Week End Is Hectic As Competition Ends

First place winners in the Winter Carnival Activities were Tau Kappa Epsilon, Phi Sigma Phi, and Delta Phi Epsilon. The award-winning groups were honored by Athena, the Greek goddess of the women's division. In the men's division, the Associated Women Students and Delta Phi Epsilon finished second and Alpha Kappa Lambda finished third.

The Winter Carnival Dance was held on Friday night, Feb. 19, in the student center.

The first place winners, Janet Feldstein and Mark Deadman, revealed that the theme of their dance was "Theatrical," and decided to turn daytime scenery into nighttime drama. The dance was performed in the student center.

Second place winners, Sniff and Sniff Epsilon, decided to present a modern take on "The Sound of Music." Their routine included many of the songs from the musical, but with a twist. The dancers used modern dance techniques to add a contemporary feel to the traditional music.

Third place winners, Alpha Delta Phi, chose "The Red, White, and Blue" as their theme. The routine was a patriotic celebration, with dancers dressed in red, white, and blue costumes. The music was upbeat and the routine included a lot of high kicks and turns.

The Winter Carnival Activities included a variety of events, such as talent shows, pageants, and sports competitions. All activities were held in the student center and were open to all students.

During award presentations, Sneetches were distributed to group leaders, as a symbol of their hard work and dedication. The evening ended with a fireworks display, lighting up the night sky and ending the event on a high note.

The Winter Carnival Activities provided a fun and engaging atmosphere for students to unwind and enjoy each other's company. The events were a great opportunity for students to showcase their talents and abilities, while also enjoying the camaraderie of their peers.

A Fitting Climax

BY DON HAMMES

Those are the words spoken by President Albright as The New Christy Minstrels left the stage after their third encore. The field house was filled to capacity Saturday night as the final piece was fitted into the puzzle of Winter Carnival 1965.

At 6:30 p.m. the doors to the Auditorium were opened and the mass of people who had gathered outside since 5:00 p.m. were let in. The band contest took place at 7:00 p.m.

Bob Epp from the University Center board then explained to the audience what had been done. The New Christy Minstrels had progressed during the five years he has been with USU. Following this short introduction, he introduced the New Christy Minstrels and the show was underway. Immediately the New Christy Minstrels sparked the audience to life with "moving" songs such as "Glory, Glory" and "Riverboat." Five guitars, a bass, a harp and accompanying tambourines were used as the back up band.

The comedy is purely for enjoyment, it does have a worthy message.

Jeffrey Rodman, a sophomore, has appeared in every play at Utah State University since 1963.

Jeff now is cast as the warm-hearted producer noted for his colorful and witty language. He believes that being a Sheldrake or Black the producer is not a guise, but a real person with genuine interest in talent and in the arts.

During the show, Jeffrey Rodman, plays the part of the highlycharged director of the play. Play is based on a "folk-singer" with a questionable repute.

Of his present role Paul says, "It's a ham's dream." He likes the part very much because, "It shows my versatility" and he added, "I will give autographs to the men's room."

Peter Bratz, a recent winner in Interpretative Reading at the competition at Shelt, claims no previous stage experience. This is his first role and Paul Bratz says, "He is a rugged individualist with a bit of a bright point." He believes, "The audience will thoroughly enjoy the show and won't be disappointed by some of the gag lines for quite a while."

Barbara Yrios, who brings to W SU five years of experience and a 20-year membership in the Dramatics Club plays the successful playwright. Barbara Yrios says that "the audience will find Moss Hart's insight into human nature not only very amusing."

Most of us will remember Joyce Wolter as the Detective's wife in "Light Up The Sky." This is her favorite role. She described her part as "Wildly, vibrant and happy." It is a lot of fun playing with the play and I think the audience will adore it.

Jeffrey Hancock, a senior, worked backstage on numerous plays here at WSU with sound and carpentry. He.R. presented, in addition to her current role as the gus, humorously mother of the star in a show that was performed in Idaho.

