Symposium Of Replies Given In This Issue

With this issue, the Pointer is presenting a symposium of the opinions of the students who have attended Central State College and have gone on to other colleges and universities. The persons to whom the letters were written were asked by them to tell how their credits were accepted at the schools to which they transferred.

Letters Prove Acceptance Of Point Credits

Frequently during the past, students and prospective students have asked this all important question. If I take part of my work here at Central State, or even if I take a degree here, will my credits be accepted at the University? The question is of such seriousness to some that they have really hesitated to attend this college for fear that their credits will not be transferred.

The faculty of C. S. T. C., especially those in charge of helping students make out their programs, has always affirmed that Central State's credits are admitted anywhere on a par with work done at other colleges and universities, but some students and those who would like to become students have at times not been entirely convinced.

Letters Are Quoted

In order to put down for good this old bogey, the Pointer recently sent out letters to a number of its prominent graduates and former undergraduates asking them to tell how their credits were evaluated at the schools to which they transferred.

The answers which have been received speak for themselves. They are definite to the exclusion of any further doubt. Some excerpts from these letters will follow.

College Plans

Band Clinic

Bandmasters in this vicinity have given the students who attend the Band Clinic at 3:30, held here on Wednesday, Feb. 24. At the present time about fifty bandmasters have replied favorable to the questionnaires sent them by George Cartmill, who is in charge of the clinic.

The directors have been invited to come at three o'clock and attend band practice. A supper for the entire group will be followed by the clinic to be held in the auditorium.

The college band will play clinic numbers that have been requested by the bandmasters. The numbers requested are those which the different bands will play at the state tournament. The purpose of the band clinic is to interpret concert numbers. Between numbers the group will take time to comment on the way the numbers should be interpreted.

Iris Head Outlines

Book's Completion

The engraving contract for this year's Iris has been let to John and Oliver Engineering Company of Chicago. The printing contract has been let to Rogers Printing Company of Dixon, Illinois, one of the largest printers of college annuals in this country.

Work on the opening section of the book has been completed; this includes opening section, faculty section, and senior section. With the purchase of more mobile and synchronizing film a high equipment for photography, the staff hopes to present much more interesting and varied pictures which will add much to the book.

Concerning The Replies

The symposium which is given in this issue must set at rest the fears that some of our students have expressed about the transfer of credits from one college or university to another. With the proper selection of courses, as guided by the requirements of the school to which you intend to go next, and an acceptable standard of work, there is no reason at all for ever losing any credits through transference. The courses to be taken can be determined by a study of the school catalogs. The student's standard of work is up to himself.

In addition to the information regarding the evaluation of credits and the impressions of the work done at Central State that the persons helping to make up this issue gave, many of them saw fit to comment on the value of attending some small school before entering a large school, especially for those students who come from the smaller high schools.

George Simonson, writing in this vein, says "Although it was my experience to graduate from a high school with an enrollment exceeding 1000, my work in pharmacy in the interval before entering college and in vacation periods of my college life gave me an opportunity to observe the high school condition in a town of 500. The great difference in the background which is now around 150. I have talked with many of those students. They can be placed in three classes: those who did not attend college, those who attended college in the state, and those who went directly to a university. From the background furnished by these discussions, I have arrived at the conclusion that the graduates of our small schools acquire much better by spending a year or two in a smaller college, preparatory to transferring to a university for further study in a special field, that is, unless they are working for a B E degree. I am afraid that many of the students find the transition between the small high school and university life too great to enable them to get started satisfactorily, and a good start is a most important item in college or university work. The transition, entirely outside of the college's scholastic features, sometimes overwhelms the individual to the extent that his whole college future is imperiled, and he acquires experiences of dubious value for future life. How much better it is to bridge this transition from small town to university by spending a year or two in a college."

Sigurd Krookse, the law student, says, "I would sincerely advise that people coming from small high schools should attend a preparatory school before entering the University. There is a tremendous difference between high school and the University, and by attending a small college, some of that difference is taken care of."

Truman Flowers writes, "I shall never regret the three years I spent at the Point. I think it very advisable for a student to spend his first few years in a small college, and when he has the opportunity to transfer to a University later without loss of credits."

Victer Kilmer, in speaking of his impression regarding the work done here, says, "I think it an excellent idea to take at least four years of work at your college before entering the University. You learn how to study, how to meet situations, and a smaller school is much cheaper to attend."

