Blowing In The Wind

Over 95% of our student body voted for Queen candidates. This is far out of the interview shown in our Student Senate session.

During Homecoming, Greeks complained about rules which were, Ironically, brought up and supported by Greeks in the Student Senate. The lack of communication between the Greeks and the Student Senate body leads to such ignorance and misrepresentation.

Though the incident is partially the result of our new experiences, as Student Senate meetings are open to the public every Thursday, the Senate itself, has itself, need of introspection.

It seems that such a system of representation as we have fails to give sense of uniformity to our school. It cannot help but curtail in student interest and participation.

How many of us know which of the students in our courses are in the same class next year? In school that we are? Bringing it down to a more personal level, we would probably know whom to go to or who the organizations that we do. We are people who have been educated the same way, in the same class, the same school. It does not fit.

It seems that the members of Student Senate most do to make it to respectfully represent them. They must re-organize the Senate according to student activities. A system should be set up by which the members of homes of Chopra organization elected a representative to serve on the Senate. If this were done, we would effectively involve more people in the government and the process would be quite timely.

This does not mean that the Senate is not needed. Student bodies which would be allowed to attend weekly morning and would serve on a committee.

In the case of the Senate up the fact that class officers have a negligible function is not true.

It seems to be evident that they are deluding them- selves. The fact that class officers have a "negligible function" is a system of greater representation than they are now achieving.

PhilipAd is Of Worth

I would like to offer several remarks concerning Mr. Ken- nedy's address to the UN last week. I am in complete agreement with Mr. Kennedy's statement that "...we are in a period of revolutionary change." I would venture to say, however, that there is no clear indication of what this change will mean. There are many who feel that this change means nothing more than economic growth and increased production. Others feel that it means a new social order with a different distribution of wealth and power. Still others believe that it means a new world order based on cooperation and international interdependence. Whatever its meaning, it is clear that this change is taking place and that it is urgent.

However, there is another important factor that must be considered. It is the question of whether this change is irreversible. There are many who feel that this change is only a temporary phase and that in the long run we will return to the way things were before. They point to the fact that in the past we have always seen periods of revolutionary change that eventually led to a return to the status quo.

To those who believe that this change is irreversible, I would say that their view is too narrow. The truth is that change is not just a temporary phase. It is a fundamental and irreversible process that has been going on for centuries. The only thing that will prevent it from continuing is a failure of people to recognize the need for change and to act on it.

Unfortunately, there is a danger that this change may lead to a loss of identity. People may feel that they are losing their place in the world and that they are no longer part of the community. It is important that we recognize the need for change and that we find ways to work together to make it positive.

Homecoming 1966

A group of independents who are dissatisfied with the political system of the United States and other organizations is currently organizing on campus. This group is known as the Students for a Democratic Union. The group is controlled by George. Since only 25 percent of the student body at the University, 75 percent of the SDS and other organizations do not represent campus.

The objective of this group is to organize the independent organizations and to develop a united front among all students. The group is trying to build a movement among the students.

I recently spoke to a group of students about the Independents. I was impressed with the enthusiasm and energy that they have. However, I was also concerned about the quality of their leadership and the lack of organization of their activities. I hope that they will continue to work on these issues and that they will be able to build a strong and united movement.

History Department Welcomes U.S. And American Members

Mr. Brian C. Allsop, who is now working on his doctorate in the University of Tennessee, has been appointed to the History Department of the University of Oklahoma, where he will be teaching this fall. He is a specialist in the history of the United States during the Civil War. His research will focus on the process of territorial expansion and the Civil War. He is also a member of the American Historical Association and is currently studying the social and economic history of the American South.

History Department Welcomes U.S. And American Members

The History Department of the University of Oklahoma is pleased to announce the arrival of four new members. These members include U.S. and American historians who will contribute to the department's ongoing mission of advancing the study of American history.

One of the new members is Mr. Brian C. Allsop, who is now working on his doctorate in the University of Tennessee. He will be teaching at the University of Oklahoma this fall, focusing on the history of the American South during the Civil War. Allsop's research will explore the social and economic changes that occurred during this time period.

Another new member is Mr. John A. Johnson, who is also working on his doctorate in American history. He will be teaching at the University of Oklahoma, where he will focus on the history of the American West during the late 19th and early 20th centuries. Johnson's research will examine the impact of industrialization and urbanization on the region.

The History Department also welcomes Mr. Michael S. Brown, who is a specialist in the history of the American Midwest. Brown will be teaching at the University of Oklahoma, where he will focus on the history of the region from the 18th to the 20th centuries. His research will explore the role of agriculture and industry in shaping the region.

Finally, the History Department welcomes Mr. David J. Lee, who is a specialist in the history of the American South. Lee will be teaching at the University of Oklahoma, where he will focus on the history of the region from the 18th to the 20th centuries. His research will examine the impact of slavery and Reconstruction on the region.

These new members will enrich the History Department's existing faculty and contribute to the department's ongoing mission of advancing the study of American history.

WSU Women Help With Point Junior Joint's Club

by Sandra Hanusck

In an attempt to meet the student needs of our modern times, a new club, the Heraion Point, Recreation Department organized a new junior Joint's Club specifically for the years of 16 and 17 years. This group has long needed an organization of its own that is completely free to develop their freshest ideas.

One of the primary obstacles of the junior Joint's Club is to create opportunities for the girls to have experiences which will meet their basic needs in socially accepted ways. To them, the Club offers a unique opportunity to develop the response to the girls' program: in the early stages every girl will be needed. This is an opportunity for some girls to extend to new limits of their capabilities which they may be limited to 30, which is the present membership.

In the past 28 girl groups have taken advantage of the club. The entire program is planned three years in advance. The club is sponsored by the Recreation Department, and the program is based upon the desire to broaden club horizons.

WUSU Pointers Sting Yellowjackets For Homecoming Victory

Between Point Field and Central Field, the Pointers stunned the Yellowjackets, winning 38-13.

The victory was the third straight that the Pointers had posted against the Yellowjackets, and the Pointers demolished the Yellowjackets in both games, winning 35-13 and 38-7.

The victory was especially sweet for the Pointers, who had lost to the Yellowjackets in their previous meeting, 21-7.

The Pointers dominated the game, running up a 21-0 lead in the first half and never trailing.

The Pointers scored first, with a 1-yard touchdown pass from Bill Brown to Bob Johnson in the first quarter. The Pointers added to their lead with a 3-yard touchdown run by Bill Brown in the second quarter.

The Yellowjackets tried to mount a comeback, with a 4-yard touchdown pass from John Smith to Jim Brown in the third quarter. However, the Pointers defense shut down the Yellowjackets, allowing only one touchdown.

The Pointers won the game with a strong performance by their offense, led by quarterback Bill Brown, who completed 14 of 25 passes for 210 yards and two touchdowns. Wide receiver Bob Johnson caught seven passes for 109 yards and a touchdown.

The Pointers defense also played a key role in the victory, led by linebacker Jim Brown, who had 10 tackles and a sack.
