CAST IS SELECTED FOR CLASS PLAY

KUHL FEATURES AS LIGHTNIN' BILL JONES

The cast has been selected for "Lightnin'", the play to be sponsored by the senior class. The drama is a comedy in three acts, and is to be presented during commencement week, probably on Monday evening, June 9th.

A BACON PRODUCTION

"Lightnin'" was written by Winchell Smith and Frank Bacon. It is a modern story, and was one of the great successes of 1927. Frank Bacon starred in the original production, creating the celebrated character of Bill Jones, who saved his wife and niece from poverty, and in court pleaded his own case with striking success. It is one of the finest of all the John Golden productions.

SUPPORTS A LARGE CAST

The cast is as follows:

Lightnin' Bill Jones Fred Kuhl
John Marvin Clarence Rice
Raymond Thomas Orval Anderson
Leincol Townsend John Stevenson
Rodney Harper Alan Hodell
Everett Hammond Earl Anechut
Nevin Blodgett John Kolk
Oscar Nelson Arthur Procknow
Zeb Peters Orlando Johnson
Walter Lenon Alex Peterson
Zeb Crother's Robert Mayer
Leveryman Charles Aldrich
Mildred Buckley Margaret Engles
Mrs. Jones Leone Pazourek
Mrs. Margaret Davis Lillian Smiley
Mrs. Harper Winona Rohr
Freeda Isabell Sanderson
Emily Jarvis Amy Schaaf
Mrs. Moore Ethel Kelly
Mrs. Jordan Viola Gunnison
Mrs. Stam Louise Ellis
Mrs. Cogshall Margaret Reading
Mrs. Preston Catherine Novitski
Teddy Orin-Erson

The cast have been practicing almost the entire semester and are putting forth their best efforts to make this play an outstanding one in the history of the public speaking classes. Splendid plays have been produced in the past which have set a high standard of accomplishment.

Ashmun Club Elects Next Year Officers

At the last meeting of the Margaret Ashmun Club, Wednesday, May 14, the following officers were elected: Allen Hodell, president, to succeed Theodore Rozelle, and Cedric Vig secretary-treasurer to succeed Catherine Novitski. The new officers will take charge of the club next year.

Installation occurred at the Margaret Ashmun club banquet, Wednesday, May 21.

Noted Lecturer Appears Tonite

This evening at eight o'clock Dr. Lillian Gilbreth will speak in the auditorium on the subject of "The Technique of Personal Efficiency". Students will be admitted upon presentation of their entertainment tickets. Admission to outsiders will be fifty cents.

Mrs. Gilbreth is brought here through the combined efforts of the Home Economics Club and the Stevens Point Business and Professional Women's Club. Members of several other women's clubs have been invited.

Mrs. Gilbreth has just returned from Japan, where she attended the World Engineering Congress. She is a consulting engineer.

A native of Oakland, California, and a graduate of the University of California, Dr. Gilbreth, was married in 1904 to Frank B. Gilbreth, a consulting engineer, and immediately became associated with him in the application of engineering and psychology to industrial problems. Later, in 1911, the two went into the management field, and installed better work methods in various industries in this country and abroad. They also directed summer courses in scientific management for college professors in engineering, economics, and psychology.

In June, 1924, a few days before Mr. and Mrs. Gilbreth were to sail for the World Power Congress in London and the Management Congress at Prague, Mr. Gilbreth died very suddenly. It is typical of the quiet heroism of Mrs. Gilbreth that she went to Europe just the same, and carried through his part and her own in the programs of both conferences.

Mrs. Gilbreth's achievements in the field of engineering have been many and varied. With Mr. Gilbreth she wrote several books on engineering problems. With Mr. Gilbreth, also, she started a co-ordination in Czechoslovakian and American interests in management—a movement which has had a most interesting development.

In the last few years Mrs. Gilbreth has conducted annually a course in motion study at Montclair, New Jersey, where she makes her home. This occupies four months of the year, and the remainder of the year she devotes to traveling and lecturing in this country and abroad, and to making investigations for industries.

It is Mrs. Gilbreth's firm conviction that industrial engineering and psychology are applicable to the home problems; and she has won considerable fame by her original views on this subject. Her own household was chosen as the medium by which to demonstrate the soundness of her theories and her eleven children have all been brought up in scientific fashion with each of the older ones given a definite responsibility for the management of a younger brother or sister.

Frat Elects Hebal Master Scientist

Sigma Zeta held its election of officers Wednesday, May 4.

The officers are as follows:
Fred Hebal, Master Scientist.
Miss Jones, Vice master scientist.
Esther Hawkes, Recorder and Treasurer.

