FRESHMEN CHALLENGED BY THE GIZZ KIDS

Nothing can keep a good man down, even if he is a man in a wheelchair. The nation’s only university basketball team, the “Gizz Kids,” will challenge the Stevens Point University freshman team here, Feb. 3 at the WSU Fieldhouse. This surprisingly fast-moving team, playing under National Intercollegiate Rules, will spot the Pointers 30 points and very likely cap the victory. The “Kids,” hailing from the University of Illinois Champaign, travel the entire midwest as a winter break, presenting thrillers at every stop.

Complete with eight cheerleaders, these sharpshooters and the girls will demonstrate a wheelchair squash-dance at half-time.

It is thought that some people are a non-profit group who tour for the love of the sport as well as for the purpose of showing others what can be accomplished by the physically handicapped can do. The performance will surprise you as it has so many. The game being presented for the benefit of people of central Wisconsin under the sponsorship of the Secondary Education Association of the University, John J. Gach, Advisor. All proceeds will go toward the hospital for the mentally, physically, and socially handicapped of the Stevens Point area. There is a dollar donation, 75 cents for children. People of the area are urged to attend this gala affair, complete with pre-game and half-time entertainment. Give the famous “Gizz Kids” an opportunity to prove that ability, not disability counts.”

Dave Armstrong, president of the Senior Class of WSU-Stevens Point, presents a check for $100 to Dr. Paul Yamhart, Dean of School of Applied Arts and Science for the Michael’s Hospital Fund Drive. Dr. Yamhart is chairman of the drive at WSU.

“There are a lot of things the senior class could have done with this money,” Armstrong said, “but we wanted to contribute to the fine new health service Stevens’ Point will soon have.”

CAS PRESENTS JULIUS CAESAR

February 5 and 6, the Cinema Art Series presents “Julius Caesar” which was produced in the United States. Charlton Heston is one of the stars in this great Shakespearean work. The film is 90 minutes long and will be shown in the Library Theatre at 7:30, 8:30, and 9:30.

This film manages to preserve the beautiful poetry in Shakespeare’s original version while unusual feats of photography have Roman-style houses in Chicago serving as the background. The final scenes are shot on the sand dunes around Lake Michigan.

CLOSED SHOP VETOED

In the referendum held on January 11 by the Wisconsin Employees Relations Board, the Acet Food employees had a chance to vote for or against the union shop. A 66% affirmative vote was required for the union shop. Since the vote was 28 affirmative and 25 against, the employees at WSU will be working in an open shop situation.

HERMANN PREY

Hermann Prey, a German baritone widely acclaimed in Europe and the United States, will perform in the Chamber Series of the Arts and Lecture Series, in the auditorium, Feb. 4 at 8 p.m. Tickets are being distributed this week, but will not be distributed during closed week or exam week.

During his 1965-66 American season, Mr. Prey will hold a recital at Carnegie Hall in New York and his first performance as the Count in " Marriage of Figaro" at the Metropolitan Opera House.

Born in 1929, Prey professionally sang at a very early age. He joined the Berlin Mozart Choir as a boy soprano and later enrolled at the Berlin Hochschule des Musik, studying under Jaro Proskaska and Guenther Baum. When he was 23 years old, Hermann Prey made his first major success by winning first prize over 2,000 other entrants in the third annual "Meistersinger" contest sponsored by the U.S. Armed Forces in Germany. Part of the prize included a trip to the United States and two appearances with the Washington National Symphony under Howard Mitchell, who was one of the judges, and one with Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra. "Prey scored a triumph," reported the Washington Star. The Philadelphia Inquirer commented, "Eugene Ormandy had reasons to be proud of the performance of Hermann Prey.

Baritone Herman Prey To Perform February 4

It was a real joy to hear this handsome baritone sing.”

Apparently his American success influenced his career in Germany. When he returned, Guenther Rennert signed him for the State Opera where he began to establish an even more extensive repertoire of baritone leads. He also started singing oratorio and recital, soon establishing his reputation as interpreter of Bach’s St. Matthew and St. John passions, and as a singer of Lieder. He appeared with many leading conductors in Europe, among them Otto Klemperer and Karl Bohm, and in most major opera houses, such as Vienna, Berlin, and Munich. At the Brussels World’s Fair, he participated in the world premiere of a cantata by Marinus de Jong. His most recent triumph was a presentation of the three Schubert song cycles during the Vienna Festwochen of 1964. The performances were all sold out and additional performances were held which also sold out.

