

Campus Faces Lack Of Housing

By Bird Loewen

Housing is a serious problem facing WSU this fall, Fred Leafgren, Director of Housing, said that a total of 198 students are living in lounges in nine of the residence halls.

Leafgren estimates that 200 students who wanted to stay in dorms had to be turned down and that some students were unable to attend school here because they couldn't find appropriate housing.

Only one new resident hall opened this fall and there are plans for one new hall next year.

The housing Department had requested places for 400 more students but this request was not approved by the Regents. Housing for married students is especially at a premium, and usually quite expensive. Local renters have found there is greater profit in renting to singles.

It is hoped that by 1970 there will be married student units. It is also anticipated that apartments will go up north of Maria Drive. These units will house 750 students.

WSU's New Radio Station Will Begin Broadcasting

WSU-Stevens Point's new radio station, WSUS-FM, will begin regular broadcasting this Sunday at 428 p.m. at 89.9 megacycles on the FM dial.

The radio station, which began program testing last Saturday with a broadcast of the Pointer-Hamline game, will then operate daily from 428 p.m. to midnight.

Station manager John Griffith reported that the station will be playing a variety of music, rock and roll, middle of the road, classical and jazz.

There will also be some educational broadcasts as tapes have been ordered from the national educational tape laboratory.

Griffith says the station is in need of newsmen and a news director. The station also needs anyone with a first or second class radio-telephone operator license because Father Jablonski of Newman Parish is leaving the city to pursue his doctorate studies.

Anyone interested in working on the radio station should call extension 328 or stop in at the station on the north side of the campus road.

MEMBERS OF THE "New Colony Six," to perform Sunday night at 8 p.m. in the fieldhouse at Wisconsin State University-Stevens Point are from left: Jerry Kollenburg, Chic James, Roy Graffio, Jr., Patrick McBride, Les Stewart and Ronnie Rice.

New Colony Six Will Play

"The New Colony Six," a rock and roll group from Chicago which has made several top ranking recordings will appear Sunday night at 8 in the fieldhouse. The concert is the "all-class bash" and tickets will be sold at the door for $1.

"The New Colony Six" has been in prominence about three years for recordings aired on radio throughout the country. Among their most popular songs were "Don't You Care," "I'm Just Waiting, Anticipating, For Her To Show Up," and "I Will Always Think About You." The group first organized while attending St. Patrick's High School in Chicago. Most members of the group are 22 years of age and natives of Illinois. The oldest member, Ronnie Rice, is 24 and originally from Israel.

New School Year Brings Increase

Enrollment
Nears 6800

Faculty Adds

110 Members

Enrollment at WSU-Stevens Point is expected to reach 6,800 students by the time registration is completed according to Gilbert Faust, registrar.

Faust reported that by Friday 6,400 students had already registered and the process would not be completed until next week because of the three stages of registration which must be gone through.

The figures show an increase of about 900 over last year when the registrar's office showed 5,907 registered after two weeks last year.

Faust said that about 2,400 of the students are freshmen compared to 1,960 last year.

In comparison with the other state universities, Faust said he thought Stevens Point would remain fourth in enrollment, behind Oshkosh, Whitewater and Eau Claire and in front of LaCrosse, Platteville, Stout, River Falls and Superior.

Final tabulations on the enrollment will be available after the first two weeks of classes.

Twelve educators were on the faculty that brisk September morning three-quarters of a century ago when Stevens Point Normal School opened its doors for the first time. The enrollment surpassed 350.

On Monday when the now Wisconsin State University-Stevens Point embarked on its 75th year of operation, the faculty for the first time numbered more than 400. The enrollment of nearly 7,000 is an all-time high.

President Lee Sherman Dreyfus said size of the faculty has increased 3,330 per cent since the school was founded and the enrollment has jumped about 2,000 per cent in the same period.

Salaries for faculty this year will total about $4.2 million. The president said turnover of his staff this year is at a normal rate.

Of the 110 freshmen teachers and administrators, 43 are filling new positions approved by the Board of Regents; six are in the federally-supported military science department; and most of the others are either replacing persons on leave of absences or who resigned. Seven positions are unfilled.

Dreyfus pointed out that one in every four faculty members is beginning his first year at Stevens Point.

The newcomers are attending orientation meetings all this week at various buildings on campus. John Gach, director of student teaching, is leading the program with the assistance of veteran members of the faculty.

THE FOOD U M Regents Ban SDS Faculty Fights

Pointer Uses New Approach

If The Pointer appears to have a new look, you're right. We now have a new printer, The Ripon Commonwealth-Press, a new offset printing machine and new deadlines.

The new printing process and the distance to Ripon necessitate setting a Sunday night deadline for news articles with an occasional exception to a Monday night deadline.

The new process has placed what The Pointer staff feels is a new emphasis on our approach to news. This emphasis will hopefully go in the direction of in-depth news coverage and more feature stories.

But we need a staff to pull this off. We appeal to any WSU student who likes to write (or work on the copy or photography staffs) to join The Pointer.

There will be an organization meeting for anyone interested in Pointer work this Thursday night at 6:30 p.m. in the Turner Room, second floor, University Center. We need your help.

The Editorial Board

Merchant's Night Promoted

This edition of The Pointer marks a new first in university and community relationship in Stevens Point. The large number of ads in this first issue of the paper is a result of Chamber of Commerce promotion for Stevens Point merchant's fifth annual welcome back night for WSU students and faculty. This is the first time the university newspaper has been used for this purpose.

The welcome night is set for next Tuesday evening, Sept. 17 downtown. A copy of The Pointer may win you a prize if your number happens to coincide with numbers located in merchant's windows.

We hope that all old and new members of WSU will take this advantage to reacquaint and acquaint yourselves with the shopping areas of Stevens Point.

Question of the Week—

Why do you suppose the Board of Regents waited until the summer when no one was around before they banned SDS?

