

SENIOR BALL FRIDAY NIGHT POINTERS TIP CARROLL 41-40

Dr. Tolo Polls Class For Reaction To Conflict

On Monday morning, Dr. Tolo placed this task before his 8:15 class: Write for about 15 minutes on the subject, "What Yesterday's Events meant to Me." Some of the papers which were written were particularly worthy of comment. Therefore, THE POINTER herewith presents a few of the early reactions from CSTC students concerning the attack by Japan on Pearl Harbor. Before we quote from any of the papers, however, there are several points which should be remembered by the readers. These papers were written at 8:15 on Monday morning. It was a surprise assignment with no possibility of forethought or preparation. Also, keep in mind that these excerpts were written three hours before Congress convened to declare war on Japan.

The first and almost unanimous reaction of these students was a feeling of worry for the safety of relatives, friends, or members of their immediate families known to be in the danger zones. An example of this is:

"Perhaps my outlook was rather small, but my first concern was for my brother in defense work on Wake Island which was taken by the Japanese."

Next seemed to be the emotional effect upon the writers, the element of surprise and incredulity over our country being suddenly involved in a war. "It all seemed like a dream," is typical of most of the papers.

The women seemed to have a feeling of pity or sympathy for the young men, the "leaders of tomorrow" whose lives will be wasted unnecessarily. The men feel that we must face it and they look forward to a change in their plans for the future. Both men and women are expecting a decided drop in our standard of living.

But wait, we'll let you read some of the excerpts for yourself.

A girl wrote this one:
"I realize faintly that in the future it will mean changes in our standard of living, that it will mean the loss of many of the finest young men who would be the leaders of our nation in a few years. It means that a normal, healthy life will be a thing of the past and that even after the war is over, the cost of it will hang heavy on us."

"Aside from the emotional effect on me, I felt a new determination to make the most of educational opportunities in order to be better prepared for whatever may be my work in the future. I have a renewed realization of the shortness and seriousness of Life."

Aside from the concern over the safety of relatives and the possible loss of brothers, this person strikes a different point:

"It will be more terrible than just that. Winter is here, bringing all the starvation and freezing always in a war in winter. Now we will begin making Red Cross bandages for our own boys! Not 'Bundles for Britain' any longer, or 'Bundles for Bolsheviks' either, but bandages for Yanks instead of 'Smokes for Yanks!'"

Stern realization is the keynote in this one:

"Every American at home at the present time has to combat the undesirable element in this country now more than ever before. . . . These events also mean new adventures, maybe not pleasant ones, but nevertheless we must face it. We cannot kid ourselves any longer; we are at war and we must face the facts."

A note of frustration and bewilderment over some deep questions is contained in this theme:

"After I got over my first reaction, it slowly began to dawn on me how much bigger than my personal life this is. War—where will it end? The whole world is in it and each nation is struggling for economic and political supremacy. What good will it do anyone after they have it? How can there be anything, anyone left to rebuild a nation? Why have ideals, high standards? Are we taught these things only to be shot to pieces? What will happen to our religion? Who are we praying to? God? What God? Is it any use to pray to God when every nation is praying to the same one for the same thing—victory? Why have we built a so-called civilization; why have we made laws? Does it make any difference if one is murdered on the street or shot to pieces in front of a cannon? All this is silly, stupid raving, I suppose, in a time of national emergency. Yet, we cannot govern our minds and this is what war means to me, — all hopes, ideals, everything for the future is gone. What we endure in the present will not compare with the future. How can nations rebuild themselves; make an intelligent peace, when the very best has been drawn from the land?"

A different attitude is to be noted in this one:

"I must admit I haven't admired President Roosevelt's policies but now that war has come, I am thankful for the Selective Service program. At least we have a start for defense. It would have been much worse if we hadn't trained men at hand. With

Terzynski Brothers Lead In First Win

The Central State Teachers College Pointers, led by the Terzynski brothers, who scored 35 points between them, won their initial victory of the season on the hardwood last Monday night when they defeated Carroll College at Waukesha, 41-40. It was the fourth consecutive setback for the Pioneers, who bowed to the University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee Teachers and Lawrence College previous to Monday's game.

