Alice at CSC
Tells of Her Rewards

Wednesday, March 18, Wisconsin's 1958 Alice in Dairyland, Miss Barbara Haslow, made her appearance at CSC. As a full-time staff member of the Wisconsin State Department of Agriculture, this busy lady encouraged the attending potential Alice candidates to enter this year's program.

She told of her many appearances throughout the state, including county and district affairs; agricultural meetings, such as the Wisconsin Cheese Makers' Convention and the Wisconsin Cremers' Association Convention; regional junior livestock shows; and many other promotion jobs.

Her countless tours both in and out of state bring on radio, television, and newspaper and personal appearances for her. In February Alice highlighted market-wide promotions in San Francisco and Los Angeles, California, for Wisconsin cheese.

Wherever she goes she is greeted and treated with all the graciousness and hospitality due her "royal status."

3. The girl must be a sophomore or above.
4. The girl must be a member of the Home Economics club.
5. The girl must have a scholarship equal to 25% or above.
6. The girl must be on a scholarship probation.
7. The following will be considered when selecting the recipient:
   - The girl must fill out an application blank.
   - The following will be considered when selecting the recipient:

Mr. Amacker, previously at Penn State

"As it is right now — everything," Mr. John Amacker responded when asked what his duties are as director of our new Student Union. On a tour of this still growing structure, he pointed out many conveniences that students are sure to find joy in using. One of the things he feels students will be delighted to find in the new Union is the abundance of bulletin board space overhead as well as on eye level.

Mr. Amacker, who was born and raised near Stanley, Wisconsin, and graduated from the Hotel Management course at Michigan State University, was employed at Penn State before accepting his position at CSC, where he will be working about "half and half" with the deans on social activities. There is abundant space for dancing and also room for ping pong and pool in the new building, he says.

Not quite sure how the students will react to the color schemes of coral, blue, yellow, green and aqua, he's sure that no one can complain about drabness. The Union is "bright!

Realizing that many students are concerned about the eating facilities, Mr. Amacker proudly pointed out the kitchen area and explained that there will be two lines next year so more time can be conserved. Also there are two rooms where groups of eight or nine can eat together in private.

In addition to all of these facilities there will be a snack area, a large lounge, a place for catering, Pointer and Iris rooms, dark rooms for photo developing, meeting rooms, a music room and there is still a few rooms where "we don't know yet what we'll call."

Mr. Amacker also serves in the capacity of advisor to the Student Union Board. At this time he is very busy, but will nevertheless welcome the opportunity to talk to any individual of group who has any questions about the new Union — our Union.

He hopes it will be open about the first of June, but "actually it probably won't be open until about the fourth" when there is to be a party there for graduating seniors.

Mr. Amacker, CSC welcomes you to the campus!
Mid-Semester Check

I think most of us are aware of the fact that this is the ninth week of this semester. It is customary at this time for the faculty to check over the grade books and give a report on those not progressing satisfactorily. Just what is the purpose of the low slips?

Is it to give the faculty an excuse to give a few tests at the middle of the term, to further demoralize the student who is not too successful in guessing what the instructor thinks is important in the course, or to give the student another slip to add to his college records?

I do not believe it is any of these. A low slip in a particular course is a gentle reminder to the student that his work is not up to par and should serve to encourage him to work a little harder, maybe examine his study habits and/or seek advice to find the cause of his difficulty and eradicate it.

It is true that a student might know where he stands in a class, but there are also times when a student is uncertain about his position and when the semester comes to an end and the student receives a poor grade he might not understand it. The low slip may help him understand the situation and he can take steps in the final nine weeks to raise his mark if he so wishes.

Corner at CSC

I'm getting old. The Songfest, as well as Homecoming, shows me that pretty clearly.Either they don't put enough life in it, or they put it in the wrong kind.

Seriously though, the days of Oooooody Ives had something. The Songfest is now a very badly produced with too many regulations. The once bright satire has become brickheads or slums. Is it so necessary to even up competing that you have to smooth all initiative? The sororities are going to fit each other's throats anyway.

