

University Suffers Two Power Failures

By ED MARKS

The University has suffered through two power failures within the last week. Wednesday the power went off during a storm and on early Monday morning the power again failed. Wednesday night's failure was the result of a tree which fell across power lines north of the campus on North Point Road near Reserve Street.

Monday morning the power went off at 4:15 and came back on at 11:35. The failure covered six residence halls, the Classroom Center and DeBot Center. It occurred when switch-box ran out of oil and shut out.

The switchbox is underground and located in the circle behind Baldwin Hall. It feeds the area

Dichter Will Perform Piano Concert Tonight

Mishia Dichter, young American pianist, and 1966 Tchaikovsky Competition Winner in Moscow, will present a concert Thursday evening, April 4 at 8 p.m. in the WSU-Stevens Point fieldhouse.

During his current tour of impresario S. Harok, Dichter is replacing violinist Isaac Stern, who was scheduled to present a concert April 4 at 8 p.m. in the WSU-Stevens Point fieldhouse.

Dichter, born in Shanghai of Polish descent, settled with his family in Los Angeles when he was two and took his first piano lessons at the age of six. At twelve he began to study with Aube Tzerko, a former pupil of Arthur Schnabel, with whom he remained until entering the Juilliard School of Music in New York.

After graduating from high school in 1963, Dichter entered the University of California at Los Angeles. While at UCLA, Dichter performed with the Los Angeles Philharmonic and other local orchestras.

In June of 1964 after having been at UCLA for two semesters, Dichter participated in a two-week class given at the university by Rosina Lhevinne, who invited him to join classes at the Juilliard School of Music.

In June, 1966, Dichter was awarded a silver medal at the Third International Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow. His prize winning performances brought him ovations unequalled by any of the other contestants. Upon his return to the United States, he performed in a program telecast nationally by NBC with Boston Symphony under Erich Leinsdorf at Tanglewood, Mass. He has since performed again with the Boston Symphony, Philadelphia Orchestra, New Philharmonic of London, Detroit Symphony, Los Angeles Philharmonic, and San Francisco, among others.

Dichter made a widely-praised debut with the New York Philharmonic Symphony under Leonard Bernstein this past Jan. He has recently returned from a highly acclaimed European tour.

Separate Accidents Claim Lives Of Two Students

Boyd Sharkey
Is Victim
Of Drowning

Boyd Sharkey, a WSU sophomore, was drowned Saturday afternoon when he and a diving companion attempted to cross Sunset Lake under water.

Portage County sheriff's deputies said Sharkey and two other WSU students, Edward H. Lawrence and Mary B. Cychoz, were scuba diving when the two men decided to swim under the water and ice across the lake, which is located about 16 miles east of Stevens Point. Miss Cychoz remained on the ice.

Both made it to the other side and were returning when Sharkey's air tank ran low; deputies reported. Both swimmers then began "buddy breathing" with Lawrence's air supply.

They tried to break a hole in the ice but failed. Lawrence finally managed to break through and called for Miss Cychoz. The two broke a hole with Lawrence's air tank but were unable to get Sharkey out of the water.

Bill Komapsky, a boy scout from Stevens Point, paddled across the open water along the shore and came, got out on the ice and helped Lawrence and Miss Cychoz pull Sharkey out.

The canoe swamped when they tried to put the body in so Sharkey was pulled onto a raft where mouth-to-mouth resuscitation was attempted until an ambulance arrived. Sharkey was pronounced dead at St. Michael's Hospital.

Komapsky was treated for cuts from the ice at the hospital.

Sharkey had had seven years of diving experience and served as a lifeguard near Wisconsin Rapids last summer.

He was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Sharkey and was born on Oct. 1, 1915, at Wisconsin Rapids.

He was married to Karen Goetzke on Mar. 26, 1966, in Charleston, W.V., and was the father of an infant son, John Paul.

