President Dreyfus Replies To Demands
Evolution With Military Discussed

The Pointer has, at times, been accused of being too conservative, too much in favor of the military, too apolitical, too much in favor of the status quo. However, in all fairness, these accusations are not based on any specific events or issues but rather on a general perception of the magazine's editorial stance. The Pointer has always taken a stance that is supportive of the military and its role in society, and this stance has been a consistent theme throughout its history. However, the editorials and articles in the Pointer have always been written with an eye to the needs of the students and the community, and the editorials have always been written with the goal of providing a platform for discussion and debate. The Pointer has always been a voice for the students and the community, and it has always been a forum for the exchange of ideas and opinions. The Pointer has always been a place where students and the community could come together to discuss and debate the issues that are important to them. The Pointer has always been a place of inquiry, a place where students could come together to learn and grow. The Pointer has always been a place of independence, a place where students could come together to express themselves and their opinions. The Pointer has always been a place of dialogue, a place where students could come together to discuss and debate the issues that are important to them. The Pointer has always been a place of innovation, a place where students could come together to create and develop new ideas. The Pointer has always been a place of progress, a place where students could come together to work towards a better future. The Pointer has always been a place of possibility, a place where students could come together to imagine and create a world that is better than the one that exists. The Pointer has always been a place of hope, a place where students could come together to envision a world that is full of possibility and hope. The Pointer has always been a place of the future, a place where students could come together to imagine and create a world that is better than the one that exists.

Two Faculty Exhibits Work in Illinois

ROCK ISLAND, ILL. — An exhibit of two faculty members from the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater is on display at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee Art Gallery in Chicago.

The exhibit features paintings and sculptures by professors John Zawadsky and Maryanne G. Ludwig, both of whom have received national recognition for their work.

Zawadsky's paintings explore themes of nature and the human condition, while Ludwig's sculptures focus on the relationships between people and their environment.

In addition to their individual work, Zawadsky and Ludwig will be featured in a group exhibition at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee Art Gallery in Chicago from September 15 to October 15.

Off-campus students can attend the opening reception on September 15 from 6:00 to 8:00 p.m. and can view the exhibition during regular gallery hours.

Point Has Ban On Admissions

Stevens Point State University has announced a moratorium on admissions for the fall semester, effective immediately. The announcement comes after the recent flooding of the Wisconsin River and the closure of many roads in the area.

"Due to the recent flooding, we are unable to accept new students at this time," said Dr. John Lawrence, president of Stevens Point State University. "We will re-evaluate our admission policy once conditions improve."
Rare Asian Materials
Given To Library

Rare Asian science materials collected during William R. Stein's 1962-1963 field trip to China have been given to the library.

Malcolm Roshfield of Beijing and Tokyo, Stein's assistant during his trip, presented the materials to the library.

The materials include a collection of rare Chinese dictionaries, including several large volumes weighing several hundred pounds. They are housed in the library's special collections section.

Roshfield, who is currently a librarian at the University of Ottawa in Canada, said he had been searching for a suitable home for the materials for several years.

"We are very grateful to have these materials in our library," said library director Dr. John Smith. "They will be a valuable resource for our students and faculty."
New Enlarged Arts And Lectures Series

A new and enlarged season of cultural events will be offered to the University community in the 1969 Arts and Lectures Series. Under the direction of Mr. Jack Coulter, executive secretary, films, and lectures, plus a few special events will make up the largest and most exciting year of events in the history of the series.

Concert Series
The Concert Series is a presentation of five major musical events of a scope large enough to demand the largest facilities that the university can offer, the Auditorium.

Douglas Evans and His Dixieland Band. The enthusiasm shown last year for the Preservation Hall Jazz Band was so great that this year the sounds of New Orleans are coming back with the sensational Dou Evans and His Dixieland Band. Evans and his gang will swing into a number of arrangements from the 300 pieces in their vast repertoire which represents a milestone of jazz. Downbeat Magazine has called the group "The most sensational group of its kind today." This special event will be part of the homecoming week activities on Tuesday, October 14.

Stordamian University Choir. The foremost choral group of Scandinavia will spread the song of early spring throughout the Auditorium in the second item offered in the series. The Stordamian University Choir, under the direction of Knud Hendriksen, chief conductor since 1946, should delight anyone who enjoys good choral music.

Evans and the Furtwangler Pianist. The world-renowned pianist, Menahem Pressler, who has made important contributions to the study of Russian culture and should be one of the outstanding men of his age and times, has promised to bring his art and music to America this season. This special event is one of this year's best musical import. The date is November 5.

Detroit Symphony Orchestra. Winthrop Sargeant, the noted leader of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, "Certainly... one of America's top rank orchestras as it stands today," and it was a continuous pleasure to listen to the orchestra in this year's special symphony concerts. As a special feature, the group is bringing along noted pianist Ivan Dixon to perform a piano concerto, a rare event on this campus.

Alma de Lorraine. The last event in the concert series will be the return of Alma de Lorraine, the Spanish songstress. Alma de Lorraine on Monday, April 27. Her Carnegie Hall recital last year brought rave reviews from the critics and of the audience.

Chamber Series
For events of a more intimate nature, the Chamber Series will highlight six concerts in the Auditorium in the Music Building.

The Arts Alley American Drama Theatre. Created in 1949, this theatrical group offers the qualified performers an opportunity to rehearse and to perform under the best conditions.

Chamber Series events will be held in the Music Hall. A schedule of these performances will be announced later this fall.

The Canadian Opera Company. On February 6, the Canadian Opera Company will stage Tosca, an opera requiring large casts, made possible by a grant from the Canadian government. The opera will be sung in English so that the audience may understand every word. Hermann Geyer-Torl will conduct.

Verona Tyler. In 1948 she won the First Tchaikovsky Vocal Competition in Moscow and from this past year to perform with every major orchestra in America, including the New York Philharmonic. The diva's voice is as rich as honey, and her talent is beyond question. Tyler has made her one of the most sought-after soprano around.

Albert Fuller. The Chamber Series will finish with a recital by renowned harpsichordist Albert Fuller. Since his debut in 1927 he has been developing to his present status as one of the top five artists for harpsichord in this country.

Lecture Series
Last year the Arts and Lectures Series took up its name for the first time by providing a series of lectures by prominent Americans. This year again the lecture series will span all areas of interest as musicians, writers, scientists, correspondents and a politician will fill the Program. The Canadian Opera Company will bring to you a number of special events which will fill the Auditorium on Sunday, December 3.