A Point Well Taken

Fall Reorientation

By Bill McMillen

Peace. Welcome to Dreyfusians. And we're telling all your friends that you were attending WSU-Stevens Point. Instead, you're about to embark on Magic Mystery Tour No. 1. Don't worry. You'll be safe. Patron Saint Regent will watch over you.

Every second of the 9 month day. The evil SDS-Drummers will not corrupt your mind. There will be four fabulous lands that we will visit.

First there is Residence Hall Land, then there is Greek Land, then Intersection Land, and finally Learning Land. (Learning Land is still being built and won't be ready for occupancy until the TV antenna is completed.)

The big Tripper, LSD, will be your guide.

You can spot him by his red vest. He is going through an identity crisis.

There he is now—just follow the bouncing red ball.... "Hiya kids, hiya, hiya, hiya, hiya. You'll like me, just wait and see."

Watch out Papa Bear, oh, he just fell into a lake, Well, I guess I can finish up the tour.

Kids, you'll never get lost in Dreyfusiana if you only remember that the nearest sweatshirt will tell you if you're in Residence Hall Land or in Greek Land. One has the names of dead presidents (Hyatt, Fray, Sims, etc.) and the other has the names of dead Greeks. Once in a while you may run into a military uniform (everyone is welcomed in friendly Dreyfusiana). Do not be confused where you are, you are simply out in right field. Salute and take the first left back to the mainstream.

Now you may be wondering where Intersection Land is. It is everywhere. Interact here, interact there, interact everywhere.

Nothing is rated higher in Dreyfusiana than first belonging and next interacting.

Everyone will want you to interact so blow your cool and jump right in.

Remember, the best time to belong is Thursday night. Everyone belongs on a Thursday night.

Now it's time to go to your cubicle or basement or wherever you are staying in Dreyfusiana. There is always room in our inn.

Someone will be there to tell you when to eat, when to make noise, when to be quiet...but remember, you're away from home now and on your own.

Dreyfusiana is your home now. The Purple and the Gold. Remember the Min. God, Ace Apple Pie, and Women's Hours. Peace.

Students for a Democratic Society at WSU-Stevens Point has been denied recognition on the Stevens Point campus by order of the Board of Regents of the State University system.

A memorandum received July 18, 1968, by President Lee Dreyfus from Eugene McPhie, director of the Board of Regents, stated that "recognition or registration of Chapters of SDS by presidents of the Wisconsin State Universities would be contrary to Board policy."

Dreyfus then in a letter dated July 23 to Paul Schilling, WSU Student Senate president, informed Schilling that, "It therefore becomes my duty and responsibility to over-ride the action taken by our Student Senate last Feb. in which recognition as a student organization was granted to Students for a Democratic Society."

Dreyfus then in a letter dated July 23 to Paul Schilling, WSU Student Senate president, informed Schilling that, "It therefore becomes my duty and responsibility to over-ride the action taken by our Student Senate last Feb. in which recognition as a student organization was granted to Students for a Democratic Society."

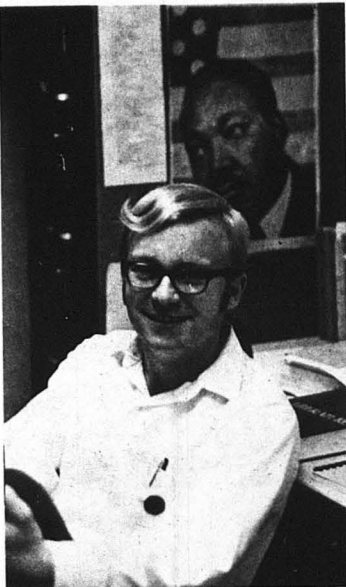

What led President Dreyfus to make this extraordinary move to override the Student Senate in what was supposedly an entirely student controlled area of organization and their recognition? What is SDS? Why did the Board act to ban SDS?

Not Affiliated
One distinction must be initially drawn. The Stevens Point chapter of SDS is not affiliated with the national SDS.

A handout presented to all incoming freshmen this past summer defined the local SDS chapter as "an association of young people on the left...We are wholly autonomous and governed solely by the vote of our local membership. Our meetings are open to all projects as are various as our membership interests, and anyone who feels like taking part is welcome to do so."

The handout went on to mention the activities of SDS on campus last year. These included sponsoring the Free University, leading the Humphrey protest when the vice-president spoke here, sponsoring WSU's underground newspaper, COUNTERPOINT, on campus selling and distributing the Humphrey poster, and sponsoring a Reserve Officer Training Corps at WSU.

The local SDS was officially recognized last year on Feb. 15 by the Student Senate. In a letter to Paul Capener, President of

SIS, Richard McKaig director of Student Activities welcomed SDS as a new organization. McKaig stated that "the university strongly believes in the value of co-curricular activities and welcomes the addition of your organization to our campus."

But as the establishment of the local SDS chapter was taking place events at WSU-LaCrosse and WSU-Eau Claire and a subsequent court suit was determining the Board of Regents summer ban of SDS on all state university campuses.

Nationally affiliated SDS chapters were denied recognition at WSU-LaCrosse by President Gates on Dec. 6, 1966, and at WSU-Eau Claire by President Haas on Mar. 23, 1967. A court action over the LaCrosse decision dragged through the summer of 1967 and last year.

Regents Won
Finally the Board of Regents won the case in circuit court of Dane County early this summer. (The Board had already approved of the president's actions in LaCrosse and Eau Claire; now the action was legally sanctioned.)

The board followed up on court decision by adopting a resolution which read, in part, "It is...the stated policy of the Board of Regents to refuse to approve, recognize or encourage any disruptive, subversive or anarchistic organization or activity, whether national or local in origin, having...violence or disruption as an objective or likely consequence."

William Lutz, a member of the WSU English department and faculty advisor to SDS, has taken up the fight to re-establish the local chapter. In an article in the Aug. 13, 1968, issue of the STEVENS POINT DAILY JOURNAL Lutz declared, "This is different from the LaCrosse case. We were recognized by the Student Senate in Feb. and engaged in activities on campus. At no time, did SDS violate any campus regulations. The ostensible reason for banning us is that we are a violent group. We are not."

