Be Individuals, Sharp Tells W.S.U. Graduates

"The first and finest privilege you possess as educated men and women is individuality," asserted Paul Sharp, president of Drake University in an address to the largest class ever to graduate from Wisconsin State University-Stevens Point.

"Every college or university of consequence in the free world encourages you in your search to find yourself," Sharp told the 475 graduates, including three candidates for a master of science degree in teaching.

Sharp addressed the WSU graduates during the 72nd annual commencement exercises which were held in front of Old Main.

"Self-direction and self-confidence come from such basic conquests as self-acceptance, self-understanding and self-control" the speaker said.

Often he pointed out, this search for individuality is nurtured on the American university campus "in an environment of freedom, in which false starts and mistakes are tolerated."

Sharp warned that "We must not confuse individuality with crackpottery or eccentricity in our concern to protect its values. 'A loud voice, a bold face and a bad temper,' he said, quoting from Carlyle, 'do not comprise individuality.'"

Nor should individuality be confused with self-centeredness or self-righteousness, the speaker declared.

"To develop individuality is to enrich the community, not impoverish it, to release the constructive forces of freedom and growth, not restrict them, and to protect individuality is to release creative energies, not suppress them."

"You will succeed when you consciously keep the uses of knowledge close to the meanings of life," Sharp told the graduates.

"Our wisdom grows as we comprehend the limits of our freedom. We Americans are learning belatedly what most men throughout history have known from bitter experience — the privilege of individuality is a rare one, and the forces seeking its destruction always threaten."

Sharp urged the graduates to "continue thinking," that too much is at stake for man and freedom "to tolerate a waste of intellectual and spiritual resources in their lives."

He told the graduates that their generation can "fulfill the long-overdue expectations of a disillusioned world," for more than any other generation in history, "you are sensitive to the power and dignity of ideas."

"We need your knowledge, your identity, your skills and your idealism — and we need them now," Sharp concluded.

Gordon Haferbecker, vice-president for academic affairs made the honors announcement, during which all graduating seniors with a grade point average of 3.2 and over were asked to stand for audience recognition.

The bleacher and ground seats were packed, and the sun shone brightly as the president of WSU-Stevens Point, James H. Albertson, presented the graduates with their degrees.

In his charge to the graduates which followed, Albertson reminded the group that they were freshmen at the time he came to the university four years ago, and made his first graduation charge.

"You and your university have both changed, have grown and have matured," he noted, citing the physical growth of the university both in number of students and faculty, as well as new buildings, and expanded curriculum offerings.

"The success of the past four years will be measured in the days to come.

"To be educated is not to have arrived," the president stressed, "but to travel with a different view."

Mrs. Mary Williams, member of the state Board of Regents, presented the three candidates, Alleyne Bennett, William Koch and Leonard Marko, with their master of science degrees in teaching.

A lawn reception for the graduates and their guests followed the exercises.

Expanding Graduate Program

The fall term marks the initiation of an academic year full-time graduate program. Scholarships and assistantships have been granted to a number of students but unfortunately the number of applications was less than the number allotted. Each alum should give serious consideration to the value of the advanced degree in terms of promotions and total earning power. Beginning teachers especially may be able to enjoy many years of greater financial reward and professional satisfaction.

The master's program is a thirty-credit program. The MST includes work in three basic areas; professional education, liberal arts foundations and an area of specialization. There is a good possibility that the MA and MS programs may be inaugurated within the year. They will include a greater emphasis on work in the student's major area. Authorization of the programs has been approved by the Coordinating Committee of Higher Education. Course work applicable to all programs will be available on Saturdays, evenings and late afternoons to enable teachers and other interested personnel to further their academic training.

Eleven area teachers received their master's degrees in August. They are:

Mary Jo Buggs, Stevens Point
Gertrude Dixon, Stevens Point
Patrick Folgert, Green Bay
Dorothea Harju, Wisconsin Rapids
Michael Hodgis, Marathon
John Kinnett, Sturgeon Bay
Gloria Lagrew, Port Edwards
John Lehman, New London
Rosemary Nelson, Wausau
Mary Ann Powell, Stevens Point
Russell Rahn, Wausau

W.S.U. Project Aims at Better Teaching

With a $50,000 federal grant, Wisconsin State University-Stevens Point, in cooperation with WSU-La Crosse, River Falls, Stout and Whitewater, will start a research project aimed at improving undergraduate instruction.

The project coordinator, Dr. William H. Clements, WSU-Stevens Point director of institutional research and studies, said that the program is one of five pilot studies this year in the United States.

In the first phase, the state universities will work together in an area common among all five schools. Pooling faculty resources and educational materials, the schools will attempt to improve the quality of instruction in a basic course.

In the second phase, using some of the findings of the co-operative study, each school will conduct its own research program.

From these individual studies, Dr. Clements commented, the educational research methods will be passed on to faculty members to continue their own research projects.

The grant is from the Cooperative Development (CORD) of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Efforts to obtain the grant for the local university began last year, Dr. Clements said. WSU President James Albertson, concerned that the state universities, though engaged primarily in teaching education, for the most part "do not have a well-developed capacity and appreciation of educational research," suggested a CORD proposal.

The proposal, written by Dr. Kurt Schmeller, WSU assistant to the president, was submitted to HEW, and Dr. Albertson and Dr. Schmeller made a trip to Washington, D.C., seeking federal support for the study. The proposal was approved in June.

Final arrangements were completed when Dr. Clements, appointed project coordinator, met in Washington with Dr. John T. Blue Jr., chief of the research development branch, Bureau of Research for HEW.

Paul Kelch, WSU director of data processing, will be controller for the study.

W.S.U. Men's Glee Club Sings At U.S. Capitol

Keeping up with the tradition established some years ago, the University Men's Glee Club again this year took its annual Spring Vacation Tour, April 1-11, to Washington, D.C. where they spent the entire week.

At the invitation of Congressman Melvin Laird the group of twenty-five voices sang on the House steps of the Capitol and at the Pentagon Concourse. They also gave an evening concert of sacred music at the Bethany Lutheran Church. The pastor, Rev. Clarence Solberg and his wife are both WSU alums. The boys were entertained at dinner preceding the concert and later at a reception. Included in the large audience were alumni and friends of the University. Dr. Rolf Larson and his wife and Colonel Edwin Loberg and his wife, all alums, were present.

A Greyhound bus was chartered for the trip. During the week the boys visited the House while in session, Melvin Laird's private office, where they also were received by Carl Wallace, Mr. Laird's Administrative Assistant, formerly Secretary of the Stevens Point Chamber of Commerce. Scarcely any of the major government buildings were overlooked, and the beauty of the cherry blossoms, which were in bloom at the time, were not omitted by the cameras. One of the highlights was the boat trip down the Potomac to Mt. Vernon.

This trip was the second one for the Glee Club to the nation's capitol; the first one in 1963 where the boys sang in the Senate Rotunda before continuing on a tour to Florida.

In addition to the Spring Tour, the Glee Club presented its annual Spring Concert in the University Auditorium. Short trips have been taken to neighboring high schools at Mosinee and Rosholt.

The same director, Norman E. Knutzen, has been with the Glee Club for the thirty-second year. During these years more than 1000 WSU men have been active members. The club has traveled more than 150,000 miles, and has sung over 300 concerts, off campus, including two appearances at the World's Fair, in 1939 and 1964. They have sung at West Point Academy, Denver, Colorado, New Orleans, Louisiana, and three times in Chicago, Miami, and Milwaukee. Concerts "on the way" were planned in Minnesota, Michigan, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Georgia.

The GLEE CLUB looks forward to another busy year in 1966-67.

Tentative Campus Projects Outlined

A $5 million construction program on the Wisconsin State University-Stevens Point campus during the 1967-69 biennium was outlined recently in Madison at a Board of Regents meeting.

Described as "very tentative" by WSU President James H. Albertson, it was offered for information purposes by the regents' staff and was not acted on. It was part of a $39 million proposal covering all nine state universities.

Projects recommended for the Stevens Point campus include:

—A $1.8 million, 81,000 square foot addition to the physical education building. Plans are indefinite, said Albertson, but the extra space would probably be mostly physical instructional area.