If you aim at fun, you may achieve it. If you aim at perfection, the blue notes will be bluer than ever.

I suppose this ranks as premature publicity — but mark down April 15th for a song festival. This is a speech class project, handled by student directors. In the past they've turned out some fine performances — the show would be worth seeing.

All right, so I'm co-directing one. But you want to see Tom Gruman as both a Baptist and an Irishman, don't you?

On Friday night, March 29, I discovered Haiku poetry. It comes out that suddenly Japanese haiku and some verses originated by the Japanese are something unique in the world of poetry. They do not interpret; they observe and present. Here are a few favorites of mine:

To the wreaths that lie
Sweetly on the casket-fool.
Comes a butterfly.

Pale, the yellow rose
In spring already — bitter,
Too, the lettuce grows.

For a lovely bowl
Let us arrange these flowers
Since this was the dawn.

Surprisingly, Haikus are not difficult to write. Just look at something and begin.

On second thought, perhaps that's the difficulty.

This is known as advertising your own product. But the subject at least makes this week's "Shop Talk" worth reading.

The Students' Voice

Dear All,

Perhaps this letter will demonstrate which publication has the better circulation, the PANTHER or the Weekly Bulletin. Last week a committee of the student council put a notice in the latter announcing that applications for the job of homecoming chairman for 1939 would be accepted. The response was earthshaking.

Perhaps you wonder why the job should be open to application and even if it is, why any one in their right mind would apply for it. Well, the job is left on the basis of application because some people feel that some fraternal organizations have received preference, and some feel that they have been left out. If some sort of objective method is employed, no one should gripe.

CWA Easter Assembly

All classes were dismissed for the CWA Easter Assembly at 10:45 a.m. yesterday. The choir presented a program after which William Scribner read the Easter story.

Shelley Link of CWA served as mistress of ceremonies.

Why anyone would want the job is beyond me. But if someone thinks their organization can take advantage of the position, it may be an incentive. Maybe someone will take it so they can hold the election results back for a day without letting anyone know.

At any rate the committee is still accepting applications. If you would like the job, write a note stating briefly your intentions and drop it in the student council mailbox. Deadline for application, Friday, April 19.

Combing songfest Rehearsal Excuses

What's your excuse? Those of us who participated in the Songfest, winners and losers alike, realize the value of practice. With only two more practices scheduled, Jim Haughey surprised LSA'ers when he said, "Anyone who can't possibly be here for practice MUST turn in ten GOOD excuses to me!" Did this threat bring results? Yes! Here we have a few listings of excuses!!! Creative author number one wrote: "I'm getting serious; pretty clear. Either they don't like me or I don't like them. I don't know which."

Author number two had a different way of looking at it. He wrote: "I'm getting worried about that suddenly. These little seventeen syllable verses originated by at least makes this week's "Shop Talk" worth reading:"

The plans are understandable when one considers that so lived in California for nearly two years, that her interest in music can be traced from her participation in a glee club and choruses in Marshfield high school through her present interest in progressive jazz, that her interest in drama is also a product of her experiences, and that she has worked in camps and recreation programs in both California and Marshfield.

Having pecked at her past and previewed her future, we turn to the current situation. She's interested, especially those regarding college. Schools on the west coast can provide an opportunity to meet a greater variety of people. Most of our students here, at least, would like the opportunity to meet the students at the University of California, a school which can provide a greater variety of people, and cultures has a definite advantage, she reports. This is not to say that her experiences here at CSC because she admits she has had some of these experiences in California.

Though you may have been warned that Joanne Marvin is a "character" on the warpath of little use in a proper description. The term can only be accurate if "character" means a person who in the course of a short conversation can talk discriminantly about everything from racial problems to smog and will include stale cherry pies, a person who is frank without being impolite, talkative but not overbearing and outspoken but not unfair. Marvin is the person who gave me that term, and I can't say she's wrong in her use of humor. Well, she has!