Lutz is now pursuing a course for appeal on the SDS issue. He has filed a statement with the American Association of University Professors asking "that the AAUP investigate this violation of student freedom."

The next step will be to put the issue before the Oct. 15 meeting of the faculty. A committee has been set-up called, Faculty Concerned with Academic Freedom. Three faculty members will draw up a resolution to present to the faculty. They are Nellis Kampen, John Bluff and Robert Zeiger. Lutz said the primary purpose of the committee was to support the faculty and then provide a course of action.

The committee will meet again Sept. 30 at 5 p.m. in Room 030 of Old Main. The meeting is open to anyone.

Schilling Preaches Power At President's Convocation

The following speech was given by Paul Schilling, WSU Student Body President, at the two President's Convocations held last Sunday, Sept. 8. Schilling who is now starting his second year as president is a senior political science major from Cranston, W.I.

This past summer he served as a Congressional Intern for the House Republican Conference and Congressman Melvin R. Laird.

President Dreyfus, honored guests, and fellow students of Wisconsin State University-Stevens Point:

1968—The events of this past year have tempered the conscience of this nation with tragedy and turmoil. Assassination, war, civil disorder and restlessness are phenomena which have become, by their very frequency, somehow accepted.

This year—1968—the year in which many of you have graduated from high school and the year in which you are entering the University is a time when our participation in the events of today, not only as students but as citizens, takes on special significance.

Where stands the student of today?

In this era the term "student" conjures up images of student disorders on the campuses of Columbia, Berkeley, Madison, and in the not to distant past, Stevens Point. While these actions made the headlines, the essential dilemma of being a student often overlooked, not ignored, in the process of sitting and winning for truth, a university education brings an awareness to the student of the problems of our society. And issues to him a call to action. Yet the channels to utilize ones newly acquired awareness in creating public policy are all too often restricted.

You as students of this University will soon discover that the decision-making processes that effect you on this campus are very often out of your hands. Many of the policies of this University are not made here at Stevens Point, but by the Board of Regents of the State University System and the State Legislature in Madison, Wisconsin. And whose fault is this? None other than our own. Where then does power lie?

Sydney Hill, a member of the campaign of Senator Eugene McCarthy illustrated the vast potential of organized students, many of whom like most of us were not yet of voting age. Students have are not. However, President Dreyfus took a different view of this point. In his letter to Schilling Dreyfus stated, "I am fully aware this (the local) organization disclaims any affiliation with the national organization of SDS. However, that distinction would not really be meaningful to our students, our Board or the public at large. Therefore, this policy will apply to the local SDS group."

Students Rights
For Lutz, the matter now has gone beyond the local issue. "It's no longer a matter of SDS, it's a matter of the rights of students."

Dreyfus, however, again disagrees. At an open forum at a student leadership conference held last week, he declared the issue was a "holding situation" and that there was "no suppression of freedom of speech."

He stated that he didn't think that this was the right time or place to fight for student freedom. In response to a question, he said that he felt he would know when the proper time and place would be.

Lutz is now pursuing a course for appeal on the SDS issue. He has filed a statement with the American Association of University Professors asking "that the AAUP investigate this violation of student freedom."

The next step will be to put the issue before the Oct. 15 meeting of the faculty. A committee has been set-up called, Faculty Concerned with Academic Freedom. WHO ARE TODAY'S MEN and tomorrow's leaders? You might ask the army or at least read the article below. (Drawing by Mike Harper).

the vigor, the energy, the enthusiasm and surprisingly enough the numbers to be a viable political force in this state. Herein lies our strength. There are over 60,000 students in this State University system. Lets face it, numbers talk! Show me a labor union with 60,000 members and I'll show you political power. It is time for students to heed the words of Samuel Gompers and begin "rewarding our friends and punishing our enemies!"

Student leaders over the past year have come to the realization that effective student representation requires action on the state governmental level as well as on the individual campuses. The United Council of Student Governments of the Wisconsin State University System must organize themselves as a political interest group utilizing the tools of modern public relations which include lobbying in the State Legislature and sophisticated media exposure in expressing our views to the public throughout the state. Our lobbying activities can range from lowering the voting age in Wisconsin to action on proposed legislation affecting appropriations for such items as classroom space and faculty salaries, just as all interest groups in this state seek out those legislators who best represent their interests, we should concentrate on doing the same. Electing and defeating legislators at the polls is much more effective than demonstrating in the streets. I speak not for power for power's sake, but for strength brought by responsibility. Responsibility not expediency—Statesmanship not demagoguery must keynote our efforts.

As Student Body President I welcome you to this University and leave you with these words: Show the educated man to show the fruits of his education in times like these...He must keep his head, and use it. He must never push other people around, nor acquiesce when he sees it done. He must decline to be carried away by the waves of hysteria. He must be prepared to carry the penalty of unpopularity...He must insist that freedom is the chief glory of mankind and that to repress it is in effect to repress the human spirit.

The student population is predicted to top the 10,000 mark in 1978.

A Review

Film Is Arty But Gives Tears

"The Shop on Main Street," a Czech film, and a winner of an Academy Award will be shown on Sept. 18 and 19, at 7 p.m. in the University Center. It is part of the University Cinema Arts series.

Students need only show their I.D. cards to gain admittance to the movie.

By Dan Bernan

"The Shop on Main Street" is a much heralded film stemming from Czechoslovakia which supposedly adds tribute to the spirit of freedom and resistance to oppression residing within the hearts of the Czech people.

The film deals with the Nazi occupation of Czechoslovakia and its effect upon a sweet (too sweet) Jewish woman and a non-Jewish man hempered by a particularly cynical, hard-boiled wife who is chosen to take over the Jew's business.

The movie centers upon the inner state of mind of the man as he is torn between feelings of affection for the woman and his fear of punishment by the Nazis as well as fear of added verbal abuse by his on-son-shrew wife.

