Product Environment Keynote President's Convocation Address

by Ed Allen

Pres. James H. Albertson welcomed the student to Central State College Tuesday. He spoke at the annual Student Convocation. His basis topic was "What is Our Product." Continuing, Dr. Albertson said "Our product should be an environment where learning takes place." The main things to consider are the physical things, building, campus and community; the people, faculty, students, residents, parents and again the people of the community; and, lastly the ideas.

At this convocation the students were represented for the first time, where President Alber- tsom, his new faculty and students were represented by George Albertson, Student Council President Bob Davis.

Dr. Gordon Hadleback, dean of the college, and President Emeritus William C. Hansen was a special guest.

Mr. Hadleback played musical numbers and the Student Council provided skits.
Welcome

The POINTER wishes to add its greeting to all the others that you probably already have received in welcoming you to the campus.

We hope that all of you, faculty and students, will have a successful year here and that each of you will take an active interest in your own well-being.

I call it "your" newspaper, because that is exactly what it is. We will, through the course of the year and with your help, do our best to present to our readers a fair and accurate view of campus life.

We invite questions, suggestions and articles from each of you so that your paper will be not only informative, but stimulating as well.

We note with interest the formation of a literary magazine at Central State. Though The New Critique is not a campus organization, we hope, as I'm sure they do, that its good works will benefit our campus. We feel that the student body as a whole can profit from a literary magazine and we hope that our expectations for good journalism will be fulfilled.

HELP!

This is not the Editor's paper. This is not the administration's paper. This is not the faculty's paper. It is in fact none of your business. You, the reader, can and must have the final control of editorial quality, pertinent of news, make up, and photography.

The POINTER is probably defined as one part journalist, one part autocrat, and eight parts gambler. With every issue of his paper, he gambles that he has assembled information which will be interesting to you, the reader.

It is not very hard to see that he and his staff could operate more effectively if they could hear from you directly rather than attempting to guess what's on your mind.

The POINTER staff will be more than happy to bear your ideas you might have. In the next issue, definite provisions will be made to receive any opinions or ideas you might have. In the fact, in the next issue of THE POINTER you will find a section assigned to your views. We're waiting to hear from you.

D. J. P.

The President Speaks

It is indeed a pleasure to extend greetings to all students. Some of you will be new to the college and others are returning after a brief interruption. I share your enthusiasm for the work of the months ahead.

You have every right to be proud of your college and the fine staff assembled to assist you in the learning process. I hope you will become acquainted with your fellow students, their backgrounds and their interests, and also that you have opportunity to get acquainted with members of the faculty. Learning on the college campus takes place in the classroom, at the concert, the play, and the athletic event, as well as in residence hall and in many other informal situations.

I hope that as the year progresses each student will take advantage of the many opportunities available on this campus. To the extent that this is done, we will, in large measure, provide an indicator of a successful college year.

The Pointer
Central State College

The Pointer, published bi-weekly except holiday vacations, is the official newspaper of Central State College. The POINTER is printed exclusively for the benefit of its readers.

THE POINTER STAFF

The Student Council has the following constitution. It is a very low representation from the new dormitories.

Our members have been elected. One new member will be elected by student voting. The students who were elected for the council, they are: Bob Brown, vice president; John Sheehan, secretary; and Judy Christensen, treasurer.

President Bob Davis appointed chairmen to the standing committees of the Student Council. These committees are: Admissions, Housing, Library, and Conference.

The college is once again a living, pulsating thing. A visit to the campus during the summer between regular semesters and summer school is an impressive and depressing experience. Nothing is so void or quiet as a campus without the hustle of students and faculty and route to classes or offices. A college campus minus people is like a steak without salt or a cake without bubbles.

The one outstanding characteristic of the college this year, which has probably made a very deep impression on every student, is this business of standing in line. Standing in line to pay fees, to arrange classes, standing in line to see library theater movies, to buy books, to register in line, to purchase notebook paper and pencils. Nothing has been so engaging to the majority of the students.

High school graduates probably have the best form of reporting by reading a vast array of material on learning how to study, how to develop social graces, how to adjust to dormitory life and how to plan college wardrobes. (Some of this material definitely is propaganda and should not be taken too seriously. For instance, the last article I read on planning college wardrobes demanded that a girl bring 2 skirts and 3 gloves, not two silver or 1 anything else--knickers. Show me a girl with only 2 skirts and I'll bet her name is Cinderella--pre-prinor!

The real essence of preparing for college life is not to be spent in the library but rather on the local government council. The campus executive should be instructed in the development of strong leg and ankle muscles to endure the long periods of standing in line. Yoga notoli may not be included in the training program to develop the patience too lazy to maintain sanity while standing in line. A diet of high protein foods accompanied by vitamins and supplements would add the finishing touches.