Profile

Joanne Marvin, who is listed this week as a furniture face, is two apprehensions about this week: (1) Will the pictures look right? and (2) Will 20 words of prose suffice as a basis for an article? Let's hope that she answers those questions comfortably.

Faced with the statements: "I'd consider it an insult unless you mention the Omegae" so hereby pay tribute to that great organization.

Joanne Marvin is a student teacher, and her future are: deductive of her past. As a prospective graduate in the primary division she hopes to be placed near Los Angeles. She prefers to live in a smaller city but wants to be able to take advantage of the offerings of a big city. The offerings in which she seems most interested are dramatic and musical productions. She would like the opportunity to re-some lessons in voice. Once she begins teaching she would like to spend the summers in sunny California, either teaching or working in a recreation program.

The plans are understandable when one considers that so lived in California for nearly two years, that her interest in music can be traced from her participation in a glee club and choruses in Marshfield high school through her present interest in progressive jazz, that her interest in drama is also a product of her experiences, and that she has worked in camps and recreation programs in both California and Marshfield.

Songfest 1959
Trophies Go to Nelson Hall and Tau Gamms

The winner of the Non-Greek division of the CWA songfest was Nelson Hall.

The winner of the Greek division of the CWA songfest was Tau Gamma Beta Sorority.

An integral part of a songfest is a “provider of the music.” Here Maitl Grayford is providing the accompaniment with the organ.

Can You Identify These?

Chairman and mistress of ceremonies of the CWA songfest, Diane Darling, is shown introducing the various groups competing in the fest.

These were also at the songfest. Do any of these belong to you?
Yetter and Sorenson Lead CSC to AAU Wrestling Championship

Led by Hank Yetter and Butch Sorenson, the Central State College wrestling team "brought home the bacon" in the form of the AAU Wrestling championship. The Pointers wound up with 30 points, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee second with 23, Wisconsin third with 25, Marquette fourth with 11, River Falls fifth with 9, and Stout and Ripon tied off sixth with 1 point each.

The meet was held in the Marquette University gym Friday and Saturday, March 20-21.

Hank Yetter at 157 pounds brought home his first AAU gold medal and wound up his season with a 14-0 record. He pinned Al Polakowski of UWM in 7:45 in the championship bout and won a very impressive victory over Rusnak of Marquette by a 17-1 score in the semi-finals.

Butch Sorenson won his third AAU crown when he pinned Paul Wallis of Marquette in 6:45. Sorenson whipped Modahl of Wisconsin-Varsity by a 5-0 score in the preliminaries. Butch has lost only two matches in his college career and is, without a doubt, one of the finest wrestlers in this part of the country.

Jack Blosser took the runner up spot to Dave Sheldon of UWM. Sheldon out-pointed Blosser 12-5 in the championship round. This is the third time Sheldon has beat Blosser this year. These are the only three matches that Blosser has lost. He won the AAU championship twice before.

Boyd Gibbs lost a tough 9-8 decision to Roger Watkins of Wisconsin at 191 pounds. This was good for a second place.

In the consolation bracket, Wayne Radtke of CSC won an 8-0 decision over Larson of Ripon in the 130 pound class, good for third place.

Bill Freiman dropped a 2-0 decision to Vigue of UWM at 137 pounds and Larry Pfieger of CSC dropped a 8-0 decision to Cerull of UWM at 123 pounds. Both were good for fourth place.

This wound up a successful wrestling season for the Pointers and they should be congratulated for their hard work well done. "Nice work Coach and grapplers."

The AAU Champions are: 115, Dan Finlay, Marquette; 123, Neil Leinme, Wisconsin; 130, James Lowe, Wisconsin; 137, Carroll Vank, unattached; 147, Tom Kelepou, UWM; 157, Hank Yetter, CSC; 167, Dave Sheldon, UWM; 177, Butch Sorenson, CSC; 191, Roger Waskins, Wisconsin; and heavy weight, Jerry Julian, River Falls.