George Maurer, who plans to finish in law this year, added, "It is my impression that some students who are planning to enter law. He writes, "Naturally, many students attending B. S. C. are preparing themselves for vocations other than teaching, such as law, medicine, engineering, journalism, etc. I recommend at least two years of work at the Teachers College and in some instances more. For example, most accredited law schools require two of the required courses as a prerequisite for admission. Considering the money saved by lower living costs in Stevens Point, I think it is advisable to get a B. E. degree there. It is possible to enter law school after three years of college work. The credit earned in the sophomore year in law school revert back and are accredited to your previous three years work to give you a degree in law. In other words, you have completed four years. In that way, you can complete the law course in six years instead of seven. If you elect that route, it would be advisable to take two years work at the Teachers College and transfer the Junior year to the university or school in which you wish to do your law work."

"Students often inquire as to what subjects are best as pre­legal training. I am of the opinion that most of the students, there are no such preparatory courses as pre­legal. The law faculty at Wisconsin is divided, and such preparatory courses as pre­legal, some of which are adopted. Last month Phi Delta Phi law fraternity had as its guest a member of the law faculty in charge of the pre­legal plan was discussed. The law students, a majority, was formed a course which will aid students to better prepare themselves for law work. To this end, a pre­legal plan was adopted."

Dr. Otho M. Barnum, Mrs. Emma G. Barnum Sterne.

The central figure of this tale of the American Revolution is the poet, Philip Freneau. The scene is laid in New Jersey and New York. The hero, Olive Tannach, is an armed merchant­barque when the barque is captured by the British. Dan later escapes. There is romance, but the daughter of the captain. The story is historically accurate and the past seems to come alive in this narrative.

Captain Caulton, by Kenneth Lewis Roberts.

This historical novel of the war of 1812 tells about Daniel Marvin, an Arundel mariner. He is returning from China to Arundel with his daughter Arline Tannach, an armed merchant­barque when the war is ended. The hero is a woman. The story is about the capture of Mommouth by the British. Dan later escapes. There is romance, but the past seems to come alive in this narrative.

Mr. Roberts has written some other exciting novels which continue the story of the American Revolution. They are as follows: Doolittle in Arms, Arundel, and Lively Lady.

Apt paragraphs have for us as students the value of attending a smaller school before going to the university, and the need for careful selection of courses.

As was mentioned in the Pointer a few weeks ago, the curriculum at this school is being changed this year, with the addition of more and more of the degree requirements at the university. It is hoped that the symposium which this issue presents will relieve all further doubts about the value of Central State's credits.

Central State's Score Easy Victory

Johnston, Lindow, Nimz Play Spectacular Game

Rinka, Warner On Sidelines Entire Game. Reserves Show Up Well

The Pointers encountered little difficulty last Friday evening in defeating Platteville, their second conference foe, by the overwhelming score of 35-22. Completely outclassing their rivals, the Central State cagers rolled up a 22 to 9 score the first half and then increased the local five lead during the last period and coasted in to an easy victory.

Take Early Lead

Coach Kotal did not use either Rinka or Warner, his regular forwards, during the entire game due to injuries which the two men are suffering. These two regulars have been given a rest the last week but both should be in the pink of form for the Whitewater contest tomorrow.

Nimz helped the scoring for Central State on a short shot and he was followed by Johnston who rang up six consecutive points to give the local five an 8 to 1 lead—the one point for Platteville being made on a free throw by Gardner. The Point increased their score to twenty-two with Lindow, Nimz, and Schneider each dropping in two buckets. In the meantime Koch, Gardner, and Rehmstedt added eight points for Coach Leit's cagers. The first half ended with the Pointers holding their 13 point margin on the basis of the 22 to 9 score.

Rough Game

Fourteen more points were added in the second half to Stevens Point's already large margin before the Leitlemen rang up a single point. Kotal sent in a number of substitutions and Platteville was able to close the gap to 41 to 29. The regulars were again inserted for the last few minutes and with the crowd demanding the Pointers total to his limit the score was gradually increased until Belongia, reserve center, dropped in a push shot to push it over the hundred mark. A free throw by Belongia concluded the Point's scoring and left the final count 52 to 35 with Platteville on the short end.

