Speaker
At Today's Assembly

Miss Luciana Ribet from Mount Holyoke College, South Hadley, Massachusetts, will be the guest speaker in the college auditorium this morning at 10 o'clock on the subject, "The European Mind Today.

Miss Ribet is familiar with the needs of students throughout Europe since she has written numerous articles on the ground distribution of anti-Fascist and anti-Bolshevik propaganda and distribution of relief to families of political prisoners. She is sponsored by the World Student Service Fund, which is sponsored by the United Students Service of America and the B'nai B'rith Hillard Foundation.

The WSSF distributes its aid through World Student Relief, an international, non-governmental organization of educational squatters in Geneva, Switzerland.

"An Evening of Dance" Will Be Presented by U. W. Dance Group

Orchesis, dance group from the University of Wisconsin, will offer the campus a foot-stomping evening of music and dance tomorrow night. Beginners and experienced members have to have observed modern interpretative dancing when they pre-registered for the class. Registration was held Friday evening, April 11, at 8 o'clock in the college auditorium.

The American Association of University Women has made a practice of presenting dance programs which are both educational and entertainment to the community each year and the group is sponsoring another dance program this year.

Orchesis consists of 24 or 25 co-eds from the University of Wisconsin, among whom is Miss Maureen Lawrence, a former CSTC student, who is president of the organization. Since great expense is entailed in obtaining so large a group, additional sponsors have been added. They are the Business and Professional Women's club, the Twilight Music Club, and the Central States Association of chairmen of the committee, the Women's Athletic Club, and the Junior Women's Business Club, with Miss Chi sorority, with which Miss Lawrence was affiliated when she attended UW.

Members of the sorority have been asked to serve as ushers, since Miss Lawrence and her classmates are in the planning of their group.

At Wisconsin, as at many other Universities and Teachers Colleges, dance has become an important part of the educational program. All classes are well attended and receive high marks. In some cases, this evening's program was made by Radio Station WHA and voted by the College adviser, to the Training School for education of students, who have in the past and who will continue to attend and enjoy this program in the near future. Any visitor are welcome. The exact date may be determined by calling at the Training School.

Annual Easter Dinner

This is a world's surprise surrounding plans for the annual formal dinner, which has been disclosed that invitations to the annual formal dinner will be made of those most interested. Nelson Hall, the shape of miniature hat boxes, tied with gay ribbons and bearing the name of the department, will also be a part of the evening party. Students have been asked to make reservations by the end of the month. Nelson Hall will be the scene, dress your formal, and come to enjoy a night of music and dancing. Nelson Hall.

Come for dinner, wear your formal Do your best--or just act normal And a good time will be had by Don't think you have to do it Just come for dinner and enjoy the Nelson Hall.

Dinner and guests will be in attendance at the same time anonymous at the present time.

Nelson Hall to Hold Annual Easter Dinner

The dinner list for this first large social event of the new season at CSTC includes Misses Gertie Hank, Elizabeth Rice, Jane Herlihy, Patricia Doherty and Mary Pfiffer, all seniors; Misses Dorothy Redwine, Mildred Williams and William G. Hansen.

The surprise is hidden by the undisclosed theme of the affair, it is assumed that the committee, under the capable leadership of Mary Chenoweth, general chairman of the committee, and Mrs. Laura Gerke, have been doing much work to arrange the evening. Those who have worked on committees must remain anonymous at this time.

The dinner is being held in the P. J. Jacobs gym for the first time this year because of the increased enrollment of students, and high school, being larger than either one of the other schools, will accommodate a much larger crowd.

Follows H. S. Prom

The Junior class is working hard in cooperation with the high school to make the Prom a success. Activities will be held on Friday, April 14, and the College Prom will be on Saturday, April 12, where Prom will be used for both dances will be worked out by joint committees on high school and college students.

Several college committees have been set up in order to do this. Betty Maki is chairman of the invitation committee and Bill Mellin of the program and ticket committee. Mrs. Davidson is chairman of the decorations committee, and she is being by Crown, Dolez, and members of the Junior class, and her, Mrs. Barber Finken, and Mrs. Raine Peters, Kathleen Berg, Edward

Students and Faculty Are Interviewed On Question of Purchasing Textbooks

An important topic of discussion which has arisen recently at CSTC and other state teachers colleges, especially among upper and lower class students, is that of the purchase of textbooks.

A majority of students—and they are backed up by a good many teachers—"...feel that there is a pressing need for a more logical and realistic way of handling book purchases." There are a number of reasons for this feeling giving rise to the question of textbook purchase. One source of conflict is in formation. One source or reference, the text itself, is marked with regular class periods and definite semester hours and that such education ends for the student with the final bell of the last semester hour.

"This is folly!" Education is lifetime proposition. The essence of education is to learn how to learn. One source of information in textbooks should be more than a mere transitory reader; it should be a permanent possession of the student. It should be, for him, an annotated record, a notebook and a ready source of reference.

