College Band Plans Annual Music Festival

The college band will hold its 4th annual music festival on Friday, April 23rd. Letters have been sent to a large number of high schools in the surrounding part of the state, and a large number of participants are expected. More than 30 orchestras and bands have taken part yearly in the previous festivals.

Each band participating will play three numbers of its own choice. Their rendition of the selections will be critized by a competent judge, and the sealed criticisms will be handed to the director. There will be no division or placement of the bands.

George Cartmill, who so successfully managed the recent band clinic, is also in charge of this affair.

Mens Chorus Still On Concert Tour

This morning the Mens chorus of this college will sing at Eagle River. An evening concert will be given at Iron River, Michigan. The men left on the tour last Tuesday and will return tomorrow evening. Since the first of the week five concerts have been presented in four northern cities.

Director N. E. Knutzen has announced that after the tour full practice time will be given to develop the program for the home concert on April 1st. An evening concert will be arranged at White Lake on Friday, April 16. About forty men will represent the chorus at the Wisconsin Association of Glee Clubs concert to be held at Oshkosh on Monday, May 3. All the choruses participating present individual numbers as well as the combined concert.

The movie benefit sponsored last week by this organization was fairly successful.

Schmeeckle Tabulates Conservation Returns

"The answers received on these questionnaires indicate the intensity of interest in conservation which exists at present," said Mr. Schmeeckle in an interview. "More and more people are trying to realize the value of conservation and are coming to appreciate the necessity for it. The state legislature followed the will of their constituents when it passed the teaching of conservation in all the schools of Wisconsin. This questionnaire shows how the men in the teaching of the subject are appreciating the recent appearance of this subject on school curricula."

"Another point that this questionnaire brought out is the value of college preparation in conservation," he added. "As a study of the last part shows, the field is not crowded with persons who can teach it. Those graduates who have conservation will have an additional selling point in their search for a position."

College Theater Schedules Play

The college theatre will present its second major performance of the year on March 17 and 18 with the presentation of "The Importance of Being Earnest," by Oscar Wilde. This play is directed by Phil Bunker. The play itself is a highlight of the humor and gayety of the times.

In Derision

Twelve champions walked off the floor last Saturday evening cinnching the top place in this year's championship race. If there had been any seats to slam, they would have been hosed. Not in the exaltation of winning a championship. It would have been merely a nonchalant bustle about getting out of the place.

Not a cheer. No enthusiasm. It is certainly a compliment to Coach Kotal that the students who have come to expect championships with such absolute trust. But it is certainly no compliment to the student body that it has allowed itself to become so bored to the point of indifference. It cannot lift its voice to praise or cheer a championship team.

This is as biting as I can make it. Perhaps nothing less than a series of losses as consistent as the series of wins will serve to awaken some school spirit in our students.

Hats off to the girls who organize the Pep Club. Such an organization is what this school seems to have needed. It is too bad that it could not have been organized sooner. Let's hope that it will live on until the next season.

Saturday is a booster game. There is a chance to show the team some appreciation. They are playing for spot money in order to pay for their awards. Instead of complaining because you cannot see another free game on your activity ticket, let's see you all at the game.

Collins Writes Note

On Famous Fronms

Dr. Joseph V. Collins, a member of the Teachers College faculty, was inspired by a feature story appearing in the Saturday Evening Post of February 1st. Under the title "The Million Dollar Fox Tale" to write for the Stevens Point Journal of Feb. 23 an article giving many interesting personal facts concerning the Fronms Brothers of Allauver fox fame.

Both members of the Fronms firm attended Central States Teachers College, and Edward, the leading spirit of the pair, graduated in 1919. Dr. Collins recalls that Edward Fronm was an excellent student, particularly interested in geometry.

The article also tells of Mr. Fronm's travels in Europe and the Orient in connection with his work and the work of both brothers in carrying on research in breeding foxes.

The Fronm firm is located some 20 miles northwest of Wausau, not far from the village of Hamborg.

Student Opinion

Dear Editor:

The article of last week, signed by the gentleman "of honor" amused me very much. It struck us as very-humor­ ous because the whole thing is a flock of nonsense and hot air.

First, gentlemen, we doubt the story of the "proper authorities" upon which you base the right of utilizing the glass­ enclosed bulletin board.