He served in the submarine service of the U.S. Navy from 1963-1966. After completing his military service, he entered WSU where he was a member of the 550 Veterans' Club and Poseidon's Aqua Producers.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at Immanuel Lutheran Church, Wisconsin Rapids with burial in Restlawn Memorial Park. Military graveside rites were conducted by a Wisconsin Rapids post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

William Reetz
Is Killed
In Auto Crash

William W. Reetz, was fatally injured when the car he was driving failed to make a curve south of Stevens Point on River Drive Saturday.

Reetz and a passenger, Bruce Stickeny, both WSU freshmen, were taken to St. Michael's Hospital where Reetz died of head injuries.

Stickeny is reported in satisfactory condition at the hospital suffering from head injuries. Both were residents of Baldwin Hall.

Portage County sheriff's deputies reported that the Reetz auto, a 1965 convertible, was going north on River Drive, ran off the road onto the shoulder and then came back onto the road and rolled over.

Deputies said both youths were taken to the hospital where a total loss.

The fatality is the third in Portage County in 1968.

Reetz was the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Reetz of Tomahawk and was born on Dec. 20, 1948, in Wausau. He was a 1967 graduate of Tomahawk High School.

Funeral services for Reetz were held Tuesday at the Congregational Church in Tomahawk with burial in the Greenwood Cemetery.

Surviving besides his parents are both his grandmothers. A brother and his grandfathers preceded him in death.

Hershey: 'I Am Only Carrying Out Laws'

By Fred Gineocchio

Lewis B. Hershey, the national selective service director, was brought to the WSU campus Mar. 31 through the courtesy of the new tele-cable program.

The new program enabled a crowd of 75 people, mostly students, to talk with and question Hershey for approximately 45 minutes over a telephone. The conversation was amplified for everyone to hear.

Hershey, throughout the question period, emphasized the fact that he was responsible solely for carrying out the laws that were passed by Congress regarding the selective service. For the most part, Hershey merely attempted to clarify the already existing laws.

Several of the questions that were asked him and this reporter's paraphrasing of his responses to them were as follows:

Question: Do you favor a voluntary army? Answer: No, I don't. We have to draft for a large enough army. The reasons we are getting into this are because of the draft.

Question: Why do you, General Hershey, think that Senator McCarthy would like to replace you? Answer: I don't like to question the lawmakers of our country. It is his business what he says.

Question: Do you feel an alternative service to the coast guard other than military service, such as Peace Corps and Vista, would be possible? Answer: As you know, deferments are offered for Peace Corps and Vista workers, but as far as determining whether or not these forms of service would be possible to replace military requirements is up to Congress and other lawmakers.

Hyer won the overall trophy with their performance of "Try to Remember" and "I Feel Pretty." Hyer was the winner of the RHC trophy.

If You Ask Me -

QUESTION: — Pledging for all the Greek organizations is now in full swing. In what areas do you think the fraternities and sororities on this campus are especially strong? And in what areas are they weak?

"meets the individual's needs"

James Brownlow, 19, sophomore, 233 Burroughs Hall, from Wild Rose, majoring in English.

I think fraternities and sororities on this campus are especially strong in the celebrations of Homecoming Week and Winter Carnival. Their competition makes these events what they are. And interfraternity competition's all they are, really. This brings out a very good point about fraternities and sororities: they are for the persons who are members of them. Areas of strength and weakness of the organizations depend on how well the respective organization meets the individual's needs. The Greeks may do some things from time to time, the function of which is to benefit the university community in some way, but the purpose of their doing so is the glorification of their group.

Contrast, for example, the enthusiasm shown by these groups in pursuit of a trophy and prestige in the so-called games with the casual effort in other projects with different types of rewards. My object is not to criticize Greeks. On the contrary, it is to exempt frats and sororities from being criticized for not being stronger in some areas which are not within the spectrum of their interest. As a non-Greek, I can't think of an area in my interest within which I look for leadership from a Greek organization.

