University Suffers Two Power Failures

By Bill Kramer

The university has suffered through two power failures within the last week. Wednesday's power failure at 2:40 p.m. lasted about 50 minutes. Powers were restored at 3:30.

The failure occurred at the substation of the Power Plant, which is located just east of the Childress Center and Delfort Hall. A 150,000 volt power line feeds the main campus from the substation and levels out at 13,200 volts for use by the campus.

In a series of tests, the university electrical system has been found to be in perfect condition. The university has no other problem with the power system.

Events After Easter Should Be Exciting

Vacation this Friday marks the end of ten straight weeks of school. While claims of exhaustion may only be greeted with sneers from parents, the attitude among campus students, faculty and administration is that it is really about time for a break.

But there are still a few vacation offerings coming. From the strong finish of our basketball team to the first issue of Counterpoint, from the political campaigning to the opinion of Johnson's letter of resignation, from Winter Carnival to the advent of spring, there has seldom been a half of the year in which there has been so much to do.

And the last five and a half weeks before semester tests (yes, that is all there is) should be just as exciting. Events will include a strong baseball team defending a conference title and the Student Forum, Andre Previn and the Houston Symphony Orchestra and, on May 11, the Hon. John G. Nimitz, former Secretary of the Navy, will lecture.

Enjoy yourself in Florida and/or Biola.

THE PODIUM

Vacations Are Not Time For Study

Spring vacation is nearing and students are eagerly awaiting this chance for rest and relaxation. Some students are heading for Florida for sun and frolics at Daytona Beach with the Florida State Police. Others are going to New York via various camps to shop in watermarked clothes and see the sights and sounds of the mountains of Utah in search of broken legs. The majority of students, however, are just going home. There they can prepare the delights of home-cooked food, ten days away from the University Food Service or their own grills at home. When they return two or three weeks from now, without worrying that they have left for their trip for the last time. No further work, no more reading, no time to spend doing homework. Some will even contemplate the waltz and waltz and waltz papers that are due after vacation. However, common sense will prevail and they will work the night before it is due.

After all, vacations are meant to be a break from school. Have a Happy Easter and a Good Friday.

Praises Students For Their Behavior

Dear Editor,

I was one of the members of the Political Science Association that was present at the meeting of the university last Thursday. I was present to observe the behavior of the students, and I was surprised by the behavior.

I was impressed by the way that the students behaved. They were polite, respectful and, most importantly, they were attentive. They asked questions, they participated in discussions, and they were engaged.

I would like to praise them for their behavior. They have made me proud to be a part of this university.

One Hundred Coeds Storm Men's Halls

A crowd of more than fifty women, under the leadership of Miss Emma White and Miss Diana Smith, burst into the men's dormitories at 4 a.m. on Friday, April 10th. The women were said to have scaled the walls of the men's dormitories and to have used the temporary suspension of the university regulations to enter the halls.

They entered the halls, which were occupied by male students, and proceeded to create a disturbance. The women screamed and shouted, Charleston style, and caused a commotion that lasted for several hours.

The women also occupied the male dormitories, where they slept on the beds and helped themselves to the food in the kitchens.

The incident caused a great deal of consternation among the male students, many of whom were reportedly physically assaulted by the women.

The incident is not the first time that women have attempted to enter the men's dormitories. In 1970, a group of women attempted to enter the men's dormitories, but were apprehended by the university authorities.

The women were said to be protesting against the discrimination they faced on campus and in society at large. They were demanding equal rights and opportunities for women in all aspects of society.

The women were also protesting against the violence and harassment that they reportedly faced on campus.

They were demanding an end to the violence and harassment that they reportedly faced on campus.

If You Ask Me —

QUESTION: What do the Greek organizations at UW-Madison do?

If You Ask Me —

If you ask me, the Greek organizations at UW-Madison do a lot. The sororities and fraternities play a major role in the social life of the university, organizing a wide range of events and activities for their members and the campus community. They are also involved in many service projects and philanthropic endeavors. The Greek organizations are a significant part of the campus culture.

Strong points...are social, organizational and academic.

Jim Nieskern, 22, member of Theta Delta Chi, is shown in the kitchen of a fraternity house. Jim said that he finds being a member of a fraternity to be an important part of his college experience.

“Being a member of a fraternity has given me the opportunity to meet new people and to be a part of a community,” Jim said. “It has also provided me with many opportunities to grow as an individual and to develop leadership skills.”

“A certain something” to spur members

Jean Bokisch, 20, member of Sigma Nu, has been a member of the fraternity for four years. She said that being a member of a fraternity has been a positive experience for her.

“Being a member of a fraternity has given me the opportunity to meet new people and to be a part of a community,” Jean said. “It has also provided me with many opportunities to grow as an individual and to develop leadership skills.”

“They have a line showing of spirit”

Jerry Bannister, 21, member of Delta Upsilon, has been a member of the fraternity for three years. He said that being a member of a fraternity has been a positive experience for him.

“Being a member of a fraternity has given me the opportunity to meet new people and to be a part of a community,” Jerry said. “It has also provided me with many opportunities to grow as an individual and to develop leadership skills.”

“privileges, but also...responsibilities”

Karen Smith, 20, member of Pi Kappa Alpha, has been a member of the fraternity for two years. She said that being a member of a fraternity has been a positive experience for her.

“Being a member of a fraternity has given me the opportunity to meet new people and to be a part of a community,” Karen said. “It has also provided me with many opportunities to grow as an individual and to develop leadership skills.”

Kalke Wins Art Award

By Mike Dornakowski

The University Store has awarded a work of art to Kalke, a student at the University of Akron.

The work, entitled "The Voice of the People," was created by Kalke as part of a class project. It was selected from a group of entries by a panel of judges.

Kalke was presented with a certificate of recognition and a check for $500.