—A $345,000 remodeling project at the present library, which will be replaced by a new learning resources center to be started next year. The library will probably be converted to administrative offices, academic areas and conference and convention areas.

—A $2.2 million, 102,000 square foot classroom building. It would most likely be built west of the Campus School, said Albertson, and probably house such departments as conservation and home economics. The classroom building, the president said, would be part of the process of phasing out Old Main, long regarded as obsolete.

—A $320,000 maintenance building with an area of 20,000 square feet, to be built in the area of the university heating plant.

—A $418,000 central stores building covering 28,000 square feet, to be used as a distribution point for academic and maintenance materials. Possibly, said Albertson, it will be part of the maintenance building.

Also in the 1967-69 spending proposal is $30,000 to strengthen the electrical distribution system on campus.

Approved by the regents were student housing and food service facilities for Stevens Point—including the first housing for married students.

The projects are to be financed by federal loans and will be self-amortizing.

Albertson said 64 married housing units, probably divided among eight buildings, will be constructed, with completion due in 1968.

Also planned are four residence halls for 1,080 students and a residence center (food service building). One of the residence halls will be built near the halls now being erected west of the heating plant.

The others, along with the residence center and the married student's housing, will be constructed to the north.

In other action, the regents:

—Authorized WSU-Stevens Point to begin offering two freshman courses as an extension program in Antigo this fall.

—Turned over the Coordinating Committee for Higher Education competing proposals from Platteville and Stevens Point to offer architectural courses.

—Referred to the Coordinating Committee a WSU-Stevens Point plan to offer an undergraduate major in philosophy.

Men's Glee Club History Available to Alums

At the request of President Albertson a history of the Men's Glee Club: "Thirty Years Of Singing" was compiled by the Director of the Glee Club with the able assistance of a long time Glee Club friend, Leland M. Burroughs. The brochure is largely a story of the activities of the organization from 1932 to the present. Copies of this history are available to alumni of the Glee Club and of this school. They will be mailed to anyone enclosing a small donation to cover the cost of printing and mailing.

Address your requests to: Norman E. Knutzen, Room 248, Main Hall, WSU.

Our Invitation to All Point Alums

Would you enjoy a tour of the changing campus at WSU-Stevens Point, meet old classmates and faculty? Well here's your chance. Homecoming is rapidly approaching (Oct. 13, 14, 15) and many activities are being planned for you. This is your personal invitation to a very interesting and delightful weekend.

Starting Thursday the Queen's Assembly will get underway at the Fieldhouse. On Friday evening the entertainment program features the Roof Top Singers, with Queen Coronation at intermission. Saturday is the big day for you and the more than 5,000 students at WSU. Activities begin Saturday morning with Alumni Registration scheduled at 9:00 a.m. in the University Center and the Homecoming Parade at 10:00 a.m. The big football game against Superior gets underway at 1:30. Immediately following the game an Alumni Coffee Hour is planned with tours of the Campus scheduled.

"A Look At Yesteryears" — Attention All 25 and 50 Year Graduates of WSU, St. Pt. Homecoming this year is to include a special event for you. If you are a member of the class of 1916 or 1941, we urge you to make a special effort to attend our Homecoming on October 15. The Alumni Coffee Hour for all Alumni is being dedicated to the graduates of '16 and '41. You are urged to bring with you any souvenir you may have from your undergraduate days such as your yearbook, penant, or other remembrances. These materials will help to enrich our presentation of "A Look at Yesteryears" an enjoyable experience. Your assistance will help us to make it so.

Other activities include sorority and fraternity banquets early Saturday evening followed by the Homecoming Dance.

We hope this years Homecoming will be one of the best for our alums and to make it possible we need your support. Tell your alumni friends about this weekend and bring the family. Everyone is invited. I hope you can come and enjoy Homecoming with us. We are looking forward to seeing you.

Here is a list of events and their hours. May we suggest that you make a copy for your use.

Architects Cite University for Building Design

An Owner Architectural Award for "distinguished accomplishment in architecture" was recently presented to WSU-Stevens Point by the Wisconsin Chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

The award was given for the Allen Residence Center on Reserve Street, designed by Oshkosh architects Theodore H. Irion and Leonard H. Reinke, and was made in classification II of the competition (projects from $100,000 to $500,000).

The citation was presented to the university by the Wisconsin architects "in the knowledge that the execution of a well designed building requires the agreement and enthusiastic inspiration of an understanding owner."

The Allen Residence Center provides dining service and kitchen facilities for 1,200 persons. In executing the building, the architects were required to allocate space for a future lounge and snack bar and to furnish access from residence halls on the two sides.

The judges said the designers had provided a "simple and economical solution to a complex circulation and equipment problem" and praised them for "good handling of material, proportions and detailing."

W.S.U. Staff Has 100 New Members

About 100 new faculty and staff members assumed duties in September at WSU-Stevens Point. Some fill vacancies created by 16 instructors on teacher improvement leave and 29 faculty resignations.

Attending the University of Wisconsin for graduate study during their leaves of absence are: Mrs. Helen Corneli, Arlo Moehlenpah, Orville Rice, Herbert Sandmann (first semester), Carolyn Sands, Morjorie Schelfhout, Richard Schneider (second semester), and Howard Thoyre. Dr. Lawrence Kallander is also at the University of Wisconsin, but as a visiting professor.

Mark Cates and Duaine Counsell went to Indiana University for graduate work. Gregory Kulas attends the University of Tennessee, and John Larsen attends the University of Wyoming. Doris Davis is also continuing her graduate work.

Dr. Frank Crow teaches at St. Andrew's University in Scotland on an exchange program. Dr. Robert Knowlton attends the University of Texas for research in United States and Latin American libraries.

Donald Aylesworth and Robert Engelhard attend school at Michigan State. David White is going to the University of Wisconsin.

From Your Placement Office

The teacher shortage in Wisconsin, as well as in many other states, has been the most critical for several years. Requests continue to come for teachers though our supply has been exhausted for some time. Only those teachers who need to remain in a limited area where no vacancy is currently available in their area of specialization have not accepted a position. The placement office has contacted all graduates who have indicated a desire to consider a new position among the many vacancies reported. Only a few have not reported the new position accepted.

The number of alumni who requested up-dating of their placement file this year increased nearly 400 per cent. Excellent promotional opportunities were available for those who sought a new opportunity. Other alums are encouraged to write in early for the necessary forms for up-dating their credentials and to activate their file for placement service in the early spring. This service is available without charge to all WSU-Stevens Point alumni.

Pointers who have completed graduate study and wish to receive notices of excellent positions at the college and university levels are urged to arrange to update their credentials for these promotional opportunities. The number of vacancies reported at this level increases each year.

A recent report from the office of the Board of Regents of State Universities, reporting the number of graduate students enrolled at each institution, lists WSU-Stevens Point at the bottom of the list. Though the number is increasing each year, it would appear that fewer graduates of WSU-Stevens Point are recognizing the value of graduate study available and perhaps missing some excellent promotional opportunities. May we encourage your contacting the Dean of the Graduate School, WSU, Stevens Point, Wis. for details of these programs.

A supplementary placement service is now available to all Pointers who are graduates of the Schools of Applied Arts and Science, Letters and Science, and Fine Arts. A resume is prepared for all interested in this service which is sent to a data-processing center in Pennsylvania. Here it is taped and matched with job description criteria submitted by industries, government agencies, etc. with staff needs. Each graduate is then notified of those positions which match his qualifications. There is no charge for this service which greatly expands the area of job opportunities to those participating. A request for additional information and the necessary forms will receive the prompt attention of the placement office.

A word of caution to those planning to consider a new position: Be sure to activate your placement file before making formal application for a new position. As soon as you apply for a position, a request is sent to the placement office for your up-dated credentials including an evaluation of your present work. These should be up-dated and ready to send an employer promptly. Much delay is experienced when the placement office finds it necessary to report that your record is not up-to-date and must contact you for this information including the sending for evaluations and processing your records. Early planning will prevent this problem.