"do not completely run Point's social life"

Steve Stewart, 22, junior, 307 Delzell Hall, from Hudson, majoring in Business Education.

As a 1967 fall transfer, I have the advantage of a comparison between the Greeks "here" and "there." I prefer "here" for two connected reasons — the Greeks do not completely run Point's social life; therefore, they are no more snobbish or "cliquey" than any other organization. One does not need to join a sorority or fraternity to be "in." As a GDI (God-Damned Independent), this was a great relief. I am a much greater member. There should be a balance, or choice, of activities on any campus and, here at Stevens Point, I feel this has been done.

The most prominent weak point of any of the Greeks is pledging activities. I cannot abide the endurance contests that fraternities, particularly, seem to enjoy. This type of energy could better be applied to required time at janitor work, kitchen work or office work on campus and/or, not to mention, home work!

"strong points... are social, organizational and scholastic"

Jim Nirschl, 21, senior, 1727 Jefferson St., from South Milwaukee, majoring in Mathematics.

The strong points for the Greek organizations are their social, organizational and scholastic areas. The main purpose of the Greek organizations is the social aspect. Fraternity-sorority parties, dinner dances, half-holidays after meetings, date parties and participation in Winter Carnival, Homecoming, Greek Week, intramurals, songfests, etc., all give the person a chance to socialize and meet new people.

Another strong point is the number of Greeks holding campus positions. Considering that Greeks make up less than one-tenth of this campus population, they have a much greater percentage of Greeks in positions of campus leadership. For example, all of the state officers for United Council are Greeks, and IFC alone is granted two representatives to Student Senate.

The third strong area is scholastics, which is proven by the fact that the Greek GPA is continually and considerably above the campus GPA.

One of the weakest areas is the image of the Greeks due to the inability to communicate the advantages and purposes of the Greek system to the independent population. This is reflected in the number of interested freshmen for the size of this campus. Greek organizations are growing, but at a decreasing rate, which could be for the Greek system as the enrollment grows larger and larger.

"a 'certain something' to spur members"

Jan Rincer, 20, sophomore, 207 Delzell Hall, from Green Bay, majoring in English.

Because I am quite independent of any Greek organization on this campus, I shall base my analysis completely on favorable and unfavorable impressions.

I feel that the area of slight weakness is that relating to philanthropic endeavors. While it is true that the organizations maintain the status quo, it is conceivable that the status quo itself remains somewhat under par. The fact that numerous projects are in operation simultaneously is a possible reason for this imbalance toward social affairs.

I believe, however, that there are many areas in which the fraternities and sororities are especially strong. The first to mention is the remarkable leadership in the organizations. It is evident that a lot more work is performed than is awarded credit for.

Of late the quality of pledge training seems to be more improved, which will positively produce positive results.

As a final point, it must be included that the Greek organizations foster a great deal more enthusiasm toward most events as compared to other campus organizations. It is evident that the fraternities and sororities, despite an occasional lack of brotherhood, provide a "certain something" to spur its members on as the united force. As one Greek said, "It provides a closeness that must be experienced to be understood."

"they have a fine showing of spirit"

Jerry Tymusz, 20, junior, 716 Division St., from Westfield, majoring in Political Science and History.

The area in which I think that fraternities and sororities are stronger on this campus is in school spirit. In such things as Winter Carnival particularly they have had a fine showing of this spirit and have induced other organizations and dorms to take part in Winter Carnival activities, etc., through intra-school competition. This invites and promotes overall school spirit, which at times, has been extremely low.

As far as a weakness of frats and sororities on this campus, there tends, in some Greeks more than others, to be a superiority complex on their part. They tend to place themselves above the "common" student, thus warding off many potential pledges and at times causing certain rifts between Greeks and non-Greeks among students on this campus.

"privileges, but also... responsibilities"

Karen Jaeger, 22, senior, 2133 Clark Street, from Wausau, majoring in Physical Education.

I feel fraternities and sororities on this campus are especially strong in the areas of participation and involvement in University and community activities, leadership and their ability to promote campus spirit.