As far as your statement, "... the constituents are called for proceeding with legal action to punish those who have removed our posters...", is concerned it is very foolish and the hot air hits a new high. We have no legal action because you have posted it on state property and the material was posted by a personal individual.

The Young Progressive Club was brought into this mess very involuntarily. Did the membership of this club ever authorize the posting of material on the bulletin board? Were they ever asked to voice their opinion on this type of action? We have been led to believe that they did not. This matter should be a personal matter. Kindly keep it as such.

As far as we are concerned this will "not happen again"—if immediate action is taken. By that I mean if lock is put on that case and the said case is used for school purposes only. We advocate such an act and by so doing, our little "men of honor", you will not have to bother about being "faced to take proper steps to see that it does not happen again".

As far as the counter organization is concerned, you can rest in peace because it appears as though some have taken it upon themselves to be guar­ dians of this institution and intend to

Nelson Hall Notes

By Nellie of Nelson Hall

Many week-ends found themselves with a real vacation when snow proved too much and the return to the Hall in time for Tuesday classes. Adela Theilig had not missed a class for three semesters. However, Tuesday's "Snowbound" in Stratford broke the record.

The Bremner brothers are frequent callers at the Hall of late.

Miss Phyllis Davidson and Miss Ma­ rie Odegard, students who attended C. S. T. C. last year, visited the Hall this week.

Toples for bedtime stories at the dorm include:

-Where did Miss Richards get the hatchet, Monday!
-Why were Cliff and Alice last to leave band concert? They left early here.
-What prominent faculty member is an expert hitchiker?
-Who installed the radio in Miss Murphy's room? How about it Carroll!

Nelson Hall soon will celebrate its coming of age. The catalog for 1917 makes interesting reading. Nellie

The History Department has been producing a series of talks entitled "History and You." Members of the history faculty alternate in giving 15 minute speeches of general interest. These programs are aired every Monday at 9:45. Additional times will take place every Thursday at 4:00 from various locations in and about the campus. "Poems and Music" has been suspended temporarily.

Now that new equipment has been secured, there is no reason why some of the musical organizations will not go on with their programs. A good deal of time and effort on the part of those who plan the programs has made the radio a useful addition in the college and the programs should do a good job for the students who keep the radio program from being used for non-educational purposes and cut off the right of students to listen to programs of considerable interest to listeners as evidenced by letters and cards.

The Roving Reporter Talks

Elsewhere in this paper appears a story concerning the reorganization of the radio department. New technical equipment has been obtained which will make it possible to broadcast programs directly from the state of our auditoriums. The high fidelity type enabling music to be transmitted without serious distortion. Thus we have the facilities to use this new equipment to pay thousands of dollars every year. We can boost and advertise our school throughout the entire state without moving from our building. WIAU is now preparing for the present time installing new transmitter equipment at Auburndale, Wisconsin, which will make it the most powerful station in the state of Wisconsin. The station will produce a signal which will be heard over the entire state.

It is up to us to take advantage of the most of the opportunity offered. Up to now there have been several programs released weekly, which have proved popular with the radio audience. Several students have taken it upon themselves to put these programs on the air. Many of the faculty members have cooperated splendidly, but the general student support and interest has been lacking. It has been almost impossible to secure students for interviews on the Tuesday 4:00 o'clock programs which are going on in the auditorium. (Incidentally, this program is of considerable interest to listeners as evidenced by letters and cards).

All this, however, does take a great deal of time and effort on the part of the people who plan the programs. The production of programs is much too large for the few students who have kept the radio program from dying out. Announcements, music writers, production men and others are needed. The meeting on Friday is for the purpose of organizing the entire radio set-up. If you are interested (you need not be experienced) in radio work and wish to secure some practical experience, you should attend.

St. Norbert Tilt Easy Victory

Central State's eggers, led by Chet Rinka, Fred Nizm easily defeated St. Norbert's in a non-conference tilt Monday, March 1. The game resembled a professional contest with both teams depending on long shots rather than attempting to work the ball in. The high scoring honor of the evening went to Chet Rinka and to Fred Nizm who had fifteen and thirteen points respectively. The entire squad of twelve men made up to a Norbert trip. The men left early Monday afternoon and returned immediately after the game.