All Pointers are reminded of the importance of keeping their address up-to-date. Communications will then reach you promptly. It is equally important that all alums keep the placement office informed when a new position has been accepted. The reputation of the alum as well as that of the placement office is not enhanced when an alum is referred to an employer who finds when a contact has been made that a position has already been accepted. This experience should be avoided.

Your placement office is always ready to serve you.

Fine Arts European Tour Proposed — Summer School '67

Would you like to spend next summer in Europe and earn college credit? Plans are now in the formative stage for a Fine Arts European Tour during the summer of 1967. Already numerous inquiries are reaching the office of Fine Arts Dean Robert Cantrick. The tour is planned to accommodate at least 30 persons, and about 15 have indicated interest in the short time since the first announcement was made August 1.

Present plans call for six weeks in Europe and two weeks on campus. The two weeks on campus might be before, after, or split. The dates of the tour will be approximately the same as the dates of the summer session, with the slight possibility of starting a little earlier or later. In any event, the tour would not interfere with closing dates of the public or parochial schools in the spring nor with opening dates in the fall.

The itinerary has been carefully selected by a committee of three fine arts faculty members. Alice Peet of speech and drama, Henry Runke of art, and Donald Rupert of music. This group has spent about a year planning a genuine educational experience for tour members, including visits to the major art, drama, and music centers of the Old World.

The cost of the tour is not yet completely determined. The possibility of charter rates is being explored in cooperation with the other state universities. At the present time a rough estimate would place the total cost between $1000 and $2000 per person, including all fares, tuition fees, room and board, and personal expenses. This is only a preliminary figure, and more definite information will be forthcoming.

For further information contact Dean Cantrick.

Kroner Heads W.S.U. Language Center

Dr. Peter Kroner, professor of foreign language, has been named the director of the Wisconsin State University-Stevens Point Language Center by WSU president, James H. Albertson.

The purpose of the center is to provide leadership in foreign languages on a state-wide basis. It will do research for the improvement of the methods, media, techniques in teaching languages and the preservation of established languages, and will provide professional and material assistance to foreign language teachers in the field. The Center will work with foreign language departments, campus laboratory schools, education departments, teachers of foreign languages in the state by means of conferences, workshops, and institutes.

One unusual project planned for the future is the establishment of a course in English at WSU as a foreign language for foreign students. The Language Center will also establish an annual workshop for foreign language teachers.

It will provide exchange service between American and foreign countries for teachers and students, and will establish National Defense Education Act institutes. It is planned that the Center will establish a foreign language camp for high school students. It will also offer foreign language courses to help prospects for Ph.D. degrees fulfill language requirements.

A highlight of the program will be visits by councils and attaches from the diplomatic corps of various foreign countries.

Dr. Kroner, who came to WSU-Stevens Point in 1954, has A. B. and M. A. degrees from the University of Bucharest, and a Ph.D. from the University of Erlangen.

He is originally from Bucharest, Roumania. Mrs. Kroner is from Denmark. The Kroners have two sons, Sven, 19, and Klaus, 23.

Foreign Language Institute Held At W.S.U.

The first Foreign Language Institute, sponsored by the Department of Public Instruction, NDEA Title III was held at Wisconsin State University - Stevens Point, from June 6 through June 17, 1966.

Teachers of French, German, and Spanish were invited to participate and to work on individual projects designed to strengthen their methods of teaching foreign languages.

At the time of registration, the participants were required to indicate the areas of special interest and problems pertaining to their target language from a list of nine-suggested topics: Basic Linguistics; Culture; Language Drill; Language Laboratory; Methods and Curriculum Development;

Phonetics; Programmed Learning; Individual Instruction; Audio-Visual Aids.

The following resource consultants were selected by Mr. F.M. Grittner Supervisor of Modern Foreign Languages in Wisconsin, and Dr. P. A. Kroner, Coordinator of the Institute and Chairman of the Foreign Language Department, WSU - Stevens Point: (1) Mr. J. E. Devine for French and Linguistics, (2) Mrs. Gretl B. Lechause for German, (3) Mr. S.P. Leahy, Director of the Language Lab, and (4) Mrs. Norma Rusch, Spanish Teacher at Lakeland High School in Minocqua, for Spanish. Mr. Devine, Mr. Leahy, and Mrs. Lechause are members of the staff of the University.

Gach Selected for Foreign Study Tour

John J. Gach, director of student teaching at WSU-Stevens Point accepted an invitation to join a group of 20 secondary-school administrators on a study mission to the Soviet Union and eastern Europe, March 29-April 20.

Sponsored by the National Association of Secondary-School Principals, National Education Association, the tour included schools in Soviet Russia, Rumania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Denmark, and England. The educators studied curriculum, organization, administrative and supervisory practices and teaching methods and observed classes and talked with teachers and students.

The tour allowed members to discuss their daily observations. In addition, an experienced educator, an expert on the educational system in each country visited, accompanied the group.

Official receptions were scheduled in Moscow, Leningrad, Bucharest, Sofia and Winchester.

The purpose of the tour was to obtain first hand knowledge of comparative secondary education in the five countries visited. The group functioned as a seminar team and seminar discussions followed tour observations.

The educators left New York on March 30 and arrived in Copenhagen on March 31. They spent three days in Copenhagen and then continued on to Moscow on April 3. During a five-day stay in Moscow they visited the USSR ministry of education, the Academy of Pedagogical Science for conferences with USSR education leaders, visited the Moscow sports palace, and conferred with USSR representatives of the sports program and visited the Moscow State University and met with the faculty there.

Following the stop in Moscow, the group continued on to the other countries scheduled for the tour and followed a similar pattern of observances.

Mr. Gach joined the WSU faculty in 1960. He is married and lives at 610 Sunset Ave., Park Ridge.

Paul Kelch Named Director of W.S.U. Data Processing Service

Paul Kelch, assistant professor of economics at WSU-Stevens Point, was named director of Data Processing Services, a newly created position at the university. Mr. Kelch, who officially assumed his new duties on July 1, will be in charge of an IBM 1401 computer to be installed at the university in January of 1967. The computer will perform the data processing operations now done by the WSU punch card machines, and will be used initially by the registrar and the business office.

As well as supervising these data processing operations, Mr. Kelch is also responsible for determining policy and operational needs for the computer center. Such needs include a program of information and assistance to other areas of the university including academic affairs, student affairs, library, institutional research and studies, and faculty members engaged in research projects.

According to Mr. Kelch, the university may expand future computer services to include dormitory and classroom scheduling, inventory control at the university's central store and bookstore, and university budget preparations and analysis.

Mr. Kelch joined the WSU faculty last fall. He received both

B.S. and M.A. degrees from Sul Ross State College, Alpine, Tex., and has attended Indiana and Butler Universities.

He joined the Army in 1941 as a private and retired with a rank of lieutenant colonel after 22 years of service. During his military service he supervised a program of schooling for illiterate soldiers, and also served as senior instructor in the field of comptrollership at the Finance School, U.S. Army, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. Other army assignments included duties as civil affairs officer in Okinawa and Korea; auditor and budget officer in New York; management analyst, planning officer and comptroller in Europe and finance and accounting officer, Hawaii.

Mr. Kelch had additional training in the areas of civil affairs, financial management and data processing at the Army Finance School, the Army Adjutant General School, International Business Machines Corp., Remington Rand - Univac Corp., Burroughs Corp., and Navy School of Military Government.

Prior to joining WSU he was an instructor in Data Processing and Economics at Sul Ross State College.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelch have two daughters, Jeanette, 16, and Elaine, 11.

Leon Bell Named Vice President At University

Leon E. Bell, Jr. has been appointed vice president for business affairs at WSU-Stevens Point and assumed his new duties on May 1. Formerly the director of the University Center, Bell replaced Milton Sorensen, who resigned earlier this year.

Mr. Bell joined the university staff in 1963 after his retirement from the United States Air Force. A graduate of Virginia Military Institute, he entered the Air Force at the beginning of World War II. Serving for 23 years, he retired with the rank of colonel.

Mr. Bell and his wife are parents of three children, Barbara, Leon II, and Alan, and the family also includes two nieces, Patricia and Carolyn Gray.