The fraternities and sororities worked together as one unit, to represent the University, in the annual community Massacre and Interfraternity Council. Fraternities and sororities also strive to have members in as many outside activities as possible.

Leadership quality is gained within each individual group and within the entire Greek system through Panhellenic Council and Interfraternity Council. Fraternities and sororities also strive to have members in as many outside activities as possible.

Participation in fraternity and sorority life carries with it exciting privileges, but it also carries responsibilities. The plus factors of a fraternity or sorority are many if you are willing to add them and apply them to your daily life.

Historian Discusses Education In Society Faculty Attends Deans' Meeting

By Bill Meissner

Professor Clarence J. Karier spoke concerning the "enlightenment tradition" in American education Monday, April 1, in the last in a series of four history lectures held in the Wright Lounge. Mr. Karier is a former graduate of W.S.U. — Stevens Point and now in the school of education at the University of Wisconsin — spoke on education at the University of Wisconsin — spoke on the topic of "An American Dilemma: Education for Man or Society."

He began by stating that there is a search for identity and purpose in education which is shown in the conflict between individuals and the society. The "enlightenment tradition" was an idea that American progress in education was always possible or even inevitable.

This American optimism for the future is prevalent throughout our society and he cited a quote by Edward Bellamy which exemplified this point: "The golden age lies before us, not behind us."

However, he went on to say that there are problems involved with this enlightenment tradition such as whether or not the rights of the individual should be sacrificed for the good of the entire society. There was disagreement in the past as to whether education should indoctrinate one for a particular social system, or teach controversial issues and foster free growth.

Karier stated that Robert Owen's ideal community or "utopia," in New Harmony, Ind., had split up because of this very issue. Owen supported the position on University Activities Board, U.A.B. is having a rusher on Thursday, April 18, from 7 to 8:30 in the Garland Room of the University Center. Come and meet the present members and find out about their positions.

There will be various openings on the 1968-69 board, including chairmanships and executive positions. A date for taking applications will not be established until after Easter vacation; however, those interested may contact Sandra Vassien if they wish to do so.

that a common school's purpose was to unify American culture, and that controversial issues should not be taught because they divide the community.

Karier stated that Dewey made the last attempt to develop a social philosophy for education at the turn of the 20th century. Dewey believed in a pluralistic society, and in the concept of freedom in education to develop the needs of this society.

The speaker then told the audience that the philosophy of education at the present time is "none at all," and thus a technical institution is formed to fit a technical civilization. He stressed the point that technology and automation, on the other hand, have forced us to look at ourselves and make evaluations. There is a transformation of values which is currently running through young America today. The young generation of today does not accept the idea that the system is unchangeable, he said.

He concluded on an optimistic note as he said that if human freedom is to survive, it will be the result of planning in our society, and will not be an accident. This idea, along with our growing respect for human life, continues to reduce the existing dilemma in education.

Following the address there was a question and answer period, and then refreshments.

Biologist Describes Galapagos' Tortoises

By Bob Fiehwieg

Sigma Zeta, Honor Science Society, held its 15th monthly meeting Monday, April 1, which included the usual business meeting and an unusual talk by Dr. Gary Knopf of the biology department. Dr. Knopf chose to speak on his experiences in the Galapagos Islands, where he spent a year doing studies on the fauna, especially the iguana lizards.

Dr. Knopf's first love is herpetology, the study of reptiles, and his presentation emphasized his enthusiasm in this field. In a rather well-done slide show, he gave his audience of young scientists an over-all view of the Pacific islands located about 600 miles west of the coast of Ecuador, the country to which the archipelago belongs.

Of the myriad of biological facts he presented, perhaps the most interesting was in relation to the huge tortoises for which the Galapagos are noted.

Dr. Knopf explained that these large terrestrial reptiles are not very photogenic, they are hide within themselves. However, he found that it was possible to get them to pose a bit better by "tickling" them, which is done by stimulating nerves running close to the surface of the shell between the divisions of the back, causing the animal to squirm from the shell.

