The Federal Bureau of Investigation has been following at least seven Rutgers University students because of their participation in political activity on campus, according to a copy of the campus patrol report seen by the Daily Targum, the student newspaper.

During the last two weeks alone, an assistant chief of the Campus Patrol Chief Borden has personally contacted seven of the students.

The two agents of the Newark office had been at the dormitory at 2:45 p.m. on Thursday, October 1 of this year. They returned at 9 a.m. and again, at 2:45 p.m. on October 2.

During their visits, the agents wanted to see the person immediately, but Tecker was out. This time, Borden said that if Tecker's name came up as a reliable source, he would be asked to come to the station.

The student also reported that two agents of the Newark office had visited him at his dormitory the previous day at noon so that he could "deal with them directly." Again they set a time for him to come to the station.

In a related incident, Targum reporter Rich Reilly reported that at one time, plainclothes policemen, one with an ARA shirt, identified themselves as a Campus Patrolman and a New Brunswick policeman, in the Rutgers Infirmary Saturday night.

Arrests were not made. The student was not asked to identify himself or to give his name. He was then told to call the Campus Patrol immediately if he saw them again.

The next day, the student showed Borden that he had been contacted again by the FBI.

According to Reilly, the men said they would identify themselves as a Campus Patrolman and a New Brunswick policeman, in the Rutgers Infirmary Saturday night.

The student was not asked to identify himself or to give his name. He was then told to call the Campus Patrol immediately if he saw them again.

Nemeyer's Style of Apologies

By William L. Clark

Howard Nemeyer is a soft-spoken man. The quiet, unassuming way in which he was arraigned on charges of a conspiracy to rob an auto dealer's used car lot and make a $3,000 profit on it in September was not how he was perceived by his attorney, who had been losing his case for several months. Nemeyer decided to enter a plea of not guilty, and his lawyer said that he would agree to be tried by a jury rather than a judge. The trial was set for October 12, and the jury was selected from a pool of 60 people. The trial was expected to last about one week.

Peace Symbol Commercialized

Washington (CPS) - The U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare is going ahead with a competition for the commercialization of the peace symbol. The competition, organized by the Intercontinental Shoe Corporation of New York and L.I.V., Inc., is being held to select a company to produce a line of shoes and other products featuring the peace symbol.

Students Lose Aid

Washington (CPS) - Federal aid to students has been reduced because of their involvement in campus disorders. Students who receive aid from the government are no longer considered eligible for aid if they are involved in campus disorders.

FBI Nabs Black Panther

New York (CPS) - Angela Davis has been apprehended in a mid-town Manhattan hotel, apparently on an informer's tip-off. The New York City police arrested her at her hotel room after a brief struggle with her partner, who was also present.

Fraternity Of Fools

Dear Editor:

In accordance with the editorial of October 15, concerning the Sisaffi, I can only agree wholeheartedly. How such an organization can exist, bantering on elements of perspective and inebriation, is beyond conjecture. There was not even a decent similitude of depth displayed on the part of the students, as there is among American Indians, is very serious. (Then again, there's that noted historian).

Stevens Point has a reputation in certain circles as being a good conservation school (note the spelling). One finds this difficult to believe when viewing the consumption that occurs. The Homecoming Parade has left it strewn with litter. The paper industry should subscribe the event as another landmark in our developing throw-away culture. If the kind of time and effort in preparation expended for the Homecoming Parade were directed toward, for instance, a ZPG activity, the results would, beyond a doubt, be impressive.

The point is that, the university, devoted to problem-solving and bettering the world, should consider the meaning and relevance of the autumn bacchanalia. Can't human resources be better used? The Pointer is of the opinion that the university could use its energies better, certainly to less superficial ones.

Explosives Seized By Feds

Sisaffi's Defended

To the Editor:

I'm of the opinion that this university does not suffer from a lack of "place" in the Sisaffi organization, rather the majority of the student body in fact respect and genuinely admire the brothers.

The editorial of October 15, described the above organization as a perverse subculture, displaying offensive social characteristics and in general, misfits that to the writer have no warranted proposition in our "respectable" university. Well damn it, if the Sisaffi don't deserve their place here, then I don't know what does.

What I'm saying is that the Sisaffi's actions, rather outwardly displays, are channeled through the "place" here. The big difference is that the Sisaffi's are more obvious and repressive than the student collective. Almost everyone around here drinks beer. The Sisaffi receive higher acclaim for this feat than the Sisaffi? Who steals the show the accompanying picture playing "Born to knit on the Union lawn" to the editorial will attest to their popularity.

The on-watching students, in this instance, can hardly be expressed with words, their drunken antics on the sidewalk, their boisterousness, their little game of sip my beer, puff on a cigarette, and anxiously wait for some guy to flirt with for a few minutes turns me cooking.

Social grace and respect for the ladies can hardly be expressed in words. A man from Stevens Point's bars. This university's "place" in the Sisaffi organization. The whole bacchanalia culture seems to indicate that similar respect cannot be participated outside the bars either.

