Race Charge Hearing
Adjudged Indefinitely

The State Industrial Commission, after a three-month investigation, found that 20 AAA employees had been discharged. Among those discharged was number one supervisor, and also said he recommended that the company give 24 months of the three which were also investigated.

Present at the time when Paul explained to Marshall why he was being discharged, Albertson said that no racial conflicts were mentioned and that he did not know of Marshall's charges until Ace investigations contacted him in July.

During cross-examination Albertson conceded that the college if Ace Foods contract did not specifically include the state's non-discrimination clause pertaining to people of color or non-white people, but instead written in the contract under a section which was to be left for the college to add.

Another WSC witness, Orvis
Allen, college business manager,
did not be present and testified that on several occasions and at one time, the Ace Foods Management was not correct. Allen ad-rivatives were tardy and payot mited that Marshall was thrust into the position with little training and he seemed to grasp the duties slowly.

Marshall is the law firm of Barbee and Johnson, and Milwaukee attorneys. Ace is being represented by the Michael,
Best and Friedrich law firm.

Poitner Formality
Makes Changes

Beginning with this issue, the making up of the Page 6 has been changed. Although the column width remains the same,
the general length of the paper is approximately an inch longer.

The change in format resulted from a problem which prompted the new format which has been the Stevens Point Daily Journal with aiming.

The new format is not only a change for the better, but also makes the paper easier to read.

New History Faculty First
Speakers

Three new faculty members will be guest speakers at the history department's first reception at 5 p.m., Oct. 23 in the College Union.

Richard D. Face, whose field of research is medieval and ancient history, received his Ph.D.
from the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point. Russell B. Nelson Jr., an other speaker Wednesday evening, is now completing his doctoral dissertation at the University of Wisconsin concerning early national history.

Also speaking is Waris W. Sorkin, who received a doctor of law degree from the University of Louvain, Belgium, and whose major field of study is Russian and eastern European history.

Each year the history department plans several meetings and receptions to foster a sense of the history of the student's field and promote better acquaintance between students and faculty.

All students are invited to attend the reception. Refreshments will be served following the discussion.

and interact with one another.

Bloodmobile
Finds Willing
Volunteers

Approximately 165 Wisconsin State College students arrived at the Student Union to donate their driving blood.

The students were greeted by the Bloodmobile staff, who distributed pre-stamped postcards to donors to help spread the word.

By the end of the event, the Bloodmobile had collected 52 pints of blood, with a goal of 125 pints.

The Bloodmobile staff
worked throughout the day, setting up tables and handing out pre-stamped postcards to participants.

The event was a success, with over 150 students donating.

The students were also given a certificate of appreciation from the Bloodmobile staff, and their names were entered in a draw for a chance to win a certificate of free food from the Bloodmobile.

The Bloodmobile staff
encouraged all students to consider donating blood in the future, as it is an important service to the community.

The Bloodmobile will continue to visit the campus, with the next visit scheduled for Oct.
12.
How Are You Going?

Dreamers of the world arise!

There comes a time in each of our lives when we ask ourselves, "Where am I going? What am I going to get out of life? What goals do I want to attain: How high should I aim?"

Most of us, after this bit of soul searching, decide upon what occupation we shall enter with that god plodding on never really bothered about these important questions again, letting our dreams crumble and die.

Many dreams die because in our time as in any other time the "Nay-Sayers," or aggressive sceptics, rob them of their dream by scoffing at them. "Nay-sayers" satisfied with things as they are, and the "Columbuses," the "Michelangelos," the "Da Vincis," the "Shakespeares," the "Mofarts" of the world for these men dreamed; they dared to be impractical people.

You, as an individual, can set goals for yourself that you wish to accomplish in your life time. The goals can be few in number; they don't necessarily have to be high or lofty ones. They should be things you really want out of life, for example, going to Europe, or writing creatively, or taking up the fine arts, painting, or music or acting.

What if you don't succeed in all or any of your goals? Remember that the attempt to succeed in the endeavors you try is a certain definite satisfaction in knowing that you have tried. Browning speaks of this sense of satisfaction in his poem, "Rabbi Ben Ezra," when he has the rabbi say, "What I aspire to and was not, comforts me."