A Little Respect, Please

Last week as I entered the parking lot behind Delezell on my way back to the Center from classes at the Science Building, I saw the lot attendant approach a student who was in his automobile. When the attendant asked him where his parking sticker was, the car sped out of the lot. A student in front of me yelled a derisive interjection at the attendant for carrying out what was his duty. This student looked at his companion with a proud smile and he had done a remarkable and thoughtful thing. His friend applauded his wit with a smile of approval. The attendant moved on embarrassed and probably a little less sure that his job was important.

A relatively short time ago on the Madison campus, police were pursuing a student when he ducked into the student union in an attempt to elude the officers. A student in the union saw the pursuit and deliberately misinformed the police of the hiding place of the pursued. He thought he was smart too. For a few seconds he was a really big man in his own small, very small mind. So you see, a disrespect for the law by students is not characteristic of some students on this campus alone, it is a disease found on far too many campuses.

How often have you seen students harass officers as they wrote or bought parking tickets for parking offenders? How often have you heard students yell epithets from their autos at pedestrian officers? These children are young punkers who will never be encouraged by their audiences — they always make sure they have audiences — perhaps what they need is a swift nudge where they sit, but this would probably result in serious brain damage.

These public officials off campus and those police on campus are vital — can you imagine a society without them? Deserving of our respect and co-operation, they should never be placed in a situation of derision or being the object of student invective. Next time you see a student trying to be a big man at the expense of the law enforcement officer, let him know that you don't care if you lose this attitude. Better yet, be friendly towards the officer. He may be suspicious, but he'll appreciate it.

In Defense Of Ace Foods

Dear Editor:

I ask you: why is everyone on campus mad at Ace Foods? They don't do anything! I think the student body of this school has made the wrong attitude.

Let's just take a short look at all their good points.

Where else does college students get all the cold fresh butter they want just by going up his line and begging for it?

Where else does college students get fresh cold cuts for Sunday supper?

Maybe some someone students get fresh cold cuts for Sunday supper?

Funny you should mention it but . . .

A similar matter for study is the highly fascinating game of musical chairs played every noon in the snack bar. Only a student who has stood, whispered in one hand and Coke in the other, vainly seeking a place to park himself and his lunch, knows how frustrating this game can be. Anyone lucky enough to have a chair and foolish enough to leave it unguarded is asking for trouble.

Another thing to consider some sleepless night is the student mailbox situation. Hemmed in by dozens of restrictions, it seems the only people who can use them are "authorized personnel" or organizations which have written permission. A stony stare is all you get when you ask "why?"

Another source of wonderment is the student directory. Over one thousand students have the same telephone number: 344-6820. After passing through the directory for five minutes, locating the name of the person you are calling, and discovering this amazing piece of information why extension numbers were not included in the directory. Could it be because one noticed that line (very small, of course) in fact, having a reasonable wit on a minute. A 400 extension is a sure fire way to keep the student off the phone. Or they use the number for the extension number? Believe it or not — such a line exists. Just ask the record office.

And so it goes . . .
Student Council Passes Free Speech Resolution

By COLEEN HOUliHAN

Thursday night, Feb. 11, at the Student Council meeting, several changes in the constitution were passed which will effect the entire student body.

Because of recent events in Madison, and the controversy over persons who may speak on campus, the Council felt that a definite policy was needed. The resolution passed was and it was urged the Student Council administration also make a similar policy.

"Whereas one of the objectives of the University is to have an informed student body which is able to distinguish facts from fallacies, and whereas such a group needs the opportunity to hear and read all the issues affecting our world in an educational setting such as this institution for higher learning, be it resolved that the Student Council of UWS at Stevens Point on record this 11th day of February in full support of freedom of expression, may I urge the future speakers on this campus. Be it also resolved that we strongly urge the administration and faculty of this University to adopt this statement or make a similar statement on the matter.

A copy of this resolution will be sent to the President of the University, and to the Student Welfare Committee for consideration.