Ron Hachet, former director of student activities, replaced Mr. Bell as director of the University Center. A native of Goshen, Ind., Mr. Hachet attended Ball State University, Muncie, Ind., where he earned a B.S. degree in education and an M.A. in guidance counseling. He joined the WSU staff in 1962.

Mr. Hachet and his wife, Linda, are parents of a son, Christopher.

Husband and Wife Assume W.S.U. Administrative Posts

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Coker, former faculty members at Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind. have assumed new duties at Wisconsin State University - Stevens Point.

Mr. Coker, who directs the WSU counseling and psychological services is an assistant professor of education.

Mrs. Coker is the new director of WSU student activities under the Department of Student Affairs.

A native of White Hall, Ill., Mr. Coker received a bachelor of science degree from western Illinois University, Macomb, Ill., and a master of arts degree from the State University of Iowa, Iowa City.

His Ed.D. degree was completed at Indiana University where he was a counseling psychologist.

Mr. Coker replaced Carl Wiemann who is now associated with the American College Testing Program, Inc., and resides in Wheaton, Ill.

Mrs. Coker, a native of Canton, Mo., replaced Ron Hachet as director of student activities. She received a bachelor of arts degree from Culver - Stockton College in Canton, and a master of science degree from Indiana University where she was student activities adviser. She formerly taught at Quincy Junior High School, Quincy, Ill.

Steiner Gets W.S.U. Center Appointment

The appointment of Oliver (Bud) Steiner as assistant director of the University Center was announced by Dr. James Albertson, WSU-Stevens Point president.

Mr. Steiner, former games room manager at the university center, in his new position assists Ron Hachet, center director, in administration, scheduling, employee training, maintenance, food service and expansion at the center.

The son of Mrs. Emma Steiner,

Park Falls, Mr. Steiner is a 1955 graduate of Park Falls High School. From 1961-63 he served with the U.S. Army, and was stationed with the 13th infantry Battalion in Mannheim, Germany.

In 1965 he received a B. S. degree from WSU-Stevens Point where he majored in math. At WSU he was a member of the 550's veterans organization and the Russian Club. He was also employed by the University Center as a Student Manager.

Recommend Land Purchase For University

A 5.81-acre land purchase for Wisconsin State University-Stevens Point was recently recommended in Madison by the Board of Regents. Final approval must come from the State Building Commission.

The property is on the west side of Isadore Street. It starts south of the two new residence halls under construction east of Isadore, and extends north almost to Maria Drive. The state has options with 10 property owners for $97,800. There are no buildings on the land.

WSU President James H. Albertson said the property will be used for parking and as a buffer between the residence halls and the business area on N. Division Street.

Four Decades of Theater

One blustery March evening forty-six years ago the curtain fronting the stage of Old Main Auditorium opened to reveal the "fashionable living-room" of a girl named Harriet. Alice Gerstenberg's exciting new play Overtones had begun, and with it the Theatre activities of Wisconsin State University - Stevens Point. Since that first production, activity and interest has made Theatre at WSU - Stevens Point an exciting experience for all concerned. With productions ranging from the great plays of the past to the latest Broadway hit, Theatre at WSU-Stevens Point has grown in entertainment excellence to become one of the finest educational theatres in Wisconsin.

The 1966-67 University Theatre Season marks an expansion program which will include a number of "firsts." The first Musical Comedy as a Theatre Major Production; the first series of student experimental plays; a first original production (combining drama with history); and the first touring children's show.

You are invited to become a Season Subscriber to University Theatre. The 1966-1967 Season features four outstanding presentations, each playing four nights. These are offered to buyers of our Season Coupon Books at a substantial reduction below the cost of regular admission. The Fantasticks

Book and Lyrics by Tom Jones
Music by Harvey Schmidt

Take young love, spice with inspired hi-jinks, blend with beautiful music, and you have a show of original spirit and wise but tender wit. "Saturday Review" called it "A Magikal Musikal—one of the best."

FANTASY March 8, 9, 10, 11

Dark of the Moon

by Howard Richardson and William Berney

This dramatization of "The Ballad of Barbara Allen" is set in the haunting valleys of the Great Smokey Mountains. Superstition, love, and witchcraft create background for a story of unusual power and beauty.

The Miser

by Moliere

When Harpagon, a miser, falls in love with the dowry of a girl his son wishes to marry, the result is hilarious comedy as only Moliere can fashion it. The miser keeps his cash, his son gets the girl, and the audience receives a dividend of sharp-edged wit and great good humor.

Throughout the school year the University Theatre presents a series of dramatic readings, experimental productions, lecture-demonstrations, and student-directed plays. All Season Subscribers are invited to attend these programs at no extra charge. Events and dates are announced in the program publication of the Major Production Series.

Residence Hall Named For O. W. Neale

A residence hall completed in August 1965 was named in honor of the late Oscar W. Neale, a long-time faculty member. The building which houses 270 students is north of Fourth Ave. on the extension of Isadore Street.

Neale, a native of Ohio, was on the faculty of WSU from 1915 until his retirement in 1944. He was director of rural education and was instrumental in establishing a rural demonstration school on the campus. In an era when hundreds of small schools still dotted the countryside, it was designed as a model of what a rural school should be.

Neale also lectured on economic theory and was a promoter of art in the schools. He authored two widely used textbooks on art.

Two years after his retirement from teaching he ran for state senator from the old Portage-Waupaca County district. He served two four-year terms in the Senate.

He continued living in Stevens Point until his death in 1957.

Mr. Neale's family was represented at the October 9, 1965 dedication by his son, Robert, Key Biscayne, Fla. and other relatives.

Miss May Roach, Eau Claire, WSU professor emeritus, paid tribute to the late Mr. Neale. "In Stevens Point, I don't need to say a single thing about Mr. Neale," said Miss Roach, declaring that a number of people here were "terribly anxious" to have a residence hall named in his memory.

"There were souls rescued by Mr. Neale," she said. "I think he did something for mine."

Although an active Baptist, said Miss Roach, it was his idea to found a Catholic students' organization on campus — the predecessor of today's Newman Club.

Near the end of her tribute Miss Roach declared, "I'm going to stop but I'm not through at all — I would write a book."

Regents Approve Promotions For 33 At W.S.U.

Promotions for 33 faculty members at WSU-Stevens Point were approved by the Board of Regents. Nine received full professorships, 12 associate professorships, and 12 assistant professorships.

Promoted from associate professor to professor were — Lloyd H. Beck, psychology; John M. Bernd, education; Abraham Chapman, English; Richard D. Face, history; Donald B. Koeppen, business education; Maurice E. Perret, geography; Henry M. Runke, art; Terrence J. Snowden, Campus School; and Mary Elizabeth Thompson, speech.

Promoted from assistant professor to associate professor were—Friedrich P. Alber, foreign languages; Oliver Andrews, chemistry; William J. Cable and Richard L. Conlon, mathematics; Robert Knowlton, history; James G. Newman, conservation; Russell L. Oliver, education; Wilfred Richert, English; Kurt Schmeller, history; Joseph L. Schuler, philosophy; Raymond A. Sommers, chemistry; and Robert C. Van Nuys, music.

Promoted from instructor to assistant professor were — Robert W. Bastian, geography; Jerome C. Coaty, Campus School; Jack G. Cohan and Tom G. Cultice, music; Eva Lou Dillin, physical education; Richard Doxtator, Paul Friedman, Hazel Koskenlinna, and Mary Shumway, English; Marvin Lang, chemistry; Carolyn A. Sands, home economics; and Allen G. Taylor, physics.

Residence Hall Named For Dr. Robert Dodge Baldwin

Dr. Robert D. Baldwin, president of WSU from 1926-30, was present when dedication ceremonies were held October 9, 1965 for a 270-student residence hall named in his honor.

The tribute to Dr. Baldwin was paid by Mrs. Palmer Taylor of Stevens Point, who came here at his request to join the Campus School staff. He had been her teacher at Cheney (Wash.) Normal School, now Eastern Washington State, and when he became president of WSU he sent for her.

"I owe Dr. Baldwin a great deal — not only my professional career but my home career," Mrs. Taylor said. "If he hadn't brought me here, I would never have met and married Palmer."

