Phy Ed Answers Inquiry's Question

Certain basic question concerning the physical education department was answered Tuesday evening by Eugene Breighauser, department chairman, during a meeting of the Academic Affairs committee of WSU-S. The meeting was held in the library of the Student Center in conjunction with a hearing in a panel of the Senate.

Breighauser was questioned by Sen. Robert Smith about whether or not women's physical education classes are as strenuous as men's. Women's classes are taught with more care than men's, he said, because women are more physically fragile and require more attention from the instructor.

Breighauser said that physical education classes are not required, that students still have the option of taking physical education courses if they choose to do so. He also said that the physical education department is working on a new curriculum that will be more inclusive of women's needs.

Finance Committee Meeting To Spend Student's Money

By Bill McMillen

The problem is huge. In 1968-69, the budget was $3,250,000. That figure is the total amount of money which the Student Senate allocates to various departments for next year.

The money covers everything: Food, circulation, and athletic budgets. Dick and Mike Derksen, have the power to allocate this money to any department they see fit for next year.

The Committee said its objectives are to determine the policies, courses and requirements of student activities. For example, perhaps the English Department starts emphasizing English literature to the student point of view at department meetings. He would have the power to allocate more money for English literature.

By Bill Meierman and Dartt Gerlach

How can the Senate be organized along more efficient lines? It seems to me that some departments, especially the big

Like the English Department, have much more time to make them more functionally efficient than they are.

Department Needs Student Advisors

One of the most interesting academic proposals to come around in a long time has been suggested by Mark Dahl, sophomore student senator.

The proposal, which speaks volumes elsewhere on this page, is that students should become academic advisors to the departments they are majoring in.

The proposal was introduced by junior and seniors majoring in a department to represent the student point of view at department meetings. It would help determine the policies, courses and requirements of the department.

We think that some departments, especially the bigger departments, could benefit from what students would like to have taught. For example, perhaps the English Department starts emphasizing English literature to the student point of view at department meetings. He would be able to allocate more money for English literature.

There is, of course, much informal contact between students and faculty members. But there is not much chance for formal meetings between students and departments.

We hope that Senator Dahl pushes Dahl's proposal and that individual departments consider asking student advisors.

Soccer Reorganization Should Go On

The Student Senate showed recently that they are capable of dealing with the problem of Senate reorganization. There was a resolution before the Senate which called for representation by hall rather than the present system. This proposed system would have the Senate composed of a student from each residence hall.

This resolution was defeated and in its place an ad hoc committee was established to study Senate reorganization for the remainder of the year.

The present system of representation allows for some students to be represented as many as six times. The system which was defeated by the Senate asking for hall representation failed to give enough representation of the students living off-campus.

The committee wonders whether anything will be accomplished by this ad hoc committee's study. A student committee was established last semester to study student government functions and organization. It failed to meet this semester because of one member's graduation and the chairman's resignation. So it appears the Student Senate will go through another year without coming to grips with the problem, that full representation for each student. Who's next?

The program will be sponsored by the Arts and Literature Societies.

The screening of the Mediterranean film series "MAIN LAND" last week on the main stage and subtitles and there will be by the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem.

LEONIDA—Eumorfopoulos, the King's own 36 million francs, private property, and the brass man for the 15th century.

In the final scene there, they will be in London for the film of a weekend in July. Four times in the year, they will be off to Euro for a weekend tour of the music of England and France.

The group will leave Chicago on a chartered flight to England, Finland, and Iceland. A week in Iceland will be spent viewing a Breitling film on Iceland and Iceland's history.

In Moscow, the final stop, the group will be seeing a Breitling film on Russia and Russian history. The film will give the lie to our beliefs about Russia's life, economy, education, and science or other factors.

It's an adventure around as much as in this country because of the many different cultures.

The large group from all the states will be broken up into smaller segments and will attend these activities that are planned as a group with a guide to make sure that the group knows about other activities.

The trip is the first such university-sponsored effort for the state university and the first by the Wisconsin State Univer as a cooperative effort. The reason we have had to do this is because of the funds available.

All the students will have to meet in order to travel and to pay for their own expenses. We can see the results of your generosity in terms of the money.

The women's liberation movement is the latest in a series of organized social movements, with a goal of helping the state fulfill its responsibilities to the women who are being systematically discriminated against. "We are trying to copy men and say, 'Our rights are the same too,'" says the local leader.

"We want society to bring more of the men in the state being active...creative, responsible, and such. This is the only way we can change our society," the leader says.

"That's why it's important for us to live in college today to create something new," she says. "This is the only way society will be looking for things to do. We have to be prepared now by giving some college credit to anyone who participates in the planning."

Another idea Mrs. Tecklin is pushing calls for the elimination of the conditions under which claimants are other than modern or feminist.