In April 1964, he appeared at Hunter College in what the New York Herald Tribune called, unfortunately, his only local engagement...one of the most winning Lieder recitals of the season.”

In the fall, he sang in "Barber of Seville" with the San Francisco Opera. The Los Angeles Herald American reported that "unsurpassed in the title role turned out to be one of the most effective performances...combining splendid tone quality with control and agility. His spirited performance is one of the reasons why, if you missed "The Barber" yesterday, you should be all means catch its repetition."

Mr. Prey lives outside Munich with his wife, Eberd, and their three children. His principal hobby, outside of singing, is hiking.
In 1924, Nicolai Lenin, the man who influenced the Communist movement, delivered the following speech. A recent survey of historians think, "First we will take eastern Europe, then the massses of Asia, then we will encircle the United States which will be the last bastian of Capitalism. We will not have to attack. It will fall like an ovelripe fruit into our hands."

Lenin was not an idle philosopher. "We will not have to attack; we will set up a base of operations in the United States."

The Communists are a sharp group, they know what they want and how to get it. Do you think they want to convert Americans to Communism? No, there's no need. All they want Americans to do is to do nothing.

Listen to what Franklin Roosevelt, a former President of the United States, said, "I do not believe in Communism any more than you do, but there is nothing wrong with the Communists in this country; several of the best friends I have got are Communists."

--- Congressional Record 1924, Page A5382

This naive stupidity did not go far to hasten the advance of the free world. As a matter of fact, while Roosevelt was President, the Communists seized control of 14 previous free countries. From late 1930 up to 1945, 86,655,000 people were lost to Communism: the people in East Poland, Northern Russia, Southern Finland, Estonia, Latvia, the rest of Poland, Bulgaria, Tannu Tuva, East Prussia, Romania, Southern Sakhalin, Kurile Islands, and Yugoslavia.

And then Truman, from 1945 to 1953, lost 5 more countries: Albania, North Korea, Hungary, Czechoslavakia, Mongolia, East Germany, Guatemala, and China.

Eisenhower wasn't quite as bad, he only lost 37,012,000 people in 3 countries: North Viet Nam, Thailand, and Cuba. However, during his term of office the Communists lost control of Guatemala.

But in 1960, we sent Kennedy to lead us. He certainly could speak well couldn't he? Only thing is, actions are what count, not words. From 1960 until 1963 and from then until now, under Kennedy's running mate, Johnson, the Communists have grasped control of 8 more countries with 22,782,000 people. These countries were Algeria, Guinea, Ghana, Zanzibar, West New Guinea, British Guiana, and Laos.

Do you know what all this means? This means that in the last 25 years 857,383,000 people in 33 countries have come under Communist control.

Now recall what Lenin said. The Communists are right on schedule. It's about time we did something, don't you think? Isn't it about time we shooe fighters - armed, armed to the teeth? - and we believe? And for God's sake, there are more ways of fighting than on the battlefield.

JANUARY 12, 1965

"Views On America" View I

The following two articles, by institution members, were written to two foreign students attending this university. Each article is an expression of their impressions of their stay in this country.

I. The Poise of an American campus in order to get your first impression about this country, its diversified, social and academic life. Some people may say that for any three months, but in my case three years! I'll tell you, in September of the current academic year that I arrived here as an exchange student from East Africa. This evening lies astride the equator on the east coast of Africa, south of the Sahara. As soon as I stepped off the plane, I realized that the academic and socially I felt that I was from a different place. I had to adjust according to American social and academic institutions. Believe me, it was a big shock.

The first night here in the college was the most unforgettable. I was alone and no one wanted to help me in one way or the other. The best thing that happened to me was that I received a mixture of curiosity and kindness. They threw numerous questions at me about my country, my experience, my language and why I chose to come here. How could an opening be more encouraging to a student that seven thousand miles away from his home? I was asked the name of my country. I said Kenya. I was asked the name of my country. I said Kenya. I was asked the name of my country. I said Kenya.

The replies followed only amazed me. Some said, it was in South America, mistaking it for British Guiana. Others said that it was in India and still others said that it was in Asia, but they were really confused. I told them that Kenya was in East Africa near the Indian Ocean. I was asked whether there was a war and why I chose to come here before I could frame a polite reply of, "No."