Due to the wide margin of lead, the officiating was not very close. However, 32 fouls were called during the game and three men, Parish of Stevens Point, and Rehmstedt and Parish of Platteville were removed on fouls.

Nine For Rehmstedt

All of the Pointers saw action as Coach Kotal substituted freely and all of them showed up well. Individual scoring honors for the evening went to field goals and three free throws for a total of thirteen points. He was closely followed by Johnston and Lindow with twelve and ten points respectively. The remaining seventeen points were accounted for by Parish, Schneider, Anderson, Sonksen, Bohan, and Belongia.

The first semester of the school term of 1936-37 ends on January 29. On February 1st, students will enroll for the second semester. Classes will begin at 8:15 on Tuesday, February second.

Roy Menzel, brother of Ted, is showing the East how basketball is played at Stevens Point, Roy, who is a junior at the University of Pennsylvania, is the first string center on the Penn five. In two games recently, one against Dartmouth and the other against Penn State, Roy scored twenty-three and thirteen points respectively. The New York Times, in their write-up of the Dartmouth game, stated that so far Penn hasn't met a team which was capable of stopping Roy's scoring tactics. Roy formerly was a star at the Stevens Point High school where he was coached by Coach Ringdahl.

Milenwauke Wins Overtime
Milwaukee, Point's victim in their first conference game, defeated Oshkosh Friday, January 15, in an overtime game by the score of 31 to 27. "Bo" Bottelle, guard, was the mainstay of the Green Gull attack.

Beppler Takes Boxing Reins
Russ Beppler, newly appointed boxing coach, graduated from Central State in 1933 with four years of boxing experience. Russ also won his letter in football during his junior and senior year and was a member of the basketball squad during his freshman year. Last year Beppler coached at Pulaski, Wisconsin, where he experienced a very successful season.

Reserves Come Through
After witnessing Friday night's game, Coach Kotal should have little trouble with his forwards this year. The three reserve forwards, Parish, Anderson, and Schneider, turned in fine performances and should prove to be a great help during the present season. Last year Kotal's main worry was his lack of capable reserves, but it appears that he has found suitable material this year to use as substitutes for his regulars. Good reserve mean as much to a successful team as good regulars. A lack of them Friday night might have proven disastrous for Central State's title hopes.

Beppler Takes Boxing Reins
Russ Beppler, newly appointed boxing coach, graduated from Central State in 1933 with four years of boxing experience. Russ also won his letter in football during his junior and senior year and was a member of the basketball squad during his freshman year. Last year Beppler coached at Pulaski, Wisconsin, where he experienced a very successful season.

Reserves Come Through
After witnessing Friday night's game, Coach Kotal should have little trouble with his forwards this year. The three reserve forwards, Parish, Anderson, and Schneider, turned in fine performances and should prove to be a great help during the present season. Last year Kotal's main worry was his lack of capable reserves, but it appears that he has found suitable material this year to use as substitutes for his regulars. Good reserve mean as much to a successful team as good regulars. A lack of them Friday night might have proven disastrous for Central State's title hopes.

Menzel Leads Scorers
Roy Menzel, brother of Ted, is showing the East how basketball is played at Stevens Point, Roy, who is a junior at the University of Pennsylvania, is the first string center on the Penn five. In two games recently, one against Dartmouth and the other against Penn State, Roy scored twenty-three and thirteen points respectively. The New York Times, in their write-up of the Dartmouth game, stated that so far Penn hasn't met a team which was capable of stopping Roy's scoring tactics. Roy formerly was a star at the Stevens Point High school where he was coached by Coach Ringdahl.

"Les Jou-Joux"
Here January 27

The Russian Art Theater novelty, "Les Jou-Joux," with Ivan Markoff and his group of superb artists will be presented in the college auditorium January 27, beginning at eight o'clock. With Ivan Markoff will appear Arienne, Iris de Luce, Nikolai Vasiliev, Marguerite Rogers, and Beatrice Laidova, Walter Wenzel, a musician of distinction, concert pianist, voice authority and coach, will be the director of the performance.

Performers of Highest Caliber
"Les Jou-Joux" (the little Novelties) is patterned after the style of the European Variety theater wherein all of the theater arts are combined into a colorful stage spectacle. Elaborate costumes and bizarre scenic investiture adds a definite note of originality seldom seen today. The musical repertoire covers a wide range, using for settings all types of composition from the classics to the modern.