Theodore Rozelle, Reporter.
Last Thursday the fraternity entertained the student body at the regular assembly hour. A special program was put on by the members including the presentation of the Biological Science departments white rat family.

Play Of Speech Class Is Success

When the final curtain was drawn on "Civilian Clothes" last Thursday evening, a large audience left the auditorium fully convinced that the members of Mr. Burroughs' 10:05 speech class possess real ability in theatrical work.

Alex Peterson and Vera Sargent as the two leads both scored great successes. Alex played the diversified role of Sam McGinnis with great cleverness and skill. He was the flashy young man to perfection, and seemed absolutely at ease in the butler's role. Vera was the ideal young society belle.

There was no character who did not play his part well. Irl Thurber, as "Bill Arkwright," started the enjoyment of the play with his portrayal of the man about to propose. From the first parting of the curtain until it finally closed on the happy ending of the play, the interest of the audience was held.

Before the first act, Edward Giese, Henry Holubetz, and Mr. Reid entertained the audience with several harmonica numbers. Between acts one and two, Alma Hougum played piano solos. A violin trio, with Lyman Johnson, Anita Dalton, and Edith Sansom as players, accompanied by Ruby Hand, played between acts two and three.

"WHAT'LL I DO NOW?"

WHAT chance have the College boy and girl of making good in business? What have they to offer? What do they expect? And what do they get? In answering this I have chosen some data from a recent issue of the McCall's Magazine which seemed to set forth some exceedingly sound and worthwhile arguments.

An amazing change has taken place in the last decade in the relationship between college graduates and business. As the head of a well-known corporation said:

"We certainly have capitulated to the college graduate in the last few years. Up to that time his lack of success in business was part of the orthodox public gospel, the legitimate subject for mirth-inspiring cartoons. If the college graduate wanted to get into business, he carefully concealed his sheepskin as he journeyed disconsolately from office to office. Now he no longer needs to journey at all. We, on the other hand go to seek him at the college gate.

"In recent years," he went on, "we have come to look on colleges as a high type of employment agency; and we keep in touch with promising students through vocational bureaus and members of the faculties; as well as by sending representatives each year to look over the spring crop of graduates and to compete for their services.

"By that I do not mean to imply that every young man leaving college is to have his choice of some two hundred jobs at a salary that will permit him to live in the style for which he probably thinks he is fitted. But the fad remains that the college graduate is now in demand in business."

This is one of the several reasons why John Drew, Jr. of Main Street, wants to go to college. Of course he wants to learn things, too; and he hopes — or his parents hope for him — that he may acquire that indefinite something called culture. He likes, too, the idea of spending four pleasant years with other boys and girls of his age; and his parents hope that this may help him socially and financially later on. But the reason that most strongly induces John Jr., and Johnny's mother to dig down into the ginger jar where is hoarded what might have meant automobile and radios and other things of immediate comfort and luxury, in order that Johnny may go to college, is that they feel that he will get on better in the world if he does, and they desire that he should make more money than his father has, and with less labor and more leisure, and if he has the qualities that will enable him to get there and to stick there, the chances are that he will.

The head of personnel of one of the big corporations which employs a large number of college men and women said:

"We want college boys and girls and we make every effort to get them, not because we think they are going to be immediately valuable to us because they have been to college, but because experience backed by figures, teaches us that in the long run they will be."

Exceptional personalities are as desirable as they ever were; but that is no longer sufficient. The world moves very fast, and nowadays a boy must be able not only to do to-day's job well, but he must have training that will enable him to adjust himself to to-morrow's.

He must have the ability to think clearly which comes from training in how to think; the knack of dealing with men that comes from experience in getting on with all kinds of people; the ability to grasp business principles that comes from a knowledge of the past. He must have not only exact knowledge, but he must be able to apply to a particular problem; he must know how to dig out the answer to a problem for which there has been no precedent. Moreover, he must have the work habit, and a willingness to accept criticism — "to be told."

 In the lives of men and girls and boys.

 Until the morning rising bell
 Of each new day sends forth its call,
 To rich and poor to great and small,
 That old man Time is waiting there,
 To turn the page to that day's share,
 In the labor of eternity.
 In that days page each has a part
 For some 'tis labor in the mart,
 For some 'tis labor on the sea
 With large ships sailing fast and free
 But others must at home abide
 Close by their native heartfire's side.

 Prepare thyself in mind and heart
 To do thy share, to do thy part

Ashmun Club Enjoys Banquet At Whiting

Wednesday evening the Margaret Ashmun Club had its annual banquet in the club dining room of the Hotel Whiting. This is an annual affair and is always pleasurably anticipated by the members of the club. This year the Sigma Tau Delta members were also present.

