Elections And Issues

The coming elections for Student Senate and the campaigns now in progress are causes for comment on past campaigns, and the results of the elections.

Characteristic of the student campaigns are the totally pointless, incredibly vague platform statements issued by each candidate. Invariably these attempts at political acumen fall short of making any sense and certainly do not inspire the voting masses to rally behind an action-minded candidate. In most cases one can find a number of references to the great American ideal of "democracy;" if this ideal is or has ever been an active concept, the candidates never quite seem to clarify if they, as aspiring representatives, have any understanding of its meaning or if they consider it to even actively exist. Another peculiarity of past candidates has been the fervent desire to "represent" the student body, i.e., the entire, total student body. Quite a monumental task. The point is this: Rarely, if ever, does a candidate promise to represent a particular political philosophy or to act on certain basic issues affecting the student community. Rather they produce meaningless, though noble sounding statements, based on absolutely nothing, that make them sound like young, budding Richard Nixons.

Unless the university were to retain a gallup pollster for the period preceding the Student Senate elections, it would probably be quite difficult to say just what "qualities" the electorate votes for on election day. More important, however, are the results that become evident when the new Senate convenes.

In theory, the Student Senate elections place those persons who are the "leaders" in positions to take action on the immediate issues. However, in the past it became evident that these leaders were only able to express themselves in the vague rhetorical style that characterized their campaigns and when it was time for action and innovation these components of the cream of the crop found themselves still in the udder, unprocessed. It is impossible to lead any political action without at least a rudimentary knowledge of the pertinent issues and on this campus there are many immediate issues that cannot be dealt with by uttering flowery phrases about "representation" and the "democratic process."

These are problems that have been symptomatic of Senate campaigns and elections in the past. Glancing at a few of the candidates' platforms for the upcoming election may reveal to the voters if the past failures are on the verge of being repeated. It is the responsibility of the students to demand from the candidates definite positions on campus issues. If this is not accomplished, Student Senate elections will produce only the mediocre results of the past.

Saga Go Home

Letter to the editor:

Saga, hitch up your covered wagon and go back to California. Many students feel that this would be the solution. I know it was expensive in the gold rush days, but Wisconsin students aren't exactly mining gold nuggets. Since Saga has been contracted to handle the food service on campus the quality of service and quantity of food has declined considerably while the prices were increased.

It seems that WSU-SP has jumped from the frying pan into the fire by replacing Ace Foods with Saga. The Student Union now has their so-called bargains, such as the 50c mini-burger, which is just what it implies, a piece of hamburger the size of a 50 cent piece, and a few French fries. Or there's their bratwurst and sauerkraut which is only one small brat and a fork-full of sauerkraut in a sandwich which sells for the amazingly low price of 70c.

Maybe the students got a little tired of Ace Foods and complained some, but they all had full stomachs and a little change left in their pockets. If Saga is saving so much money, who are they saving it for? It most certainly isn't for the students. We understand that a business must make a profit, but they don't have to do it by fleecing every possible cent out of a person's pocket.

The service at the Union Center is really getting terrible. For instance, while the employees are busy visiting with each other, the customers have to wait until they are done before they let you place your order. They have difficulty remembering who ordered what. What ever happened to those efficient little order blanks that Ace used? These women are the most confused people I've seen since the Keystone Cops!

It seems that the Board of Regents should be able to straighten out this matter. Or is it possible that they are afraid to admit that they have made a big mistake by contracting Saga?

Thanks

Dear Editor:

I would like to take this means of expressing a sincere message of thanks to a person, whose name I do not know.

About two weeks ago, I lost my driver's license and other valuable papers. Today they were returned to me by mail to my home in Wisconsin Rapids.

To the anonymous finder of these papers; My deepest gratitude.

Grad Students Share State Support

Twenty-four graduate students at Stevens Point State University are sharing about $50,000 in state-supported assistantships this year, according to Dr. Winthrop C. Difford, dean of the graduate college.

The recipients will be working toward master's degrees in such areas as biology, history, home economics, communications, communicative disorders, education, English, and natural resources.

Although the grants carry a big element of prestige because they are given on the basis of previous academic achievement, they involve some work for the recipients. Each assistantship winner is assigned to provide services for the department in which he is studying.

