Revised Conduct Code

RESOLVED that the following by-law code be adopted as the new conduct code for the members of the Board of Regents of State Universities.

Although the Wisconsin State University system is no longer a military institution, its commitment to the higher education of its students, including those in other student groups, is based on the principles of a democratic society. It has an obligation to protect its educational purpose and the interests of its students. Therefore, a student must, at all times, be concerned with the actions of individuals or groups that are in conflict with the welfare and integrity of the institution or in disregard of the rights of other students or faculty. Students and student groups must be careful to cooperate in avoiding conduct which is thus prejudicial to the university or its students.

The State of Wisconsin extends the benefits of all state universities to those persons who meet certain academic qualifications and are members of specific ethnic groups. Therefore, a member of the university community must, at all times, be concerned with the actions of individuals or groups that are in conflict with the welfare and integrity of the nation, the state, and local communities as well as with university regulations and a student must be concerned with the public's rights or privileges. Before the law, by other citizens generally. It is to the public's reasonable desire for the public's good by the university as a whole, not to avoid public condemnation or retribution in appropriate cases, for breach of federal, state, and local laws. It is the public's right to have office-holders as an infallible source for the public's students.

It is the policy of the Board of Regents of State Universities and of every university faculty for the purpose of avoiding conflict of interest, participating in universities, university constitutions, and university policies.

A student employed by the university is in the position of a public servant and the university has a moral obligation to honor any agreements that have been made or to which they have agreed.

The Board of Regents of State Universities, in exercising its police powers over the conduct of students, recognizes that students have the right to freedom of speech, and will not compel students to participate in any form of insurance or religious activity that would be inconsistent with the policies of the Board of Regents of State Universities.