The table was decorated in the colors of the organization, and the menu — the regulation club menu — was greatly relished by the club.

Theodore Rozelle was the toastmaster. Mr. Rozelle has been the president of the club during the past year. He spoke to the club, wishing the new president, Allan Hodell, success during the coming year. Catherine Novitski, this year's secretary also spoke to the club. Allan Hodell gave an acceptance speech and Cedric Vig, the newly elected secretary and treasurer spoke, accepting his new office.

Dr. Robert Dodge Badwin gave an inspiring address. Dr. and Mrs. Baldwin were guests of honor at the banquet.

The prizes awarded by Miss Margaret Ashmun, for the short stories were awarded during the banquet. The prize story will be published next week.

All the members of the club agreed that this was one of the most successful banquets of the club.

Oratorical Honors Are Won By Carew

William Carew, nephew of Miss Hanna, was awarded first place in an oratorical contest conducted May 16th in Chicago. He won the first place in the contest at Madison a short time ago, receiving $100 for his oration.

Mr. Carew then competed in the contest at Chicago with winners from Minnesota, Michigan, and Illinois. His prize will be $500 and the opportunity to represent that district in the national contest, to be held in Los Angeles, California, later in the summer. The national winner will be given a trip around the world. Mr. Carew was graduated from the Manawa High School a few years ago.

Home Economics Club

There are more ways than one to make money. The Home Ecs. have found this out and their money bag is consequently growing fatter. The cookies, cakes and even ice cream made by the industrious cooking classes have been sold several times during the week. A waffle supper for Tuesday evening was also planned.

Some of the girls contributed their share by scrubbing floors, washing dishes, dusting, mending and doing other obnoxious household tasks.

Some people are fascinated by work; they can sit and look at it for hours, but not the home ees.

NELSON HALL NOTES

This week-end seemed to be alumnae week-end at the dormitory. A great many of the "old girls" were welcomed by their school friends.

Ethel Maes of Menomonie, Wis. visited former friends on Saturday and Sunday. She gave glowing accounts of teaching. Ethel Madsen also of Menomonie, was in Stevens Point this week.

Lois Gherke who is teaching at Wrightstown came to Nelson Hall Sunday morning.

Edna Wentker, Myrtle Johnson, and Jeanette Hansen all last year's graduates, were dinner guests at the dormitory Sunday noon.

The many proms in small towns neighboring Stevens Point, have kept many of the dorm girls busy.

Margaret Rondeau left Friday afternoon for Green Bay. She made one of those terrifying but profitable "personal applications".

Helen Jordan entertained Sadie Espeseth at her home in La Farge this week-end.

This week the dormitory fairly shook with the pounding of millions (or almost) of typewriters. Term papers and semester reports just have to get in.

The movies in the assembly Monday evening for the benefit of the Nelson Hall encyclopedia fund were not as successful as those which were formerly given. The other numerous engagements that were scheduled caused this.

PHILATELY AND CITIZENSHIP

One of the most patriotic of endeavors are the citizenship schools, particularly for new immigrants that come to this country. I sincerely believe that these citizenship schools might benefit by displaying and mentioning United States postage stamps.

With the revolutionary generals and scenes, the views of Niagara Falls, the story of Columbus, the portraits of our pioneers, the establishment of American settlement by the Pilgrims and the rest, with these designs on our stamps, it would seem that postage stamps would form a very vivid impression on the minds of the newcomers to America, and would aid in impressing upon them the story of their adopted land. (Editorial in Weekly Philatelic Gossip.)

PRESIDENTS' WIVES HAVE FREE POSTAGE

There are at present four people in the United States who are allowed free postage for their own personal use. This is provided by Section 482 of The Postal Laws and Regulations. This says "All mail matter sent by post by Frances F. Cleveland (Preston) widow of the late Grover Cleveland, under her written autograph signature and by Mary Lord Harrison, widow of the late Benjamin Harrison, under her written autograph signature, and by Edith Carew Roosevelt, widow of the late Theodore Roosevelt, under her autograph signature will be conveyed free of postage during the natural life of each respectively." Under date of March 5, 1924, Edith Bolling Wilson, widow of the late Woodrow Wilson, was added to the above paragraph.

It will be noted "all mail matter sent by post will be conveyed free of postage." This means that the four mentioned First Ladies of the land, are now granted privileges, which Uncle Sam grants no one else. It is true that free personal use of the mails has been granted to others but at the present time every one from the President on down pay postage on personal use of the mails. A severe penalty is prescribed for violation of this law.

During the existence of our postal service fifteen Presidents widows, have by special action of Congress, been granted free personal use of the mails. Of the fifteen, four, above mentioned are still enjoying the privilege.