Also, the resolution calls for the establishment of a "people-to-people" program which will provide communication among foreign students and all students for their mutual benefit. The Student Council feels that because of the ever increasing number of foreign students on campus, Americans have a great need for understanding about the American and foreign students, a "people-to-people" program which should be initiated on campus. The Student Council fully supports any efforts that are made to set up such a program and recommends that it act as a coordinator, with a special committee to handle the mutual interests of foreign and American students, and with the national "people-to-people" program on campus.

The Council also recommends that the administration set up an advisory board to establish better communication between administration and students. "Be it recommended that the Student Council and the administration establish a Student-Administrative Advisory Board for the purpose of furthering mutual understanding between students and administration. Be it further recommended that the Board be composed of three members of the administration and three students and three alternates appointed by the Student Council; one of whom shall be the president of the Student Council or his delegate."

A fourth resolution supported at this meeting was a "Revision Program. Whereas the administration is fully aware of the growing demand for people with definite leadership qualities in organizations on campus, and whereas the best way to obtain such leaders is through a training program at this time when the student is gathering of all organization leaders, be it resolved that the Student Council fully supports the student training program to be organized by the Student Council and the future Councils to provide the voice of our students in our school government."

Roach Hall News

By BARR BALELY

Although this is its first year, Roach Hall has made big steps in setting up a fine reputation for itself. The girls in Roach Hall actively participated in Winter Carnival to create more enthusiasm and school spirit. They wore Roach Hall paraphernalia and won the poster contest and sponsored Jan Fjelstad and Mark Deadman in the Wisconsin Cardinal King and Queen Contest. DeDe Kamis, a member of the Eating Team, said, as she stuffed pancake after pancake in, “I’m just doing this for Roach!” she surprised both herself and everyone else by eating thirty pancakes. With this kind of enthusiasm, Roach Hall won the contest.

This semester, there are many plans, including a Spring Ball, a Roach Hall Talent Show, a Style Show, a Talent Night, and some parking lot dances. They will have guest speakers such as Dean DeBot and Tom Corrigan, all Roach Hall alumni subjects. All in all, Roach Hall is trying to make its first year one to remember, and to set a tradition that will make their hall one that the girls can be proud to call their home.

We are also happy to announce the recent engagement of the Roach Hall girls: Jan Fjelstad to Mark Deadman. Sonia Rabe to Peter Hertz, Connie Braun to Brian Baker, and Sally Hansen to Tom Simac. Mary Panter was pinned to Robert Toney. These couples, Roach Hall extends their best wishes.

Steiner Hall News

By KURT EIDE

It seems strange that after a major snowstorm, as such as the one last Thursday night and Friday morning, the parking lot at Steiner Hall is not plowed out. Saturday, with many cars without automatics, it would have been an ideal time to plow it. Is it asking too much for the Photographic parking lot reasonably clear of snow.

Last Wednesday night, Jim Coster gave an informative talk on Steiner Hall to the Steiner Hall residents; it was accompanied by slides and followed by a question and answer session.

Jack Talbot is to be congratulated for the excellent job he did on the Winter Carnival Pipe Smokin’ Hat. He had three grams of tobacco for 68 minutes and 45 seconds.

The Steiner Hall stationery is now on sale at the desk in packets for $0.40 and $1.50.

Art Exhibit Shows Media In Paintings

By JAN RAMUSSEN

A collection of polymer resin paintings is currently being shown in the WSU Library Theatre this week. The work of Mr. Norman Rupnow of Milwaukee, the paintings show the tremendous variety possible in the use of a relatively new medium, that of polymer resins.

Unique in the fact that this type of paint has a plastic base rather than the usual oil or water, polymer paints hopefully will permit paintings to retain their original color and texture longer than is now possible with conventional materials.

In his extensive use of polymer paint, Mr. Rupnow has attained an amazing variety of subtle color variations and textures. By brush strokes, painting the paint, smearing, scratching, and other ingenious surface manipulations of the paint, he has achieved what is known as sculptural relief.