While most critics in the popular magazines reacted favorably to the film, I tend to agree with John Simon, movie critic for THE NEW LEADER, who wrote that the film is a "glamorized and pretentious soap opera." The film makes use of several techniques (slow motion, murmur, grey screen) that the audience will surely recognize as "arty."

However, these devices designed to manipulate the fear of the audience and, for little, if any, integral thematic relationships to the film. Little fresh insight is offered into the characters who remain, for the most part, the stereotypical figures that we have seen in so many other films and stories dealing with the Nazi occupation of the smaller European nations.

Nevertheless, it is possible that this reviewer being, at times, a particularly cynical, hard-bitten person viewed the film in a particularly cynical, hard-boiled mood—consequently, I urge you to see it and decide for yourselves upon the relative merits or demerits of the motion picture.

After all, as a film that won an Academy Award for the Best Foreign Picture of the Year be that that bad? Certainly the film will exercise the fear of the

The Saxons And Company Man Appeals For Witness Will Open Coffeehouse

Entertainment on the Stevens Point campus will add a new dimension next week when a coffeehouse act begins performing in the Gridiron of the University Center.

The Saxons and Company, a folk-baroque trio, will be appearing in the Gridiron on Monday through Saturday next week. There will be no charge for admission to the program.

The Saxons are Marvin Solley, the lead singer, and Dan Goggin who harmonizes and plays a harpsichord. They met while both were in the cast of the Broadway play "Luther".

"Company" is Edward Morris, a pianist who gives his own comedy monologue during the program. He met the Saxons while he was doing a Cape Cod night club act.

According to Robert Busch, the University Center program advisor, the act is part of a program which will bring a number of high-quality performers to campus at a low cost.

Busch said the university is getting the entertainment before the group has a big name and is saving money because the UAB is cooperating with other state universities and giving the group bookings for six weeks.

Campus Leaders Attend Workshop

Sixty students representing student organizations at WSU completed a three-day leadership conference Saturday at the Baptist Assembly Camp at Green Lake.

The conference was geared to increase communication between student leaders and discuss some common problems. The group left the University Center on Thursday afternoon and returned Saturday afternoon. Meetings were held in which members of the organizations became better acquainted with one another and discussed problems in communication that existed in the organizations.

On Friday evening an open forum was held where students got a chance to question President Dreyfus, Leon Bell, Dr. Gordon Haferbecker and Dr. William Stielstra.

Members of the steering committee were Jim Floriano, representing fraternities; Mary Johnson, residence halls; John Lancaster, University Activities Board, and Sharon Nessa, sororities.

Conference staff members were Robert Busch, University Center program advisor; Dr. Al Croft, chairman of the speech department; Miss Elsa Lane, assistant dean of students; Richard McKrig, director of student activities; Dr. John Stier, Michigan State University and Miss Kay Thompson, residence hall program advisor.

Fine Arts, Library

Two New Campus Buildings Are Being Constructed

Two new buildings, at an estimated cost of 7.4 million dollars, are being constructed on the WSU campus. One building, a six-story structure, is a new learning resources center while the other is a two-story fine arts building.

The fine arts building is located at the corner of Franklin and Isadore streets while the learning resources center is directly east of the construction site for the fine arts building.

Groundbreaking for the learning resources center was on July 15 with President Lee S. Dreyfus and a construction worker steering a giant earth mover.

At a brief ceremony, attended by about 75 persons, Dreyfus said the new facility will be the ultimate strength of the University. It will store vast amounts of knowledge in the forms of movies, tape-recordings, slides, books and periodicals—for that reason it is called a learning resources center instead of a library.

The expected completion date for the learning resources center is early 1970.

On July 26, President Dreyfus submitted a resolution to the Board of Regents asking that the new facility be named after the late Dr. James H. Albertson, Dreyfus' predecessor, who was killed in a plane crash in South Vietnam a year ago last March.

The resolution was accepted and the official name of the new facility will be "The James H. Albertson Center for Learning Resources."

Dynamite was used in the groundbreaking ceremony for the new 4.1 million dollar fine arts building on the WSU campus on Aug. 2. The blast represents "the cultural explosion the facility will create in central Wis.," according to Dean William Hanford.

The fine arts building will contain a drama auditorium with a seating capacity of 400 persons, a music hall able to seat 350 people and art galleries.

President Dreyfus noted the new facility will be dominant cultural center for all people in central Wisconsin. In attendance at the groundbreaking ceremonies were the mayors of Wausau, Marshfield, Stevens Point and Wisconsin Rapids, representing some of the areas that will be served by the new facility.

The building is expected to be completed by the fall of 1970. When the two buildings are finished, a landscaped mall will connect them.

Hanford Named Fine Arts Dean

An educational television specialist is the new dean of the college of fine arts at Wisconsin State University—Stevens Point. Dr. William James Hanford, 48, Dover, Del., assumed duties on June 1.

The former director of Delaware's ETV network replaced Dr. Robert Cantrick, who served from 1964 until becoming director of fine arts and humanities at the New York State College at Buffalo in the summer of 1967.

Dr. Paul Yambert, dean of the college of applied arts and sciences also has been handling work in the second college since Dr. Cantrick's departure.

A native of Chicago, Dr. Hanford has spent the past three years implementing the physical installation of the Delaware ETV network, hiring a staff of 42 professional and technical personnel, handling the administrative structure of this totally new state agency and developing an educational television philosophy relating specifically to the needs of Delaware.

Dr. Hanford's credentials make a long, varied list of personal achievements. Before going to Delaware he was a faculty member in the departments of humanities and adult education at Wayne State University, Detroit, and instructor of speech at Oakland University, Rochester, Michigan.

In 1962-63 he was a member of the mass communications department at Wayne State, an announcer and host for programs on two television stations and project director for establishment of an ETV system in the Michigan State Prison.

Dr. Hanford spent the three previous years teaching speech, Latin, and English at Cranbrook School for Boys in Bloomfield, Mich.

Although he began a teaching career on the college level in 1948 in Des Moines, Iowa, he left the profession in 1950 to become public relations director for Laymen's Retreat League in Los Angeles.