Baseball Report to Coach D. Counsell

Once again with the coming of spring, head coach Duane Counsell has taken the baseball team into spring training. Only this year the team isn't going to travel with the grapefruit circuit.

Last year when coach Ha!d Quandt, who has switched to golf this year, took the team to the sunny Southland, they won every game against the major league teams. Mr. Quandt had to turn down several bids to play a seven game series against whoever won the major league works series to determine who were the real champs of the world.

As of now Mr. Counsell doesn't have much news on the coming season because of the weather. It seems that the squad of over 50 has had to confine its practice indoors until the snow decides to leave our fair city in central Wisconsin.

Counsell will have a big rebuilding job ahead of him as he has only eight returning lettermen around with which to form the nucleus of his 1959 edition of a Pointer baseball team. Of the eight lettermen two are pitchers, and one is a catcher.

The squad has been practicing in shifts in the training school gym. On Monday through Thursday the pitchers and catchers practice for 45 minutes. After they finish, the rest of the team takes over for the next 45 minutes. On Friday, Saturday, and Sunday the players are relieved from practice.

This year's schedule has five double headers with each game seven innings long. Two more games are in the planning stages with Ripon and Lawrence.

LaVern received this honor. LaVern has scored a total of 1267 points in his high school career. Besides being a great athlete, LaVern has also compiled a great scholastic average.

Plattville placed the most players on the team with three.

Tke Participation in Various Sports

The Teke basketball team traveled to Beloit to take part in the Wisconsin College Basketball tournament. The storm-bound team, after clinching third place and winning a trophy, was forced to stay in the Lambs' chapter house in Madison. The other chapters represented were Beloit. UW-Oshkosh, and University of Wisconsin. Carroll college of York was also absent because of initiation week.

The TEKE Volleyball team swung second in the ECC Intramurals. The A team won two out of three games while the B team lost all three. The A Team got a second round of play while the B team lost again!

A bowling party was arranged with Tau Gamma Beta last Saturday, everybody had fun and celebrated Persian New Year, the first day of April.

Shop Talk

I work in the Book Shop. Though half-blinded by chagrin at how few English majors ever come in to browse, I do manage to notice the type of books most often purchased. And, outside of required reading (bought with an unhappy look of necessity) and conservatism (bought with the eyes turned strongly to the West), we sell more sex books than any other kind.

I am proud of this statement. I think that a corollary of the law of supply and demand comes into play here — if you've got it, you might as well learn how to use it properly. A well-timed copy of Cheever's "Love Without Fear" can be worth more than the best cell notes on an examination — especially since the issue involved is both more vital and more permanent.

Many of us have the wrong impression of sex books as — my family included. If you have been in the position of smuggling a Margaret Wise Brown volume into the bathroom simply because you could not be seen with it, you might be a little embarrassed. But not only the covers cause complications; some of the titles may be more raunchy than you want to advertise. As a little knowledge does much to illuminate the area of sex, a little classification does much to clear up the area of sex books.

There are roughly three kinds. First, the sociological. The Mead studies of primitive cultures are the best examples of these — she is an anthropologist who lives with her subjects and discusses their customs in scientific but very readable chapters. The second kind is a branch of the first — the sociological removed from a specific culture and broadened into world-wide applications. Ellis's "On Life and Sex" is a series of short stories, with, especially pertinent, discussions of contraceptives, obscenity, and the modern structure of the family. Sex, but science, and ideal for an introduction to the subject.

Thus comes the third kind. These are the sex-on-a-physical-basis books; and they, of course, are the ones which cause the most raised eyebrows and motherly flutters. Naturally, they are also the ones which should be most widely read. Sociology I can ignore — with only intellectual frustration. Sex? well, this is getting personal. But we all know which is most deeply rooted.