Mrs. Taylor traced Dr. Baldwin's life. Despite his urban upbringing — he was born in New York City — he had a vital interest in rural education, she noted.

Dr. Baldwin was a graduate of Princeton who received his master's degree from Columbia. He came to Stevens Point at the age of 35, just after completing work for his Ph.D. at Cornell. The college here had about 400 students then. It is past 4,500 now, and the enrollment is exploding upward at the rate of 1,000 a year.

Even in the '20s the school had budget problems, said Mrs. Taylor, and she quoted from newspaper clippings to show that Dr. Baldwin was a fighter for increased state financial support.

In 1926, she noted, he said the center wing of Old Main was obsolete. And, she added, university officials to this day are anxious to abandon it.

After he left Stevens Point, Dr. Baldwin was superintendent of the Haskell Indian Institute, Lawrence, Kan., from 1931-33, and then went to the University of West Virginia at Morgantown. He retired in 1962 as professor of education administration, but was secretary of the West Virginia School Boards Association until his second retirement in 1964. That same year he received the award for distinguished service in school administration from the American Association of School Administrators.

He still retains a lively interest in education, said Mrs. Taylor, and in fact planned to attend a school meeting in Minneapolis after leaving here.

A vigorous 74, Dr. Baldwin has two sons and daughter. His wife died in 1938.

1966-67 Alumni Directory

The alumni office plans to prepare and distribute biennially to every active alumni member a copy of a directory of all active members. The '64-'65 issue listed all active members alphabetically. The '66-'67 issue will list all active members by graduating class.

For the past year we have been attempting to reach a greater number of our alums so that we will eventually include every member of each graduating class. This is no small task, yet we are continuing our effort. The splendid support and assistance of so many alums makes our efforts most rewarding. We feel that when we have located the address, present position, personal details, such as family, scholarships and fellowships received, graduate degrees earned, etc., so that every member of a class will have a complete record of his classmates, the pleasure resulting from this record will justify our efforts.

We need your assistance however. (1) Check your listing in the '65-'66 directory. If not complete, up-to-date or inaccurate, make all changes and forward to us at an early date. (2) Send us the names and addresses, including maiden names, of all alums you may know who are not listed in the '65-'66 directory. We will contact each one for the necessary information to be included in the next directory.

Your cooperation is deeply appreciated.

Federal Grants Aid the Learning Resources Effort

Financial assistance in the form of federal grants is playing an important role in the materializing of plans for a Learning Resources Center on our campus. One major grant will aid in the construction of the building which will house the Center. In April of this year the State Coordinating Committee for Higher Education recommended allocation of a grant of $1 million to our university as part of the total construction budget of $3.2 million for the Center. In June the federal government, through the department of Health, Education and Welfare under Title I of the Higher Education Act of 1963, approved the grant. The sum of $1 million is the maximum amount allowed for any single educational effort under that title of the federal law. A grant in the same amount was given to Stout State University to be applied toward the construction of a $4.3 million science and industrial technology building. Lesser amounts were granted for construction projects at the LaCrosse, Platteville, and Superior Campuses.

This federal grant will not result in the expansion of the original plans for the Learning Resources Center. It will be included in the total appropriation the state has allocated for construction of the Center and by augmenting the total building budget for the state universities will free state monies for other building projects farther down the priority list. Construction of the center is scheduled to begin early in the spring of 1967 and should be completed within an eighteen months period. Present plans will locate the building on a piece of land near the center of the campus bordered by Stanley, Reserve, and Portage streets.

A second federal grant was secured in June. This grant in the sum of $5,000, given under Title II, Part A, of the Higher Education Act of 1965, was applied toward the purchase of library collection materials. This portion of the Higher Education Act as funded by Congress permits maximum grants of $5,000 to each qualifying institution on the basis of matching funds. Monies have also been provided for a second series of such grants in the 1966-67 fiscal year.

In addition to the above grants plans are being developed to tap federal sources for further assistance to aid various internal programs of Learning Resources. It is hoped that federal assistance can be secured for employment of additional staff to carry through the transferring of the library collection from the Dewey Decimal to the Library of Congress classification system. This project is scheduled to begin in the spring of 1967. Another program which might be supported by federal aid is the effort to save our large and valuable newspaper and periodical collections by transformation to microforms. Further assistance might be requested to aid in the establishment of a program of on-Campus educational radio and T.V. broadcasting and for equipment to expand the system of automated retrieval of programmed instruction which is being planned in the new building. All these later grants will hopefully supplement funds permitted under state budgetary financing and will thus expand facilities and programs scheduled for development in the new Center.

Senior Class of 1966 Presents Gift

A $400 gift from the Senior Class of 1966 to the WSU-Stevens Point Foundation, Inc., which will be used toward the purchase of a carillon to be named after the late John C. Thomson, was presented by Dave Cooley, West Bend, class president, to Mrs. Elmer DeBot, Foundation vice-president, and Dr. James Albertson, WSU president. The Foundation board of directors voted to initiate a program and fund drive to place the memorial carillon in the proposed Learning Resources Center as an appropriate tribute to the educational efforts of Mr. Thomson, a former member of the Board of Regents of State Colleges.

W.S.U. Graduate First Woman on Police Force

Miss Donna Ellingson, a 1959 graduate of WSU-Stevens Point and a former caseworker for the Portage County Public Welfare Department, is the first woman on the police force at Northfield, Ill., a town of 5,000 population. As she is the only woman on the force, the department is making the rules as it goes along. Her rating of policewoman is comparable to patrolman. She works the desk much of the time, taking calls and making out reports. She also makes out the work schedule, including her own "swing" shift of 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 5 p.m. to 1 a.m. work days scattered throughout the week.

Miss Ellingson took over casework duties for the Portage County Public Welfare Department following graduation in 1959. Nearly two years later she joined the state's division of corrections as a probation and parole officer and was assigned to a five-county area. In 1962 she left Wisconsin to take a position in the personnel department at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill. While there she answered a newspaper ad for a desk clerk with the Northfield Police Department.

Although policewomen are uncommon in towns the size of Northfield, the Illinois state law requires that towns of more than 16,000 persons have at least a full-time police matron.

A.K.L. Receives Award

A Wisconsin Conservation Achievement award was presented by Governor Warren Knowles to Alpha Kappa Lambda, WSU conservation fraternity, at a special awards banquet held recently in Madison.

Accepting the award for AKL were Paul Holden, president, and Franz Camerzind, chairman of the AKL board of directors. Also representing WSU at the awards dinner were Dr. James Albertson WSU president; Dr. Paul Yambert, dean of the school of Applied Arts and Science; James Newman, AKL advisor; and AKL members Kyle Kidney, Robert Stephenson, and Kristin Weingarten.

AKL was chosen winner in the youth conservation category, one of ten divisions of the awards program sponsored by the Wisconsin Wildlife Federation in cooperation with the Sears Roebuck Foundation.

Essentially a "service" fraternity, AKL has participated in a number of campus conservation projects as well as conservation department in the Stevens Point area.

One of the most recent projects includes 100 man days of work given in construction of the Gitchee Gumee Hiking and Riding Trail. More than 10 miles of trail has now been completed by AKL members working in cooperation with the U. S. Forest Service in the Penokee Hills near Mellen, Wis. When completed, the trail will continue east across northern Wisconsin to St. Ignace, Michigan, and west to Grand Portage, Minnesota.

On the WSU campus, AKL members participated actively in Winter Carnival, an event the organization helped to initiate. In recent years they have also given many hours to work in the Chilla woodlot park area, and also cut and transport all the Christmas trees for campus use.

Working with the Wisconsin Conservation Department, AKL has helped map the Little Plover River, and has also assisted in shocking the river for stream improvement. They have helped put in water holding devices in the Mead Wildlife area, and also have worked in mapping the Tomorrow River.

In the area of education, AKL annually conducts conservation programs in grade and high schools during National Wildlife Week. One of the group's current projects is compiling the Walter Sylvester Memorial Library, a collection of materials on natural resources for the WSU library. Funds to purchase these books are raised annually through the sale of AKL booster buttons.

