Co-op Plan Adopted

CSTC's eating problems were one step nearer solution when about 75 students met last Thursday and voted to adopt a plan presented by Matt Klink. This plan provides for an evaluation of the food by the students. Art Peja, chairman of the meeting, stated that under this plan, students will have $4.50 worth of choices at the kiosk and would also plan the meals. It was decided that a Board of Directors be selected to manage the co-op and that this Board would meet monthly. The current chairman and appoint two bookkeepers. The members of the Board will be selected from the students, Merlin Melin, Margaret Albricht, Bert Koller, Dick Gehl, and Bruce and Charles Bart.

Students interested in eating under this plan may apply to the Student Council bulletin board for further announcements.

Mr. Delzell Elected Vice-President of Board of Regents

Trailer Help Solve Housing Shortage

There is always a way of finding housing shortage and as proof we offer the CSTC trailer colony—a tribute to the ingenuity of its occupants. Six trailer houses located behind the Orthon Music demonstration school form the nucleus of what may well become a larger project.

As a Point reader rather ably states in the P. W. Courineau trailer to gather information for this story, we found the trailer colony a perfect hovel in a homely atmosphere. Courineau, who comes from Antigo, and lives happily with his wife (the former Violet Joy), and his daughter, Joyce Mary, in their trailer, gave us a quick but thorough inspection of the merits and comforts of a home on wheels.

"It's a good way," said Courineau. "I have to worry about a place to live. Wherever I go I take my trailer.

Trailers Well Planned

After making a tour of the trailers and concomitant tour that a trailer is a masterpiece of planning and utilization of space. Most of the roads last Saturday that it had run in the space. Some of them were well laid out and had everything at their disposal, including a washroom and a toilet in a room. The trailers are finished in stained wood, with a hole in the middle of the floor. There is also room for a radio and phonograph, knock-knock-a sleep, etc. Then they would have everything at their disposal, including the water supply and a toilet in the kitchen. Miss VanArsdale To Teach In Germany

Miss Gladys Van Arsdale, third grade teacher at the Central school, and now on leave of absence, is among the 119 teachers whom the state will transmit to Germany to give 2,000 to 2,500 children of Unitarian or Jewish parents an opportunity to study the American education. The teachers have been chosen from leading American universities and public school systems.

The schools were opened Monday, October 15, in bemedded buildings, re-modeled private residences and business places. This educational opportun­ity will not be free, except for the first eight months. Children of the upper grades will be assessed $45 per month. Besides the American teachers, 50 or more German teachers are teaching the German language.

Schools in the elementary level were opened in 40 communities in the state. The schools will be opened in six of the larger communities. Educational opportunities will be available for all students who are said to be comparable to the average in Germany.

CSTC is most fortunate to have had Miss Van Arsdale chosen to aid in this great experiment. In a letter received from her last week, she said that she was in Frankfort where she was attending a religious meeting. She will print her impressions of post-war Germany.

Historical Paintings Will Be Exhibited

Thirty water colors by Miss Anita Zentner, Milwaukee, will be exhib­ited in the Art room from November 6 to November 22. The paintings of historical nature are of the towns along the abandoned Soo Line between Portage and Stevens Point. Of particular interest is the painting of the Stevens Point market square done by Miss Zentner last August. The exhibit will be shown in the following Wisconsin cities: Racine, Stevens Point, Oshkosh, Superior, Appleton (Lawrence College), Keno­nsha and Green Bay.

Miss Zentner, now is working with the Soil Conservation Service in Wisconsin is a graduate of Milwaukee State Teachers college and has attended Columbia university. She has exhibited paintings in the annual Rural Art Show and has taught art for nine years.

Students and faculty members are invited to come to the Art De­partment at the west end of the second floor corridor, turn right to see the exhibit sometime between November 6 and 22.

Students from 45 Counties at CSTC

Do you know your counties? Do you know that of the 71 counties in Wisconsin, 45 are represented by the students of Portage County?