In addition to being a "tortoise tickler," Dr. Knopf is also an expert in the field of animal behavior, to which he often alluded in his presentation.

A social hour followed during which refreshments were served and Dr. Knopf was questioned on his experiences in the Galapagos, as well as general topics of biology. The next meeting will be held on the first Monday in May.

University Store Prices Compare To Drug Store

By Karen Ralegh, Mike Eve and Gene Krammer

The prices in the University Store are similar to those found in a drug store in the line of toiletries and school supplies.

This fact was the result of a comparison of 18 items in local stores conducted by The Pointer.

The prices in the University Store are similar to those in local discount stores, but the University Store deals with a lower volume.

The reason for this, according to Mrs. Herminie West, manager of the University Store, is that the University Store must compete with the discount stores in volume so the toiletries and supplies are more readily accepted.

"The way students don't have to travel to get what they need," said West, "it's right here on campus."

"As a matter of fact," Mrs. West went on to say, "The University Store just about has the same prices as the local discount stores. The percentage of profit that is made on items is very minimal. The percentage for the entire store is 5% to 10 percent. Most university stores have a 10 percent markup, so the University Store is very competitive."

The profit made from items purchased in the University Store is used for the purchase of books and other incidentals.

but that's all," she added.

Paul Ketch, controller of the University, confirmed Mrs. West's statement on the lack of a profit.

He reported that Accounting Services had turned up a deficit in the University Store account.

Kalke Wins Art Award

Edwin Kalke, Stevens Point art major at WSU-Stevens Point, received a $150 purchase award for a painting on display at the 5th Annual Exhibition of Wisconsin Art sponsored by the Wisconsin Painters and Sculptors.

Kalke's acrylic on canvas, "Gaping Generations," was purchased by Stoller Industries. It will be on display now through April 28 at the Milwaukee Art Center.

Norman Keats, WSU art department, who was also selected to exhibit in the show, entered "Interval VI," a welded steel sculpture painted black and white. "Interval VI" was a purchase award work in October, at the Midwest Sculpture Show at Waupun. It was purchased for the Waupun Public Library.

"This was corrected," he said, "when an inventory was taken and the retail prices of items entered were similar to the deficit."

Mrs. West also pointed out that the University Store loses five percent on every textbook that students buy because the university purchases them at a 20 percent discount.

In its comparison of prices, The Pointer found that combs were two or four cents cheaper for a 20 cents bar of soap at discount stores. The price was the same at drug stores. Deodorant, hair sprays, astringents, and toothpaste, when purchased at discount houses, could save a student anywhere from 20 to 40 cents. Prices were again similar between the drug stores and the University Store.

Mouthwashes, after shave and hair oil mean a savings of about 10 cents at the discounts, with the drug stores and the University Store being about the same.

Pens could also be purchased at a similar savings from discount stores. The higher the retail value of the pen, the larger the savings could be.

Lovin' Spoonful Bring Good-Time Music Here

By MIKE DOMINOWSKI

The "good-time music" of the Lovin' Spoonful hit happened here Sunday night.

A non-stop crowd roared listen to the WSU Fieldhouse heard the vibrations of the Lovin' Spoonful.

The colorfully-dressed quartet of folk "Do You Believe in Magic" and, in the sets, played some of their biggest hits.

The Lovin' Spoonful are John Sebastian, lead singer and group spokesman; Joe Butler, drummer; Steve Boone, bass player; and Jerry Yester, who succeeded Zal Yanovsky as lead guitarist.

After the show, Sebastian lit up a cigarette, sat back against a pillar and mused about their performance. "It was O.K. I had a good time," he said.

Asked always what has influenced him in his songwriting, Sebastian, who is also the tunesmith for the group, said simply, "Everything I have ever seen or heard."

What kind of label does Sebastian put on his music? "I don't think people should put labels on things," he answered softly. "It's just music."