Water Control Engineer From Finland Visits W.S.U.

The Wisconsin State University-Stevens Point conservation department was visited by Eero Kajosaari, water control engineer, National Board of Public Roads and Waterways, Helsinki, Finland.

On a six-month tour of the U.S. on an Eisenhower Exchange Fellowship, Kajosaari is studying techniques and practices of water control and developing an understanding of the people of this country. He is one of 30 persons from throughout the world to be chosen for this honor.

He has covered 12,000 miles visiting state and federal water agencies, cities with unusual water development projects, and universities noted for their conservation curricula.

Mr. Kajosaari hopes that discussions with qualified authorities in the U.S. which he cites as having "the most advanced water resource development so far" will aid him in his work as head of planning of the regional water supply for Southern Finland.

Mr. Kajosaari has received his degree in engineering from the Finland Institute of Technology and a licentiate in technology (applied hydraulics). Before assuming his present position, he worked for his government in agricultural reclamation, supply and waste water treatment, and water pollution control.

State Educators Received Curriculum

Social studies curriculum improvements for elementary and secondary schools were reviewed by Wisconsin college educators meeting recently at Wisconsin State University-Stevens Point.

The Social Studies Committee of the State Department of Public Instruction, 25 educators representing public and parochial schools at all grade levels presented recommendations for improvements of curriculum and resource materials. Considering these suggestions were representatives of 10 state colleges which now prepare social studies instructors.

Dr. John Bernd, chairman of the WSU education department, was in charge of conference arrangements. More than 60 state educators concerned with the effectiveness of the present social studies program attended.

Russell Mosley, Madison, chairman of the State Department of Public Instruction and chairman of the committee keynoted the conference morning session. College instructors then discussed the programs outlined by the committee.

The committee's recommendations were published recently in two pamphlets, "A Conceptual Framework, Social Studies, Wisconsin Schools" and "A Scope and Sequence Plan for Social Studies in Wisconsin Schools."

Dr. Burdette Eagon, committee member and WSU dean of the School of Education, explains that the purpose of the conference was to allow committee members to get reactions to the suggested revisions of classroom techniques from those who prepare future teachers.

Financial support for the conference was made available by the State Council for Economic Education.

Point Music Camp Held At W.S.U.

Some 325 young musicians from as far away as Arizona, North Carolina, and Ohio attended the two-week annual summer Point Music Camp.

Jack Cohan, director of the camp and assistant professor of music at WSU, explained that the purpose of the program was "to provide high school students with artists and aesthetic experience of a quality and depth they are not normally able to obtain in most high school programs."

Highlighting the camp program was a recital by Sigurd Rascher, New York, world-renowned saxaphonist, who was a camp faculty member this season. The recital was given at 8 p.m., June 23, in the Wisconsin Room, University Center. An all-faculty recital was presented on June 21 also at the center.

Students participating in the camp attended at least five hours of activities each day. They chose from a program which included study in band, choir, saxaphone ensemble, madrigal singers, percussion ensemble, and stage band and courses in music theory, music appreciation and conducting.

Music camp recitals for the senior session were held at 1:30 p.m. on Sunday, June 19, and Saturday, June 25, in the WSU Fieldhouse.

Faculty for the camp included Mr. Jack Cohan, director, Thomas Braeuer, Robert Van Nuys and Ken Smith of the WSU-Stevens Point Music Department, and Mr. Rascher; Donald Moore, Baylor University, Waco, Texas; Italo Taranta, Detroit, Michigan; Don McAninch, Louisville, Kentucky; Robert Bauer, Marinette; Harvard Erdman, Wautoma; Al Perner, Pittsville; Simon Anderson, Cincinnati, Ohio; and Stanley Nosal, Kenosha, the orchestra director.

Two similar one-week camps were held for junior high students from June 26 and July 3, and from July 3 to July 9.

Pointer Among State Legislators

Lewis Mittness '54 was elected to the state assembly in November 1964. He has been and is a teacher in the Janesville high school. The board of education faced a new problem with a regular teacher elected to the state legislature. After considerable consideration of the matter, and an eventual recognition that teachers are important influences in state political affairs, suitable arrangements were made for his absence during the legislative session. With public education one of the major issues in state affairs, the importance of education in the legislature becomes most significant. The legislative record of Mr. Mittness is evidence of his excellent qualification for his leadership in this area, and the confidence his colleagues have shown in his opinions and sound knowledge in educational matters. He has this to say when questioned as to his views: "I think it is important that more teachers around the state enter politics to run for office. We need the ability and the knowledge a teacher or administrator has to offer the people of this state. It goes without saying educators should be highly qualified to deal with the many problems facing state government. One of the most important items facing every legislature is education. Education will fare only as well as those who must make the decisions effecting it are qualified and courageous enough to know what is right and best and act constructively on the questions involved. It is therefore necessary and important that educators serve in our state legislature so that their talents will help to make a better education possible for every child.

I do know this — if educators shy away from politics, whatever their reason may be, they are doing an injustice to themselves, their students, and the people. Improved support and appreciation for education does not just happen by chance. It happens only when someone makes it happen by speaking up and out, by convincing, pushing, pleading, writing, persistence and then voting. Those who think things should happen because it is best, right, good, must realize these are not the real moving forces. Purposeful leadership, alert and expressive constituents, carefully laid plans, and persistence are the effective forces that secure passage of wise and needed legislation regardless of what area one thinks of. Many of the important bills that passed the 1965-67 Legislature passed only because someone worked many hours, stepped on a few toes and bent a few ears in the legislative process. I sincerely hope that more teachers and administrators will participate in politics for the principles and issues they believe to be in the best interest of all. When someone in your party (Dem. or Rep.) goes off base as far as you're concerned, get a better man (or woman) to replace them and that better man may be you! In some cases it is you!

His wife, the former Ruth Talmadge of Lynxville, Wisconsin is fully employed in the care of their three daughters. Occasionally she is able to plan a summer session at WSU-Stevens Point to complete the final requirements for her degree. Their Janesville address is 730 N. Ringold Street, 53545.

Robert Lewis Attended Audio-Visual Conference

Robert S. Lewis, director of WSU-Stevens Point Audio-Visual Services, attended the Second Annual Educational Realities Conference in New York City, Aug. 9 through 12.

Sponsored by the American Management Association, the conference program included representatives of industry, education, and members of the clergy.

The conference program at the American Hotel featured lectures and various workshops during the day with "talk-back" sessions as part of the evening schedule.

An exhibit of the newest equipment in audio-visual communications highlighted the program.

W.S.U. Faculty Members Participated in Summer Specialized Studies

Matthew J. P. Liu, a member of the faculty at WSU-Stevens Point was awarded an appointment to a fifth summer institute in mathematics on the University of Illinois campus, Urbana, June 13-Sept. 3, supported by the National Science Foundation. The program was designed for college teachers unable to attend an academic year institute program in mathematics. Instruction was designed to acquaint participants with recent developments which are of value in increasing their effectiveness as teachers and as educators of teachers.

Dr. Okon A. Essiet, assistant professor in the department of chemistry, participated in a nine week National Science Foundation Summer Research program at Kansas State University, Manhattan. He concentrated his research on the effects of radiation on methionine, methanol and alanine, three compounds important in nutrition. The project was a continuation of Dr. Essiet's previous research with the compounds conducted during work for his doctorate at the University of California, Davis Campus, and at St. Andrew's University, Tottenham, England.

Federal grants for specialized study during the summer were made to five members of the WSU-Stevens Point geography department. Lyman Echola attended the National Science Foundation Institute on Water Resources at Logan, Utah, June 20 through Aug. 12. The institute concerned both the physical and human aspects of the development of water resources, and involved field trips to several water control projects in its region. Don'El Steiger took part in the NSF Institute, "Introduction to Computing Machines" at Madison June 13 to July 8; and Dr. William M. McKinney participated in the NSF Institute in Cartography at Seattle, Wash., June 27 to Aug. 5. J. Barrett MacDougall attended the NSF conference on water resources at University Park, N. M., June 13 to July 8. The institute stressed the development and conservation of water via evaporation control. David Sengenberger attended the Institute held under the auspices of the National Defense Education Act at Minneapolis, Minn., June 20 to Aug. 5. Sponsored by the Department of Geography, University of Minnesota, it was titled "Institute in Advanced Training in Geography for Trainers of Teachers."

