.

G. A. A. Picnic

The members of the Girls' Athletic Association are holding an installation picnic at Red Bridge Thursday, the 24th. Everyone is to meet at the East entrance at 5 o'clock. Beans, coffee, and pickles are being furnished, and each girl is to bring the rest of her lunch.

4 H Demonstration

Friday evening, May 25th, there will be a meeting of the 4H Club in the Home Economics rooms. A demonstration on Canning is to be given.

The work of the 4H clubs is progressing rapidly. These are worthy organizations and should be sponsored by more schools. While the work is not strenuous, it is interesting and profitable.

TOO SMART TO STUDY?

I feel certain that some student after reading my article of May seventh thought to himself somewhat as follows: "Yes, it may be true the honor students in college do make a success of life in a larger proportion than the students with poor grades, but the good work in college had little to do with their subsequent success. The high mark students who attain high places in life do so, not on account of their high rank in college, but because they are naturally bright and this natural ability enables them to succeed both in school and in life."

"The naturally brainy person," he thinks, "will succeed in life even though he loafs thru college and has barely passing marks." "I'll admit," says such a student to himself, "that I have had low grades in this school, but I know I could get high ones. I am naturally bright, I have a smart father and I have a smart mother, therefore I must be naturally smart. I am simply conserving my brains here. I do not want to exhaust myself so that I will be too tired to work after I graduate."

Now in the mind of such a student can be seen festering popular delusions, and conventional rationalizations. Because he has a smart father and a smart mother is no assurance that a person himself will be naturally bright. The parents may have attained a reputation for brains by hard and strenuous work and such acquisitions are not transmitted. One's inheritance is not at all affected by acquired characteristics of immediate ancestry. This self deluded student may be naturally dull with a low I. Q. He may be a throwback to some remote and rather inferior branched ancestor and be of a very different make-up from his immediate parents.

But granted that his parents are naturally bright and that he is of the same dominant strain that they are—yet how can he be sure he has brains unless he uses them? How can he test their working values? Brains are not conserved by non-use; they remain undeveloped. Brain cells unused in youth waste away and can never be used. School life is the time to develop brain cells. The more brain cells one has the more work one needs in order to develop them, and the more one can accomplish.

What we inherit we should be thankful for but not vain of. The ten talent men should do ten talent work. Intelligence tests will show some students with an I. Q. of 125 — 150, many with 100 — 124+, and some with from 80 — 99+. The first group should show honor marks of 95 or above. The second group will generally run from 85 — 90+, and the third group from failure to 84+. If a student in any group makes standings above those expected for his I. Q. it will be because of exceptional work and industry. Now this smart student "who doesn't need to study", who has the high I. Q., may fall below his group in standings. We see that brains without industry accomplish nothing in school or in life. A high I. Q. means only a high natural ability to learn, and without the will and effort to learn there is no guaranty of success anywhere.

The student with I. Q. but with determination, hard work and concentration may succeed the better both in school and in life.

How can the smart person prove that he is smart better than by high standings? What better criterion is there than that for his future success? What safer guide for employers choosing college graduates as employees?

Genius, it is said, is about nine tenths hard work, and one tenth genius. The naturally bright student must get habits of industry, concentration, mental honesty, together with broad knowledge and culture, as well as the duller student, and altho brains should tell anywhere both in school and in life, they only "tell" when exercised.

The following words should encourage any student: "All, or nearly all, who have pursued knowledge will say that such a pursuit is a great adventure. It is an adventure which never grows stale, nor loses its lure, nor grows old, and there are indirect results of such an adventure which cannot be measured."

Have you embarked on this great adventure?

Specialists Engaged For Summer Session

The summer session of 1928 will, according to prospects, be very remarkable. Efforts have been made to secure specialists noted in all parts of the country. Special courses are being offered in the field of Home Economics, Rural School Leaders, Primary, Intermediate and Grammar Grade Teachers, Junior High School Teachers, High School Teachers, and for Rural and State Graded School Teachers.

Among the special features which are being offered are: The Newer Techniques of Teaching in elementary and Junior and Senior High Schools, Character Education, Special courses for Vocational Home Economics Teachers, Courses in Educational and Vocational Guidance, and a special course in Rural Education.

The 2nd Annual Rural Setting up Conference will be held from July 9th to 20th. The conference will be conducted by the following specialists: Dr. Benjamin R. Andrews, and Miss Agnes Tilson.

Dr. Andrews is a national figure in the field of Household Economics. He will be here for one full week, June 19th to 25th giving a special course of lectures on "The Principles of Economics for the Household," and "The Efficient Expenditure of the Family Income". Doctor Andrews is well known both as a lecturer and as a writer in these fields. This is an exceptional opportunity for the Home Economics Teachers of the middle west.