It has taken you almost twenty years or more to get where you are now. Your life in the adult world is just beginning. There are two roads you can take now. One is marked, "Dreamers," exciting, promising everything you could want in life. The other is marked, "Plodders," rather dull, secure, well worn; the main reason, "Dreamers," exciting, promising everything you could want in life. The other is marked, "Plodders," rather dull, secure, well worn. But there is one thing in this life which is needed by everyone, and that is the idea of satisfaction. Satisfaction of accomplishment, going to Europe, or playing the viola, or being with various groups in Stevens Point.

ISO Speaks...

An Open Letter to WCS Students: International Student Organization (ISO) is a worldwide organization on our campus and has been functioning since 1956. It is an organization which invites students from all parts of the world.

It has been organized to create constructive and mutual understanding among students, in order to promote an exchange of cultures on our campus at large.

ISO's aims are to create continuing and positive understanding among students in our activities and interest that has been developed by those who want to share experiences with and learn from their international friends.

Among our activities are the International Costume Show, concerts, social parties and dances.

We hope to introduce more international programs. Previously, we have sent delegates to talk with various groups in Stevens Point and surrounding areas.

The organization is not for foreign students alone but for everyone. Working with ISO can be a guaranteed chance to show their interest in the future of this nation.

ISO is the idea of education as not only learning from books, but from learning from any sources at home and abroad.

Why not join ISO?

College-Industry Cooperative in Labor-Management Research

A research project studying labor's attitude toward management and their job has been under way since June by two senior sociology majors at Wisconsin State College.

The study, done through a telephone survey in an industrial plant, Mrs. Jane Burgess and John Altentor, propose to determine how much image is that labor has of management and what factors are involved in job satisfaction.

The Sociological Analysis and Research Project is under the direction of George L. Dixon, professor of sociological analysis and research, and is the first research project in which the college and the community has worked together.

The project has been developed as follows: (1) "Job satisfaction" is related to the policies of the company, and there are many questions between management and labor.

The main reason, that workers stay with a company is for job security. (2) Does labor view themselves as an asset or an aid toward job advancement?

The employee attitude survey was conducted through the use of a 2-question questionnaire. The Corps as an internal project for the service fraternity, and as the Consolidated Paper Company has mounted a rack on the bulletin board and selected a list of employees at those plants that were selected at random and sent a letter asking their voluntary participation.

At the present time, the questionnaire is being analyzed. The results will be summarized, recorded at the college and the Consolidated Paper Company will be the overall result of the research project and presented to the Consolidated Paper Company. Plans are also being made to have this report presented to other interested departments on campus.

Announce Corps Test

Are you wondering about the Peace Corps? As director of the Peace Corps, Robert S. Shriver, plans to conduct the survey in three of its plants — at Whiting, Wisconsin, and New York City. The lawer cent sampling of employees at those plants were selected at random and were sent a letter asking their voluntary participation.

"What occupation we want, and with that go plodding on, never really bothering about these important questions again, letting our dreams crumble and die."

Freshmen Elect Le Duc President

Jon A. Le Duc, Green Bay, was elected President of the freshmen class when elections were held here recently.

Eleven women class officers included Karen Jenson, vice president; Roxy Stuedeman, secretary; Sharon Siegman, treasurer; and Jo Ann Heiland, activities chairman.

In addition to the election of freshmen officers, Robert Peters was elected sophomore class represenative to the student council and Barbara Smith, a senior class representative to the student council.

Only three in every one hundred Americans belong to a political organization or club. This figure is actually less than the membership of the Communist Party in Russia.

"TOLL OF THE FOREST," the title of the talk to be presented by Dr. Emler S. Horlton, pastor of United Lutheran Church, Oak Park, Ill., will be given at 3:45 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 23 in the College Union. A world traveler, active in civic affairs as well as ministerial groups, Dr. Horlton will lead a discussion following the presentation.

"Focus" by Sue Stanke

It is a universal belief that all students think that anybody, ANYBODY, could teach better than Mr. Brown, who fumbles his way through American literature, enraptured by his own little jewels of inco'race, ever-so-slightly brilliant remarks on the American scene.

Or Mr. Matthews, the boy wonder, who whisks through quantities of analysis, leaving the students behind in a cloud of fog and formulas. Or Miss Jackson, who believes that sociology is student therapist.