Arthur Herman, assistant professor of philosophy, WSU-Stevens Point, received a faculty fellowship from Hamline University, St. Paul, Minn. for a South and Southeast Asia Area Institute held from June 20 to July 15. The program focused on contemporary Asia as seen in the light of its traditions, current developments, and change.

John D. Kapter, assistant professor of geography, received a scholarship grant from the University of Wisconsin for the 1966 Tri-State Geography Field Seminar, August 23 to September 13. The seminar was sponsored by the Universities of Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin with a base camp at the Lakeside Laboratory near Lake Okoboji in northwestern Iowa. The program was devoted to field research problems in landform and agricultural geography, and included group field reconnaissance of the Nebraska Sandhill cattle ranching area during late August, midway through the seminar.

Local Writers Published

Mr. Paul Friedman, English Department, WSU-Stevens Point, and James D. Bertolino, WSU junior, appeared in the April issue of the Wisconsin Review, a literary magazine published at WSU-Oshkosh and nationally distributed.

Friedman contributed a short story entitled, "The Ritual." Bertolino's contributions were two poems, "Aware of the Joy of the Jujub" and "Long Hair Music." Both Friedman and Bertolino have published prose and poetry in numerous magazines and anthologies.

Dr. Clements Is Author of Book

"The Fitful Wind," a book by Dr. William H. Clements, director of Institutional Research and Studies at Wisconsin State University-Stevens Point, and described as a "primer on American politics" recently was published by a New York firm.

In the preface to his 92-page volume, Dr. Clements explains that "much of the difficulty in American politics stems from the fact that there is no comprehensive dialog between opponents. We use such words as democracy, liberty, conservative, liberal and reactionary without recognizing that such terms mean different things to different people. Furthermore, these terms serve to produce emotional reactions which cloud our ability to reason."

The purpose of the book, according to the author, is to present some of the issues in a new frame of reference so they may be examined more objectively. To accomplish this, Dr. Clements places himself in the position of the "classic liberal" the "modern liberal" and the "practical liberal" and analyzes each stand on the basis of attitudes towards contemporary national and international questions. Some of these topics include social security, the United Nations, labor organizations, the income tax and racial integration.

The book, as described by the publishers is "one of the most stimulating and worthwhile books on American problems in our decade." It is available at the University Bookstore and also at the College Variety Store.

Dr. Clements was graduated from WSU-Stevens Point and received both M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Wisconsin. He joined the WSU faculty in 1955 and has instructed classes in tests and measurements, statistics and education and also a graduate seminar in philosophical foundations of education.

In the summer of 1961, Dr. Clements was involved in special research in Washington D. C. for the National Education Association. During 1962 Dr. Clements was assigned to northern Nigeria as a representative for the United Nations Economic, Social and Cultural Organization (UNESCO). The Clements family lived in Kaduna where he worked with the Nigerian government's examination standards.

Dr. Clements and his wife, are parents of two sons, Bruce, a scholarship student at Georgetown University Law School, Washington D.C. and Palmer, at Wartburg College, Waverly, Iowa.

W.S.U. Men Named to "Who's Who"

The names of three members of the WSU-Stevens Point staff have been selected for listing in the 1966 edition of "Who's Who In America."

Making their first appearance in the new biographical listings are James Herbert Albertson, WSU president, Robert Birdsall Cantrick, dean of the School of Fine Arts, and Paul Abt Yambert, dean of the School of Applied Arts and Science.

Reflecting America's growth in the arts, sciences, technology and civic causes and other important pursuits, the new biographical listings universally total 8,600.

Listings old and new attain a record high of 62,000 — some 4,000 more than the previous edition and seven times as many as the 1899 first edition. However, the ratio of selection remains three individuals for every 10,000 Americans.

Campus School Teachers Present Paper

Dr. Hildegard Kuse and Mrs. Phyllis Ravey, WSU-Stevens Point Campus School faculty members, were invited to present a paper at the National Science Teachers Association Conference in New York.

Their presentation was the result of an extensive pilot project conducted at the Campus School. Termed "Readiness Testing in Primary Grade Science," the study was aimed at providing teachers with testing instruments to measure the understanding of science readiness of elementary classes.

Their work was among a series of papers reporting innovations in teaching techniques and curricula to improve grade school science learning.

The National Science Teachers Association (NSTA) is a department of the National Education Association. The organization is also an affiliate of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Several thousand registrants from the United States, Canada, and other countries attended the conference program.

Other speakers at the conference included three Nobel prize winners: Richard P. Feynman of the California Institute of Technology, Physics, 1965; Polykarp Kusch of Columbia University, Physics, 1965; and Linus Pauling, Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, Chemistry, 1954, and Peace, 1963.

Ten nationally known scientists presented three-session seminars on current topics including astrophysics, meteorology, oceanography, and cellular and organismic evolution.

Miss Kuse, who joined the Campus School faculty in 1957, holds bachelor, master, and doctoral degrees from WSU, the State University of Iowa (Iowa City), and the University of Colorado, respectively. As an elementary teacher, Miss Kuse has taught at Iowa City, Boulder, Colo., Shawano and Whitewater. Her professional interests include science and aerospace education.

Coming to Stevens Point in 1952, Mrs. Ravey previously received degrees from Stevens Point, San Diego State College, and the University of Wisconsin-Madison. Mrs. Ravey's special interests lie in reading and child development. She has taught for 27 years.

W.S.U. Home Economics Students Win Awards

Sharon Watzke, 20, a home economics student at WSU-Stevens Point, was named winner of an $800 national scholarship in home economics at the 44th National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago. The scholarship, one of two given by the Sunbeam Co., is based on academic achievement and activities in the community, school, and 4-H Club work. At WSU Miss Watzke is treasurer of the Home Economics Club, is student assistant at Nelson Hall where she lives, is a member of the Lutheran Student Association, and is assistant to Miss Ethel Hill of the home economics faculty. Miss Watzke is interested in clothing and textiles, particularly fabric and pattern design. She has won numerous clothing awards.

Lynn Marie Buyarski, another WSU-Stevens Point coed, is the 1965 winner of the Wisconsin 4-H Foods-Nutrition award. She has been active in 4-H foods and has prepared some 674 meals for the program. At the university Lynn is active in Newman and Home Economics Clubs. As Wisconsin's representative, she attended the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago. Her future plans include becoming a home economics teacher and having her own home "someplace in the country, but not necessarily on a farm."

W.S.U. Students Receive Awards

Charles R. Sindelar, Jr., Stevens Point, received a $100 Steenbock Scholarship award from Arol C. Epple, President of the Wisconsin Society for Ornithology and associate professor of biology at WSU-Stevens Point. Mr. Sindelar, a 1965 graduate in conservation, is now employed by the Wisconsin Conservation Department in the Prairie Grouse Research Project, Plainfield. He plans to use his grant in conducting an Osprey nesting survey in Wisconsin to determine how many Ospreys are presently nesting in the state as well as the number of young birds in the nests.

David Snarski, a former WSU-Stevens Point student who graduated in June from WSU-Superior, also received a $100 award from the WSO. The scholarships were made possible through funds presented to the society by Dr. Harry S. Steenbock, Madison professor emeritus at the University of Wisconsin. Research on the birds of Douglas County will be done by Mr. Snarski as a result of his research grant.

Duane Asherin, Stevens Point, a conservation and biology major at WSU-Stevens Point, has been awarded a $300 Gildea Scholarship in Conservation. Asherin was one of 15 national winners chosen by the Soil Conservation Society of America to receive the scholarships made available by society members Mr. and Mrs. Ray Y. Gildea, Jr., Columbus, Mississippi.

Miss Yvonne M. Klemm, a June graduate from WSU-Stevens Point, won the National Business Education Association award for merit for Outstanding Achievement in Business Education. Miss Klemm is the daughter of Mr. Ernest Klemm, R. 2, Medford. The award contains business education publications and a year's professional membership in the National Business Education Association. Miss Klemm teaches in the Sevastopol Public School System in Sturgeon Bay.

