Students Over 21 To Be Emancipated Next Semester

The following statement was issued by Dr. William Stetson, president of the university, in response to a recent court ruling regarding the eligibility of students over 21 years of age to live in on-campus residence halls. The announcement is significant, as it could affect the housing arrangements of many students.

Dr. Stetson said the university is reviewing its housing policies to accommodate the new ruling and will make any necessary adjustments. The goal is to ensure that all students have access to safe and secure living options.

In other university news, a new policy has been implemented to address concerns over smoking on campus. The policy prohibits smoking in all on-campus buildings and prohibits smoking within 25 feet of any entrance.

The university is also expanding its facilities to accommodate growing student enrollment. New buildings are scheduled to open next year, providing additional classrooms, offices, and recreational spaces.

In sports news, the university's athletic teams are preparing for the upcoming season. The men's basketball team is favored to win the conference, while the women's soccer team is expected to make a strong showing in their conference play.

The university's annual fundraising campaign has exceeded its goal, raising over $5 million. The funds will be used to support student scholarships, faculty research, and facility improvements.

In conclusion, the university remains committed to providing a high-quality education for its students. The university will continue to adapt to changing circumstances to ensure that all students have the opportunity to thrive academically and personally.
A View On The New Year

In a world threatened with famine, uncontrollable population explosions, uncontrollable crime problems, disease on the top, Madam, in the midst of all this, the only thing we dare dream is—peace, peace, sea green, cloudless sky, waltz, red wine, moon, we dare dream that even the one-armed horseman, even the one-armed horsemen who don’t dream the new coffee husband won’t mind, and do you approve of perfection?—Hamlet

The Is People

We’ve arrived
In our eyes
And many a slip to our undoing
Silence always.

We’ve arrived
In our hearts
And fallible, a laughter, a glimpse
Thoughts of a wonder.

We’ve arrived
In our dreams
And against the besting life’s
Life of music.

We are the Is people
Laughing in the hour
Finding as sick life black.

To The Only Child

I had a wish, a little younger than you.
And my parents haven’t answered.
They were the only ones with whom to talk.

But I wish I had a brother.
So we could keep in touch.

With all the news of birth
From others’ ears or world.
And we could learn so much.
From other’s ears, who’ve told us.

For hours we would talk
On both our parents—the same.
And we’d talk endlessly.

Aren’t you glad to know now.
And that’s all you must know.
And I’ve never been so glad.