Of the latter classification of books, Ellis's "Psychology of Sex" and Chesser's "Love Without Fear" are justifiably the most famous. They are both personal, though the first is primarily a description of what can be done and a little theoretical manual on how to do it. Both are well-written, even though I winced at Chesser's tendency to print vital words in italics. And both are absolutely essential in a student's library.

Of course, there are the bastard offspring. Some of these verge on pornography, and I have excluded them. Ellis's "On Life and Sex" is a series of short stories, with, especially pertinent, discussions of contraceptives, obscenity, and the modern structure of the family. Sex, but science, and ideal for an introduction to the subject.

Port of the "service to the school" activities that is characteristic of the Greek pledges is shown here. The Omeg pledges' service took the form of shoveling snow from the sidewalk in front of the west entrance of Old Main.

The three pledge groups are so proud of their sorority that they have made beads of their sorority colors. They wear them with pride every Tuesday.

Although pledging is a period of fun and foolishness, many worthwhile things are learned which are less readily visible to those not directly involved. During pledging, the would-be members learn the history, ideals, and functions of their sorority. They learn also things which they will use throughout their social life.

They learn, for example, how to plan and give teas and parties. They learn how to write formal and informal invitations and, of course, how to reply to each. Through the various activities, pledges learn how to organize and execute efficiently the plans they have made. This kind of knowledge will be used not only when the pledges are actives of a sorority but also when they assume their share of the community responsibilities. For what community doesn't have a PTA, civic music group, or book club — all of which have social functions requiring careful organization as well as social poise and grace on the part of the members.

Sisters, We

Above you see a photograph of three smiling young ladies, Bobbie Mathey, Jan Fense and Kay Dustin. Why they are smiling so broadly is difficult to understand. You see, they are sorority pledges.

They are not only pledges, they are presidents of their respective pledge classes. This means they are directly responsible to active members of their sorority for the actions of their pledge classes as a whole.

Occasionally, the pledges do something good. Recently the Alpha Sigma pledges gave a tea for the Alpha Sig actives and the Tau Gamma and Omeg pledges. Last week the community spirited Omeg pledges voluntarily exhorted eagerly to shovel the diagonal sidewalk near the east entrance. What a grand feeling of pride and accomplishment they must feel every time some grateful student or faculty member uses that sidewalk!

Trigon

What is a Christian’s responsibility in politics? That was the subject taken up at the last Trigon meeting. The meeting was held on Thursday, March 12, at the home of Dr. Marple, where Mr. Robert Poechke was the speaker for the evening. Mr. Poechke is an elder at the Frame Memorial Presbyterian Church and the chairman of the Mel Laird for Congressmen Club, so he was very well-qualified to speak on the subject of the Christian’s responsibility in politics. His talk was very interesting and thought-provoking, and was thoroughly enjoyed by all. The meeting came to a delightful close with the refreshments served by Mrs. Marple.

The next Trigon meeting will be a pancake supper held at the Frame Memorial Presbyterian Church on Thursday, April 9, at 6:30 p.m. Some of the fellows have volunteered to give the girls a night off, so they are going to do the cooking. Everyone is cordially invited to attend this supper and enjoy the refreshments. Fellow students who want to help with the cooking are more than welcome! Come, hungry, because you can have all you can eat for just 15¢! See you there!

Newman Club

Did you notice a group for the first time in quite a few years participating in the Newman Club meetings? Newman Club was represented by 12 this year with 10 at Monday night. The talk was given by Mr. Melcher. He declared that Newman Club is a beautiful morning!

The meeting on Thursday, March 10, Father Wilger spoke on the shroud of Christ. The history of the shroud is very interesting and fantastic. The talk was followed by slides on the shroud.

Shirley Link gave a report on the progress of the preparations for Senior Day, April 14. A meeting for committee chairs was scheduled.

The deadline for the home economics scholarship applications was set for April 15.