Following the Barbiison school of painting, Mr. Rupnow’s collection contains the abstract painting of landscapes and cityscapes at various times of day; dawn, sunset, etc. In his paintings he captures the mood by the use of color and texture. Not entirely abstract, often a painting will contain certain grouping of colors, shapes, or lines which subtly suggest realistic forms. The entire move¬ ments of the painting, the arrangement of his work reflects an oriental flavor of simplicity.

An unusual feature of this particular exhibit is the careful attention and handling given to the frame design and material which surrounds each painting. In several instances, the frames and matting contribute significantly to the success of the work.

A native Milwaukeean, Mr. Rupnow attended the Layton School of Art in Milwaukee, and the Art Students League in New York, New York. He has had exhibits in various parts of Wisconsin, in Minneapolis, Minnesota, and in Chicago, Illinois. He also has held one-man shows in Milwaukee, Chicago, and New York. Presently he is doing free lance work and is operating a studio gallery in Milwaukee which includes private instruction for a limited number of art students.

Omega Mu Chi Becomes Alpha Phi

By KATHY KROLL

Omega Mu Chi officially became the Delta Sigma Chapter of Alpha Phi International Fraternity on Dec. 5, 1964. Nine alumnae and 38 collegiates were initiated at Frame Memorial Presbyterian Church by the Iota Chapter of the University of Wisconsin—Madison. They were assisted by the Delta Kappa Chapter of La Crosse.

The reception for the new chapter was held at the University Center. Receiving Alpha Phi activites and guests were: Mrs. Robert McGuin, District Governor, Oak Park, Ill.; Mrs. D. J. Robertson, National Director of Extension, Grand Forks, N.D.; Mrs. N. Bender, District Alum Chairman, Evanston, Ill.; Miss Sabanna Tucker, Field Secretary, Rosel; Miss; President and Mrs. Albertson; and Elizabeth DeBot; Dean of Women; Mrs. Jerry Baid, Chapter Advisor; and Miss Carol Smith, Chapter President.

The charter for the new chapter was presented by Mrs. Robertson and signed by the collegiates and alumnae chapter members. The symbols of the ceremony signifying the new sisterhood were a white Bible, the charter, and a gavel made from the banister of the first Alpha Phi Chapter house in Syracaus, New York.

Sunday morning the initiates attended church at either Frame Memorial or St. Stanislaus churches. A banquet followed at the Hotel Whiting for the new initiates, parents, and guests, including visiting Alpha Phi, President Albertson and his wife, and Dean Debot. Miss Smith accepted the Alpha Phi Executive Board’s gift of the white Bible, the Alpha Chapter’s historical scrapbook and a silver tray from the La Crosse Chapter. Tokens gifts were received from the other ninety collegiate chapters.

The alumnae initiated into the Delta Sigma Chapter are all past members of Omega Mu Chi, and one, Mrs. Dorothy Bourn, was a charter member of the Omega group. Three Alpha Phi alumnae living in Stevens Point, Mrs. Jerry Baid, Mrs. David Kauf, and Mrs. Wayne Kruger, will form an active alumnae chapter to support the local collegiate chapter.

Pancakes Anyone

Contending champion "Smoky" Joe Southworth ate through to the Butler Carnival Pancake Eating Contest on Feb. 15. Kappa Lambdas defeated Tau Kappa Epsilon by one pancake and retained his pancake-eating record for the third straight year.

In the Allen Center on the evening of Feb. 15, at 8 p.m., waiters began to bring in the pancakes to contestants who represented various organizations, including most of the fraternities and sororities on campus. The sixth annual contest was sponsored by the Millers and the Student Community Center.

"Smoky Joe" calmly cut his first pancake. The Sia­ sellos captured the audience's attention with the "styles" of pancake eating.

