University Objections Are Not Justifiable

WSU students were provided with a way to raise necessary money for Reserve 8 repairs and maintecance when Jerry Sten, owner of the Poor Haus, offered a weekend garage sale over the frown end of the weekend, Saturday night, beer will be sold at special law rates, according to Sten. The proceeds will go to drive. Mr. Sten has also offered the use of his bar, for the purposes of the sale. The administration was hesitant to accept his offer, primarily on the ground of promoting a business, a matter that is seen as a university-tavern involvement. Student Senate was discouraged from participating in the venture because they are a University-approved organization whose actions therefore reflect university agreement. Hence, a group of individuals has joined Mr. Sten to aid him in publicizing the event.

I do not agree with the reasoning which kept the student from involving themselves in this venture. A student group (organization, and therefore not allowed to participate) in my mind, is the same as a group of students, individuals allowed to participate.

The thought behind the formation of most campus organizations is "under the auspices of the state university, and amenable to the system, we were allowed to form," rather, "we are a group of students with common interests who decided to get together

The Student Senate, I believe, should have entered into this project — under the auspices of the students and therefore fully within the purview of a vere for that moneys is a beer bar was a by-product of the venture, it should have been seen as a means toward the end goal. Other student organizations have entered into comparisons with the organization, and therefore not allowed to participate. Why shouldn’t Student Senate?

I would consider this type of conflict that is bothering the administration — after all, we can’t ignore the beer bars. Pretending they don’t exist won’t make them go away. By actually going into one of the bars located on Reserve Street the best way to contest the administration the moneys, who make the use of the street. And, it is a far easier method of raising money than trying to Annoyingly, it is a two-way street. Mr. Sten will give sometimes be a thorn in our side, but I do not feel there is enough justifiable for the teams keep by unifying the student from accepting Mr. Sten’s generous offer.
