"Playboy" Takes Survey on Viet Nam

A majority of U.S. college students believe that if the U.S. went in to settle an ultimatum in Viet Nam before the end of this year, the United States should push for an end to Viet Nam. Changing and new-found findings of the first Playboy Opinion Survey cover 513 campuses.

An even larger percentage of students believe we should at least remain in Viet Nam. Those finding our students face a choice of two futures in Viet Nam, with the result that the military service of students is fired to Viet Nam.

It is clear that the students are not stopping to weigh the pros and cons of each side. Rather, they are voting on the basis of what they think will happen in Viet Nam if the U.S. enters the conflict. The students do not look at the military service of students with a positive attitude and believe that the military service of teachers will be minimal.

WSU's Initial Full Time Graduate Student Program

Beginning next September, curious WSU students may participate in the University's first graduate student program. This program will succeed a two-year pilot project in which 25 students were admitted to the graduate level. The Board of Regents approved the creation of a graduate school in January of 1965 and it is planned that the first graduate classes will begin in the fall of 1966.

The graduate program is being administered by the Graduate School, a new administrative unit on campus, which will replace the Interdisciplinary Graduate Committee currently handling graduate work. Graduate work at WSU is currently handled by five different departments.

For details on the graduate program and how to qualify, see the Graduate School section of the new Winter 1965-66 WSU Catalogue.

Campus Students To Discuss Careers

College will have a unique opportunity to discuss their future careers at the First Annual Student Career Conference, to be held in the new student center in December 1965.

The conference will be held on the campus of WSU and is sponsored by the National Bank of Seattle. Students will have an opportunity to meet representatives of various professions and to discuss their future careers.