The money comes from the

McKinney Submits Study

William M. McKinney, professor of geography at Stevens Point State University, has completed a report on the problems of adopting the metric system in the United States. His work was submitted to the U.S. Metric Study, which is being conducted by the National Bureau of Standards at the request of Congress. Members of the study requested information from various professional organizations concerning the impact of the metric system upon their fields. Dr. McKinney was delegated by the National Council for Geographic Education to prepare the report for geography.

McKinney said the metric system conveyed obvious advantages for geography, particularly in the measurement of area and in handling of foreign data. "It is also thought that geography could adopt the metric system with less trouble than other fields, since certain of its tools (such as fractional map scales) are already designed for the system. The main drawbacks would be unfamiliarity of some geographers with the system, especially in the lower levels of teaching, and the time and money required for such a change," he noted.

Point Has Greatest Increase

Statistics compiled by the board of regents staff in Madison indicate that Stevens Point State University showed the greatest enrollment increase this fall, both in numbers and percentage, of the nine schools in the Wisconsin State University System.

The gain of about 700 over 1969 pushed the Stevens Point total to 8,600. The increase was nine per cent.

Stevens Point State ranks third in size in the WSU System, surpassed by Oshkosh which has 11,800, up 600 from last year, and Whitewater, 9,700 or down about 50 from 1969.

Eau Claire increased about 400 to 8,250 and LaCrosse gained more than 500 to push its total to 7,225. Smaller gains were reported in River Falls and Stout, and drops in non-resident students resulted in net losses at Platteville and Superior.

SENATE CANDIDATES SPEAK OUT

The following are responses to the question, "What are your qualifications for Student Senate and what is your platform (what issues do you wish to deal with, etc.)."

Dan Kubisiak is a 22 year old Sophomore English major from Wisconsin Rapids. He is running for the 1st District Senate seat.

"I am running as a "write-in" candidate for Student Senator of the 1st District because living off-campus I have become aware of many problems that the off-campus students come up against. Better housing conditions, lower rent, better parking and off campus are only a few of the problems that I feel need immediate attention. I would like to see a campus-community committee to establish better relations between the students and the city and to also work out many of the off-campus resident problems. The ridiculous prices charged at the University Center Bookstore and the Gridiron are also due for a change.

I was an active member of student government while in high school and I feel that this experience in addition to my sincere interest in bettering the conditions for off-campus students will enable me to do my best for the students of the 1st District of WSU-Stevens Point."

Ray McMillion, a 27 year old Junior History major from Crandon is running for the 5th district Senate seat.

"My major qualification for the office of student senate is a sincere interest in the problems with which the senate deals. I have been a student at WSU-Stevens Point for 2 1/2 years, and I feel I know the nature of many of the problems, especially those of the off-campus students.

Parking, housing, and existing conditions in facilities such as the health center are a few problems that deserve consideration. No one can offer an immediate cure, but if elected I can promise a sincere effort to help correct these problems."

Warren Menning is a 28 year old special student from Appleton majoring in Education, Biology and Conservation. He is running for the District 5 Senate seat.

"Qualifications - Full-time student, 28 years old, College student from 1960 to 1968, teacher from 1968 to 1970 with a total of 215 credits in areas of Engineering, Business, Conservation, Biology and Education.

Over the past 10 years I have developed a deep concern over the deteriorating conditions for the off-campus college student. With my experience I feel I can improve these conditions."

Charlene Zierbe is a 21 year old senior from Kimberly majoring in Psychology. She is running for the District 2 Senate seat.

"I feel I am qualified to run for a Student Senate position because I am concerned about the direction that this University, and other Universities are headed in. The University must be relevant, and it is ultimately up to the students how worthwhile their education will be. We must be directed toward more than job training.

We must also encourage interest and participation in current issues, and follow through by expressing and pursuing these ideas. These chances for expression must come in the classroom as well as in extra-curricular activities. I feel Student Senate can be as effective and worthwhile as the students want it to be.

Student Government must be able to stimulate concern about local issues that affect all of us, such as use of student funds, getting needed teacher evaluations, and having a say in administrative decisions directed at the students.

From their Senator, the students should demand responsible representation and effective communication in their district and from the Senate as a whole. This is why I feel I am capable of being a Senator from the 2nd District."

The Senate ought to have control over all their financial matters. Senate allocations should be controlled by no one except the Senate itself.