Later he was employed with a Detroit public relations firm, at a salesman in Michigan for American Presto Industries, as a salesman and supervisor in California for the National Federation of Independent Business and finally in sales work in San Francisco for Marathon Paper Corp.

He holds his B. A. degree in philosophy and English from Immaculate Conception House of Studies at Chicago, and M. A. in philosophy from Sacred Heart House of Studies in Louisville, Ky., and an M. A. in humanities from Wayne State.

Dr. Hanford is married and has one daughter, Rochelle.

WSU TV Show Returns

The only television program originating in Stevens Point returned to the air today.

"Point of View," a weekly presentation of news and special events about students and faculty members at WSU will be broadcast each Wednesday at 12:30 p.m. on cable television channel 6.

The show is a special offering to customers of Teltron Cable TV.

Produced by the University's News and Publications Service, contain a drama auditorium with a seating capacity of 400 persons, a music hall able to seat 350 people and art galleries.

President Dreyfus noted the new facility will be dominant cultural center for all people in central Wisconsin. In attendance at the groundbreaking ceremonies were the mayors of Wausau, Marshfield, Stevens Point and Wisconsin Rapids, representing some of the areas that will be served by the new facility.

The building is expected to be completed by the fall of 1970. When the two buildings are finished, a landscaped mall will connect them.

U.S. Buys WSU Land For Pollution Lab

Uncle Sam paid 10 cents per acre in July for a water pollution laboratory site in the heart of Wisconsin State University—Stevens Point campus.

The $1 transaction for 9.46 acres "is a real indication the laboratory is heading for its goal," said Dr. Lee Sherman Dreyfus, president.

Mrs. Mary Williams, Stevens Point, member of the Board of Regents of State Universities, received the check from Marilyn Yaroch, chief of the property and records management branch for the U. S. Department of Interior-Federal Water Pollution Control Center.

Yaroch was accompanied by a government associate in Washington, D. C., Kenneth Maitland. Dr. Dreyfus said an architect is expected to be named this summer for the new facility and construction "hopefully will begin next spring and end in 1970."

About 100 scientists—nearly all of them holding Ph. D. degrees—and 75 technicians are expected to be employed in the $3 million laboratory.

Yaroch said design of the building will be "compatible with other new buildings on campus." Appropriately, a five-acre pond is planned for the northern edge of the facility. Dr. Dreyfus said, The center will serve a seven state area and be used in investigating pollution of lakes and rivers in the upper Mississippi River basin, especially aging of lakes caused by nutrients.

Dr. Paul Yambert, a conservationist who serves as dean of Stevens Point college of applied arts and sciences, is faculty liaison for the project.

The laboratory will be the fourth such facility in the country.

the half-hour program is taped by the staff of the Instructional Media Services in the library television studio.

Some previous shows featured students interviewed about current campus issues, faculty members reporting on coming events and drama students presenting previews of their plays.

"Point of View" was first televised in January and continued each Wednesday at 1 p.m. until the close of summer school in early August. Program time was changed to 12:30 p.m. this fall.

Teltron and the University have invited the community to view this weekly presentation.

Arts And Lecture Series Expanded To 22 Programs

Widely-known newsmen Drew Pearson and Harry Golden will give speeches this fall at Wisconsin State University-Stevens Point as part of an expanded Arts and Lectures Series.

Also scheduled are 11 musical organizations or soloists, seven narrated films and lectures by a crime prevention advocate and award-winning author.

Series director Jack Cohan said he hopes 1,000 central Wisconsin residents will become season ticket holders this year. The price will be $25 for admittance to 15 of the programs. Separate charges will be for the wildlife and travel adventure films.

Students have to present their identification card at the information desk of the University Center to get tickets. Pearson, scribe of the syndicated newspaper column and radio program, "Washington Merry-Go-Round," will be here Oct. 21.

Golden will come on Nov. 24. He is the author of several best-selling books, a columnist and controversial editor of "The Carolina Brevette."

He reportedly made a complete recovery about a year ago from an illness which pushed him close to death.

The founder of "The National Seventh Step Foundation," Bill Sands, will speak Dec. 11 on reasons he opposes crime. He was a convict at San Quentin Prison and has become a controversial figure.

ure on penal reform subjects. Author Saul Bellow, who penned the best seller, "Herzog," and "The Adventures of Augie March," will be here on Mar. 13. He was a winner of the National Book Award for fiction in 1954.

Although the WSU series always has included lectures in its title, many previous seasons were void of speakers. That was the case last year.

Cohan announced he also is adding travel adventure films about Hawaii, the Mississippi River, and the Mediterranean Isles for the first time. Those programs will be Oct. 22, Feb. 20 and Mar. 31, respectively.

Four Audubon wildlife films, the titles and dates to be shown are: "Migration Mysteries," Sept. 23; "Three Seasons North," Oct. 29; "Water's Edge," Feb. 13; and "Scandinavian Saga," Apr. 16.

A special attraction in the concert series will be the appearance on Oct. 8 (during homecoming week) of "Preservation Hall Jazz Band." Five men and a woman, who fit in the middle age to elderly categories, are billed as the last original jazz band in New Orleans.

Other concerts will feature musicians from several countries.

Coffeehouse Will Reopen

The Hole in the Wall Coffeehouse will be reopening Thursday, Sept. 12.

The coffeehouse is located in the basement of the house at 2224 College Avenue across the street from Nelson Hall and just east of Old Main. It will be open 7 to 11 p.m. on Thursdays and Sundays.

Talent is spontaneous and anyone may participate. Coffee is 5 cents per cup.

ries. Opening the season on Oct. 3 will be the "Gregg Smith Singers;" on Oct. 25 will appear "Olivia Ullman, pianist, on Nov. 12, Adonis Puertas, flamenco guitarist, on Dec. 4 and Elisabeth Schwarzkopf, soprano, on Mar. 10. The "Beaux Arts du Disque" in 1964 will be here on Feb. 4.