Portage County comes first with the grand total of 280 students. Mar­ion county is second with an at­endance of 190 students, and next in line is Wood with 73.

Following up are Wausau and Clark counties with 45 and 30 students, respectively. Langlade, Price, and Jackson counties, as compared to a house, but after you know that the students are next in line in order of representation.

From the northern most part of the state are students from Ashland, Bayfield, and Sault Ste. Marie. Students coming from the southeastern part of the state are represented from "way down south" are Dane, Jefferson, and Mil­waukee.

Most Students From Central Wisconsin
Mind Your Manners

Manners to college students should be second nature, but every once in a while it can be overlooked.

For instance, as far as the bell rings Jo Bo jumps out of his seat and heads for the door. By the time he makes it to the floor or the brown on the instructor's face as he dismisses the class.

Flora Primm carries a collection of junk to class with her every day and seems to be oblivious to the noise and interruption it causes as she unloads at the front of the class.

Susie Coe, a (model) student sits in the front row, and pays strict attention to every word her instructor utters, while at the same time she exhibits a provocative and stick of cocktail chewing gum. Up and down, round and about—and by that time the instructor is slightly distracted.

But Winz spends his time getting acquainted with his neighbor in the library over the morning issue of the Starlit Times, while across from him someone is endeavoring to dequip.

Maybe you aren't guilty of any of these "slips" or maybe you are. Maybe you don't talk behind your hand to your neighbor during a lecture, or maybe you do. And maybe someone doesn't like your fellow student or faculty member or maybe you don't. But whether you do or not, you have problems when you don't keep it in mind for a future.

Newman Club

"Should I marry or should I become a nun?" was the title of a very interesting discussion led by Father John P. Trout at the Newman club meeting on Monday, October 26. The discussion was attended by approximately 70 students.

A special committee was appointed for the year to plan for programs and parties for future meetings. William I. Keenan, director of admissions, was elected by Annette Koell, Elaine Czarnek, George Fluquet and Gregory Quinn.

Initiation of new members will take place at the next meeting on Thursday, November 5, 7 p.m. at St. Stephen's. All Catholic students interested in Newman Club are invited to attend the meeting.

Radio Workshop

The Radio Workshop continues to be one of the busiest places on the campus, with 40 students working in the studio on Monday through Friday from 10 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 4 p.m. The numbers control operators, script writers, and typists are always on the lookout for new ideas. It is considered one of the most valuable services the studio can provide.

Mr. Marsh to Leave to Take Post at U W

Herbert Marsh, a former CSTC graduate, is going to Madison as a Veterans' Counselor, leaves Friday to take up his new duties at the University of Wisconsin. Mr. Marsh will be replaced by Olin Brennan, who was employed in Madison. Mr. Ladd is a guest instructor for the third semester at CSTC, returning from a teaching position at Wittenberg College and received his Master of Science degree at the University of Wisconsin. He has taught at state grade and elementary schools in Wisconsin and has been teaching music and art in Madison Public Schools.

Meet Miss Bovee of Nelson Hall

A few years ago, in Room 106 at Nelson Hall, Leona Bovee and Myra Bovee, two sisters, were seen seated at the top of the floor— as Manager and assistant of Nelson Hall, respectively.

Miss Bovee--Miss Mrs. Bovee. The Dorm has changed only a little in the intervening years, mostly in regard to the stringencies of rules. There are the same old furniture, the same dressers, and beds—but there is a new leyness in hours. Girls in Nelson Hall are permitted to go out of the Dorm after 7:30!

Whenever a new personality appears in the Dorm, there is that person is either in the line for her room, or she is walking to class. It is an interesting picture of that he or she is outstanding. Miss Bovee has proved to be in that category.

She was born in Oconomowoc, Wisconsin, and is a graduate of high schools. She went on to finish her education at Stevens Point Nor- cage, the University of Wisconsin and Stout Institute, majoring in Home Economics.