Carroll went into the lead at the beginning of the game on a basket by Hennings and a free throw by Dalecky. "Ace" Terzynski made a free throw and followed it up with a basket to tie the count but the Pioneers retaliated to lead 8-6 after five minutes of the game had elapsed. With ten minutes of the first half gone, the Pointers put on a spurt to move ahead 12-8. Pete and Ray Terzynski and Ted Fritsch contributed the points. Carroll came right back with a barrage of baskets and established a 21-13 lead but the Kotalmen rallied and trailed by only 23-19 at the half.

Baskets by Hennings and Taylor ran the score up to 29-21 for Carroll shortly after the start of the second period and they later breezed to a 37-27 lead. At this point, the Purple and Gold cagers began functioning smoothly and a string of baskets by "Ace" and Pete put them in front 39-37. The Pointers put on a stalling act for three minutes but a basket and a free throw by Taylor put Carroll once again into the lead 40-39 with a minute and a half left to be played. "Ace" muffed a chance to tie the count with a free throw, but Captain Pete came through with a field goal with 45 seconds remaining to play. Carroll took the ball down the court in a futile effort to tie the score. With 8 seconds left in the ball game, Bill Carnahan was fouled but the free throw was refused and The Pointers took possession of the ball from out of bounds at the end of the game.

Pete Terzynski led the Pointers in scoring by pouring in eight baskets and three free throws to accumulate a total of 19 points. "Ace" garnered

Fritsch and Jacobson To Lead Winter Formal

Wally Beau Signed To Furnish Music

Winter will reign supreme December 12 when the Senior Ball is held among the evergreens, in the Training school gym. The atmosphere will be dominated by the spicy fragrance of pine, until it fades into the background—that's when the King and Queen come in.

The King of Winter will be the brawny hero of the football field, skillful man of the basketball floor, dashing gallant of the dance floor, and general favorite around school—need I say it? Ted Fritsch! Ted is from Spencer. He is a senior in the high school division, and he has always been prominent in athletics.

Ted has chosen as Queen of the ball, Velma Jacobson of Stevens Point. You've seen her—she's a slender young thing, dark-haired, and a sophomore.

Second in line will be Clarence Solberg and Jeannette Halverson, a former student of CSTC.

There will be a cheery glow from a huge fireplace at one end, for the benefit of those who are chilled by the winter scene, and those whose loves can't keep them warm. There'll be room to hang your stocking, too, if you want to get that done early.

"O Tannenbaum, O Tannenbaum," we'll see you there, too. Yes—in the center will stand a tall Christmas tree to add to the holiday spirit.

Instead of sleigh bells we'll be listening to the music of Wally Beau, while we're dancing in the "Winter Wonderland."

Greetings will be extended by the receiving line at 9:30 Mrs. Pfiffner, Mr. and Mrs. Delzell, Mr. and Mrs. Steiner, Miss Glennon, and Mr. and Mrs. Evans will be in the receiving line.

The creators of the Winter Wonderland are Ray Skatrude, chairman, and Fay Wendorf, Bob Becker, Alan Kingston, Margaret Edwards, Joyce Larson, and Arnold Bocher.

If it weren't for Dick Sanborn, chairman and Ruth Stelter, Jack Ackermen, and Charles Dodge, we'd have no music, and if something should happen to Margaret Clark, Chairman, Helen Scheinert, and Janet Tiffany, we'd have trouble getting refreshments.

Lillian Boe, chairman, and Charles Miller will see that the lights are effective and appropriately dim.

Tony Schwartz is chairman of the

Why a College "Y"? What is College "Y"? Who was the originator of College "Y"? What does "Y" stand for? These and innumerable other questions are being asked of those people who are serving on the recently appointed committees. They therefore take this opportunity to invite you to come to the first meeting to be held in the rural assembly next Friday evening at 7:30. The meeting will be a short one so that it will not interfere with any plans for attending the social event of that evening.

We didn't miss a thing! We saw a stream of light in the darkened corridor last Wednesday and we set out to investigate, and we arrived just in time. No sooner had we stepped inside the door than Mr. Morrison began a discussion of the labor question for the benefit of the students assembled there.