Percentage Answers

The study was made "to determine the attitude and general opinions concerning the teaching of Conservation in Wisconsin so as to get the reactions and view points from teachers who are called upon to administer this course in their respective school systems".

Several questionnaires were sent out, and 201 of them were returned. Some of these were returned were not entirely filled out, as some of the questions were of a type that could not be answered without considerable time being spent in a study of the matter.

50% Of Teachers Prepared

The answers which are perhaps most interesting to students of Central State are found near the end of the study, but because of their importance, they will be treated first.

Question number 16 was, "Are your teachers adequately prepared to teach conservation?" and "Have you teachers that are especially prepared for the teaching of conservation of human life?" Surprisingly enough, 46%, or almost one half of the schools, have teachers prepared to teach conservation. Exactly 50% have teachers without college preparation but with a certain amount of training and interest. From these returns, it appears that about half of the schools in the state do not have teachers without college preparation in conservation.

Preference for Favor Conservation

The 1st question dealt with Mr. Schmeeckle's own definition for conservation, "The study and practice of saving and renewing our natural resources whenever and where ever possible, and their distribution, economic use and services in regional, state, and national development!" This was accepted by 91% of those who replied.

From question two it was found that 95% of the people answering favored the teaching of conservation in their schools. 77% of them wanted it taught in correlation with already existing courses, as opposed to teaching it as a separate course.

The people were then asked whether they would teach conservation as a separate subject in either the grades or the high school. Only 10% wanted it taught as a separate course in the grades, and only 39% as a separate course in the high school. 95% favored, for grades one to six, teaching nature study with emphasis on conservation. 71% of the answers were in favor of teaching conservation in the city schools.

The persons written to were asked to indicate whether they would favor only the development of a proper attitude or philosophy toward conservation, or the teaching of only the practical side, or a combination of these two. 71% of the total replies favored the combination of the two.

Emphasis Differ With Grade

Several questions were then devoted to finding out what things are generally being emphasized in existing conservation courses. Ranging from first to last, this is the order of preference of subjects to be emphasized: forest, wild life, human life, soil conservation, recreational resources, public property, and minerals.

For the grades, the order was different, being wild life, human life, forests, public property, soil conservation, water and water power, and minerals (the last two had the same number of votes). The order for the high schools was indicated as soil conservation, forests, human life, recreational resources, wild life, water and water power, public property, and minerals.

Over 90% of the people favored working out practical conservation projects in their schools. The projects which were mentioned oftenest were, in their proper order ranging downward, tree planting, bird feeding, health, public property, and reforestation. The same 90% indicated that they could expect help from their respective communities in their projects.

Schmeeckle Preparing Book

The people were also asked whether they would emphasize conservation in Wisconsin or in the whole of the United States. 28% favored Wisconsin, 28% the United States, and the remaining favored emphasis of both.

Mr. Schmeeckle plans to include the report of this study in a conservation text book which he is drawing up. It is practically complete and will be ready for publication soon.

Prominent Official Comments

As was mentioned before, some of the questionnaires were sent to Wisconsin Conservation officials. Mr. H. W. MacKenzie, Conservation Director, and tells of what the state is doing to organize this new course. Part of his letter is here quoted:

"It is obvious that a well-planned professional course in school conservation, the scope of the field to be covered must first be determined. It is likely to be a great diversification of views as to what should be included in such a course, but for best results some limitations will undoubtedly be necessary.

"A committee on conservation education has been recently created consisting of members of the department of public instruction the university and the conservancy. The purpose of the committee is to prepare a syllabus for schools. This group has met several times, and the first task completed was the determination of what should be included in a course of conservation.

"Major divisions of the field have been set up, and they are now preparing reports as to what should be included in each field. Considerable work remains to be done, and even though this committee appears to mean business, it will be several months before their work has been completed.

"Your findings should be of special interest to these men. I feel certain that some splendid suggestions will be found in the replies to your questionnaire.

"As you undoubtedly know, the conservation commission and department are keenly interested in the successful teaching of conservation in our schools, and we deeply appreciate the initiative and resourcefulness displayed by many teachers who are seriously and earnestly trying to do a good job in teaching this important subject. Personally, I wish to thank you for your efforts to further the cause of conservation education and hope you will continue the good work."

Very truly yours,
H. W. MacKenzie