Also scheduled are Pianist Abbey Simon on Mar. 4, and "Sax Chamber Orchestra" from Germany on Apr. 22.

Four of the chamber music programs will involve soloists: Kyung Wha Chung, Korean violinist, appearing on Sept. 26; Theodore Ullman, pianist, on Nov. 12; Adonis Puertas, flamenco guitarist, on Dec. 4 and Elisabeth Schwarzkopf, soprano, on Mar. 10. The "Beaux Arts du Disque" in 1964 will be here on Feb. 4.

Cohan Directs Arts, Lectures

Jack G. Cohan is the new director of the Arts and Lectures Series. He will be in charge of selecting musical and concert attractions and auditions for university sponsored public programs. He also will be responsible for assisting in programming events for the music and drama departments in communities throughout Wisconsin.

A native of Winnipeg, Canada, he received a B. A. degree in English from the University of Manitoba plus three Canadian music degrees: associate of music in Manitoba; licentiate in music in Manitoba; and associate of music of the Royal Conservatory of Toronto. He completed his master's degree in 1960 at Indiana University where he spent two years as a graduate assistant in piano.

AWS to Hold Annual Picnic

Associated Women Students will sponsor its annual Big-Little Sis picnic at Iverson Park on Saturday.

All freshmen women are invited to attend regardless of whether or not they have a Big Sister.

All freshmen women will meet in the basements of their halls and off-campus students will meet in the Gridiron of the University Center.

At 10 a.m. they'll leave the designated meeting places and will proceed to walk to Iverson Park.

Play Tryouts Will Be Held

Tryouts for the University Theatre production, "Sophocles' ANTIKONE," will be held Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 11 and 12, at 7:30 p.m. in Room 010 in Nelson Hall.

Director Robert Baruch has indicated there will be twenty roles available for the production. Men and women will be needed for the play.

Baruch pointed out that ANTIKONE has been entered by the University's Department of drama in the AETA-ANTA National Theatre Festival contest. WSU was one of six Wisconsin entries accepted for preliminary judging.

Baruch noted there may be a chance the play will travel to Washington D. C. later in the year.

Anyone interested in dramatic activities is urged to attend these tryouts.

General Services Director Named

Adolph Torzewski is the new director of general services at Wisconsin State University-Stevens Point, his alma mater. He will direct operations of purchasing, central stores, mail and carrier service, duplicating, telephone communications, capital goods inventory and janitorial services.

New ROTC Unit Registers 300

More than twice as many men as expected registered this summer in the new Army Reserve Officer Training Corps at WSU-Stevens Point.

About 125 freshmen had been anticipated, but 250 signed up. Capt. Ancil D. Leister, Jr., acting chairman of the military science department, expected the number of freshmen to be swelled to nearly 300 by the time classes began on Sept. 9.

More than 25 per cent of all freshmen will be enrolled in this new, voluntary program here as compared with a national average of 10 to 12 per cent.

Senior members of the corps are 14 cadets who underwent basic training at Fort Benning, Ga., this summer. They will be in the junior class this fall and begin in an advanced ROTC program.

Capt. Leister expects a total of 600 cadets in the total program at Stevens Point within a couple of years. This would require an increase of two or three men in the present eight-member faculty.

Because of interest shown this summer, Capt. Leister is confident numerous military-related organizations soon will be started by the cadets.

Rifle and pistol teams are usually popular, he said. One club would be for the cadets and another could be an inter-collegiate group to compete with teams from other campuses.

A "Black Beret" group might be formed by some overly-adventurous cadets and specialize in counter insurgency training. Learning to kill and prepare snakes for human consumption and hand to hand combat would be some of the activities.

Capt. Leister advises that a much of the world's troubled area is covered by jungle, and future soldiers gaining counter insurgency experience might someday make practical use of it.

Organization of a drum and bugle corps and a "Future Service Wives" for cadets, sweethearts and spouses also is expected, the captain said.

Certain to be started next fall is a volunteer flight program for men in their last year of school before entering active duty. Both ground and flight instruction will be financed by the Department of Army, but participants will be obligated to possible callup as pilots.

Capt. Leister and his staff are headquartered in Nelson Hall but will move to the top floor of the learning resources center (library) after a new building bearing the same name is completed in 1970.

An indoor, 10 point rifle range also will be provided, possibly in a new building for this special purpose.

The ROTC program here, one of about 15 newly formed this year on an American campus, will enable a student to earn a commission as an Army officer at the same time he earns an academic degree in a field of his choice.

It will include about 26 credits of work, of which nine of 10 credits would be in courses ROTC men would likely take as regular students. Members of the advanced portion (juniors and seniors) are paid $50 per month by the government and are required to attend a six-week summer camp at a regular Army camp between their junior and senior academic year.

The Army stipulates that after student receives a reserve commission, he is obligated to serve two years on active duty and four years in reserve status. If he receives a regular Army commission, he will be required to serve three years on active duty and three years in the reserves.

Stevens Point's ROTC staff includes four men who recently saw duty in Southeast Asia: Capt. Leister, a serviceman for seven years; Capt. John D. Shepard, assistant professor, nine years in the Army; Capt. Spencer V. Carey, assistant professor, five years; Sgt. Major Raymond Bishop, instructor, 26 years. Sgt. I/C Roy F. Scott, an instructor with 21 years of duty, last served in Germany.

The remainder of the staff has not been appointed as yet.

The first day of classes at what was formerly known as Stevens Point Normal was Sept. 17, 1894.

Greene Is Music Head

Donald E. Greene, professor of clarinet and saxophone, has been appointed chairman of the music department at Wisconsin State University-Stevens Point. He replaces Dr. Hugo Marple who will resume full-time teaching this fall.

Greene has been on the Stevens Point faculty for one year, and in that time organized a stage band and symphonic wind ensemble. He directed both groups as well as a marching band.

Returning faculty member James Duggan will take charge of the stage band and newcomer James Westbrook will be assigned to direct the marching band. A native of Scranton, Pa., Greene attended State Teachers College in Mansfield, Pa., and Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N. Y. He taught in five high schools of western New York State.