Finally, I came straight from a High School Council that wanted to do things for its students but was held in check by higher authority and red tape. I can not watch the same thing happen here. Power to the people."

Phillip Kolodziej is a 22 year old Jr. from Stevens Point majoring in Sociology. He is running for the Senate seat of District 1.

I believe the Student Senate should be a representative voice of all the students and not just a few. In the past the students have not been involved in most activities that are important to the operation of the University. I think this should be changed.

Such issues as acquisition of funds to departments, students involved in department-faculty committees and pass-fail options should be the concern of all students. This can only be if the students care enough to voice their opinions to their senators.

The best qualifications I can think of for a Student Senator is to be able to listen and to be available to the students he represents and be representative of their views.

Chris Zinda is an 18 year old Freshman majoring in Library Science. She is from Stevens Point and is running for the 2nd District Senate seat.

I have lived in Stevens Point for 13 years and have worked on campus for 2 1/2 years. Because of this I am very aware of the need for an improvement in relations between the community and students. Off-campus housing should definitely be looked into.

Another relationship to be checked into is the student-faculty relationship and participation at faculty meetings is a start. The Senate should have one or two representatives with voting power attending also. In the same manner faculty members should be allowed at student meetings with similar voting powers if they wish.

My qualifications for Student Senate are:

- 1. Last year's Freshman Student Senator
- 2. Winner of 2 Leadership Awards
- 3. Strong believer in Student Power and Rights
- 4. 1968 winner of Milwaukee's Racial Peace Effort award from the Mayor.
- 5. Former Student Body President of Custer High-Milwaukee
- 6. Vice-President of Milwaukee's Inter-High Council
- 7. I have always worked in Student Government organization since 7th grade.
- 8. Member of the committee to end women's dorm hours last year
- 9. Also a member of the Student Welfare Committee (Worked on march for Mr. Hatch and march on Draft Board)
- 10. Lobbied to get back tax for students after 4 percent tax became law
- 11. Member of the Milwaukee Youth Clean-up campaign

If elected I hope to set up a committee to work with and watch Madison, and all laws which affect students. In short a legislative committee.

Also, I plan a close look at the increase in parking costs on campus and what the student will get from it. Also parking closer to the classroom building.

I plan on studying a new form of taking final exams, make them worth while.

Also, I would like a value judgement on the powers and duties of the Senate to see if it is worth its while or just a social organization with no control or power.

Finally, I would like to see communication increased on this campus between student, teacher, President and city.

Most of all I would like to represent the 4th District.

"I have had some experience dealing with student councils in high school. I participated in some council meetings in high school and know how parliamentary procedure is carried on.

The issues I wish to deal with are the ones the students of my district are concerned with. I am an extension of them. I have known their feelings to the senate and the school, whatever they are concerned about. I am concerned about, therefore the issues I am basically concerned with are the ones of the students I represent."

Bill Hamilton is an 18 year old Sophomore German major from Waukesha. He is running for the District 4 Senate seat.

"My major qualification for Student Senate would probably be I am a student and am interested in what is happening here. I have had experience in student government before, but that means nothing in the university situation.

I believe the Student Senate should take a more active part in regulating the university's policies. There should be a minimum of talking. The emphasis should be on action. I think last time there was too much talk with too little decided. I also believe there was a sizeable segment of the student body last year that did not have anyone representing their views."

"If elected to the Student Senate, I will attempt to promote action on the following issues:

High food prices and poor service in the Gridiron in addition to outrageous prices in the bookstore. A possible solution would be a co-operative student organization in these areas.

Being concerned about the pollution of our environment, I advocate an all-campus campaign to eliminate all unnecessary waste material, such as can vending machines, paper cups and plates in the Gridiron, etc.

In order to keep the landlords from ripping off the off-campus students, I advocate the establishment of a Review Board for off-campus housing and in addition to a set of minimum standards.

I am heartily against R.O.T.C. on campus and will do my best within the Senate to bring about its removal.

Also the Health Service staff has not grown along with the increasing needs of the campus. This situation must be remedied.

In addition, upper classmen should not be required to have advisors sign their program card. This will give advisors more time to spend with lower-classmen who are more likely to need assistance in the choosing of classes.

And last, but not least, I will push for prompt action by the Board of Regents in regard to beer in the Union."

