Doctor Urges Climbing Trees
Miss Levin Takes Him Literally

In an article which appeared in the Milwaukee Journal not too long ago, Dr. James Bender, a New York psychologist, advised school teachers of America to go climb a tree. In relaxing, he said.

Teachers, especially the women, need relaxation more than most people, Dr. Bender added. They use up so much physical energy and work under such strain that they often develop insomniac.

Miss Adeline Levin, women's physical education director, has taken Dr. Bender literally. She has organized a "Climb a Tree Night" for women teachers who are to meet in the Training school gym every Monday evening.

The program at the present time is limited to include some calisthenics and group games such as badminton and volleyball.

The women's physical education department is also sponsoring, with Miss Levin in charge, a class of social dancing for beginners. The class, led by Mickey Rinkie and Mary Lund, meets from 12:30 to 1:15 every Monday in the college gym.

Noon Cafeteria Not Too Successful Yet

The establishment this semester of a noon cafeteria on the campus has been a failure, and the students of all CSTM students have so far been left to their own resources. As a result, a few people are now taking advantage of this opportunity.

Dr. Arthur J. R. Silver calls for a regenator of the invitation from the Nelson Hall di- strict. (Students of the district, which includes members that there are accommoda- tion for many more who wish to have lunch, which at times is something hot, for the moderate price of a meal.

During one of the past pledging seasons a prospective member of one of the fraternities stood at attention in front of the sundial in front of the main entrance to the college. The flickering light from the kerosene lanterns at his feet cast a red glow on a face that was warm and bitter from many sleepless nights. As he diligently scrawled the names on his list, he was aware of his perilous atmosphere. The cowbell sounded. For many years in his old office.

Redecorate V. A. Suite

Extensive redecorating has been done in the former offices of the student press, the old offices of the former V. A. suite, in the front west wing on the basement floor, in one of the former offices of the offices for Dr. Warren G. Jenkins Herbert R. Steiner, Frederick A. Kremer, and Classe K. Crow, all members of the history department faculty.

The renovations include a new tile floor, new book cases and a complete re-painting of the suite, which in- cludes four inner offices and a re- ception room. Each of the offices of Dean Steiner and Dr. Jen- kins, who will use them also in their capacities as Dean of Men and Dean of the Junior College, respectively.

Both Steiner and Jenkins have re- ception rooms for the deans, the suite will also serve to consolidate most of the history department, a desir- able advantage, and it has a direct atmosphere in the front west end of the building.

At the same time that these have been now occupied except that of Dean Steiner where arrangements must be made to connect an outside telephone. In- cidentally, it should be added that the office of Mr. Steiner to eva- cuate his "ivory tower" is a moment- ous event. The archivist will be asked to get him to meet to the ground floor again after being in a "state of suspension" for so many years in his old office.

Brotherhood in Our Back Yard

The Milwaukee Journal has been running a series of articles disclosing the plight of the Poles in the changing situation. The report is not flattering to the white men who are responsible for this unhappy condition.

The land-poor red man lost the title to his lush agricultural and forest land through a system of land ownership foreign to his philosophy. He now lives in a state of semi-poverty, poor housing, inadequate sanitation facilities and periodic unemployment.

Under the auspices of the Brotherhood of the Poles, a large welcome from the other staff members and those interested in joining the club are urged to attend at 7:30 p.m. on the third Wednesday of every month, at a.p.m.

American Democracy Impressive to Former Israelite, Isaac Lerner

The fourteenth of February, two years ago, was the day the first of Isaac Lerner, a Jewish student from Jerusalem, Israel, now in his second semester at Central State Teachers College. The day was memorable, not because it was the birthday of Isaac Lerner, February 14, but because Isaac had arrived in this country to begin his study at the Central State Teachers College in Chicago.

He is too soon dowered in New York things then happening. The day was scheduled welcoming from an uncle who was then vacationing in Florida.

His uncle was the Met Friend in Hotel

After some confusion Isaac arrived at the La Salle hotel with no idea of what was going to happen to him in the next moment. Then he saw the lobby he suddenly saw a most welcome sight. His eyes still me all with relief when he talked about the moment.

There was a lobby in the hotel in which he had been on the boat for two weeks! And he could speak English, too, he exclaimed.

So with other alternative he trusted he repeated to himself: "I"m in New York from the harbor, with nothing but the clothes on my back, and the Semitic languages to aid him in finding his way in this land."

Enrolled in YMCA

"At the YMCA in Chicago," commented Isaac, "you can study history, science, language and many other things. There is a wonderful library and the building is very beautiful." He added that he was pleased to enter Roosevelt college to study political science.

