Annual Shearing of Freshmen

"Lambs" Postponed until June

Any of the freshman lambs who are afraid of being "shorn" when the grades for the first semester are released will be able to suit themselves in a charitable ray of hope that radiates straight from the Advanced Standing Committee.

It used to be that when an uncharted freshman came to the end of the semester with less than nine grade points, he was counted obliterated on the head and excluded from the flock. Now, through the graces of the Advanced Standing Committee's freshmen who left these necessary points to stay in the fold will be allowed to remain the second semester to pursue their wool-gathering.

At the end of the second semester, progress is still unnoticeable they will be classified as black sheep and turned out to pasture.

Mardi Gras Carnival to Be Held February 28

Although Tuesday, March 1, will be celebrated as Shrove Tuesday, Mardi Gras, the Mardi Gras carnival and pregoon at CSTC will be held on the night preceding it, Monday, February 28.

The Mardi Gras carnival was an annual school affair in pre-war years, and the College Theatre revived it two years ago. This group will stage the "90 show." In every active college organisation is expected to take part in the Mardi Gras, the Mardi Gras programme is the school's best thespians, dramatic or otherwise. What is wanted is a 10-minute skit in the appropriate theme, consisting of either singing, dancing, or just clowning. As groups decide on their acts, they are asked to contact Norman Delaware, president of College Theatre and chairman of the carnival.

Dress rehearsal is scheduled for February 26 and 27, dates not too far away, but distant enough to en-courage in January 4.

Mobile Unit X-Rays Over 950 at CSTC

Over 950 students, faculty members, and members of the radio workshop, workers took advantage of the free chest X-rays taken on January 3, 4, 5, and 6. The mobile unit, sponsored by the Wisconsin State Board of Health, took about two weeks to make the rounds. CSTC personnel had X-rays taken purely on their own initiative, as participation in the program was non-compulsory.

Cards informing the participants of the results of the X-rays will be mailed in about four weeks. In the cases in which the results are positive, the family doctor will be notified and more complete tests will be made.

Radio Workshop Proud Possessor Of New Broadcast Control Unit

Having already jumped (or skidded) two weeks into the new year, you may have forgotten the broadcasting churls who nosily entered this cold world on January 1 and was promptly named 1949.

Now that you have been reminded of this young chap it can be announced that at about the same time the Radio Workshop at CSTC became the proud parents of a new console. It was named "Western Model 1224/3 Speech Input Console."

Christmas Present

The new unit arrived just after the Radio Workshop technical staff completed the installation before the Radio Workshop returned to the airwaves that day.

The workshop will work in close cooperation with the new unit, with the personnel of both clubs, courtesy, fraternity and association to plan a really good show.

Mr. Specht Attends Geography Meeting at U. of Wisconsin

Raymond E. Specht of the geography department was a member of the topographic geographers of North America when they met in the University of Wisconsin last December 27 to 30. The convention was sponsored by the Association of American Geographers which consists of top geographical centers in North America. Attending the convention were the topographic geographers of North America with a sprinkling of foreign interests.

The membership of the society was rounded around a three-fold program, presentation of papers, discussion of problems, and social events.

Papers Presented

Geographers from the North American universities gave for the first time presentations of papers written especially for the convention. All papers will be published in a future issue of the JOURNAL OF GEOGRAPHY.

Goodbye

At the close of this semester, one of the most effective editors ever to grace the Pointer is leaving the position of his successor, the editor of the Pointer, as was sponsored by the Wisconsin Post Card Club.

Goodbye, and continue to read the Pointer along with me.

Pointers Whisk Quakers in 54-19 Win

The Pointers, taking advantage of a Wisconsin team apparently in a deep slump, were dynamic in the game that followed their 54-19 victory over the Quakers that fouled out their way to a 38-17 setback in their first game at Princeton on Thursday night.

Ray Kroneka, Whitewater center, had a hard time keeping up with the officials, who evaded his man for six and a half minutes as fast as he could send him to the count. Six Quakers, four of them starters, were sent to the bench for having committed five personal fouls. Between them, they took 17 fouls, but it was the Pointers' 24 free throws that proved to be the big difference.

The Quakers made good on 21 of their 30 rule attempts, but the point could not get over the hump. Whitewater's strong play in the second stanza and managed to knot the count at 33 all before Wagoner sent the CSTC cagers into a lead that the bench-bound Quakers couldn't overcome.

Wagner with 15 and Polka with 10 were high point men for the night while Klinke and Kohm were the most effective members of the Whitewater squad with nine points.

Some students are concerned with the potential impact of new regulations on the freedom of speech. The student council passed a resolution to call for a public hearing on the regulations, which are set to go into effect next semester. The council has also expressed its support for the students' right to assemble and protest, and has urged the administration to ensure that the regulations do not infringe on these rights.