Miss Jane Gromoll, Eagle River, a 1966 graduate who majored in speech pathology and audiology at WSU-Stevens Point, was awarded a $2,400 fellowship from the Vocational Rehabilitation Administration. She is attending graduate school at the University of Wisconsin, and is concentrating on the speech, hearing, and language problems of children from culturally deprived backgrounds.

U.S. Office of Education Official Visits W.S.U. Speech and Hearing Clinic

The WSU-Stevens Point Speech and Hearing Clinic was visited on July 7 and 8 by Dr. Thomas B. Abbott, official consultant for the U.S. Office of Education, the Department of Handicapped Children and Youth, Washington, D.C.

Touring the U.S. on a program of informal visits to consult with staffs of various speech and hearing clinics, Dr. Abbott discussed their programs and how federal funds may benefit them.

Traveling for four months, Dr. Abbott visited the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee and Madison, WSU-Eau Claire, and WSU-Stevens Point.

Dr. Abbott said that he was "very impressed with the facilities at Stevens Point" and cited the potential for the development of the speech and hearing clinic at WSU as "unlimited."

"A tremendous need exists in the United States for speech and hearing clinicians," Dr. Abbott stated. With an estimated 17,000 therapists in the United States, 20,000 to 30,000 more will be needed by next fall. The U. S. Office of Education is concerned with making more opportunities and improved facilities available for the education of therapists, he said.

Dr. Abbott, who received his Ph.D. in speech pathology from the University of Florida in Gainesville, has taught in California, Florida, Minnesota, and Texas.

Nelson Hall Marked 50th Anniversary

Nelson Hall women rummaged through attics, searched trunks, and borrowed mama's wardrobe for fashion items displayed in the 50th anniversary fashion show presented during the hall's open house Sunday, May 1. Fashion ensembles from the World War I era, flapper costumes, and the "New Look" of the late 40's were modeled in the "Fifty Years of Fashion" presentation.

The history of the university and highlights of events taking place at Nelson Hall were part of the script commentary. Rosalie Robinson and Shirley Sarrow were co-chairman of the anniversary programs. Lila Thalacker was in charge of the fashion show, and Sharon Havlik was commentator. Mrs. Carl Wiemann was Nelson Hall director.

Negro Students Visited W.S.U.- Stevens Point Campus

About 30 Negroes were among a group of 44 students from Milwaukee High Schools who visited the WSU-Stevens Point campus on April 12, as part of a program to acquaint Negro and other disadvantaged students with opportunities available to them at Wisconsin state universities.

Selected by guidance counselors at Lincoln, North Division, Rufus King, and Riverside High Schools, the students participated in a two-day tour of university campuses at Oshkosh, Stevens Point, and Whitewater.

Dr. Kurt R. Schmeller, WSU-Stevens Point Assistant to the President, explained that the tour was the result of plans formulated last September by a committee including himself, Don Jorgenson, Director of Admissions at WSU-Oshkosh, and Charles Graham Assistant to the President at WSU-Whitewater.

Explaining the original purpose of the tour, Dr. Schmeller observed, "We simply are not enrolling a proportionate share of Negro students in our state university system. This visitation will be the first step in a series of actions designed to introduce the Negro residents of Wisconsin to the opportunities which exist in our state universities. Although the prime purpose of this trip was to emphasize a program for Negro students, we are able to include 16 disadvantaged white students from the Milwaukee Public Schools, and it pleases us very much to serve them, too."

Dr. Schmeller estimated that only about 50 American Negro students are now part of the 38,000 enrollment at the nine state universities.

"These figures are only estimates as we do not keep records on color," Dr. Schmeller explained.

The tour began at WSU-Oshkosh where students visited the campus and had luncheon. They arrived in Stevens Point about 3 p.m. for a tour of the campus and meetings on admission, curriculum, costs and financial aids and housing. Residence hall student assistants acted as hosts to the students during dinner at the University Center and at the various residence halls where they were accommodated overnight.

An evening program included a meeting with a film on college life as well as small discussion groups led by WSU faculty members. The next morning the students continued on to Whitewater for a similar tour of the university campus.

W.S.U. International Programs to "Globalize" Education

New international programs at Wisconsin State University-Stevens Point have been initiated to "globalize" student education and create increasing cultural awareness in a rapidly changing world.

A materials exchange with the National Autonomous University of Honduras at Tegucigalpa is one of these programs. Still in early stages of development, the exchange has been primarily informational material. However, according to Dr. Robert Knowlton, WSU assistant professor of history and project coordinator, the program as it continues may eventually involve faculty and student exchanges.

The program was established last year through the U.S. State Department and is conducted on a State Department grant. Materials on the university, state and region have been sent to the National University's Center of General Studies established in 1960 with a present enrollment of 1,500 students. In addition to a four-year liberal arts system, the center will eventually provide basic studies for the other divisions of the university.

As the result of a recent conference with Mrs. Irma Acosta de Fortin, director of the center, Dr. Knowlton indicated that the program will now be expanded and a trainee from Honduras arrived this fall to learn library science. A recommendation also has been made for an administrative assistant intern to be schooled at WSU in registration, credit and similar university business procedures.

Another of the university's efforts in globalizing education, Dr. Knowlton said, has been the addition of new courses and the revision of other offerings in the "non - Western" areas. Certain courses have been grouped into specific area programs including Latin American, Russian and East Central European studies. Many other courses also are now offered in "non-Western" areas although not grouped into any formal area programs.

Another newly inaugurated program to stimulate faculty interest and knowledge and thereby student awareness is a series of faculty seminars, the first held last year on Latin America. During the series of six programs, 15-20 faculty members explored various aspects and problems of Latin America. In addition to WSU specialists, visiting authorities were invited to direct the seminar sessions.

Next year the seminars, with Elvin McLott as chairman, will deal with the Middle East.

An International Studies Committee with Dr. Knowlton as chairman was established last year to supervise and coordinate these activities and to provide ideas and advice to those individually responsible for the various programs.

Hugh Walker of the history department replaced Dr. Knowlton as chairman of this committee during his Teacher Improvement Leave for post doctoral study in Texas and Mexico. Committees include Mr. McLott, music; Dr. Nancy Schmidt, sociology; Dr. Maurice Perret, geography; Dr. Joel Mickelson, English; and Dr. Milo Harpstead, conservation.

Dr. Knowlton cites the growing number of foreign students on the WSU campus a total of 33 representing 17 foreign countries.

Transfer Land For U.S. Water Pollution Lab

The State Building Commission has approved the transfer of land at the northeast corner of Maria Drive and Reserve Street to the federal government.

The property will be the site of a new water pollution research laboratory, operated by the federal government but affiliated with WSU-Stevens Point.

The laboratory is expected to employ 100 to 150 persons. The present construction cost estimate is $4 million. The facility is still in the early planning stages and there is no fixed completion date.

Pointer Alums

ALICE (TORDEUR) WEICKELT, '65, is teaching second grade on the Navajo Reservation in Pueblo Pintado, New Mexico. Gary Weickelt is teaching third grade. Together they sponsor a painting class at the dormitory for the Indian children. Alice had been teaching third grade in Crowpoint until their transfer in early January. They find it "fabulous." The wild life in this area (one of the most primitive on the Navajo Reservation) is bountiful. Mountain lion, bobcats, wolves, rattlesnakes, antelope, prairie dogs, hawks are common observances. Alice indicates, "It is truly great and so rewarding working with these culturally deprived youngsters, and the high salary makes isolation seem almost trivial. Working closely with varied races and creeds is so interesting also."

RONALD R. ERNST, '65, an English and speech teacher at Wau-pun High School, was selected as one of 40 persons who participated in the NDEA Institute for Advanced Study held at Indiana University at Bloomington, Indiana, June 27 through August 5. The participants, who represented 10 states and were chosen from a field of 150 candidates, each received six graduate credits. Mr. Ernst, who also coaches debate and forensics, was one of two teachers who were chosen from the State of Wisconsin to attend this full scholarship event. LARRY E.