It is evident that Mr. Morrison is no friend of labor unions as they exist today. He quoted the spicy words of Westbrook Pegler in pointing out the corruption within the organizations. Mr. Morrison stated that if such corruption continues; if such organizations can be led by men with long prison records; if they can extort from labor enormous initiation fees; then there is need for regulation. He added, too, that if it is fair that business be restricted from unfair practices, then it is fair that restrictions be placed also on labor unions, for the unions today have become such a tremendous power that they need control in order to remain efficient and democratic.

The latter half of the discussion was devoted to questions from the audience. In answer to, "Would the regulation of labor unions deprive people of the freedom to congregate and deprive them of freedom of speech?", Mr. Morrison answered, "No, it would merely specify codes of fair practices. It would merely set down rules and regulations in order that labor unions conduct themselves in an ethical manner."

Mr. Morrison's comments were appreciated by those who were interested in an affirmative argument, but he left the negatives out in the cold. However, Mr. Harris has promised to rescue them this afternoon at four when he leads the discussion in Mr. Burroughs' room.

Friday night is the Senior Ball and the dormites have been assured of a 2:00 per, so getting in too early is no excuse for not asking a dormite. . . Stevens Point and Nelson Hall have been seeing a lot of Katy Metcalf, and Rope says she'll be down for the Senior Ball. . . I always say the more the merrier. . . Judd and Doc Kulidas are going they say, but so far haven't booked anyone, as Doc calls it. I'll bet we know who Judd will ask, but Doc had to go and let someone beat him out of that Marshfield date. We haven't seen Brenner and Davis around lately and its not because the ice has melted—Bette is home nursing swollen cheeks, more commonly known as the mumps. Ken came into the Geography class saying "hi," thinking he was late for his class—hearing a few laughs he casually looked around and discovered he had walked in on the class before his. Tut, tut, Ken, remember "Absence makes the heart grow fonder. . . Senior Ball King Teddy Fritsch wasn't keeping anyone in the dark as far as who the Queen would be—but, then who would want to—Don Kordus has promised he will appear at a formal this year, and he is going to import from home. . . The bridge contest at the Goal Post is in full swing. Pogy and Handy, Fink and Behn and others, with Bill Carnahan and Joyce Larson leading. Behn and Fink were kinda disgusted so they put in a little extra time the other evening practicing bridge signals, I suppose. . . The Pointer office is really quite the spot tonight. Variety, the spice of life! First Jack Rassmussen, after being bribed by Edwards, Doc, and ye editor, gave some slow motion pantomines, Johnny Kotz in a push shot, Hitler making a speech, and a few more—Then we stopped work every few minutes to listen to the latest war flashes that our radio gives out with. . . Dorothy Sixel really rates—it isn't every one that gets a long distance call from as far hearts desire. . . Saw "Snooky" Van Dyke at the game last week. It seemed funny seeing him cheering on the sidelines and not in there dishing out a little of that old fight. . . Went to see "Keep Em Flying" the other night and could hear Mr. Faust laughing above everyone else—Mr. Faust, you are not the only one who laughs loud and hard at Abbott and Costello or should I say Costello. . . Bob Torkelson revealed by words and pictures tonight that his heart belonged to Lorraine—Nope, she isn't here at CSTC, but she's coming down for the Christmas concert. Jack Conant had wanted to do it for a long time, and finally he did. The result was seeing him with Virginia Grassl. . . "The early bird gets the worm"—so Gil Rodencal is all set for the ball—he is escorting Kathryn Kenny, because he was five minutes earlier than his would be rival. . .

Huh? Have you ever Seen a sweetheart With whom you'd like to rate— A regular oomph girl You'd really want to date. So you make some plans And get things ready Some dough—a car—a place to go And then find she's already going Steady?

Bill Nikolai did his solo on the dance floor at informal dancing the other night, and take it from me he did O.K.—Chuck Dodge and Margaret Murrish are still victims of Dan Cupid. . . Do or Die

I know this isn't funny but here's a tip—about this stage of the semester—you get that old urge to let go in a couple of subjects that have you buffaloed—don't give up—stay in there and remember you never can call back anything that's passed or past—Los Angeles Collegian.

