William Cowper (1731-1800)

Indisposed Soul

We start to be a shadow And I a shallow care

My desires are singing others,
And my hopes are never more.

This life is made to be so

That each soul is a shadow,

And yet death remains a distant shore.

My splendid years are gone

But here I am in age

And all is gone to waste.

I feel a useless cog

And can do no good.

And what’s the use of it?

Is not my case bad

Nor mine?

And thus I live.

And thus I live.

And thus I live.

Hall Directors State Views On Problems

By Kim Greiner

In the last few meetings, directors were interviewed and we are picking up the店面 of student interest. The most popular concerns are grading, the quality of education, and the faculty staff relationship. Undergraduate students may be generally dissatisfied with the current system of grading, particularly the final exams. They believe the exams are too difficult, and they feel that the professors are not fair in their grading. Many students also feel that the quality of education is not up to par, and they believe that the professors need to be more accessible to them. The relationship between the faculty and the students is also a concern, with many students feeling that the professors are not approachable and that the administrative staff is not helpful. Many students feel that their concerns are not being heard and that the university is not doing enough to address their needs.

Travellers In Union Station

"Can two souls together, except they are agreed?" — Emerson

Two men entered the Union Station car, each with a heavy splash of title. Their clothes were draped in dirty black, their faces stained and disfigured.

"It's a sunny day," said the man in the black hat, "and there's a breeze."

"Yes," said the other, "it's a fine day."

"And the sun is shining," said the first man.

"Yes," said the other, "and the sky is clear."

"It's a fine day," said the first man.

"Yes," said the other, "and the wind is light."
A young WSU-Washington Student athlete recently returned from Norway, where she participated in a cross-country skiing event. Tom Hansen, a ski star, has recently returned from the event. Tom Hansen, is totally blind.

An American team was selected for the international competition by the American Skiing Association. The team members were chosen from among American junior cross-country skiers. Hansen, born in Madison, Wisconsin, holds an American passport and will compete in a world-class event with international competitors.

The competition was staged by the Norwegians. While in Europe, the Americans practiced conditions that simulated the competition. The Norwegians also provided information and assistance to the Americans. Hansen is very excited about the opportunity to compete in a world-class event.

Hansen was selected for the team because of his skiing abilities and his potential to make a significant contribution to the American team. He has shown great improvement in his skiing and has been practicing hard to prepare for the competition.

Hansen is a senior at the University of Wisconsin-Madison and has been on the ski team since his freshman year. He has been named to the All-American team three times and has won numerous national and international competitions.

The American Skiing Association is proud to have Hansen on the team and wishes him the best of luck in the competition. The competition will provide Hansen with a valuable opportunity to compete against the best skiers in the world and to prove his abilities as a ski athlete.

Campus History Of Sigma Pi

Sig Pi has had a long history on the Wason Campus. It was founded by Theta Delta Pi Fraternity, a local organization, which formed on February 23, 1886. By the end of that year, twenty members of Phi Kappa Psi Thetas were initiated on the Wason Campus (or April 26, 1886). This event, which was held in the Chemistry Hall, was attended by faculty and students.

The Brothers felt that the fraternity was successful and therefore formed the new organization. Sigma Pi Fraternity, Theta Delta Phi was a young and small group, but its members actively participated in campus activities. The fraternity has maintained its tradition of maintaining a strong presence on campus, and its members have contributed to the growth and development of the college.