There is another solution to the problem of standing in line. The college students probably "eventualiy--adopt--that-- of carrying porters. (This is an uncharted territory and you may be unfolded whenever and wherever the demand is great, one will probably have to stand in line to buy their groceries.

The Student Union Ball hall activities to pose for a photograph, which is to be right are Dorothy Severson, Kay Rasmussen, Sigurd Burgstrom, and Gloria Kabhlinak. In the back row are Tom Corrigan, Ken Mueller, Larry Haak, Larry Fritsch, Mr. Ron Hache, advisor, Don Kaiser, Dave Andrews, Jerry Grossal and DeLyle Bowers. Steve Albrecht was absent at the time the picture was taken.

The Student Council has announced the dates for the Student Union activities for the fall. September 9--Dance, September 10--Seeds, and September 30--The Student Union Ball.

The Student Union Ball will be held at the Student Union Ball Hall on Saturday, September 30, at 9:00 P.M. The Student Union Ball will be followed by a dance with live music by the Hollingers. Tickets are $1.00 and are available at the Student Union Ball Office.

Conservation Dept. to Train Soil Scientists

Word was received recently from the Soil Conservation Service office in Madison that the conservation department at CSC is now accredited for training soil scientists.

According to Dr. Milo Harpstead, assistant professor of conservation, mapping soils for classification and management purposes has been the usual duty for beginning soil scientists.

However, it appears that in the future this training may lead to a variety of job opportunities within the civil service for beginning soil scientists.

Three other schools in Wisconsin train soil scientists. They are the University of Wisconsin and the state colleges at River Falls and Platteville.

Training for a soil scientist consists of a bachelor of science degree from an accredited department and at least one summer as an on-the-job soil mapping trainee with the soil conservation service.

In anticipation of the accreditation, Donald Owens, a CSC conservation student, worked in the capacity of trainee in Marquette County the past summer.

A senior in conservation, Donald Prettyman, was employed as a trainee with the soil conservation service during the past summer. The U. S. Forest Service is hiring soil scientists to prepare maps of national forest lands.

In anticipation Prettyman and Owens expect to begin full-time employment with the federal agencies where they received their training.

Library Theater Offers Five Outstanding Films

The Central State College Library Film Service offers five more outstanding films before Christmas.

The films are shown in the Library Theater Thursdays and Fridays at 3:30, 6:30 and 8:30, a light and tomorrow "Mayerling," the film which established Charles Boyer as "the" continental actor, is playing. Set in the day of the Austrian Empire, it is considered a great love story. The scheduled for the rest of the semester is:

The recent completion of L-shaped Pray-Sims Hall on N. Reserve Street constitutes an attempt to overcome housing shortages created by our mushrooming enrollment. The building, having cost a million dollars, is the most expensive yet construct-ed on campus.

The exterior of the building is patterned after Steiner Hall, but significant refinement such as a two-way intercom system between the front desk and each room distinguishes the new building from its prototype.

Each room measures 11x15 feet, and accommodates two men. Walls are of concrete block, with built-in book shelves, desks, dressers and closets. There is a small lounge in each wing of each floor, as well as a central lounge in the basement. Additional basement space has been set aside for recreation and study areas.

The hall director is Jack Sarnosky.

Pray-Sims bears the name of two CSC leaders. Theron S. Pray was the first president of CSC, serving from 1894 to 1906. John F. Sims filled that position from 1906 to 1926.

Pray-Sims Hall honors the memory of Theron S. Pray and John F. Sims, the first two presidents of Central State College.

Peter Ales, a senior from Mosinee, handles the mike at the front desk at Pray-Sims Hall. An inter-com system allows two-way communication between the desk and all rooms in the building.

One of the 634 residents of Pray-Sims Hall, Jerome Jennings sits at a desk in his room which he shares with another student. Jennings, a New London senior, is assistant head resident of Pray Hall, the north half of the L-shaped building. All rooms in the dormitory are identical.

Organizations on the CSC campus arranged booths in the College Union to acquaint new students with the various groups to which they can belong. Pictured here is a booth arranged by Tau Kappa Epsilon, a social fraternity. At left is Perry Wagner, Oshkosh, a senior, as he explains the fraternity crest to Jim Mueller, a sophomore. At the extreme right is Art Bouse, Coleman, another senior.

Brothers of Phi Sigma Epsilon fraternity Ken Hermann, Chuck Collins, Tom Neldeln, Richard Lehman and Ralph Meinert welcome students to their booth.

Group singing was featured in the jointly-sponsored booth of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity and Tau Gamma Beta sorority.