"I was a member of the Senate last year as a freshman class representative. I served on the welfare and public relations committees and the newly formed committee of further pursuit. I was also on a student-faculty honor committee. I feel I have gained many new insights into the structure and operations of this University which will help me deal with issues facing the Senate this year.

The most crucial problem the Senate faces is the gap in student government-student body contact. The student body must be informed on Senate activities, which in turn will require a larger public relations committee within the Senate. The Senate can then be an effective voice of student opinion on such issues as degree requirements, academic advising, housing, programs of study, etc. The Senate will be able to use the full extent of its power if not increase it.

Secondly, the Senate must work on following up the resolutions it does pass on, and if the most effective body it can be under its present form. I feel these two points will help to bring the Senate into its proper perspective in the University Community.

Eugene Patoka is a 21 year old Junior majoring in Art. He is running for the senate seat of District 1.

Steve Elsenhauer is a Biology major from Minneapolis. He is running for the District 1 senate seat.

"To introduce possible solutions to many of the student-oriented problems such as the following:

Reduced and reasonable prices in the student union.

The bookstore rip-off.

To promote ecologically sound changes in the university practices in order to decrease amounts of waste.

Student participation in academic affairs."

Paul Wurzinger is a 22 year Senior from Milwaukee majoring in English. He is running for the Senate seat of District 1.

"Introduce resolution approving, on moral and ethical grounds, the "May uprisings."

Introducing resolution asking Student Senate to comment on morality of R.O.T.C. on campus.

Introducing resolution asking Student Senate to comment on those "young, irresponsible" members who participated in local strike and also, the student involved.

selection of books. Specific departments in mind are the English and History Departments.

Students participate in selection of books in University Store and become involved in setting cost.

Expand present inadequate courses in Third World Culture (Blacks, Indians, Chicanos, etc.)

Find some way to attract companies to come into Stevens Point and build housing.

Either drastically revamp or eliminate the present tenure policy. Replace it with a more democratic and honest way of evaluating a teacher's competency.

Attempt to set up a "Harrod" environment in the dormitories. Completely revamp the present totalitarian method of student intimidation in the dormitory.

Investigate the outrageous prices charged at the dorms and in the gridiron.

College activities that, I feel, qualify me for Student Senate are R.H.C. representative, tutor for two years, B.C. co-captain, Hall Council member, Student Assistant and A.B.C. team member."

Dave Benson is an 18 year old Freshman from Fond du Lac majoring in Political Science. He is running for the senate seat of District 3.

"I was president of the second largest club at a high school of two thousand last year, and we were extremely active. I am a generally concerned person with world and domestic problems, and I am truly interested in working on Student Senate. I would like to get the experience and a better idea of Student Senate and campus problems."

As a new student, I have heard that platform-many problems face the University today, yet most of these problems stem from the same common source, the apathetic attitude of students, faculty and administration. To have improvement there must be involvement and without improvement the University is no longer a center of learning and new ideas.

There are two main reasons for this apathy-lack of interest and lack of communications. I feel that it is the responsibility of the Student Senate to try to overcome these problems and get all members of the University involved in constructive, not destructive action aimed at improving the University.

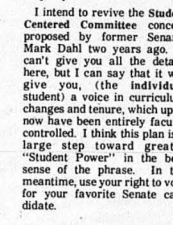

Dale Becker is a 21 year old Senior from Stevens Point majoring in Biology. He is running for the Senate Seat of District 1.

The population explosion on this campus has made communication between administration and students nearly impossible. Mr. "Red Vest" has no time to listen to 8,600 individual student opinions. It's the duty of the Student Senator to bridge that "gripe gap" between the individual student and the administration block.

I believe in supporting those students vocal enough to express their views to their representatives. I will not support a silent, sleeping populous, even if it is a majority.

I intend to revive the Student Centered Committee concept proposed by former Senator Mark Dahl two years ago. I can't give you all the details here, but I can say that it will give you, (the individual student) a voice in curriculum changes and tenure, which up to now have been entirely faculty controlled. I think this plan is a large step toward greater "Student Power" in the best sense of the phrase. In the meantime, use your right to vote for your favorite Senate candidate.

Susan Perry, an 18-year-old Freshman majoring in Political Science is from Stevens Point. She is running for the Senate seat in District 3.