At 8:15 p.m., "Smoky Joe" pushed down his 38th pancake. Sig Tau Gamma rallied to a team score of 60 from eight members and pushed down his 38th pancake. The combined efforts of many groups and individuals, on the campus and off, helped make the recent game of wheelchair basketball between the Gizz Kids and the WSU - Stevens Point freshmen. Pointers a great success. It was an inter­esting game, with the Pointers winning by one point, and now that one point has been tallied it appears to have been a successful benefit for the Stevens Point Sheltered Work­shop for the handicapped. Approximately $4000 has been turned over to that organization from the tickets sold for the game. There were two and a half-hour periods of Smith Hall, and one of the girls "Smokey Joe" consumed his 48th pancake.

The contest's attention turned to a table of girls from Roach Hall who had put away over seven pancakes in 30 minutes. Behind at 8:30 p.m., waiters hurried back and forth with pancakes and water, the time ticking away. The girls "Smokey Joe" consumed his 48th pancake.

At 8:45 p.m., the crowd shifted its attention to "Smoky Joe" pushing down his 56th pancake. By 9 p.m., the audience was in a half-hour's time. Then the inevitable happened. "Smokey Joe" at­tacked his fourth pancake and decided she didn't want any more pancakes and her stom­ ach didn't decide it didn't want the ones she had already eaten. Benefit Game Called Success

"After 44 minutes and 45 seconds, Anita Knaack from Al­ pha Phi sorority, flushed of face, cleaned her mouth of pancake crumbs and wiped her forehead. She had already eaten 115 pints. This 115 pints repre­ sents 68 percent of the total University contribu­tion. Of all the blood donated, 125 pints were earmarked for "Smoky Joe.""
It is the purpose of this feature to familiarize students with future activities of the residence halls.

The first of this series is the following report from Inter-Hall Council which is the student body that provides the leadership and insight into the various activities of residence halls individually as well as a whole. The Inter-Hall Council is composed of the seven presidents, one from each of the governing bodies of their respective residence halls. These are: Sibley Hall-Harry Schimpf; Hoyle Hall-Linda Hall; Roach Hall-Cathy Kreamer; Vanish-Smith Hall-Don McKeith; Pry-Sims-Don Holoway; Nelson Hall-Paula Allen; and Peyton Hall-Warren Schimpf. Their advisor is Harry R. Smith of Smith Hall. The amount of work these people have contributed to you, the residents is overwhelming.

By the request of several of the Residence Hall Councils on campus, the Food Service for dormitory students in residence halls was looked into with the intention of formulating suggestions for improvement for the students. Mr. Scott, the food director, and Mr. Doyle, head of the kitchen for Allen Center, met with Inter-Hall Council to talk over various problems.

The first topic discussed was the personnel involved. The Food Service people take. Several men, women, and Negroes. Also, hair and other such objects being found in their food. Mr. Scott and Mr. Doyle explained the precautions used and said that they would look into them to make sure they are being followed. Mr. Scott and Miss Doyle told us strongly to tell the residents to inform them immediately of any objects found in the food. Both of them urged the Hall Councils to offer suggestions and solutions to any problems that are being encountered, as they do their best to solve them. The next topic discussed was the quantity and quality of food offered. The Inter-Hall Council suggested a wider variation should be stressed with as many repetitions of foods as possible. Mr. Scott and Miss Doyle explained to us how they try to cut down on waste as much as possible by offering the “old” food along with the new, always giving the student a choice. They said they try to increase the students seconds on almost anything except milk and ice cream which should be increased in proportion during the week and in quantity only on days when there is also a special event. Mr. Schimpf of Deltel suggested chocolate milk with the white and this was met with approval by all. Mr. Scott said he would try to see that chocolate milk would be offered and at certain times increase the quantity offered so a student may take two glasses of any beverage.

The last topic discussed was the space in the newspaper to in-campus of past, present, and ed was the breakfast meal. The Inter-Hall Council pointed out low breakfast attendance was, even though the students were paying for the meal. The Council suggested the food director try to increase attendance for breakfast by putting the next day’s menu on the previous day’s board. They agreed and said they would do this. It was also suggested that breakfast be offered, like those given for dinners during the holidays, and Mr. Scott said he would look into this.