3 Chairmen Appointed

Dr. Leon Lewis, Dr. Virgil A. Thiesfeld and Dr. James Bowles are new chairmen of the English, biology and natural resources departments, respectively.

Dr. Lewis and Dr. Thiesfeld joined the faculty in the mid-1960's and Dr. Bowles came in 1967.

Marion Is Faculty Head

Carol Marion, assistant professor of history, is the new faculty chairman, replacing Gilbert W. Rust. She is one of few women to hold the office in WSU's 75-year-history. Miss Marion is a native of Cambridge, Ohio, and attended St. Mary's College, Notre Dame, Ind., Indiana University and the University of Minnesota.

Karg Promoted

Melvin Karg, formerly director of Steiner Residence Hall, has been promoted to assistant director of university housing. He received both his B. S. and M. S. T. degrees from Stevens Point. He resumed his residence hall post in 1964.

Stevens Point Selected As Normal School Site

Over 75 years ago local residents gathered by the hundreds to celebrate selection of Stevens Point as site for a new state normal school.

About 2,000 assembled at the depot on July 28, 1893, to learn whether legislators accepted the city's offer of five acres of land for a site and $50,000 for a building. When positive word came by telegraph in the middle of the night, they paraded through town.

A day or so later they turned out to welcome the return from Madison of Byron B. Park, member of the Board of Regents of Normal Schools and promoter of Stevens Point's application. Civic leaders chartered a train to meet him at McDill and accompany him on the last leg of his trip home.

Now, three-quarters of a century afterwards, the school has emerged into a Wisconsin State University with 24 large buildings, 377 faculty members and 200 classified workers. The total number of employees will be swelled by another 400 to serve a projected 10,000 students in 1978.

By the end of the century, the campus probably will be twice its present size.

Money was scarce in 1893 because of financial panic. But more than 20 northern Wisconsin communities were willing to pay the cost of establishing a sixth normal school.

Vying were Ft. Howard, De Pere, West De Pere, Grand Rapids and Centralia (now Wisconsin Rapids), Marshfield, Wausau, Merrill, Stevens Point, Neillsville, Chippewa Falls, Eau Claire, La Crosse, Sparta, Tomah, Ashland, Washburn, Bayfield, and Superior.

Editors of Wausau newspapers, apparently angered when their city was passed up, harshly criticized selection of neighboring Stevens Point. One editorial writer said moral fiber of people here was so poor that the town would be a poor prison site.

While the issue cooled, the normal grew. WSU Controller Paul Kelch recently announced during the next year the number of faculty members will be increased to about 420, with an annual payroll of $4.2 million.

Classified (staff) positions will be increased to 225, mostly in secretarial and maintenance assignments, and their yearly salaries will be $1.16 million.

Both state and federal governments will supply monies so jobs for students can be continued. About $82,000 will be expended in regular (state) salaries; $373,500 federally-supplied work funds; and $234,400 in housing, University Center, and rental service workers' payroll.

Ace Foods, serving only the campus but operating independent of the state, provides 120 full-time jobs during the regular school year in three dining areas. An additional 12 persons are on the administrative staff and 200 are part-time helpers.

About 80 per cent of last year's $600,000 food bill was for locally-purchased products.

An additional $500,000 was spent on salaries.

Because of increased summer enrollments and conferences on campus for non-students, Ace provides numerous jobs during June, July and August.

Company officials expect a two to three per cent increase in employment during the next 12 months and in succeeding years until another food complex is constructed.

When those facilities are provided, Ace probably will need 50 more full time workers.

Attempting to emphasize the importance its students played in bolstering Menominee's economy Stout State University recently said:

Although students are responsible for congesting city parks, each of these same people spends more than $1,200 in local stores annually.

Although students and faculty are causes of congested parking areas, they buy a vast amount of gas and oil in Menominee.

Although rental property is more difficult to find than in non-university towns the same size, landlords receive better than a average rent check and better sale prices for their properties.

Taxwise, of $200,773 withheld last year from Stevens Point faculty and staff members' pay checks for state income tax, about $54,000 was returned for use by Portage County and the City of Stevens Point last year.

More than $10,000 was returned from tax withholdings of students employed part-time on campus, according to a recent state report.

Propertywise, Stevens Point hasn't lost as much taxable land to university expansion as some of the other eight cities in the WSU system; furthermore, many of the nearly 700 new homes and 350 new apartment units constructed here since 1957 are occupied by university-affiliated persons.

The rapidly growing faculty--almost entirely involving Stevens Point newcomers--will require more construction, but the additional staff members are not expected to greatly affect the housing situation.

With a $12.5 million building project underway this biennium, Kelch believes most new Civil Service jobs will be maintenance and secretarial assignments given to local residents.

For the 1969-70 year, another 25 new faculty and Civil Service jobs will be approved to serve an estimated 7,115 students, Conservative estimates, according to Kelch, call for between 15 and 30 new faculty and the same number Civil Service appointments each succeeding year until 1978.

All of these figures have not included the 175 persons who will be employed in the water resource laboratory, to be constructed on the north end of campus.

The federal government purchased land here this summer for the new water laboratory.

University administrators expect it will be in operation in the early 1970s.

Andrews Wins Teachers Honor

Oliver A. Andrews, associate professor of chemistry, received a $500 excellence in teaching award May 2. The citation was sponsored by the Johnson Foundation of Racine.

Andrews, 36, has taught chemistry at Stevens Point since 1960. He formerly was on high school faculties at Bonhuil and Green Bay West.

A native of Plymouth, he was graduated from WSU-Stevens Point in 1953 with a bachelor's degree and from the University of Wisconsin in 1957 with a master's.

During the past semester he and Mrs. Phillips Ray of the laboratory school staff directed an experiment on teaching chemistry principles to kindergarten students.

Lack of Housing

Leafgren commented that the room rent for residence halls probably averages $25 more than the off-campus approved housing.