My hall director and his assistants, together with a host of boys, showed me such enthusiasm that I was always cherish and remember it.

The activities that followed in the next fortnight were interesting. I only had the scantiest knowledge of where to report and how to get there. But when I lost my way — I often did — I was always found by some student who had it to visit, had it to visit. They were always helpful and patiently and happily showed me the way or escorted me to the correct place.

What about my wholesale impressions of the American social and academic institutions? As far as subject matter and teaching methods are concerned the American system differs little from the British system. One difference is the lecture audience. American campuses are much smaller and lack the formality of the British. Another is that they are willing to accept a group of designated credits over the class, while in the American colleges, a student could only accept a single class. A student who is not enough the particular aspect as it provides an abbreviation in a variety of courses.

Rubbing shoulders with Americans means an increase in my knowledge and an experience which has been sometimes humorous, at times disturbing but I have to adjust because there is only one world, America.

In Brazil, we have a saying that there are many little things outside the university. The same holds true in the United States. For this reason, it is very important for me that the American students are getting to know the American people. They are so generous and hospitality that they will help me in their own.

They are very friendly, but there is one thing that I have noticed. I don't think in Brazil, we have a saying that it is much better to have one good friend in business than money in the bank. It means that with American students, when they do something, they do it well. It is very good to be independent, but a real social life where one and only one is independent from him is almost impossible anymore. I have been a student for a long time and I have only one friend, a friend he is already thinking about how to go to the other side of the world and how to get there.

I have been faced with so many opportunities to meet farmers and businessmen, doctors and lawyers, that I could not count all the students as possible in the college, but all those make them find independent, frank, and polite, but I have too much to relax. Everything I have been exposed to is so new that I don't even know how to enjoy a conversation. The television is the same as in Brazil, it is competitive.

II. Views On America View II

I see the Americans like I see any other people; they are hospitable and generous. However, I do not know how I could praise them, I have faults like all people do. The United States are the western giants of North America. The United States are rich in natural resources, and origine of their people, plus many other sociological and economic reasons, the United States have a great influence between them.

When the United States went to war in a land where they could live in an empire that was trying to exercise control over the smaller and weaker countries, they used their natural resources. Brazil grew slowly and poorly while the United States grew rich. The Americans love to have control of everything. From this, for this reason, they are very friendly; they have become very nationalistic and traditional. Their nationalism grew with the growth of the United States, they are so generous that they seem to have more than two political parties. When one party lacks integrity, the other is always ready to defend it.

Throughout the whole period, I have been learning and where almost everyone has the chance to go to school and get an education. I have been impressed by the American system of education. I have been impressed by the American system of education. I have been impressed by the American system of education. The American system is very specific and precise. They work hard and have no disdain for hard work. They do not care what you are doing when they are in high school. They do not care what you are doing when they have to begin thing of their own.

History Dept. Replies

Dear Editor:
I am perhaps in lamenting the general ignorance about the "non-Western" world, we seem to be unaware that the History Department, to say nothing of the University at large, is aware of this and is planning and acting to correct what is considered a deficiency (and has been for some time). Area Studies programs are in various stages of development (Latin American Studies and the like); affiliations with suitable institutions are in the making (for example, in Central America and the Philippines); an institute on Latin American Studies was developed during the summer of 1963; and those of us large and small are working to establish the presence on campus of foreign students also contributes to increasing awareness and knowledge of "non-Western" areas.

In the History Department, specifically, of course, I come to "non-Western" areas (Besides Africa, I include Russia, since you mentioned Lenin and Khrushchev in the earlier part of your editorial, and Latin America, since it is generally classed as "non-Western") and I might also point out that you have our hopes to add a specialist on the Far East. Courses have cleared the History Department for offerings in Central and Eastern Asia which too could cite offerings and later.

In conclusion, though your editorial does point to a problem in the initial planning stages to rectify the weaknesses, or, I would argue, to develop an area, the faculty and administration are aware of the problems you pointed out. Your editorial last week, "Six Considerations," had the same shortcomings.

Assistant Professor of History, May, is a "fracturing." Thank you for your informative insights and for your criticism. Both are appreciated.

An Informer

Dear Editor:
I feel it my duty to inform you that a student of mine, emboldened by the Enterprise of the Poet in regard to Ace Employees joining a union, has made a similar attempt to the closed shop. A closed shop is an anachronism and the American Union membership is a condition of hiring as well as employment. The correct term to use is union shop. A student union shop is a shop in which employees may hire non-union workers who must become members of the union after a stated period.

