FACIAL FACES

Anxiously awaiting June 8 and graduation day is this week's familiar face, Ralph R. Rohrs, a senior in the secondary division with us.

CSTC attracted him in the fall of 1947, primarily because his sister Gerty was a student here. Since that time, Ralph has been a familiar face to many for his interest in student affairs. As a sophomore he was elected to the freshmen council and as a junior he was elected to the sophomore council. Last fall he was a member of the CSTC Band and as a senior he is the present conductor of the band.

Wisconsin County of Geographers Meet

She expressed her appreciation for the group's support and for the support of the members.

At the meeting, Miss Hanson discussed the current activities of the group and the activities planned for the upcoming year. She also introduced a new member, a senior from the University of Wisconsin, who will be taking over as president of the group.

Letters to the Editor

Antigo, Wis.

Dear Editor:

I read with interest the recent letter from Mr. Allen J. Johnson, President of the Wisconsin Geographical Society, which was published in the May 3, 1951, issue of THE POINTEER. While I agree with Mr. Johnson's views on the importance of geographical education, I would like to express my own views on the matter.

I believe that geography education should be more widely available, not only in high schools, but also in elementary schools. Furthermore, I think that geography should be taught in a more interdisciplinary manner, with an emphasis on the relationship between geography and other subjects such as history, economics, and politics.

Sincerely,

TOL Y

FIFTH QUARTER

As far as most of us college students are concerned, the close of the school year means the close of the year’s sport program. It has been a rough year on many of the college campuses. An un­believable basketball scandal was ex­posed, and the schools withdrew from football due to lack of man­power. Administrations also were concerned about the “bigness” of football. “Scholarships” and pro­fessionalism were still identical.

It has been a rough year for the observer concludes, not only on the sports scene but everywhere has the ugly and cancerous dead of dishonesty exposed itself.

However, to most of us, the dishonesty and chargeable games are far from distanced and remote effects. Yes, it could happen out here in the virgin Nebraska.

And so we go, the faults of men are not our faults. It is not possible for us to visualize mistakes that others have already made that may commit by ourselves. The faults of others are remote considerations.

Dishonesty has several degrees of severity. False impression is the greatest offense of dishonesty. When a person lacks sufficient talent he is inclined to make up the deficit by creating false impressions. None of us can recognize the people who have cheated over us and at once proceed to coat ourselves with a similarniceness and goodness. Consequently we are condemned by ourselves. The faults of others are remote considerations.

This form of dishonesty is prevalent.

The race now centers around the second place where three teams have a chance of winning. The third place college is the only team that has a chance of winning. The third place college is the only team that has a chance of winning. The third place college is the only team that has a chance of winning.

Hence dishonesty is not a remote fault. And reform is not going to start out fast or out in Washington unless it starts with the individual — you and me.
More Emphasis on Intramural Sports?

As the CSTC school spirit is steadily increasing, our attention is turned to the sports within our own school. During the past year, the coaches and those who have participated in the intramural sports have done a fine job, but the question comes to us whether more emphasis should be placed on these activities along with more student participation.

The views of the college students on this subject are as follows:

Bill Clayton: I think that intramural sports are important and that they are being handled adequately. Delores Jones: Yes, I think more emphasis should be placed on intramural sports. Especially, they should be publicized more. There are many good players and teams of which we never hear.

Walter Samuelsid: I think that so far they have been handled very well, and through more student cooperation they could be improved.

Rose Christopherson: Some of the intramural sports such as basketball and bowling have been written up quite well, but what about the others?

Gib Chick: Yes, I believe there should be more emphasis on intramural sports. Participation in the various sports tends to provide a social life as well as physical.

Mary Johnson: The intramural sports have been well directed and the opportunities provided are sufficient for those who are interested in participating.

Bob Feit: I believe that we have a good intramural sports program now.

Connie Callisen: I think what has been published is OK, but more emphasis could be put on sports other than basketball and football.

Phyllis Brown: Yes, it would probably increase the school spirit if it is handled right.

Jeanne Brennan: I think that the