Last year there were few problems in finding housing, but this year it has become a serious problem, and next year the shortage will be even more acute. Students should locate housing as early as possible for future semesters.

161 Students Get Degrees.

Wisconsin State University—Stevens Point had 161 degree candidates for its 60th annual summer commencement Friday, Aug. 2.

The ceremony was at 7 o'clock on the lawn in front of the Main Building. A reception for graduates and their guests followed on the south terrace.

Fourteen of the candidates received master of science degrees in teaching and 147 were conferred the bachelors degrees.

Graduating with highest honors was Valeria G. Moldenhauer, Marshfield, who completed her academic work in intermediate education. She received grades with an average near straight A.

Winning honors for averages of 3.2 (B plus) to 3.5 were: Jerry Banle, Laona; Robert Cleveland, Madison; Jerry Cutler, Milladore; Philip Birkel, Stevens Point; Mary Kay Radant, DelBroux, Wausau; Donna Marie Furuta, Wausau; Lola Elaine Simon, Deerbrook; and Lavina M. Walters, Wausau.

Delivering the commencement address was Dr. William Hanford, new dean of fine arts. He came to Stevens Point State in June after three years implementing the Delaware educational television network, first statewide system of its kind in the country.

Dr. Hanford, a native of Chicago, was reared in northern Wisconsin and received his B.A. degree in philosophy and English from Immaculate Conception House of Studies in Chicago; and M.A. in philosophy from Sacred Heart House of Studies in Louisville, Ky.; and M.A. and Ph.D. in humanities from Wayne State University in Detroit.

He began his career as a teacher on the college level exactly 20 years ago, but didn't spend all the succeeding time in the classroom. For a few years he was a public relations director and salesman for nationwide corporations.

His address was entitled "Graduates' Responsibilities in a Mass Communication World."

After the honors announcement by Vice President Gordon Haferebecker, the four deans presented degree candidates. The degrees were conferred by President Lee Sherman Dreyfus.

Ellery Selected As Presidential Aide

Dr. John Ellery, 48, who has girdled the globe either as a student, soldier or educator, is the new assistant to the president at WSU.

His last assignment was acting dean and English department head of Nyala University College in Sierra Leone, West Africa.

He fills a position vacant since last summer when Dr. Kurt Schmeller was appointed President of Queensborough Commu-ity College, New York.

As both a professional soldier and sailor, he served a decade in the military and was twice wounded and decorated for valor.

Academically, he received his AB degree from Hamilton College in New York, MA from the University of Colorado, and Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin.

Dr. Ellery began a career in teaching exactly 20 years ago at the University of Colorado. He later was a graduate assistant at the UW, assistant professor at the University of Iowa, assistant professor at Alabama College and associate professor at Wayne State University—Detroit.

He has been on leave from the East Tennessee State University the past two years to serve the United Agency for International Development in Sierra Leone.

Hamline Whips Pointers 41-0

By Mike Troy

Any possible apprehensions about his 1968 WSU football squad that Coach Duane Counsell might have had became a reality Saturday afternoon when the Pointers succumbed to the speed of Hamline University's Pipers, 41-0, at Norton Field in St. Paul, Minn. The Pointers were behind almost immediately as speedster Don Larson followed some good blocking around left end on the fifth play of the game and scored untouched for a 69 yard touchdown.

The Pointers tried to come back with a march that moved them from their own 30 to the Pipers' 26 yard line, when Bob Rohde's fumble was recovered by Hamline. Seven plays later, Piper quarterback, Karl Dickman, fired a pass to another speedster, split end Jon Latchem, and again it was "off to the races." The play covered 50 yards for the second Piper touchdown with only 2:05 remaining in the first quarter.

The Pointers were unable to move against the fast and spirited Hamline defense and were forced to punt. The Piper punter receiver was hit after signaling for a fair catch and the 15 yard penalty assessed against the Pointers gave Hamline the ball on the Stevens Point 43. Ten plays later, Ned Knuttila took a five yard scoring toss from Dickman for the third Piper touchdown. Nite Frawley converted to up the score to 20-0 with 10:59 remaining in the half. Two and a half minutes later, Hamline scored the fourth and final touchdown of the half as a punt return by Dan Schultz gave the Pipers excellent field position on the Pointer 42. Reserve quarterback Mike Olsen fired a 44 yard strike to Latchem who easily outran all Pointer defenders.

The two final Hamline touchdowns came in the third quarter as Rick Anderson scored from two yards and six yards out on runs.

The Pointers, while unable to move consistently against the Hamline defense, gave the ball up six times on mistakes. Four Pointer fumbles and two interceptions made it difficult for the Pointers to sustain a drive. Coach Duane Counsell used many of his personnel in the game and plans to shift some positions in order to shore up some weaknesses.

Karl Koladzki led Pointer backs in rushing with 35 yards in seven carries. Bob Rohde picked up 29 in ten. Rohde, however, was the main pass receiver with four receptions for 86 yards. Junior quarterback Bob Main completed five of eight passes, for 90 yards and tossed the two interceptions. Mike Weyenberg completed three of five.

The Pointer coaching staff now has to ready the team for Saturday afternoon's Conference opener against Whitewater at Whitewater. The Warhawks will be out to avenge their, last year's only defeat.

Basketball Team Loses Ken Ziegahn

The Pointer basketball team will lose one of its starting guards for the entire season. Ken Ziegahn has been placed on disciplinary probation for one year, which means no basketball for him.

The reason for Ziegahn being placed on disciplinary probation is that he willfully violated the current housing regulations, perjured himself to the Dean, aided other students to break regulations relating to dorm hours and being caught in a women's dorm after closing hours.

While Ziegahn is on probation, he will be restricted to attending classes or to study in the library. He cannot live on campus, but has to commute from Marshfield where he resides. He will not be allowed to participate in any student activities for the year.

STRAP N' BUCKLE

Youthful from the high-grade grain leather to the hand-sewn vamp toe — and yet sedate with the strap and buckle of the fine shoe. That touch of something different that puts the wearer above average in fashion. Comes in Brown or Olive. 19.95