May I suggest that members of the Student Staff enroll in an elementary Economics course to further their understanding of economic principles.

DEAN B. BARSCH

The problem that you discuss is that of "correct" naming of "non-Western" semiotics. In either case, a closed shop or a union shop, a worker must be employed to remain employed. To a wage earner, the situation is significant. Hereafter we will be more cautious in our choice of words.

The Poet's editor does not have to take the "non-Western" course in economics, but with an erudite mass like you on campus the idea that such a course wouldn't be superseded? L.F.S.

New Poetry Editor

NEW POETRY EDITOR

Having looked at the opportunity of being poetry editor, I feel obliged to set up criteria for the poetry submitted, but in truth, if I want to say that which makes a poem for me or for anyone, I set up a mammoth impossibility for this small space. Subsequently, I can state only a few generalizations (if anyone wants to agree with me by word of mouth, anytime, anywhere).

It seems that there should at least be some attempt at poetic merit; that poems may be fitted to poetic devices. Much of the poetry can be read, as well as that which is "non-Western," is so often read, and one has to ask, where will the student Poet find this far-fetched skill and seeming to emerge out in a minute or two minutes image or word play. I would, as best I can, to agree with John Ciardi in feeling that the meaning of the poem is in the act of language. It is not what you say that matters, the Messages may be simple or complex. It is how you say it. Before I ignore any more English teachers with this gigantic generalization, I would like to quote Archibald MacLeish at the end of his poem "Art Poetsica" describing the art of poetry:

"For all the history of grief
And of the lie of ways
Leaves the leaning grasses and two lines
Mean but be."

I'm sure that the Dec. 10 POETRY has explained "that this is the people's satisfaction; I won't enlarge upon it here. The reservation that you pointed out will be investigated. If it short lived, I shall assure you. Your columns for your newspaper are a healthy sign. I'm glad to.

Poet Complains

Dear Poetry Editor,
Several years from now, the Poet asked for poetry from the student, speaking of my job, to answer this request.

What I'm trying to say is that, though wish upon a star is not poetry, its sentiment, prose, cut up for a poem and as a result, poetry. How about some true poetry—something with a soul, some sounds or even something in free or blank verse, thought. Lightly. Thought about.

Doz, in a vain attempt to memorize fifty North American birds, I've turned smart, a little bit of poetry, in the hope of helping the student Poet find his is own voice, even in describing poetry, he fulfills the quality of being poetic, rhythm, rhyme, these are some of the things I will try to look for in deciding the poetry submitted fulfills the act of language.

New Art Exhibit

Paintings of Dennis Pearson are being exhibited in the Library this week. The show will be at WU from now until Feb. 5. Dennis Pearson is a 1963 graduate of Layton School of Art in Milwaukee. He received his degree from Michigan State University, the University of Wisconsin, and the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. Mr. Pearson's work has been exhibited in various galleries and has won many prizes including the First Prize at the 1962 Milwaukee Festival of Arts and the First Painting Prize at the 1963 Wisconsin State Fair.

One of the most puzzling things a student encounters at college is the curriculum he is forced to follow. Other students demerit minds are at work, deliberately trying to foil unrelated, unasked and unasked for courses on reluctant students.

If you're a conservation major you sit squirming, like a fish out of water, in the foreign land of a Master's of Literature class, attempting to pick up a humanities credit. On the other hand, if you're an intermediate-upper elementary education major —why, every Monday, Wednesday and Friday you may be found gingerly picking your way through Madison, Wisconsin, as part of a required Conservation 111 course. Let it never be said that Wisconsin maple, elm and pine tree go unrecognized by any intermediate-upper elementary education major.

Or you may sit long into the night, swallowing No-Doz after No-D, in a vain attempt to memorize fifty North American birds, mammals and fishes out of these clever little dollar Golden Nature pocketbooks, occasionally wondering why on earth it is vital that an English major know the circulatory system of a fish or be able to draw the structure of a tapeworm. But ten credits of natural science you must have for a degree from this institution, so ten credits you must take, even if, like James Thurber, all you see when you look through a microscope is the reflection of your own eye.

