Next Saturday night, February 9, the Training school gym, decorated as a lovely red and white valentine garden, will be the scene of this college formal which it is hoped will revive formal dances and other peacetime social activities at CSTC.

Cliff Hoene's nine piece orchestra will provide the music for dancing.

Climaxing the evening's gaieties will be the crowning of the King and Queen of Hearts, who will be selected in the following manner: As each college student arrives with his or her partner, he will deposit his ticket with his name and the name of his partner or escort written on it. At the end of the fourth dance the ticket bearing the names of the King and Queen of Hearts will be drawn by Dr. Harold M. Tolo, Acting Dean of Men. Thus, if a college student's partner or escort is not a college student he or she has an equal chance to be king or queen.

Point Bows To Stout 48:46

The Pointers face a heavy schedule 24. this weekend when they meet Platteville on Friday and Whitewater on Saturday. Point holds victories over both of these opponents and will attempt to make it the state of the same and the same at the attempt to make it two straight. Next week on Tuesday CSTC will also engage Eau Claire. All of these games will be played away from home.

Last Saturday, the Point cagers dropped a closely fought contest 48-46 to Stout Institute at the Training school gym despite the brilliant performance of their star guard, Géorge Flugaur, who took scoring honors with 23 points.

Lack Height

Major factor in the Pointers' de-feat was lack of height. The Stoutmen, using their towering height to advantage, controlled the rebounds and it was these rebounds which led to much of Stout's scoring. The visitors held the edge in the free throw department, also scoring 10 out of 19 free throws as against 10 out of 22 for the Pointers.

Flugaur, former Stevens Point High school guard and newcomer to the Point quintet, was definitely the outstanding player of the game. Beoutstanding player of the game. Be-sides his precision shooting, Flugaur turned in some exceptionally fine floor work and defensive play. Bob Hartman, playing at his new for-ward position, turned in a very fine game also.

Use New Starting Line-Up

With the exception of Hartman, Bob Olk, who is coaching during the illness of Coach George R. Berg, started the game with a completely new team composed of Jim Sullivan, Dario Capacasa, Bill Carnahan, and Flugaur. The new Pointers displayed a fine type of floor play which proved confusing to the visitors at first. Stout soon took advantage of their height, though, and from there on it was anybody's game.