Carol Chudnowsky was appointed chairman of the candy and cooked sale to be held April 6. Those members who do not bring candy or cooked items will be fined $1. Volunteers for selling at the sale are asked to sign up on the bulletin board.

A panel discussion and symposium on job opportunities in home economics, featuring a county home agent, a high school home economics teacher, a homemaker, and a person in food service, will be the feature of the April 15 meeting.

Janet Rubash is the chairman for the York 11 play at Raven Park.

A supper follow, the meeting on March 9.

Fearing for CSC

Debaters emerge with 6-2 tally

CSC was represented at the annual Delta Sigma Rho forensic conference at the University of Wisconsin on March 13 and 14. In the debate competition Joan Spreda and Pat Colliver represented Affirmative, and Francine Townsend and Jerry Bower comprised the negative team. In the first round the affirmative beat Carroll and lost to White while the negative won beating North Dakota and losing to Oklahoma. Rounds three and four gave participants a chance to cross examine opponents and it was a chance that the CSC delegation welcomed. The affirmative won decisions over Rapon and Northern Illinois while the negative wingers won South Dakotas and Marquette. Final score: affirmative, 3-1; negative, 1-3; team, 6-5. This was the first time of intercollegiate competition for Joan and Francine.

Werner McVelver, Jerry Bower, Tom Jensen, and a guy listed on the program as “Grubbe,” took part in the discussion competition. The topic for the three rounds of discussion was “How can we improve our relations with Latin America?” The debate proposition was “Revel. The function of the new day will be no surprise; wanted to shift the bridge to Main Street. Thirty businessmen met in the morning to plan the bridge. It was only to come out second best. The winner — you guessed it — the highway Commission. The reason; its overall length would prove too costly.

January 1, 1958, was a sad day indeed for Stevens Point that was the day when the new bridge was opened to traffic and the river droveitself into the Main Street bridge. That would be a happy day for Stevens Point. It would welcome traffic; it would become a Stevens Point, making the west side a continuation of the east side: it would accelerate the growth of this town that can use every citizen it can interest to settle here; it would open a new route to the vistas of un-touched beauty of land and water, the bridle paths, and the river drives that the folks on the west shore of the Wisconsin are so willing to share; it would frustrate the foolishness of a Main Street that has not lived up to its reputation for wisdom.

Now, there is vague word of a new bridge upstream, in the oiving. But, should history repeat itself before then — and we are hearing whispers of warning from the bridge itself and from the city who would like to build a Main Street bridge. That would be a happy day for Stevens Point. It would welcome traffic; it would become a Stevens Point, making the west side a continuation of the east side; it would accelerate the growth of this town that can use every citizen it can interest to settle here; it would open a new route to the vistas of un-touched beauty of land and water, the bridle paths, and the river drives that the folks on the west shore of the Wisconsin are so willing to share; it would frustrate the foolishness of a Main Street road bridge. So, for those of you who have stood at the west end of Main Street and considered the city’s Krispy Kreme, you must realize that it is a dream that is far from a reality.

For, there is nothing that can so successfully span the space over a body of water like a good bridge and Stevens Point is no exception.

Sig Ep Fraternity Spirit Continues Without Pause

Sigma Phi Epsilon is proud to announce the initiation of the following members: Paul Becht, Wausau; Tom Jensen, Ripon; Dick Hebbe, Fond du Lac; Tom Blum, Waukesha; Tom Reilly, St. Croix Falls; and Bob Tupper, St. Cloud. These new members join the ranks of the Sigmas, and for that reason I would feel this way? Are these some qualities of Brian Milke, Dennis Schmidke, John Reilly, and Earl Selvidge at Eau Claire, March 20, and 22.

Phi Sig's from Northland College; at DeKalb, Illinois; and this team from UW, Bob Oxenberg, and Dale Schallert also made the trip. After registering, at the check-in, the Theta Chi team in the hotel Eau Claire, the first thing on the program was the state initiation of the Phi Sig's from the other chapters in including the two chapters from Iowa; a chapter from Carthage, Illinois; a fraternity from Waukesha; and the host chapter Eau Claire.