And every student, unless somehow blessed with a minor defect, is required to take two years of physical education. A strong body as well as a strong mind is the motto, and it's probably true. If you live through the strong body part you may have a chance to develop your mind. No one can argue that the range of course is dead and limber. At 7:45, if you're up, you can take diving. What could be more invigorating after a big night out than to learn to swim, or to get a miscellaneous knowledge of sea life and limb are not to be underestimated in such classes where you may find yourself beaked with a misguided golf ball, dodging arrows in an archery class, two-stepping instead of three-stepping in a social dance class, or dropping a Brunswick ball on your foot.

Why must student take such courses? Only the curriculum committee knows for sure. And they're not telling.

A TRY

Precisely how this poem will come out, I cannot say. My mind is not so great. That I can toss iambic verse about and land it so rhymes a perfect gait. Some would say that it's quite easy writing. Shakespeare, Milton, Coleridge and such men, Found it not so hard to write with rhyming. And wound up English masters of the pen, Yet I am but a student learning how, And like an infant does not talk at first — I cannot write a sonnet, though I vow I've tried. This verse I do believe is cursed. So my critic, do not judge me harshly, Else you judge a Shakespeare prematurely.

Meiers' Father Makes Statement

Richard Meiers finished the sad duty of collecting his son Tom's last efforts from his apartment in Stevens Point on December 18—exactly one week before a Christmas Eve birthday. Tom was killed on December 12 while competing in a sporting event.

Karl was chosen by the special events committee of the Center Board. As chairman of the WCN week's events, Karl began months ago to appoint various committee heads and to organize the week's schedule.

Many of his duties involve "run­ning around" after such details as choosing trophies, holding meet­ings, contacting sponsors and local WCU backers, confirming reservations, and obtaining authorizations.

"The biggest task that confronted us this year," commented Karl, "was the revising of Carnival rules (which will be discuss­ed in a later Festival issue) and the devising of new ideas to make Winter Carnival the most fun-filled and exciting time of the year."

Karl continued, "Winter Carni­val to be successful must also unite the students and increase school spirit by the competition generated in WC events, games, and ice sculpture. This goal can only be realized if students sign up for the various games, tests, and other events. I hope that all students will participate and of course I hope the weather will cooperate.

Karl will appear on television on Monday, January 18 on "Spotlight on Education" over channel WSAU-TV, 10:15 pm. I will discuss Winter Carnival in more detail.

Scuba diver, musician, writer of poetry. Marshall Tymm, English instructor at WCU, does all three. Dark and slyly of manner, Tymm is a soft-spoken man who received his A.B. and M.A. at Wayne State University, Michigan, and is doing his first year of teaching here. One of the main reasons I decided to come to WCU is because this school is very liberal," Tymm said. "People here believe in faculty freedom in teaching. Until I decided to come here, however, I was considering and had already been accepted into the Peace Corps.

I believes that a teacher's effec­tiveness can be increased by getting to know his students out­side of the classroom. Students are as important outside of class as they are in the classroom."

Music is high on Tymm's interest list. He plays the trumpet and drums, once had his own jazz group, and has played with various bands and orchestras. Also a poetry buff, he feels strongly about poetry as a media of artistic expression. "I write poems of social protest, but am planning on doing more prose writing now," Tymm said, "I believe any piece of writing should have universal appeal. I no longer think poetry has this appeal," Tymm said.

"Playing-writing also interests me, I have been closely observing the plays put on here. From that I am casting for the actual production, and someday I hope to try my hand at it," he added.

For relaxation, I lead a very active social life," Tymm said with a grin. "Seriously, though, I read, write and enjoy galleries."

KARL LANGLOIS

With Winter Carnival Week follow­ing close on the heels of semi­ester break, Karl Langlois, this year's WC chairman would like to say a few words to the WCU student body about the winter's biggest event.

An Appleton native, Karl gradu­ated from St. Mary's High School, Menasha. There his interests in­cluded playing cornet in the school band. In his Senior year he was elected president of his class. Following high school Karl attend­ed Marquette University and later transferred to WSI, Stevens Point, where he is now a senior major­ing in Conservation.

As a resident at Fray-Stine Hall, Karl was wing representa­tive in his sophomore year and later became floor counselor as a junior. Active in hall programs, Karl also joined AKL and served as its treasurer in his sophomore year and as president last year. Karl is planning to attend gradu­ate school after his graduation in June.

After expressing an interest in heading the Winter Carnival pro­gram last year, Karl was chosen by the special events committee of the Center Board. As chair­man of the WCN week's events, Karl began months ago to appoint various committee heads and to organize the week's schedule.