"You can't really say too much about it, it just happened. We're interested in being diverse. You don't want to make your follow-up record sound like your last one."

Sebastian also commented on "soul" music. "I don't really know what it is," he said. "A lot of people have written a lot of things about it which only shows that you can write a lot about soul music without pinning down exactly what it is. It's exciting and it's simple. You know exactly what it is when you hear it, but naming exactly what it is becomes a semantic game—exchanging one word for another.

"Indian influence on music in some instances has been an inspired effort to help your head," but then of course, there are also the followers," Sebastian said. "I'm not going to India. Groups like Jim Hendrix or 'The Cream' make the U.S. a great place to be."

Sebastian is also considered to be one of the five best mouth-harp (harmonica) players in the country today. Although his father is considered to be a great classical mouth-harpist, he got his training from some of the old blues singers.

"I haven't played with many of the old bluesmen," he said, "but I've played a lot with a few. I've played harp with Lightning Hopkins and Mississippi John Hurt."

Before using his harmonica, Sebastian soaked it in a paper cup full of water. "It plays better that way," he said. "Don't laugh, I learned this from Bob Dylan." "This is a joke among harp players because Dylan is a very famous, but very poor, harp player."

The name "Lovin' Spoonful," says John, comes from an old Mississippi John Hurt song called the "Coffee Blues" which has a line in it which says "I love my baby by the lovin' spoonful."

Jerry Yester, the new lead guitarist replacing Zal Yanovsky, says he is "quite comfortable with the group."

Yanovsky left the group last June and is presently working as a single musician. "Zal has a tremendous amount to offer," said John Sebastian. "His leaving was a mutual agreement. We felt that he could better express himself without the restrictions of a group."

Joe Butler, the drummer, is the clown of the musical team. Also the radical, sprawled on a locker room bench, he expounded his political view concerning the coming elections and what should be done. "I would legalize gambling, prostitution, abortion, and harmless drugs," he declared. He also expressed chagrin at having his jacket stolen when the group left the stage at the end of their performance.

Before leaving, Joe tried his hand at pole vaulting in the indoor track of the fieldhouse. Grabbing a pole, he raced across the dirt infield of the track and leaped onto the pile of foam, with no particular form. "A guy could get killed at this," he observed.

Bassist Steve Boone, the quiet man of the group, spent most of his time in the background. "I used to stand up front with the rest of the group but once I went too far and fell off the stage. Since then I'm contented to stay in the back," he explained.

Sebastian says that he got his biggest break in show business while coming back from Marblehead, Massachusetts, where I'd been working as a saloonkeeper and running into a record producer. I became a member of a jug band he was producing and I got to know him. When the Lovin' Spoonful formed, it was uphill for quite a while, however."

A new Spoonful album will be released, according to John Sebastian, "in about a week and a half."

Spoonful Is Rated Superior To Rivers

By Russ Baumgartner

Dressed like a playful family of colorful-bird gypsies, the Lovin' Spoonful skipped on stage Sunday night to entertain a near capacity fieldhouse audience.

They opened the concert with "Do You Believe in Magic" and a musical job they did on it, too. The most noticeable aspect of the group is John Sebastian's fine voice. He not only has a keen talent as a songwriter but he also consistently performs his songs better than any one else could.

The entire group has its musical roots in tradition. They were all once involved in traditional blues, folk music, or good-time music of some kind, and undoubtedly place special emphasis on the song "Judgment Music." It was very popular to the audience.

Joe Butler, although an excellent drummer, is a bit too much to take at times. He appealed to the audience as children, frankly speaking, most of them were. On the tune "Younger Girl" Butler showed his ambidexterity by playing both drums and auto-harp at the same time.

Jerry Yester, a crys-between Clarabelle the clown and an anemic Captain Kangaroo is Zal Yanovsky's successor as lead guitarist for the group. Note the use of the word successor, not replacement. There are some songs that the group can no longer perform because Yester cannot play them.