"This is ridiculous because between today and the day before we're supposed to be out of the way, today is not expected to be any more control and second-guessing than it is nowadays," she says. "Why is it we can't be dissuaded from participating in the planning so we can have a more meaningful relationship with society?"

She notes how bars promote parties that take place in a room that is not used for anything else. "All the work would be done for nothing, not to participate in a meaningful relationship with society, but because there is money involved," she says.

"We cannot prevent people from participating in our planning because we are not doing anything illegal," she says. "Those opportunities must also begin to work with women in the planning for the three-quarter time period."

The women's liberation movement, which has focused on promoting gender equality, has also been concerned with the issue of gender discrimination and the challenges women face in the workplace.

"We have the situation where men are being promoted over women," she says. "Either women or men, it's definitely a problem."

"And by convincing employers to continue to support women in part of the Peace Corps," she says. "We then have the situation where nothing will be done for the future if these opportunities are not given to women.

Music Recital Hall Named Michelsen

A recital hall in Stevens Point State University's new fine arts building will be named in honor of Peter J. Michelsen, a former assistant professor who pioneered the advancement of music education in Wisconsin.

He served as director of the school music department from 1930 to 1954. He died in 1984 at age 86.

Mark de Groat Brueckner, chairman of the faculty building fund raising committee, said Michelsen was the music department many years because of his concern for the arts. But he turned out many students who became Wisconsin's building heads. Numerous requests have come from the former students that recognition of the kind would be appropriate.

The hall consists of the center of the campus providing links for the Best Central States Teachers College with colorful moments of music history. The recital hall was named to the name Norway. Michelsen studied at the Milwaukee College of Conservatory of Music where one of his major teachers was the noted composer, Edward Greg. He also worked with the music director and conductor of the National Orchestra of Norway. He came to the United States in 1908 and attended the Vandercook School of Music.

But when he arrived in Wisconsin, he had to write for a less important kind of involvement with the art. He played the wedding and funeral organist in Stevens Point. In 1930, he was appointed director of the band at Central High School, which worked toward preparing for Marching band championships.

Michelsen's assignments at Stevens Point were to develop a band, direct the orchestra, choir, and gift club club, and establish an honorary music fraternity.

'Christmas concerts became an annual event under his leadership. For his last five years he and Edna Carlsten Miller founded the Society of University Musicians. He took a leading role in the organization of the Men's Choir and in the Ohio State University and Cal Tech. Michelsen was THE music director of the University of Wisconsin, a man who had developed a musical heritage in the university, and as a judge at scores of music contests throughout Wisconsin. The University of Wisconsin honored him two years before his death for distinguished service in music. He was one of two undergraduate awarded degrees and degrees of the University of Wisconsin.

The leadership of the university's music faculty will name an opponent of the group which will carry on Michelsen's name. The hall will seat 350 persons and have padded seats in a circle arrangement. The seats will be on four rows that go to the upper and lower levels.

The fine art building, costing $4.8 million, is expected to be completed in late 1970 at which time Miss Edna Carlsten Michelsen and Michelsen's family will be honored at a dedication.

Physics Group Organized

On Campus Saturday

A chapter of The Society of Physics Students was organized at WIS Stevens Point on March 10 at the organizational meeting. The organization consists of students who are interested in physics and mathematics, although there is no set limit for either group.

This group will provide an opportunity for physics and mathematics students to meet and discuss their interests. This group will also provide an opportunity for members to become involved in the advising of other members. The group will meet at 7:00 p.m. on Tuesday evenings in the anthropology room. The next meeting will be held on March 17 at 7:00 p.m. The meeting will be held in the anthropology room.

The maps in the atlas cover a total of 5,800 square miles of Wisconsin and lowland and contain 3,300 named places.

The maps are arranged in a sequence, beginning with the key maps which are found in the back of the book; the frontispiece maps which cover the entire state; and the county maps, which are arranged in alphabetical order of the counties.

The maps are made up of 18 pages of map data, 12 pages of text, and 2 pages of appendixes. The maps are printed in black and white and are mounted on a blue background.

The maps are intended for students and professionals in the fields of geography, cartography, and urban planning.

The maps are available for sale through a variety of channels, including the National Geographic Society, the United States Geological Survey, and the University of Wisconsin-Extension Service.

The maps are also available for loan through the Library of Congress, the Library of Congress, and the National Agricultural Library.

Three Point Cagers Receive Recognition As All-District

More honors were accorded the Pointer basketball squad this year than in any other year in the history of the Pointer program. Kurt Urban, Paul Hauns, and Floyd Wilkenson, who are the only seniors on the squad, were named as members of the WSUC conference squad. Senior Point Steven Stevens was named as the Pointer All-District team. This year only one of the three seniors, Kurt Urban, was named to the All-District team. The other seniors had to give way to the younger men on the squad to be included in the All-District team. This year only one of the three seniors, Kurt Urban, was named to the All-District team.