Bev George, a 20-year-old Junior from Rice Lake majoring in Business Administration & Economics is running for the District 3 Senate seat.

Since I have already served on the Student Senate for two years, I would list that experience as my main qualification. During that time I have served on the Committee on Committees (which deals with student-faculty committees), the Organization Recognition Board, and the Welfare Committee, as well as representing the Senate at several state-wide & national conferences.

As far as a specific platform, I can't say that I have one as such. There are several changes that I would like to see made on this campus and whichever of these the Senate chooses to work on, I would support. First, I think that the students and only the students should determine the allocation of the student-activity fee. It's our money, we should determine how it is spent. Of course there are the time-worn issues like greater coordination between committees, both student & faculty, better food service, better book store & lessening phy. ed. requirements. The big change I would like to see is more feedback from students so we, as Senators, know what you want.

DAVE JENSEN

I was just asked by a staff member of The Pointer to state what I think are the main issues on campus and how I feel towards them. I was instructed to express my opinion in 150 words or less. I do not mean to discredit The Pointer but I find it extremely difficult to fulfill this task within this limitation. I feel that it is more important to you, the student, that I explain why I am running for this position. I consider this to be more important than the issues because too often I have seen candidates make promises and not follow through on them. I am not going to promise you anything except that I will try my hardest to represent the students of the 4th District. I know that for the past two years the students have not been truly represented. Now is your opportunity to have your opinion voiced.

Melvie Dahl, an 18-year-old Freshman from Janesville, majoring in Political Science, is running for the District 3 Senate seat.

I wish to represent the people who voice their opinions by serving on the Student Senate. With an opportunity to be actively involved I would relate with fellow students, keep them informed, discover their wants, convey their wants, and fight for their needs and wants. I would introduce new ideas. Informed people are interested people I will keep my district informed.

It is estimated that at least one out of every five people should wear an Emergency Medical Identification signal device about their neck or wrist to call attention to special needs and an emergency. This signal device should have the Universal Symbol of Emergency Medical Identification on one side and a few words identifying the individual's problems or needs on the other. Many hundred Mark Gnadt, a 19-year-old, sophomore English major from St. Nazianz is running for the Senate seat in District 4.

I am presently serving as vice-president of Smith Hall council. The problem that most often confronts our policies is apathy. Can we blame students for not taking interest when as incoming freshmen they are confronted by student organizations that appear to be in the state of confusion. The most prominent example being the handling of the election. Three days before the election and most students are not aware of what districts they are in. The candidates views are first published the day of the election.

To avoid situations like this occurring, I see it as my duty as a representative to not only represent the views of those in my district, but also to communicate Student Senate policies.

Joanne Allers, an 18-year-old Home Ec. Education major is a Freshman from Downers Grove, Illinois. She is running for the Senate seat in District 1.

I oppose the silent majority and I wish to make all attempts to break it down. A student governing organization should represent all viewpoints of the student body. I, if elected, will represent the feelings of those students who voice their opinions.

possible problems can be divided into four basic groups:

- a. Diseases that cause an emergency such as epilepsy, heart attacks, and diabetes.
- b. Substances to which an individual is allergic or reacts unfavorably and should not be used, such as horse serum and tetanus antitoxin, and certain medicines.
- c. Substances which the individual must have, even though unconscious such as insulin, cortisone, and anticoagulants.
- d. Communication problems, such as deafness or hard of hearing, a foreign language, very old age.

Every individual, whether or not he wears a signal device, should carry an identification card indicating who he is, his immunization status, especially against tetanus, whom to call in an emergency and the details of the information that may be on his signal device. The Universal Symbol has received international recognition since it was originally adopted by the World Medical Association. Many corporations and organizations either manufacture for sale or distribute durable signal devices, indirectly through jewelry, drug, department, or book stores.

Dr. John W. Gardner probably said it best, "We are all faced with a series of great opportunities—brilliantly disguised as insoluble problems."