Her versatility is shown in the jobs she has had. Miss Bovee has held the following positions: Dorm Committee manager and summer resort hostess and manager, besides being a chauffeur for Wisconsin city hotel guests. The last position she held was that of Dorm Committee manager, at the University of Wisconsin. Her major study there was in South Carolina, which she left when she reached the age of 15 years.

"Sparkling" and "enthusiastic" are words immediately called to mind when one wishes to describe her. It is a pleasure to speak with her. She is the rare woman who will never be without friends, because she is interesting. She is the rare woman who is self- friendly. It is hard to imagine anyone more exuberant or possessing more of the spark of life. Miss Bovee's interests are centered on people and the way they live. She is not interested in every girl at Nelson Hall must have discovered by this time that she is interested in them, but rather in people in general.

In her room at the dormitory, she says that she likes to have a few friends from her dorm, which is her hobby. They are a myriad of size and unusual de- scriptions, representing foreign countries. Other of her hobbies include stamp collecting, cooking and her friends' children.

The only things to which she is devoted are the students in her dormitory—her "little advertise— the usual feminine aversions. Miss Bovee's next plans are to travel around the world and be in the World's Fair.

Training Students

Form Junior Band

The students of the Mary D. Bradford Junior High school are very interested in organizing, for the first time in their history of the training school, a junior high school band. Under the direction of Mr. Grant Speidel, a member of the college band.

The Junior High School band meets every school morning from 8 to 9 a.m. and although it is small, band members hope to have a full size orchestra organized. At present, they are working toward a program for a Thanksgiving concert.

Anyone having musical instru- ments that they would like to try to the training school band should please get in touch with Mr. Speidel.

Dorm Doin's

"Double, double, toil and trouble—" was not the opening statement of "Macbeth" that many Dormies aurally heard on Friday, October 30, because of an impending talent show that would apply to the soon-to-be performed traditional pranks of Halloween at Nelson Hall.

"Fire burn, and cauldron bubble.... That which we do not often hear in the dormitories is Gene Fischer. Her assistants are Judy Clayton and Barbara De Hart. The head Dormie is interested in grades last week, they probably can stand anything. (No, the marks weren't that bad—but you know how it is—you're always surprised!"

What with recovering from the hectic activities of Homecoming and all, well, there just wasn't much excitement in the Dorm last week. Even third floor remained rather subdued—no shouts emanating from the dorm. The Dormies just know how long can this tranquility exist for?"

The weekend saw the arrival of two guests, Nancy Okerman of Tomahawk and Marjorie Paul of Milwaukee. (By the way, V-5's, she's not a per- son.) Frances Stokes and Elaine Thompson of Madison visited from this city.

Out-of-towners included Miss Bovee and Nelson Hall Manager. Ladd Harrison with a sister in Baraboo, Janice Taylor and Mrs. Studios, who is probably still seeing "moon-faced" Miriam Kraus in Custard on Saturday. Celine Schiller of Almond was on her way to Marathon with the others of the Shop Class and Miss Armstrong of the cheerleaders to Platteville. There were some good announcements—maybe—and that 70 victory is in the air, or at least is evidence (and it is) they were successful.

Looking ahead: 45 shopping days till we know what it is. Premature? Well, maybe, but you can't do anything about it.

Happy Birthday Miss Roach

The Pointer staff, on behalf of the students, wish to take this opportunity to extend a heartier birthday greeting to Miss Roach. They feel that she would be fitting if we could find a birthday greeting for her tomorrow, but it seems that the shameless, unlike the Irish, are not allowed to wish Miss Roach!!"

STUDENT OPINION

Dear Students,

Are you going to school to become educated? Are you going to school to be a whole person? Well then, why isn't our auditorium filled every time there is an assembly? So many students go to school because they are the one to judge and decide, even though they are there.

Come on, students, let's not show our ignorance like that! If you go to school to be educated, why don't you look up the assembly committee. Either Mr. Eitelman or your student representatives from that committee, for he doesn't give the assembly program a chance before bringing down your final judgment.