Phi Sigs Increase Lead In Bowling

The CSTC Bowlers returned to active bowling again last Thursday at the South Side Alleys.

The DeMolay team swept the entire three games from the Faculty in the only whitewashing of the night. The Phi Sigma Epsilon team took two out of three from the determined Underdogs. These games on the victory side of the ledger increased the Phi Sigs lead to three full games in the standings. In the other games of the evening, the Sport Shop entry defeated the College Eat Shop, two out of three games. The second game of this series was won by the Sport Shop after the two teams had rolled a tie game. Lee Kalkofen, star Sport Shop kegler, dethroned Bob Becker from the league lead in average pins per game. One pin separates the two stars. Next weeks schedule:

FROM THE LOCKER ROOM

by Jimmy Kulidas and Jack Rasmussen

This column is all out for an extensive intramural program here at Central State. Last year when Mr. Menzel, functioning under the capacity as assistant coach and Botany Lab-assistant, was here, two eight team basketball leagues were organized and the results were satisfactory. One hundred and twenty five male students participated in the great indoor pastime every week. The league became so popular that the Independents and the N.Y.A. aggregations who were leading the American League played a preliminary game prior to the Central State Whitewater varsity engagement. The students want an intramural program again this year. We realize that the absence of Mr. Menzel handicaps Coach Kotal. He cannot put on this vast program alone because his duties as athletic director and head mentor of the varsity team keeps him busy. Thus the sports department of the Pointer is taking the initiative of establishing and operating an intramural basketball league under his supervision. Here is our suggestion and plan. The games can be played in the Training School or in the College gymnasium and the officiating will be taken care of by the N.Y.A. workers. The schedules of games, dates, eligibility of players and etc. can be taken care of by this department. Roy Otto or some other prominent student can act as president or as head of the league. All of the above mentioned is just a tentative plan made by us which is open to your criticisms and suggestions. It is just a step towards the possibilities of establishing an intramural basketball league and thus take the burden of Coach Kotal's shoulders...

With the Professional Football season coming to an end within the next two weeks we would like to name an All-Pro team before everybody else in the nation starts naming one. We receive a big kick out of comparing our team with the official honored eleven. We named an "All-Southern Teachers Conference Team before the coaches picked the official one and had seven of the eleven players that were named by coaches, so here goes with the All-Pro team.

We name Jimmy Conzelmann of the Chicago Cardinals as coach of the year. Jimmy did a magnificent job of coaching the team from the south side of Chicago. He took a team that was rated to go no place in the league race, molded it into a powerful eleven, that was respected by all opponents.

four baskets and eight free throws to bring his scoring total to 16. Taylor was high scorer for the Pioneers with 14 points on six baskets and two free throws. Hennings followed with four buckets and one penalty shot. The game was a rough affair and the play of both teams was rather ragged. Coach Kotal wasn't satisfied with the team's performance. The shooting was all right but the team lacked polish in ball handling. This will come as the season progresses and the squad will be set by the time the conference season starts.

DR. TOLO POLLS CLASS FOR REACTION ON CONFLICT

Senator Wheeler, I believe we must defeat Japan."

This one strikes a belligerent note: "I guess people will never learn, because certainly if they read and consulted history books, they'd realize that there have always been wars for the same reasons. This war is only proof that the last war was in vain.

As long as Japan started the attack, I imagine we have to declare war to keep up appearances. But I hate war and all the blood and destruction allied with it, and as far as I'm concerned, there's absolutely no justification for it at all. The means are too horrible for the futile ends it accomplishes.

If we had minded our own business and left war-mongering to the other countries, we would all have been better off. England would have had to get busy."

Farsightedness is to be noted here: "Yesterday's events make me wonder if, after we declare war, any of the smaller nations Hitler has conquered will revolt at all, because we are rather a large nation and our nation and our entering this conflict might affect the policies of other nations."

We'll close by quoting this fervent prayer:

"Yesterday, I went to bed with this one thought in mind — Let's hope the United States will take only the wisest steps and that all of us will unite with her; let's hope and pray we can finish this, in a CIVILIZED way, once and for all."