But... What about the view from the other side of the desk? To the teacher standing in front of anywhere from eight to fifteen peopled, fidgeting, pencil-dropping, fingernail chewing, while the impatient and unsupervised students — the sight must be ghastly.

Consider if you will, In addition to the above slideiow qualities exhibited by students, the teacher must attempt to "communicate" to this distracting mass of collegegoes.

Ever try to communicate with Johnny-Come-Lately? 9/10 the boy just can't seem to make it from noon to 3:25 in ten minutes. He's too busy checking his mailbox, getting a drink, picking up his copy of the weekly paper, waiting for the bus, or deciding on the date for Saturday evening. He makes a grand entrance at least once a week.

Third Hour Thelma is another swinging student — at least most teachers wish she were at one time or another. Her assignment is never hand in tomorrow, or the next day. Or she had a geography test the house before, and absolutely could not get to her English assignment. Or she forgot to do it.

Billy the Brain is another source of teaching trauma. This is the white kid of you name it, who, with some utter flake of fate, just happens to know one more detail than the rest of the class.

He delights in holding the record with the instructor during class time, and demands immediate comprehensive coverage of his many questiona. He reads the Kiplinger Letter, Time, and Playboy. From the misinformation he gorges from all three, he manages to wreak havoc on the class and instructor's nerves next week.

The mumbler is another scourge, No one, but one, can hear this boy — or really care. The note-taker is his enemy in irration. Fast and furiously he writes; volumes he fills with verbatim notes. But — just ask him to render a halfway coherent resume of what has been said. It can't be done.

The class jester, the witty cynic, with his stage-whisper traits of comments is yet another 3333331333133133331313 for the instructor to bear. He steals his lines from the very best comedians, and the very poser magazines. Only the instructor is NOT amused.

"The view from the other side of the desk — interesting."
HOME COMING — 1963

HOOTENANIES, Queen Pat O’Keefe, and Sky Divers . . .

These are just a few of the many treasures that will remain as memories of the 1963 Homecoming. The views of the queen candidates were presented at a well-attended assembly Wednesday evening. Marilyn (Max) Houseld and Robert (Kubi) Killcoyne provided Hootenany entertainment for the assembly. The weekend was climaxed by the Pointers’ 34-7 victory over opposing UW-M. After the Pointer Marching Band presented their new marching emblem, Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity added a touch of the unique by sponsoring two sky divers for half-time entertainment. An enthusiastic crowd watched, awestricken, as the divers made their mark in the center of the gridiron. Queen Pat O’Keefe along with attendants Marquerite Viets, Lori Fredrich and Judy Hines, reigned over the Homecoming game Saturday afternoon and the dance in the evening. The school spirit of the entire student body was in evidence as the week-long activities drew to a close.

JUDY HINES takes a swing at the perennial favorite publicity stunt of Alpha Beta Rho’s fraternity which sponsored her. In hopes of a smashing victory, strong students on campus demolish old automobiles.

TAU KAPPA EPSILON’S candidate Marguerite (Greek) Viets displays the friendly smile that made her one of ten International TEKE Sweethearts as she takes her place of honor in the Royal Court of Attendants for WSC’s 1963 Homecoming.

“DEAR MOM and Dad” Lori Fredrich presented her views in a “letter home” format at the annual Queen’s Assembly Wednesday night.

"COME ON POINTERS Arf, Arf, Arf." No Homecoming, or football game for that matter, would be complete without cheerleaders. These gals also provided a dash of pep to the parade Saturday morning.

SIGMA PHI EPSILON'S fruitful campaign for their winning candidate, Pat O'Keefe, included this dunking machine. Campus athletes proved their prowess by hurling baseballs at a target which caused a fraternity member to be dunked.

OF THE MANY hootenannies the one for Lori in front of the Union on Thursday night was among the most spirited. Phi Sigma Epsilon members turned out in full force to boost their candidate.

"WE'RE GOING to have a hootenany . . ." Entertainment for the Friday night hootenany was sponsored by Tau Kappa Epsilon. From left to right, The Outsiders, Robert Glaze, Maxine Sellers, and the Contemporary Folk Group.

THE CONTEMPORARY Folk Group, four aspiring young singers from Minneapolis, furnished lively entertainment which included a parody on the Kingston trio at Friday night's hootenanny.

