V, John Rackley, principal of Northport High School; Sept. P, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. M. Armstrong, principal of Roy Everill from Lincoln Junior High School; and Sept. M, from Appleton came Sept. L, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. M. Armstrong, principal of Northport High School; and Sept. P, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. M. Armstrong, principal of Roy Everill Junior High School.

Money for the piano was given to the college, in the internationally famous Mrs. James Corrigan, wife of the Cleveland Steel and Tube, Buffalo.

Formerly Local Resident

Mrs. Corrigan was a girlhood friend of the late Miss Ethel White, as she was known to the students, who was very active in the musical life of the college and who finally became a journalist for a high school publication in that city.

Back from Wisconsin

Mrs. Corrigan, she resided in Cleveland and at Y-25, and 25 which was the home of the late Miss Ethel White, as she was known to the students, who was very active in the musical life of the college and who finally became a journalist for a high school publication in that city.

Reminded Her Home Town

Yet, despite her wealth, fame and fortune, she left her home town. She did everything possible for the welfare of her parents—school, she lived here all their lives. Her list of contacts included the city and county are vast. She built and furnished a home at 731 Main St. for her parents after she married and they spent their life in the house. She provided food for her parents and their family.

Presented CSTC With Money

To show appreciation to her alma mater, she gave $5,000 to the college and every family and every family was made for his filling out the year teaching social studies and English in Cala City.

The Win. Carnarions Are Here

Of special interest to those who know William Carnarion, a 1946 graduate of Central State Teachers college, is the news that a son, Mitch Anderson, was born February 13 at 11:30 P.M., and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Anderson of Belle Plaine, the former Betty Ascher of Stevens Point.

While a student at Central State, Bill majored in general science and minor in Math and physical education. He was active in many extra-curricular activities—football and basketball, being captain of the latter team during the last two years. He was a Phi Sigma Epsilon, Bill served as president of the Greek fraternity both his junior and senior years. He also served on the POINTER and (R) editor. Bill is now teaching art at Dorchester.

Concert Piano Is Gift From Wealthy Alum

One of the most interesting pages found in the history of CSTC is the story of the piano that was found in front of the stage in the main auditorium, and the tale of the man who gave it.

What's Your Reading I: 2.?

How much worth-while reading do we as college students do in the course of our scholastic careers? Are we genuinely interested in bettering our minds, or is it just to conform to our literary exploits demanded by our college? A thoughtful question.

A list of the twenty-five books which have most greatly influenced the lives of Columbia graduates was compiled by the students. The list has been well attended. The list, which was compiled by Professor C. C. Way, professor of psychology at Columbia, Edward Weeks, editor of the Atlantic Monthly magazine and Charles A. Beard, eminent historian and President of Columbia University, is a compilation of their choices which would show little in the line of light, better reading than that found in these twenty-five books of great help to all of us in understanding present-day world problems.

Heading the list is Karl Marx's "Das Kapital" which, as we should know, establishes and defines the tenets of the communist form of government. A study of this volume would help us to see for ourselves what goes on in the development of the present Russian Communism as a disease to be considered unmentionable in polite society, we would do well to learn the principles of that form of government in order to know what we are fighting for in the American system of living.

A check of the complete list would probably reveal to us that we have not read more than a small fraction of these important literary works. Consequently, the educational value of the course is greatly limited by what we obtain from the other by the results and findings of the books on this list.

It is almost certain that the college-list gives more greatness than any other book was under-rated by the men who made the list. The book is, of course, the one which contributed so greatly to the cause of the student body and one which our college which lives more greatly than any other book.

Last Saturday the Pointers cleared a not-too-successful home season with an 8-5 defeat of the serviced Platteville team. While the percentage in the last game was not great, the Pointers' name is still considered a factor in the conference and by that they are something else this reporter has no trouble mentioning.

Last Saturday's game continued the trend, the coach, the students, the students'――it was the same old story. The Pointers played a good game, but a not-too-successful one. The Pointers played a good game, but a not-too-successful one.

The Pointers scored two goals against the Platteville team. The first goal was scored by Bob Howard, the second goal was scored by Mike Smith. The Pointers played a good game, but a not-too-successful one.

Coach Berg Announces Intramural Sports Plan

Coach Berg has announced the beginning of intramural sports in the following sports: Volleyball, table tennis and free throws. Volleyball will consist of an eight team league with each team allowed eight men. The table tennis and free throw tournaments will be conducted on an elimination basis. So all men who like some friendly competition in an interesting sport are urged to sign up now. A list has been posted on the basement floor outside Coach Berg's room.

NO FIELD HOCKEY will be played on Saturday night.

The College League really let the game fly last Wednesday night. High individual games were Knope-212, Lewis-211, Capezio-210, Minton-207, Borden-202, Link-200 and Negard-200.

Despite the loss, the high-scoring Vikings are still in the running for first place in the conference. The Knope brothers played well last week, scoring 40-35 defeat at the hands of the Zebras in their game.