You can't expect every program to inspire you to climb trees, but I'm sure that such thinking is a definite purpose. "Seek and ye shall find," go down. By that time, we will be back to our normal routine, and if there's a chance. So until next week, watch the Greeks and keep your eye on "The Seeing Eye."
Points Cinch Share of Title With 7-0 Win over Platteville

LaFleur, Haidvogl Star for CSTC

Coach George Berg's Pointers defied the top-ranking Platteville pedals, 7-0, at Platteville, Saturday, October 26, to take the co-champion honors in the Wisconsin State Teachers Southern conference. It was the third straight victory for the Pointers.

Point's running mate for first place honors will be decided this Saturday when the Milwaukee Green Gulls and the Platteville pedals clash. Both Milwaukee and Platteville have won two games and lost one game to date.

Showing no comparison to the CSTC team which began its season by being engulfed by St. Norbert's, the Pointers looked like the real champions they are as they completely outlasted the Platteville men in both offensive and defensive departments. The CSTC line was well-coordinated as it charged through repeatedly to break up most of the Platteville plays, Jack Chvala, substitute on defense for center Gaulke, who was injured in the Whitewater tilt, was outstanding in defense.

Under Dick Parsons' excellent quarterbacking, La Fleur, Koehn and Emmerich were outstanding in the backfield. Top honors go, however, to La Fleur and Haidvogl. La Fleur intercepted a Platteville pass, ran 70 yards 30 yards to set up Point's touchdown, and then followed up by taking the ball across the line for the marker. Haidvogl accounted for much of Point's fine showing as he repeatedly caught seemingly impossible passes, even when covered by two and three Platteville men. Le Main and Coyne played fine ball for Platteville.

La Fleur Intercepts Pass

The game started out with both teams playing close ball. With about five minutes of the first quarter elapsed La Fleur intercepted a Platteville pass, ran 45 yard line and ran it back 40 yards. Emmerich plunged through for a first down and then La Fleur skirted right end for Point's touchdown. Al Helmink converted to make the score 7-0 in favor of Point.

From there on Point held a decided edge throughout the game, making three distinct threats. The Platteville line held each time, however, and Point lost the ball on downs. Al Helmink attempted a field goal from the 20 yard line, but it was blocked. Jimmy Koehn also fumbled off a brilliant 45 yard run for a touchdown, but the play was called back on an official penalty. Haidvogl played a brilliant game at end catching five of six passes, three of which accounted for first downs.

Point attempted seven passes completing five while Platteville connected on only four out of 12 passes. The Pointers chalked up 11 first downs as compared to four for the Platteville pedals.

The men operate on a cooperative basis. Jensen owned a trailer and Peters owned an automobile. They both wanted to go to school so a partnership was born. These eligible bachelors do their own cooking and house work or rather trailer work.

"We've licked the food situation," chuckled Peters. "I figure we save 50% by doing our own cooking."

"What I like," added Jensen, "is the independence plus.

The last and final member we chattered with was Harold Lobenstein of Adams. Most of the trailers have thick insulation to assure warmth against the cold weather, but Lobenstein was taking no chances with the weather. He was further fortifying himself and his wife against the coming winter by placing a lining of roofing around the bottom of his trailer.

To sum it all up briefly a group of students, both single and married, were determined to go to college. They applied their ingenuity and, with the cooperation of the college, founded CSTC's trailer colony, the first of its kind in the history of the school.

Recently, the following notice appeared on the bulletin board at the southwestern stairway of the college building:

Personal:
To a well worn taupe colored hat adorned with a narrow slightly frayed matching ribbon, marked by an Ann Arbor hubbardshery (although the letters may be worn to obliteration), also somewhat stained at the crown from years of contact with the patte of a balding librarian; last seen on the newel post of the ground stairway, first floor of the college building.

Message:
You may come home now. All is forgiven. I'm waiting for you.

Soon after the appeal was posted, this note was scribbled underneath:

"You will find me sitting on top of the world in Room 254."

Following the clue, Nellie R. Kampseng, college librarian, author of the above solicitation, is happy to inform her reading public that she found her wandering Stetson perched on the globe in Room 254.
