ARTHUR R. SCHAWLOW

Arthur L. Schawlow is the J.G. Jackson and C.J. Wood Professor of Physics at Stanford University. He was the coinventor, with Charles H. Townes, of the laser (1958). Born in Mount Vernon, New York, U.S.A. in 1921, he moved with his parents to Toronto at an early age and was educated at the University of Toronto (B.A., Physics, 1941, M.A. 1942, Ph.D. 1949). He was a Postdoctoral Fellow and Research Associate at Columbia University, 1949-1951, and then a Research Physicist at Bell Telephone Laboratories, 1951-1961. He has been a Professor of Physics at Stanford University since 1961. His research has been in several fields of physics, including superconductivity, but mostly scientific applications of lasers, i.e. laser spectroscopy. He has received many honors. These include a share of the 1981 Nobel Prize in Physics for his contributions to the development of laser spectroscopy, the U.S. National Medal of Science, and also six honorary degrees from six different countries (Belgium, Canada, England, Ireland, Sweden and U.S.A.). In 1975 he was President of the Optical Society of America, and in 1981 he was President of the American Physical Society.

"THE PURPLE AND THE GOLD"

Other schools of valor boast, of victories galore,
Of laurels never lost, of triumphs by the score,
Let them tell you of their prowess,
Of warriors strong and bold,
But their colors ever lower to the
Purple and the Gold.