It has not proved to be as surprising to him as one of the wonders of the world in Jerusalem. In many other young people have jobs in offices and the like. Life is much the same as it here. We have, movies, plays, and skyscrapers, too. And the Mindel, who was born in the city 30 years ago.

A brief history of the old city. The city is the capital city of Israel. It is the city of the Jews. It is the city of a divine importance. In the days of King David and until the destruction of the second temple in A. D. 70, the city played a political, religious and cultural role of Jerusalem. But as Christianity came to the city, the city became even more important as the center of the Christian world. In 1942 the city almost passed through a new experience when German forces in the command of Rommel were at the gates of Alexandria. It was the dark days when it was thought

Points Forge Ahead in Second Half to Win 76-66 Over Pioneers

The Pointers spotted the Platteville Pioneers 12 points in the first half of last Saturday night's game here and then shifted into high gear and coasted to a 76-66 win. It was their third conference win and lifted them out of the cellar.

With Chet Polka taking over personal command of the offense with 23 points, the Purple and Gold side rolled up 41 points in the second half while holding Platteville to a slim 25 points. Prior to the intermission the giant Pointers led by Butts, Teleffon and Wainwright had built up a comfortable margin.

However, following the start of hostilities came the revolution and the Pioneers found a red hot crew of Pointers that couldn't be stopped. As in the previous contests Coach Quandt relied upon his first five men. In addition to Polka's 25 points, Palen potted 13 points, and Menzel, Wagner and Samelstad got in even dozen points apiece. For the visitors Wainwright batted in 18 points and Teleffon got 17 points.

Cagers Close ’49-’50 Season With Milwaukee Game Monday

The Pointers will close the 1949-1950 basketball season when they tangle with the second place Milwaukeev Gulls at the Best City on February 27.

Refreshed with a conference win over Platteville, the Quandtmen will be out to end the season in a winning manner. The first and foremost motivation for a Pointer victory is to "up" them in the final conference standings. Another reason for a win is revenge for the Gull victory on the local court last month by a 47-46 count.

The long drag of playing out a 20 game schedule is almost over but Coach Quandt shows no signs of letting up on this last game. This has been evident in the past two games.

This last game part from the common tradition of bidding farewell to the Seniors. Coach Quandt will be spared the usual sorrow of bidding adieu to Seniors this year.

ISSAC LERER

Issac Lerer passed away last week so that the city would be bombed or occupied as passed the word spread that the Yankees had arrived.

Impressed by Democracy

Issac is very much impressed with the democratic government of the United States in which human rights are granted. He himself has fought for liberty as a member of the Haganah, the Jewish underground, in which he was a commander of a group of men for the rebuilding of an independent Israel.

He also added, "We are very grateful for the help given to our young people by the United States. Issac is taking courses here that will prepare him for Yale law school. He came to Stevens Point this fall at the suggestion of a relative who lives here. "Now," he says, "that I am living in a clean, quiet place which is so unlike Chicago, I can enjoy my favorite hobbies - relaxing and thinking."

avenue, but they are beguiled to explain the horrid screams that could be heard issuing forth from this dwelling at almost any time of night during the past pledging season.

Omega Mu Chi

The Omegas, one of the two school sororities, deck their pledges out in the school colors from head to toe. Their candidates, who answer to various pet names such as "Fish Bait" and "Vermin," are obliged to greet each active sister with a gracious bow. Their misdeemeanors, which may be interpreted to mean breathing, are generously awarded with demerits in the form of safety pins.

Tau Gamma Beta

The Tau Gams dress their pledges in flowing pink and blue ribbons; demerits are represented by buttons sewn on these ribbons. This is one of the causes, but merely a minor one, of the prevalence of bowed heads among the candidates, who also answer to pet names bestowed upon them by their respective sisters.

"Half Week"

This, the last week of the pledging period, may be aptly termed the half-week of the storm. It is the active Greek's answer to the pledges' fervent prayer, usually muttered at the end of the first week, that "it can't get any worse."

Formal Initiation and Dance

Following a dinner the pledges are formally initiated. At this time they learn the true meaning and purposes of their respective organizations and, casting aside their humble ranks as pledges, they take their place as full brothers and sisters in their fraternity or sorority. The formal dance that follows the dinner marks the close of another pledging season.

Arctic Gala

The pledges are now active members, and while the old actives revert to lighting their own cigarettes and carrying their own books, the ex-pledges can dream sweet dreams of the gruesome revenge they will extract from the coming crop of next semester's pledges.