PRESIDENT ALBERTSON got into the swing of things at the Alpha Beta Rho stand. The demolition project proved successful as hundreds of students milled around to watch "strong men" in action.

Tony Albrecht, Tim Johnson, Tom Kueck, Rick Swift and Darrell Tompkins have established themselves as the top 5 finalists in the 1963 Interamnual Golf Tournament. Preliminary rounds had to be completed by Oct. 4 to qualify for competition in the championship match.

Tony Johnson manipulated his clubs to the tune of a record-tying 36 on the first nine holes at the Wisconsin River Country Club last week. Darrell Tompkins also carded a 36, his being filled on the second nine. Rick Swift had earlier notched a 36 to gain his position among the top five.

Five Divot-Diggers will be made known in next week's edition, providing the match is terminated as scheduled.

Po in ters In 34-7 Cardinals Beat-Up Victory

by Mike Shibsky

Sonny Redders' 86 yards in 20 carries, including a game scoring total of 15 points, sparkled the Pointers to a 34-7 Homecoming battering over the Cardinals of UW-M here last Saturday afternoon.

With the completion of this contest, the four football games were still undecided in the WSCC. The Pointers held a 1-2-1 slate in the present conference standings.

UW-M made it noticeable early in the game that they would stick to a strict passing attack. Cardinal quarterback Dick Baker was able to complete a 27-yard pass to the opponents' 26. Wally Dreyer's Cardinal, however, found themselves on the 2-1-2 slate in the present conference standings.

UW-M made it noticeable early in the game that they would stick to a strict passing attack. Cardinal quarterback Dick Baker was able to complete a 27-yard pass to the opponents' 26. Wally Dreyer's Cardinal, however, found themselves on the 2-1-2 slate in the present conference standings.

Again the Cardinals went too far, but before long, defensive halfback Dennis Roebchand collected a second Pointer pass interception and returned it to the 10 where Bob Eicholz and Cardinals Rivers rumbled to the 11, and on to the 2 before Redders recovered punt from a yard out of the end zone. Redders' attempt for the extra point failed.

UW-M lost the pigskin on the next series of downs and Point again took over. However, they too, were unable to make any substantial progress and soon found themselves in a punting situation.

Redders boomed a punt that was downed by teammate Ron Tuchuck and set up immediately for an easy Cardinal score.

Rivers handed the ball to the Cardinal 8 before Redders' sweep carried him for 16 yards. It was quarterback Larry Balousek who again Sonny Redders by sending two UW-M linemen to the turf with a vicious crossbody block.

The Cardinal offense failed to click in the next series, though they had some hope when a long pass intended for Larry Balousek went in and out of the fleet end's hands. Dropped passes, by the way, continued to plague the Cardinal's scoring opportunities throughout the contest.

So, it was the Pointer's glory scene again. This time, halfback Dave Emich carried the ball in and around the middle for 15 yards. Again, Redders' sweep carried him into the end zone for another score, this time, the end zone was the right.

Nothingocks the hard-pressed college student more than shak-ing an envelope from home and finding nothing in it but news and love.

KLEINE LOOKS TO BUSY YEAR OF ACTIVITIES

As bewildered freshmen stumble and fumble around the WSC campus, buying elevator tickets in Old Main, answering sociology surveys taken by fraternities, and providing "standing room only" in the snack bar, one question echoes repeatedly, "Who is this Dick Kleine whose signature is prawned on these important documents we receive?"

The upperclassmen look at the freshmen and reply, "He's Student Council president, you know!"

Dick was treasurer of Student Council last year, and now officiates as its president with familiarity. This year's big project entails revamping the constitution, particularly the membership requirements.

Dick graduated from Brookfield H.S. School, Brookfield, Wisconsin. The tall, slim senior carries a double major of mathematics and secondary education. He plans a career as a high school math teacher. Three years ago, Dick attended a Teke convention in Miami Beach, Fla., and is now vice president of that fraternity. Dick also belongs to Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity.

His advice for all freshmen: "To develop a school spirit and remain on campus."

If you are interested in working in a field related to your college major, "OTS" allows you to apply without obligation for a specific occupational field, and if selected, guarantees you will work in this field after commissioning.

Interested students may obtain further information from the Air Force display in the Union Cafeteria or may arrange a private interview with their placement office.