Many of his duties involve "run­ning around" after such details as choosing trophies, holding meet­ings, contacting sponsors and local WSI backers, confirming reservations, and obtaining authorizations.

Need To Be Neater

The bus boy on the night shift has been trying to figure out ways in which the students could keep the floors of the Snack Bar and Card Room cleaner. This, in turn, would create a much better atmosphere for all those who use our facilities during the day.

His main suggestion concerns the ash tray—"a newly dis­covered invention to some students. He is sorry to disappoint you in letting you know that the ash tray is not a decoration but merely a glass plate in which you are supposed to tip your ashes. The floor is much more convenient; but then, on second hand, who wants to walk over that mess.

In his own words: "The card room is the worst. My dog is in a better place and he's dead. That's a pretty poor comparison, a grave to a card room!"

It's all up to the students as to how easy they want this place kept. He will do his job emptying ash trays and show them out; let us see how well you college students do.

New Hours For Snackbar

In response to requests by stu­dents, the hours during which, the snackbar will be open are being extended temporarily. The purpose of this extension is to make a new site of University Center facilities during the later evening hours, e.g.

Mr. Meiers asked us to ex­tend this statement to "all the good people of Stevens Point and students of Wisconsin State Un­iversity. Last Winter Carnival I take this opportunity to thank you wholeheartedly for your wonder­ful hospitality, friendship, and love given to our son, Tom, during the last 3 1/2 years while he at­tended your excellent university."

Peace Corps Volunteers Visit WSU

During the week of November 30th to December 5th, W.S.U. campus was fortunate to have representatives of the Peace Corps here. June and Andy Hansen, teachers, spent two years in Liberia, West Africa. Their first assignment took them to Monrovia, the capital. Here in the capital city, Mrs. Hansen taught English to the ninth through twelfth grades. Mr. Hanson, on the other hand, taught social studies to the grades equivalent to those found in our high schools. While in Monrovia, they found the living conditions much better than anticipated. Local supermarkets with many varieties of imported food were able to be found. Life was not as rugged to them as imagination had made it seem.

Student Mailboxes To Be In Effect

Student Mail Boxes will be in effect again. Alpha Phi Omega has volunteered to take on the project of inserting names and enforcing mailbox regulations. This was a student council project, but, the chapter will take much for them. Alpha Phi Omega is not a social fraternity but a national service fraternity.

The nine Wisconsin State Universities may have some 1,006 more students in 1968 than they have planned for in their 1965-67 planning program, according to the latest enrollment projections made by the state Coordinating Committee for Higher Education.

Projections reported to the Coordinating Committee at its Dec. 6, meeting, based on actual enrollments this year, show a total of 72,759 undergraduates at the nine State Universities in September 1968. A projection made earlier in the year put undergraduate enrollment in 1968 at 61,392. The figure was used in planning new buildings for the past fiscal year.

The New Coordinating Committee staff projections show undergraduate enrollments at the University of Wisconsin campuses and Centers for the first time in 1968-69, and remaining higher through the 1969-70 projection period. The figures for 1965 are 51,392 for the State Universities and 10,992 for 1965 University of Wisconsin. Undergraduates are students enrolled as freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors.

Miss Sushila J. Gidwani has successfully completed her Doctorate degree in the field of economics earning the Doctor of Philosophy degree. To obtain a Ph.D., one must compose an original thesis in the field of one's major. Miss Gidwani defended this thesis in an oral examination before a panel of judges.

Miss Gidwani earned her Bachelor's degree in Chemistry at the University of Bombay in Bombay, India. She then came to America to pursue graduate work at the University of Minnesota where she received her Master's degree in Business Administration. In order to do research in the field of Petroleum Refineries, she became very interested in this topic. She believed that there are certain economic factors which play an important roll in the growth of Petroleum Refineries. Thus, Miss Gidwani chose, "The Economic Causes and Effects of Technological Change: A Case Study of Petroleum Refineries of America" as the topic of her thesis. It took her three years to complete this thesis. She was offered a job in the petroleum field after her thesis had been accepted and on that date she decided to take an examination where she successfully passed the final examination. Miss Gidwani will attend graduation ceremonies on December 16 where she will receive the title of Doctor of Philosophy.