The editorial goes on to say that "a prominent member of the State Senate is also a member of the Sisaffi" and that he "serves as, or is a "shadow" cast by his membership in the Sisaffi on students and senatorial representatives of the Student Body ..."

I think the Sisaffi are the epitome of this entire fun-loving but factpective, respect-given college that it's not obvious to you already we are basically ladies who drink, beer freaks and suitcases. A very small minority can claim to be anathema to us all.

Before we ask the Sisaffi to take a stand, before we start making the furore, I found crude reviews too often the result of a cheap H. Belfry. I still marvel at the importance placed on make-up while nothing was mentioned of this being theatre of the absurd or of mime, both important to the play.

Theatre people understand the importance of reviews. When it is unfair it may discourage an audience. As a drama critic I think the review was justified. If you think the reviewers rambles over the muck on the actors' faces and the paint on the set, but unfortunately his intellect glean nothing else.

The actors were good, and the artists, the bell curve reflecting only the highest marks. The reviewer's job is to hold up a mirror and mirror is nothing else. Questions And Answers
MASTERING THE DRAFT

We welcome your questions and comments about the draft law. During the year, we will answer your questions in the column. Send your questions to Mastering the Draft, Suite 1282, 50 East 42nd Street, New York, New York 10017.

Q: Will the student deferment be abolished?

A: On April 23, 1970, the President asked Congress for authority to eliminate the student deferment. Only Congress can provide this authority. In the past, Representative Mendel Rivers, Chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, has been a strong advocate of the student deferment. However, recently he indicated he was having "second thoughts" about his position. He said he was "becoming disenchanted" with the student deferment because of the college disorders fomented by student deferments. With 1959 change in Representatives' positions, the chances for the elimination of the student deferment are greatly increased.

Q: If the student deferment is abolished, what will be my chances of keeping the II-S deferment until I graduate?

A: A recent Senate Armed Services Committee Memorandum provided the following warning: "Under legislation now pending in Congress, a registrant who obtains a II-S deferment should immediately file for a II-S deferment until he graduates." A draft board Memorandum provided the following warning: "Under legislation now pending in Congress, a registrant who obtains a II-S deferment should immediately file for a II-S deferment until he graduates."

Q: Can I get a complete copy of my selective service file?

A: Yes. Your selective service registration is entitled to secure a copy of his file. The procedure is as follows:

1. You should send a letter to your local board requesting a photostatic copy of your selective service file (officially called a Cover Sheet).
2. A copy of the letter must be sent to the state headquarters of the state in which your local board is located. Your local board can tell you the address of the state headquarters.
3. The state director will then write to you informing you of the city in which the copying will be done.
4. Most cities will be the location of the state headquarters.
5. You must then make arrangements with a commercial firm in the city designated. The arrangements should provide that a representative of the Selective Service System will bring in the file for duplication.
6. You must agree with the commercial firm on some form of advance payment or subsequent billing.
7. When you have made the arrangements, write the state director informing him of the name and address of the firm.

The state director will arrange for an employee to take your file to the copying firm and monitor the copying. In order to protect the confidentiality of the file, you must pay $6 per hour, or fraction thereof, in excess of one-quarter hour for the employee's time to monitor the reproduction computing the time from the time of his departure until his return to his post." (7)

The file and its copy will be returned to the state headquarters. You will be sent a bill for the monitoring service. After the bill is paid, you will be sent the copy of your file.

Q: Why is it important for me to have a copy of my file?

A: The copy provides you with precautions against the possibility that local board members or clerks will alter the contents of your file to cover up their mistakes. For example, consider the following recent court case. A young man sought a conscientious objector classification. His local board denied the request, and, as required by law, wrote down the reasons and placed the letter in his file. A few months later, a court, in an unrelated case, declared this particular reason an improper ground for denying a C.O. request. When the young man's board learned of the court case, it opened his file and changed the reason. The young man, aware of his C.O. request so that it now conformed to the law. Ultimately, the young man refused induction. Fortunately, in another court case, his file was complete and the entire man's file before the board members had made any changes. At the trial he noticed the change. The case was thrown out of court with instructions to the U.S. Attorney to investigate the changing of the file contents. Only because he had a complete copy of his file was he able to detect the change.

William Yeats is laid to rest:

Let the Irish vessel lie

Emptied of its poetry.

Time that is intolerant

Of the brave and innocent,

And indifferent in a week

Worships language and forgives

Everyone by whom it lives;

Pardons cowardice, condescends,

Lays its honours at their feet.

Time that with this strange excuse

Pardoned Kipling and his views,

And will pardon Paul Claudel,

Pardons him for writing well.

In the nightmare of the dark

All the dogs of Europe bar,

And the living nations wait,

Each sequented in its hate;

Intellectual disgrace

Stares from every human face,

And the seas of pity lie

Locked and frozen in each eye.

