CST Students View Hapsburg Art Collection on Thanksgiving Trip

On Friday, November 24, a group of CST undergants students under the direction of Frederich A. Kremple of the history department, one of the best-attended activities of the stem-december season at the university, was on an outing to the Chicago Art Musem. This collection is one of the largest in the world and the most valuable ever to come to this country. The exhibits were shown, most of them being from the 16th and 17th centuries, but a few were 18th century works. Many paintings were also in the collection. They were both Flemish and Italian works. Many of the Flemish were secured by the Hapsburgs when they were in power, and some were owned by the Netherlands. The crystal display was also very beautiful.

Other things were included in this trip besides the famous Hapsburg collection. The trip would begin at the Field Museum, the planetarium, and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. The climax of the day on Friday was the afternoon performance by the New York City opera company. This was a tremendous production with a German speaker. Many of the Flemish were secured by the Hapsburgs when they were in power, and some were owned by the Netherlands. The crystal display was also very beautiful.

The Defense Rests

There has been frequent criticism recently to the effect that the POINTER editorial policy is not liberal enough. For this reason we offer the following defense of the editorial policy.

Our definition of a liberal editorial policy would be one in which there are presented materials of sufficient reader interest that conforms to standards of taste. We strongly suspect that the advocates of a more liberal policy conceive the term to mean two types of materials to which we are greatly opposed.

The first would probably be the gospel column or the "guest who was seen holding hands with Mary." sort of thing. It may be that Mary J. is deeply interested in whatever happens to be holding her hand and it may also be that a few of Mary's friends might like the answer to this question, but we are fairly certain that the majority of the student body will be able to sleep well at night without knowing Mary's secret lover is.

Another factor to be considered in determining the general value of a gospel column to any newspaper is that it takes an expert writer to do this type of work without hurting someone's feelings. We realize that this is the gospel column with millic cleverness but people's feelings are easily hurt and even writers of the caliber of Walter Winchell and Jimmy Durante cannot do this type of work without compounding itself to the wrath or indignation of someone who would rather not have his private life printed in such a manner. Generally, this type of column is the most frequent causes of newspaper libel suits. We feel that it is better to entirely omit doubtful material of this nature than to take a chance on a few of the student's feelings.

We understand that the proponents of a more liberal editorial policy would like to see the print the "strait-laced Puritan and the flapper," called risque, but is more aptly termed "shady." They do not propose for discussion the "men only" type of joke but only "mixed" type, and we must suspect that most frequent causes of newspaper libel suits. We feel that it is better to entirely omit doubtful material of this nature than to take a chance on a few of the student's feelings.

We do not consider ourselves as a strait-laced Punish and have at times laughed heartily at some of the columnists in the above named category. But we must draw the line somewhere between humor Tuesday and that the POINTER reaches a sufficient size to afford all proper standards of taste. We must also be aware that we must have faith in our publishing, in the reaction of the past election. Frederick Kremple will be the moderator.

 STUDENT COUNCIL'S ACTIONS **

1. A discussion was held as to whether or not the Student Council had sufficient powers under its pres- ent constitution to carry out a con- structive program for the student body here at Central State. It was generally agreed that the pres- ent powers are sufficient and will be sufficient if they are only used in effective ways. The power, if not, is still not. It simply needs a hard- working and progressive Student Council to put it to use. Presidents must be established and will. Counsel members agreed.

Student Council voted to ap- ply for admission to National Stu- dent association pending the alloca- tion of the necessary funds to join the organization. Further details on NIA will appear in next week's Pointer.

3. The proposed ice skating rink at Garfield school for the con- venience of college students and for Operation Week-End was found im- practicable. The Downtown Point recommends that CSTC use the high school rink.