The "Spoonful" do a lot of road traveling and one-night stands. It was their misfortune to spend most of their time in Holiday Inns across the country. They hated it and dedicated a little ditty called "Boredom" to all those lovely Holiday Inns.

John Sebastian, the leader of the group, is by far the most talented. During the concert, he played electric guitar, 12-string guitar, harmonica, auto-harp, organ, electric piano and a five-string banjo. He played all extremely well. Sebastian's background is in blues. Originally, he was a harmonica player for

Plan Contests For Billiards, Table Tennis

A Spring Billiards and table tennis tournament, sponsored by University Activities Board, will be held the Saturday following Easter, Apr. 20, in the University Center Game Room.

The tournament, open to both students and faculty, will have four categories of competition: men's 14.1 pocket billiards, men's 8-ball billiards, women's eight-ball and singles table tennis.

A 50 cent admission charge will include a noon lunch on Saturday. Trophies will be awarded to first and second place winners in each division. Those wishing to register may do so by filling out the accompanying form which is to be turned in at the University Games Room, or by obtaining a form at the Games Room desk.

some of the Negro blues greats like Lightning Hopkins and Mississippi John Hurt. He showed his harmonica virtuosity Sunday night on "Spartan Life Blues."

During the second half of the concert, they got a little action from the audience. The average age of the crowd was about 15½ years and some of these lovely children decided they'd heckle the band. However, Joe Butler put down the noise-makers quite well.

The best song of the night was "Summer in the City." Even though Zal's guitar was noticeably missing, the song was great.

This concert was by far the best of the semester. It was sponsored by the Stevens Point Youth Council and was far superior to the Johnny Rivers fiasco. Isn't it a shame to have to depend on organizations outside the university to bring the students good entertainment?

RA Finds His job Rewarding Experience

By Mary Rogers

"We have a great bunch of guys and a great spirit." If it sounds like that speaker is prejudiced — he is. The speaker is Dan Sambs, the residence assistant at Knutzen Hall. He's speaking about his job.

Dan Sambs is unique among the campus RA's since the major part of his study load takes him not only off-campus, but also out of the city. Five mornings a week, Dan, a biology major from Hortonville, drives to Waupesa where he teaches two hours of biology at the high school.

Dan also has a regular university afternoon class at Stevens Point. The rest of the afternoon and evening he saves for the hall. He has found that his experience as a leader in the hall (he was an SA at Hyer or two years) and as a student teacher have been mutually helpful.

His philosophy of leadership includes the belief that leaders are meant to encourage and suggest rather than boss. Knutzen, during its first year, has accomplished much to be proud of, according to its RA.

Speech Clinic Will Convene

Coming from all parts of Wisconsin, the workshop participants will hear Dr. Mildred F. Berry of Rockford, Ill. She is regarded as one of the nation's experts in speech therapy.

Point Athletes Receive Awards

WSU-Stevens Point athletes have been awarded several honors for the winter sports season just ended in the State University Conference.

Heading the list of awards for the Pointers is senior Phil Birkel from Ellsworth, Wisconsin, who was named to receive the conference's highest athletic award, the medal of honor.

This award is given annually to a junior or senior at each state university exhibiting the greatest combination of performance in scholarship, athletics and leadership. Athletic department faculty members at each school pick their school winner.

Birkel, a biology major, starred on the football, track and baseball teams at Stevens Point and still maintained a 3.32 grade-point average. Ken Fulks, senior, was last year's winner.

John Martinek, a senior from Milwaukee, was honored by being named to the all-conference wrestling team. This was the captain of this year's matmen, while wrestling at 160 pounds and compiled a fine 14-31 mark for the Pointers.

Junior Mike Hughes of Wausau (Newman) and sophomore Ken Ritzenthaler of Baraboo received 384th honors. Hughes scored 348 points and snared 29 rebounds, was named to the all-conference team and named as the Pointers' most valuable player. Ritzenthaler, a transfer from WSU-Whitewater who gained his eligibility last season, was given honorable mention.

