Honeymoon Of School Is Scheduled For October 27

Y. M. C. A. Leads Pep
Stunts In Assembly
The Y. M. C. A. took charge of the pep meeting in assembly today. If pep members exhibited it as being called especially for the new arrivals.

Some members of the organization were appreihative as these leaders and they led the student body in some romancing rolls.

The affair was conducted in a clever manner. The organization represented a school where the instructors taught subject matter in the form of new arrivals. The students, in turn, did their part in teaching the student body. Either their efforts were very effective or the student body are exceedingly apt pupils for the result was astonishing.

As a close to their pep program, the Y. M. C. A. staged a 15 to 20 minute act on good or even better program next week.

With this foreman to the Homecoming Game, it seems that nothing will hold them when the time comes.

Present Account Of Fund Expenditures
The following is an account of the expenditure of money raised from the student fees:

This first semester of the year 1928-29, student fund amounts to $303.50. Of this sum $303 is turned over to "The Pointer"; $317.50 will be used for high class entertainment of the foremen; $50.00 for music needs; and $50.00 for social interests. The remainder of the fund is to be appropriated for athletics.

The student fund is used only for extra-curricular activities.

MEETING THIS NOON
A special meeting of the Pep Club will be held this noon at 12:30. There are only about 10 old members left in the club from last year and the young up-towners should bolster up the ranks very nicely.

This meeting is not for these few old students but especially for the new appointees. Last week a Pointer reported that the department heads make their appointments. This has no doubt been done and the individuals notified.

The meeting is called to elect officers and discuss in detail the club's plans for homecoming. Don't forget the time.

To Offer Extension
Courses At College
As an advantage to teachers of the city, two extension classes have been organized in the College.

The first is a course in Speech Correction taught by Miss Davis of the language department. This deals with speech defects of children and how to cure them. This course is open to anyone with children (high school or lower) and Thursday at 4:15.

The second is a course in Secondary Education conducted by Mr. Mott. This meets on Wednesdays at 4:15. These courses are open to anyone who enrolls and pays the necessary small fee. Students of the college may enter these classes without dropping some of the credit hours they are already carrying.

Orators to Work on Compositions
A meeting was held last week Thursday for those who are interested in oratory.

At least a dozen students turned out to the meeting and decided upon topics. It looks as though there will be interest this year and every student who attends this year will have his or her essay published in the auditorium. The decision of the judges, however, was in favor of Jesner.

At the State Forensic meet held in Oskskosh, Frank was again first place and later, a very close second place in the Inter-State contest held in Central College.

The Y. M. C. A. will be in charge of the audible record and it is probable that there will be another such one this year. Leonard Sprague is in charge of the files, and for the standard set last year, and the zeal shown by new prospects, there is great hope that the "Pointers" will win first honors in the pending forensic meet.

The semi-final contest will be announced in the near future.

College to Have One
Day of Grace Friday
On account of the Teacher's Convention to be held in Wausau tomorrow, students will not be obligated to meet for classes on this day.

While the faculty are scratching their heads in thought, (maybe) or transposing some of their ideas to groups of other teachers; or perhaps modeling through some dry lecture, students will be frisking their backs in glee.

Oct. 27th, Homecoming!
Dear Editor,

Just what are the chances to enter a complaint? (I think it a justification for last year in the April 26th issue of the Pointer, O. O., a local editorial under the head of "The Bell Range"). At that time some of the instructors had apparently gotten into a rut of self-satisfaction or self egotism in regard to keeping students after the bell closing period had been extended. I ask that you kindly reprint Mr. O. O.'s editorial and hope that it will have an effect on those quite careless relative to punctuality in dismissing classes. Attached to this note is a copy of the editorial. Thank you very much.

The Bell Range

"Why, when class periods are fifty minutes long, professors cannot find time within that limit to take care of all the important matters to be disposed of I cannot understand for the life of me.

After much close observation of existing practices in various classrooms I have finally come to the conclusion that what I am about to say is so generally true that to cite exceptions would be ridiculous.

A student sits in a class room for fifty minutes — sometimes interested, sometimes not. The professor says things, he asks questions. It is all in a student's life. At last the bell rings. Whether justly or not; whether the class is interesting or not — the bell rings. The student promptly forgets the subject matter of the class and begins to think of the next hour, perhaps to dash into the library for a book; perhaps to run over to the dormitory for a forgotten paper; perhaps down to the locker room; perhaps most anything. But does the professor say "Class Dismissed!" I should say no! The bell for him means time to assign the lesson for the next meeting, to give special warnings about the future work, to continue nonsensically on the subject in hand, to give special reports. The students meanwhile are gathering their books, closing notebooks, in fact doing anything but listening to the professor.

What is gained? Nothing. Important facts go over the student's head. The students are visibly impatient and the professor discouraged at the lack of attention — and all to what purpose?

Y. M. C. A.

Last year was the first year that a men's organization was established which was sponsored by the college. After a great deal of discussion and debate, the fellows finally chose "Y. M. C. A." as the official title for the organization. These are no red-letter strings tied to membership in this organization. Neither does membership play any part for those in school for a fellow from joining the "Y" group.

The purpose of the "Y" is to foster serious thinking and constructive building. If it can reach this goal it will accomplish something worth while for its members and also for the school.

Whether your church affiliaions be Catholic or Protestant, whether you be Freshman or Senior, the "Y" welcomes you into its midst. The next meeting will be the Thursday evening before Homecoming, October 25th.

Life

Some ships sail east and some sail west, by the same season winds that blow:

'Tis the set of the wind, and not the gales

That determine the way they go.

Like the winds of the east are the forces of fate,

As we travel along life.

'Tis the set of our soul that determines the goal

And not the calm or the strife.

Y. W. C. A.

A very interesting and instructive meeting of the Y. W. C. A. was held in the Recreation room of Nelson Hall Thursday night. Every one took part in the program which consisted of the singing of old hymns.
The songs selected were ones that had interesting histories. Miss Leota Andrew and Miss Evelyn Elliott told of the occasion of the writing of these hymns and the nurses who composed their history. Miss Ruby Libben, president, was in charge of the meeting and Miss Emilee Riley accompanied the singing. A great interest is being shown in the Y. W. C. A. this year and more than forty girls were present Thursday night.

A THEOREM

If you love a girl, she loves you.
If you love your girl, She loves you.
To prove: She loves you.
Proof: All the world loves 'a lover.'
"(Shakespeare)
Your girl is all the world to you. (Exclam.)
A thing's the same thing are to each other.
Since you are a lover, therefore your girl loves you.