Miss Verrett Big Success
By Jane Chang and Philip A. Graupner
The evening of January 6th was a special one for a very fortunate few who attended the 8th Annual Barbershop Show. Miss Shirley Verrett, one of the leading young mezzo sopranos of our time according to the pianist Charles Wadsworth, is destined to become one of the greatest in the world of music. Miss Verrett presented the premier performance of a concert that she will sing at Carnegie Hall on January 11th and which will be recorded by RCA Victor. The program consisted of art songs and spirituals. She captivated the audience by her beautiful countenance, charm and style. She was extremely successful in singing the true meaning of the songs felt by the musicians and those written in the language of the composer. Miss Verrett herself was impressed by the audience's response. She received thunderous applause and standing ovations.

Pointer Matmen Win Over LaCrosse

The Stevens Point wrestling team displayed its potential last Saturday by defeating La Crosse 27-6. The victory brought the Pointer record to 2-3 in dual meets. Both victories have been over the La Crosse Indians.

Riding time played an important factor in the first two matches in Saturday's meet. Dick Jensen got a takedown in the first period and got some valuable time before the three minutes was up. The Indians' Dave Bruisky got a reversal in the second period and Jensen came back with the same trick in the third. Before the match was over however Bruisky got his second reversal but lacked in riding time, thus giving Jensen a 5-4 decision.

In the 130 pound class Tod Wise defeated Roger Hunsberger in a hard fought 4-2 decision. Wise got two takedowns and an escape while giving his opponent only two escapes. The score at this point was Stevens Point 9, La Crosse 0.

Al Freeman of La Crosse decided Pointer Rick Riley 6-3 with a takedown, reversal and predicament. Riley's points came on escapes. La Crosse then forced the 147 pound class. Jim Kornowski wrestled hard but was outmuscled by Neil Daughin of La Crosse by a 5-3 score. The score at this point was 14-6.

In the 167 pound class Larry Ironside brought some quick excitement as he was taken down by Dick Molsdall but seconds later got a reversal and pinned his whole ordeal took only 44 seconds in the same move. The wins, Pete Seiler got revenge for an earlier period reversal in the first period, reversal in the second period and in the third period to win by a 4-1 score.

A large crowd was on hand for the meet as Bernie Christianson pinned Don Dunlap in 4:29.

Pointers Beat Blugolds

By Mike Troy

Bill Borcherdt sank two free throws with 59 seconds to put the Pointers out of immediate danger Tuesday night and they held off an Eau Claire rally to win an 87-76 verdict from the Blugolds. The win was the first conference victory for the Pointers and put a stop to their seven game losing streak.

The Pointers’ attack was well-balanced with five players scoring in double figures. Bill Borcherdt was tops with 19 points, Bill Wesenberg scored 18, and Wes Zuige followed with 13. Dick Jensen contributed 11 points and Lonnie McCauley added 8.

Eau Claire’s scoring was centered around the trio of John Schaefer, a 2-foot guard, Allen Hansen and Larry Johnson. They produced 20, 19 and 18 points respectively.

The next home game is February 2, against Platteville.

Matmen Lose To Pioneers

On December 17, the Stevens Point matmen travelled to Platteville and lost a close match to the Pioneers. The 19-17 setback sat to the Pointers their fourth consecutive loss (three of them by three points or less) after their fine showing at the State Collegiate Meet.

The turning point in the match came when Len and Larry Irons were both pinned by their Platteville opponents. The ten quick points gave Platteville a 16-1 lead. Dick Jensen kept up his winning by getting a take-down in the first period to bring the score to 19-12. In the second period, Pete Seller got a first period take-down, a second period reversal, and rode the entire third period to decision Chuck Gardner 4-1. Pioneer Bob Bergum scored to 19-12, out of reach for the Pointers. Despite that fact, Bernie Christianson, Stevens Point heavyweight, gathered a four point lead on a take-down and reversal before he pinned Joe Ben- nieck in 5:28, bringing the final score to 19-17.

Dick Riley, our 137 pound entrant squeezed out his victory by getting a third quarter reversal to beat Mike Running 3-2. Pointer Rick Sommer was moved over by a weight class and wrestled State Collegiate champion at 147 pounds, Bob Garcia. Despite the score (9-0), Rick did a fine job in this match. Platteville’s Ron Johnson then pinned Len Ironside in 7:42 and Dick Van Ark pinned Larry Inside in 5:28. In the 17 pound class, Pete Seller got a first period take-down, a second period reversal, and rode the entire third period to decision Chuck Gardner 4-1.