At 9:00 a.m. Saturday morning our team met at the Hotel Eau Claire, and at 9:30 we left for UW. Each member was assigned to the Alpha, Beta, or Chi chapters in that order.

Following the initiation, a banquet was held at the Atillers with all the active members present. Bob Meland, who graduated last semester, was a guest at the banquet. The new active members were presented with the customary roses representing the fraternity flowers, which are American Beauty roses and violets. They also received the National Recognition pin of Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Rushing will be conducted throughout the next year under Paul Becht, who will serve as rushing chairman. Bob Check will continue to act as pledge chairman. Tom Jensen and Lee Button will serve as pledge trainers for the second semester.

Recent activities also include the installation of a new Chi Delta Rho-Sigma Phi Epsilon Alumni Corporation Board of Directors. The members are: Robert McDonald, president; Norman Kautz, vice president; Albert Wasser, secretary-treasurer and Don Walters, all of Stevens Point. Their interest is only more evidence in support of the statement: "No matter where he or as how many years have passed since he left the campus, every member feels that he is still a part of the purpose of Sigma Phi Epsilon."

Choir Tour of 1959 Complete

The Choir, under the direction of Wendell E. Orr, completed their two-day tour yesterday. Their performances in the area included a fraternity house, rushing and pledging, I.F.C., at Madison, several sororities, and two churches from Iowa; a chapter from DeKalb, Illinois; a fraternity from Wisconsin; and the host chapter Eau Claire.

At 7:30 p.m. Saturday evening a banquet was held in the Holiday Room. A good meal was served and some of the men, especially Wally Iwanowski, really "chowed down. The basketball awards were presented to the by-c suspects in the second place, and consolation winning chapters. The national president, national executive officer, and regional director were present. Present James Whitfield congratulated the local fraternity on the fine job they did as hosts; he was also very pleased with a record concile attendance of 110 Phi Big brothers. The conciles ended with a dance having all the Eau Claire State sorority members in attendance. The Phi Sig's left for Point Saturday night but only after they could find Owen B. and then get him to leave.

Phi Sigs Ready '50 Style Show

"Hear ye! Hear ye!" News you've all been waiting for — the Phi Sig Style Show is under way with Len Henderson in charge of Sigma Phi Epsilon in a new, breathtaking theme — revolution! This theme is being divided into smaller units including vocal, music, political and educational. Committees are being organized to get basic ideas for the theme. The previously set date, April 7, may have to be changed, so keep your eyes and ears open for the latest. This an event you won't want to miss!

Roving Reporter By Darlene Knoll

It will not be long now before some of the students here at Central State College will be graduating and looking for other places to establish themselves. The question has been brought up as to what they actually think of Stevens Point as a possible home.

Just about all of us have at least spent one year here on campus and we should have some feeling about the city. Do you actually feel a part of the town or do you feel as though you walk by with it ends at the college? If you feel welcome here, just what is it that makes you feel this way? These some qualities of Stevens Point that you would hope to find in the town where you are considering a job?

Marie Nemitz: "The college brings many cultural advantages to Point, and for that reason I would feel comfortable in living here. The town does start out of cater to the students and makes us feel a part of it. Other students living in private homes and being associated with citizens here can carry on for this".

Beverly Borg: "I wouldn't mind teaching here but I wouldn't like to settle permanently here. I prefer a smaller town."

Glen Gertscchen: "I don't like it. I don't feel that it has enough to offer in the way of employment or recreational facilities. I couldn't see what anyone would like to work here for unless they were moving in on a moving in a few years."

Mary Kleist: "I like it! It has shown tremendous growth just in the few years I've been here but my preference is for a smaller town in which to live."

Get you, dear reader, to drink Coca-Cola to the virtual exclusion of all other beverages. The sooner you start going along with us, the sooner we'll both begin to get more out of life.