All-conference selection for swimming and gymnastics have not been announced as of yet.

Golf Outlook Looks Bright

By Dick Halsey

This year's varsity golf team at WSU-Stevens Point could be the best in many seasons, according to veteran coach Hale Quandt.

Much of the team's success will depend on junior Don Warren, winner of last year's Pro-Amateur Tournament. This is Warren's first year in the golf team and his presence should help considerably.

Lettermen Jerry DeNuncio, Fred Jackie and Dick Schuene also help form the nucleus of the team. Also returning is a former letterman, Don May, after a hitch in service.

Other good prospects include Jim Friess, Tom Hatch, Mike Peterson and Ron Krupa.

Twenty-Three Students Head For New Orleans

Twenty-three Stevens Point university students will spend their spring vacation, April 8-15, on a camping trip to New Orleans.

They are purposefully avoiding the beaches such as Daytona where thousands of their counterparts from all parts of the country convene each Easter weekend.

"The kids simply don't want to get involved in the rehashing that goes on in Florida," says their adviser, Robert Busch.

The students are members of the Wisconsin State University Trippers which for many years has sponsored a variety of outings. The 2,800 mile round trip to Louisiana will be the longest ever taken by the group, and his presence should help considerably.

Lettermen Jerry DeNuncio, Fred Jackie and Dick Schuene also help form the nucleus of the team. Also returning is a former letterman, Don May, after a hitch in service.

Point Ranks Third In Sports Competition

Stevens Point ranks third, while Oshkosh is off and running in its bid to repeat as Wisconsin State University Conference all-sports champion.

The Titans, with a more balanced program than they showed a year ago, lead with 46½ points at the conclusion of competition in six sports for the 1967-68 school year. Oshkosh fared no worse than a tie for third in any of the six sports. The Titans won cross country and basketball championships, finished second in gymnastics, third in both football and swimming and shared third in wrestling.

Platteville currently ranks second with 37½ points, followed by Stevens Point with 35½, Whitewater 34½, La Crosse 34, Stout 25, River Falls 24, Superior 19, and Eau Claire 12½.

Whitewater won the football championship, Superior wrestling, Platteville swimming and La Crosse gymnastics.

A year ago Oshkosh won the all-sports trophy with 65½ points despite winning up seven times in wrestling, sixth in football, and fifth in gymnastics. La Crosse was second last year with 61 points and Whitewater third with 62. Still to be contested are baseball, track, tennis and golf.

Sports 'n' Shorts

The girls participating in WRA have concluded another chapter of sports events this year. The traveling basketball team, hoping to regain the spark of life that was lost in their double loss during the sports day, barely squeaked past Eau Claire on March 15 with a narrow 19-13 win.

Members of the team were: Doris Weidner, Diane Urman, Lois Buchholz, Phyllis Wohler, Barb Chitko, Barb Tesson, Sue Schrieber, Mary Lippert, Carol Spycalla, Judy Janquart, Keri Shambaan, Maureen O'Connell, Nancy Gustaf, Kathy Morris and Tuffy Erickson.

Ten girls showed up to bowl in the National Intercollegiate Postal American Ten Pin Tournament on March 26. Scores ranged from Betty Hemauer's high two game total of 314 to a low of 196. If students are interested in going along in April, sign up outside of Miss Rimmer's office. Last month Marty Ziemer of Stevens Point placed first nationally with a high individual game of 228.

The team as a whole placed eleventh in a field of twenty-nine.

Dr. Clauson's badminton team represents Stevens Point at a sport-in-a-La Crosse on March 22. Members of the team were Kathy Morris, singles, and Diane Koepple and Georgia Plamman, doubles. Kathy Morris placed second in the B flight singles tournament. Every Monday night at the fieldhouse, girls participate in track and field, swimming and basketball. Softball teams and tennis teams are also being formed.
