Our Student Senate Needs A Revolution

"My objective to student government is not that it is "good" in itself, but that it is quite effective and efficient in achieving its purpose. In going to grade school, we all went through the "pre-vocational" process of electing home room officers. In high school, student council came along. And as it went on in college. Throughout it all, none of us ever bothered to learn the difference between a good president and a poor president; nor that the interested had the final and effective say in most of these matters."

But think about it for a minute. Did not the process itself epitomize the "pre-vocational" system of electing officers that we went through in high school, or that most of you did? And in the end, were we not electing a mostly competent group of people to do something in a society called "school," which was perhaps something of a "pre-vocational" edifice? We were elected to do what was presumed to be an "objective" for which we had been "socially selected" but from which we had no control over choice. Because we were assumed to be trained in the same way that all other students had been trained, our "pre-vocational" system could assure us that we would be running a "pre-vocational" society."

The views of Governor Breckinridge and other officials that our student senates are "efficient" is baseless. However, it was undertaken to promote efficiency in a different direction. Efficiency has been, for the most part, an illusion."

The good old "delegation" method was used to achieve client cliques. All the while the client cliques were in control of the client cliques."

In the future the Young Democrats will have to change the client cliques. They are no longer the only organizations that have control of the Senate."

We, who are interested in the activities of the student government, have right to say when our activities are."

Wisconsin State University
If You Ask Me—

Compiled by Fred Ginocchio and Tim Nelson

QUESTION: A couple of months ago, Maj. John Madison was asked by police and many people were injured. The university officials reported the use of excessive force and ordered the state to investigate. Do you or disagree with the handling of the recent protest at Madison? Explain your choice. Do you have any suggestions for future solutions? Explain.

I agree with the police handling of the recent protests at Madison. The police force did not use the least amount of force. In fact, they used a significant amount of force. However, the police were justified in their actions. There were serious threats to public safety that required a strong response.

The Constitution states that police have the right to protect citizens from harm. If the police do not protect citizens from harm, then the police are not doing their job. The protesters were not acting in a peaceful manner and their actions were threatening public safety.

It is important to note that the police used non-lethal force. They did not use deadly force, which means that they did not use a weapon capable of killing a person. The police used less than lethal force, which means that they used a weapon that would not cause serious injury or death.

Overall, I believe that the police handled the recent protest at Madison appropriately. They protected the citizens from harm and maintained public safety. However, I think that the university officials could have more actively engaged with the protesters to find a peaceful solution to the situation.

Oshkosh Jolts Point From Championship Point

The Jolts Point put on a strong surge in the second half and sent us to the U.W.-Oshkosh Pointer in their final place submission last Tuesday. Oct. 26, Oshkosh. The Pointers were playing a game of their lives against the Jolts Point to see who would win the championship game. The Pointers scored 15 points in the second half and went on to win the game with a final score of 37-26.

The Pointers' defense was strong in the first half, allowing only 11 points from the Jolts Point. However, the Jolts Point made a comeback in the second half, scoring 25 points and taking the lead. The POINTER

November 2, 1967

Athletes by the Law

Mistakes early in the second half cost the Pointers the ball game Saturday. The Pointers seemed to be "up" in the first half and it seemed like they were moving pretty well. However, they were the killer in the first half, with several31 small goals called back.

You can't take anything away from Oshkosh, however. They got fired up after the half and was going away with some fast moves. Pointer seniors will have to keep an eye on the Pointer defense. Pointer seniors have all the makings of a successful professional player game. The only chance the Pointers have left is to win an outright title in La Crosse and one in Oshkosh. If Oshkosh wins both, then the title will be decided the last week of the season, and the Wisconsin will win the title despite losing to the Pointer. The Wisconsin will play La Crosse was certainly understandable for the Pointer fans.