The artists appearing in "Les Jou-Joux" are among the best to be found. Ivan Markoff, creator of the "Les Jou-Joux" has toured with Anna Pavlova's Ballet Russe and appeared as an actor, dancer, painter, or director in over two hundred plays. Adrienne Loreille was a protege of the late David Belasco and has appeared in such New York musicals as "Blossom Time," "Student Prince," and "Rose Marie." Iris de Luce, Premier Dansuese with the performance, has soled as a dancer in the Paris Grand Opera Ballet and gained fame in this country by starring as an incomparable dancer. Both Nicholas Vasiliev, who trained under the noted Marinsky Theater and appeared in the Imperial Russian Ballet, and Marguerite Rogers, who appeared in the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe, offer the audience exceptional dance talent. Beatrice Laidova, protege of Ivan Markoff, will be heard in violin soli during the program, and will also be seen in several of the numbers.

If the cast and the reports received are any indication of the quality of the company's performance "Les Jou-Joux" should be one of the outstanding performances on the college stage for this year.

Informal Concert

The pianist, Hugo Brandt, and his concert party who were scheduled to present a concert here last Friday were late in arriving due to a misunderstanding in rating and consequently did not present their program.

However, they did present a concert here believe it or not, and you can prove it by asking any of the 20 or 30 students who happened into the College Eat Shop between 3 and 4:30 on last Friday.

Mr. Brandt and the very charming young artists who accompanied him gathered round the old piano at the Eat Shop and for an hour and a half they sang and played requests that the students asked for.

In time the "gang" got the spirit and they all joined in some mass singing, the artists and students all. Mr. Brandt also told the students something of the parts of Europe in which he was brought up.

Those who happened in were sorry that the party couldn't have presented their concert, for they certainly were artists of the finest ability.

Pridy Very Well Received

Al Pridy, animal trainer, certainly fulfilled all expectations in his lecture on "Can Animals Think?" given last Tuesday in a morning assembly. He held the entire audience spell-bound for an hour, telling of his experiences in training animals. Not only is he an exceptional humorist; he is also a keen psychologist.

"And That's That For Today"

Our main members of the Mens Glee Club turned out in mass to perform an act of mercy towards a "federal agent" who took a chance on passing the College "show case.

According to a member of the club, the twenty-five occupants of the College bus, including Miss Miller, were able to lift a car out of a snow drift, knee deep, and place it upon the highway. The car had attempted to pass the bus, when the driver lost control and slid into the drift. Imagine his surprise when our college man-power suddenly came to his rescue.

When asked about himself, he informed members of the Glee Club that he was a "federal agent" and that he could not afford to have his name linked with the accident. Why is it that such as he can pick the right cars to pass when about to enter a snow drift? He might have spent a night adrift in a snow bank before an equal number of men appeared but by the goodness of lady luck he happened upon the right group of men and was soon sent on his way.
The Eau Claire Interstate Debate Tournament in which C. S. T. C. planned to participate was postponed until Saturday January 30 on account of bad travel conditions.

Debaters who will make the trip to Eau Claire are Shirley Wood, M. Thiede editor, Mr. Timm, Doris George, Kathryn Becker, Bob Hoffman, Joe Op- haven, Ben Laschkewitsch, La Rue Smith, George Hyer, and Jim Murat.

Coach Burroughs and Professors Steiner and Tolo will accompany the team as judges and Miss Crossman will chaperone the girls.

The squad will travel by private ears to Eau Claire on Saturday and return on Sunday.

The first quotation is taken from Mr. George S. Simonsen, '36, who was editor of the Iris in his senior year here, now teaching in the Antigo High School, Antigo, Wisconsin, also tells of his experience at Northwestern.

"I found no difficulty whatever in being admitted to the Graduate School of Northwestern University in the near future. Most of the names mentioned are familiar to a large share of the present body."

MODERN FASHIONS
With our modern fashions you can't always be distinguished in the matter of dress. Said a golfer to his partner: "Just look at that girl dressed like a man. What are her parents thinking of, anyway? I think it's disgraceful." "That's my partner," replied the partner.

'I beg pardon, I didn't know you were her father," was the apologetic reply."I'm not, I'm her mother," And the golfer wilted.