Capitalism Brings Decline In Latin America

Capitalism and Underdevelopment in Latin America was written by Andre Frank who was formerly economic advisor to Barry Goldwater in 1964. The book explores the process by which capitalism has established itself and how it is causing a decline in the economic of Latin American countries. Frank underlines the basic premise of the book in his introduction: "Capitalism produced underdevelopment in the past and still generates underdevelopment in the present." It is a highly technical account of these faltering economies, but Frank does an especially good job with Chile and Brazil which are two of the supposedly more advanced countries in Latin America. He graphically describes how the Indians of many of these countries, especially Peru, are being kept out of the mainstream of economic life by the establishment of capitalism. It is an important book, and if you are at all concerned about the problems of Latin America, it is essential reading.

Mastering The Draft

Copyright 1970 by John Striker and Andrew Shapiro

The "Stalling" Trap and the I-S(C)

The last column explained how a student can gamble on his lottery number by staying I-A through December 31. By that date, if the student's number has not been reached, he will descend to "second priority" in the lottery pool. Even if his number is reached before December 31, and he receives an induction order, his gamble will not prove a disaster. He will simply obtain a I-S(C) deferment and have his induction order cancelled. (Remember, the I-S(C) is available once to any full-time college student who, while satisfactorily pursuing his studies, receives an induction order.)

Unfortunately the consequences of obtaining a I-S(C) are dangerously misunderstood. Some draft board members regard the I-S(C) as a "stalling" device that calls for prompt induction as soon as the student becomes I-A again.

The source of this misunderstanding is an obscure proviso in the new lottery regulations. Although these regulations were promulgated by President Nixon last November, the impact of the proviso will be felt for the first time during the next six months.

The proviso warns: "...That any registrant classified...I-A or ... I-A-O (i.e., a C.O. available for noncombatant service) ... whose (lottery) number has been reached, and who would have been ordered to report for induction except for delays due to a pending personal appearance, appeal, pre-induction physical examination, reclassification, or otherwise, shall if and when found acceptable and when such delay is concluded, be ordered to report for induction..."(32 C.F.R. S1631.7a, emphasis added).

This proviso is designed to trap the man whose lottery number was reached during his delay and who would have been sent an induction order except for the delay. While the delay persists, the man will be temporarily passed over. In effect, the issuance of his induction order is merely postponed.

That order will eventually fall like a Sword of Damocles. As soon as the delay ends, and the man is I-A (or I-A-O), the draft board will drop back to his lottery number. He will then be caught by the "stalling" trap and faced with belated "Greetings."

At first blush, the proviso seems to raise a serious question about the I-S(C): Does a "delay due to a ... reclassification" occur whenever a student is reclassified from I-A (or I-A-O) to I-S(C)? If so the student might justly fear an inevitable induction order soon after his I-S(C) expires.

Some draft board members are under the impression that "reclassification" into I-S(C) falls within the scope of the proviso. In other words, the "reclassification" has delayed the induction of a student that would otherwise have been accomplished.

This interpretation is dead wrong—although it probably will not be challenged in court until, at least, next summer (perhaps, by one of you). Even assuming a student's I-S(C) is a "reclassification," no board member can correctly characterize the student as one "who would have been ordered to report for induction except for delays due to a ... reclassification..." This fact should be transparently clear from the very nature of the I-S(C): A student cannot even qualify for the I-S(C), unless he has actually received an induction order. Therefore, he could never be characterized as one who "would have been" ordered to report. By definition the student has, in fact, been ordered to report; and this definition excludes the student from the specific terms of the proviso.

If your board mistakenly springs the "stalling" trap on you next year after your I-S(C) expires, consult a lawyer immediately. Your board will have acted in a "blatantly lawless" manner, and you should be able to get into court and enjoy your induction. (In future columns we will have much more to say about the availability of preinduction judicial relief.)

The next column will discuss one last handicap facing the student who gambles on the lottery. Even though he does not seek a II-S, his board may, nevertheless, classify him II-S.

This potential difficulty requires special attention.

JOBS

The Placement Center urges all January graduates to initiate a Placement file as soon as possible. The current economic situation is such that many graduates can reasonably expect difficulty in locating satisfactory employment. The Placement Center is ready with a new shipment of College Placement Annuals and all Senior students should stop in today and pick up a copy. Our records indicate that students who have interviewed through the Placement Center have been more successful in obtaining employment in the past several years compared to those who have ignored interviews and sought employment on their own. Early indications are that companies expect few vacancies and a continued tightening of the economy that will severely hamper employment opportunities for most students. Therefore, we urge all January and June graduates to contact the Placement Center concerning their vocational futures as soon as possible.