"It appears, therefore, that temporary possession of a textbook is not enough. The pre-textbook offers only the first step. Therefore, I, fo r example, believe,"-insufficient.

Steve Spalding, a senior, concurs with the above statement. He says, "If textbooks were purchased by students they would have the opportunity to keep these materials for future reference. Textbooks contain a wealth of information that cannot be absorbed by rote. Veterans realize this fact and most of them advocate the student-purchase-textbook plan."

President William C. Hansen, who questioned about the textbook problem said, "Under ordinary conditions, our present system is all right. The room is the end of the semester for the same price that he pays a publisher, he stated. "I believe a student loses in not owning his own books. The upper-classmen and seniors are in a different situation. If the students were paying for their books we might have ordered them."

Nellie R. Kampagna, college librarian, is strongly opposed to the present system. She feels that the students pay in favor of the purchase system. In other words, "I believe a student loses in not owning his own books. The upper-classmen and seniors are in a different situation. If the students were paying for their books we might have ordered them."

The worst book situation is in Modern European History. We could have had a complete library of reference material regarding the City of Wonderful Waterfall. The Chase of Commerce has compiled a summary of the story of Stevens Point. Although this summary is not available to the general public, there is a copy of it placed in the CSTC library for student use.

"Education to me should reach beyond the bounds of formal school work. The more advanced the students are able to purchase textbooks so that they may be used after graduation as a source of knowledge."

At a time such as at teachers college, the purchase of textbooks should be optional. Where it may be financially impossible for students to own textbooks, they might be made available on a loan system for a small fee. Some students are more advanced and may be able to purchase textbooks so that they may be used after graduation as a source of knowledge.

First Graders’ Parents Are Guests of Class

Parents of the first grade students in the training school were invited last week to observe the work of their children. This was an outstanding event because of the results of first graders’ extensive study of jungle animals.

The study unit and environment plans were designed by Mrs. Mary Satter, Abrahamson and Dorothy Floyd, student teachers under the supervision of Mrs. Mary Sayre, of the School of Home Economics. The teachers were interested in developing new and varied experiences for their classes, and they wanted to choose their own textbooks, thereby making available to non-veterans a source of cheaper books.

Radio Workshop

A program which should prove very popular with both faculty and students is that of "The Music Album" program broadcast on the college radio station. Following the program the students will be provided with party favors provided by the college media department.

H. S. Forensic Contest Will Be Held Here

On Wednesday, April 2, approximately twenty students will participate in a district forensic debate contest at CSTC. Students from the state college and the Luther College debate teams will act as host to the students, teachers and supervisors from the local high schools. Participating high schools are Nevin James and Miss Mary Maynard, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Johnson of the CSTC college faculty, Marjorie Carpenter, Morford, is district chairman.

"A young friend attending another college wrote me a letter expressing a desire to study the sciences. It was evident to me that he was sincerely interested in this subject and that he would be successful, for I know that the finest minds of the age have been turned to the progress of science and that it can be a most rewarding field of study."

Schmeelck Reports On Science Meeting

Fred J. Schmeelck, instructor in conservation and chemistry, returned last Saturday evening from a regional meeting of the National Council of Elementary Science held at Hotel Sherman in Chicago on March 22. Mr. Schmeelck reports that the meeting was held in the light of the Nature of the Child.

Led by Dr. Wilbur B. Leuchart of the University of Chicago, this theme was the basis for the opening discussion in the morning, Glenn O. Blough of the United States Office of Education was the president of the meeting.

Methods of Teaching Given

Dr. Gerald S. Craig of the Teachers College at Columbia university gave the following points as some of the most effective methods of teaching science:

1) Direct experience (by far the best), 2) Contrived experiences, 3) Demonstrations, 4) Visual Aids, and 5) Verbal expression. Direct experience was considered the best, while verbal teaching was considered to be the poorest method.

Dr. Craig also brought out the following points in teaching science to children: 1) Children should be prepared to live in the present day world, 2) Their needs and interests should be satisfied, 3) Their curiosity should be satisfied, 4) Interest in science should be maintained in them, and 5) Science should be used in guidance work, since the science teacher holds the key to the classroom.

Ernie Link's Price County team defeated the Rural Life's, 39-11, in the championship play-off of the Purple and Gold League.

The league, which was conducted by the city recreation department, was attended by an entire college student body and grew out of a popular demand for more intra-scholastic basketball participation.

According to the City recreational leader, James Mask, each man on the Price County team will receive a medal designating him as a member of the 1946-47 championship team.

The following players comprised the Price County team: Ernest Link, John Vuchich, John Ihausen, Alan Malm, Melvin Carlson, Dan Mathias, Marvin Stover, Harold "Bud" Olson, John Stadinger and Allen William.