Follow, poet, follow right

To the bottom of the night.

With your unconstraining voice

With the farming of a verse

Make a vineyard of the curse,

Sing of human success

In a rapture of defects;

In the deserts of the heart

Let the healing fountain start,

In the prison of his days

Teach the free man how to praise.

Chamber Orchestra
Concert Reviewed

By Jonathan Bendrick

The Paul Kuenz Chamber Orchestra of Paris is an ensemble of strings and organ.

Their concert Tuesday evening offered several things.

The orchestra is a youthful group of fresh and exciting string players combined with a baroque organ.

The organ produced an ugly, flat sound very unpleasant to the ear.

The repertoire spanned three centuries.

Performers played pieces from Vivaldi to the musical approaches to sound of Hugon.

An awkward situation was created during a break between movements of the first selection.

A portion of the audience began to applaud. At the same time a rear door was opened allowing late-comers to enter.

This phenomenon, being wholly unacceptable, was uncomfortable for everyone.

This excess demand for formality in today's society is revolting.

Then, at other times, tears came to my eyes as I was taken away by the music....

The World of Gilbert and Sullivan

"The World of Gilbert and Sullivan," six-member touring group from London, will present an evening of songs by the famous English composers Monday, October 26 at Stevens Point State University.

Their 8 p.m. show in Main Business Auditorium will be sponsored by the Arts and Lectures Series. Tickets are on sale at the university and are to be available at the door.

Heading the miniature company are Donald Adams, principal bass and Valerie Masterson, former principal soprano for D'Oyly Carte.

Adams has played more than 2,000 Mikados plus appearing in movies and on British and American television programs as solist. Miss Masterson now is a member of the Salzburg Opera Company, has been in residence at Central City in Denver, Colorado, and a regular student among the opera masters in Italy.

Others in the travelling company are Thomas Round, tenor, who also has sung with the Sadler's Wells Opera Company; John Carter, a recording artist; Helen Landis, central of film and recording fame who appeared in the recent musical "The Sound of Music."

"Oliver;" and Michael Moeres, conductor who also leads the Sadler's Wells Company and has been music producer for B.B.C. television plus the motion pictures pictures "Tamb Jones;" "Charge of the Light Brigade;" "Moll Flanders;" and "A Nice Girl Like Me."
Buffy Vitalizes Indian Cause

Folk singer Buffy Sainte-Marie brought enthusiasm and unity to the Menominee cause as she lent her voice in protest over the sale of Menominee land for Legend Lake vacation homesites. Approximately 500 people, many of whom participated in the protest march on the homesite sales office, gathered in the Woodland Bowl, a natural amphitheater, to hear Buffy perform.

In DRUMS, Determination of Rights and Unity for Menominee Stockholders, who sponsored the demonstration is concerned over the sale of choice Indian land by Menominee Enterprises, Inc., and N.E. Isaacson & Associates of Reedsburg. The group marched around the sales office while perspective property buyers unsuccessfully tried to ignore them.

After termination was forced on the Menominoes in 1961, the government decided to set up a board of directors and a seven man voting trust for the Menominee Enterprises. The board of directors are white, so self-determination did not result with termination. In essence, termination liberated the Menominee of any treaty privileges they enjoyed as Indians such as educational grants and health benefits, yet retained the white man's control over their lands and lives.

When termination went into effect in 1961, the tribe had $10,000,000 in the federal treasury, over 200,000 acres of Wisconsin's finest hardwood and pine forests, and land and timber assets estimated at about $40,000,000. Less than ten years later, the Menominee Enterprises, under the white man's supervision is so deep in poverty that it is forced to sell some if its choice land.

Money from the sale of this land will only bring temporary relief and in a few years they will be forced to sell more. This sale of land will expand the tax base, but it will also incur greater costs to the county as sewage systems, roads and other facilities will have to be provided to accommodate the residents building summer cottages on their newly acquired lake and lots.

The saddest aspect of this matter, which Miss Sainte-Marie brought out was the despair she viewed in the Menominoes. "I saw tears in their eyes" she explained. "They said the reason they are not with us was because they have given up." Also, since most Indians work for Menominee Enterprises, they are afraid to speak out against its actions for fear of losing their jobs.

Amid this very solemn event, Buffy brought humor and zest to her audience with songs like "The General He Don't Ride Well Anymore," a satire on Custer, "To Some He Was A Hero But to Me He's Bating Zero," "The General He Don't Ride Well Anymore" brought laughs and cheers from the interested crowd.

Buffy Sainte-Marie explained that this act of termination was merely an experiment. It failed, and the government should again assume it's responsibility, guaranteed by treaties, before the Menominee lose all their land. "I feel the majority of the Indians," she continued, "are not profiting from the sale of land here."

Buffy explained how the government divides groups as they are doing with the Menominee, and that the concerned people listening should encourage the others to join them in their common struggle. "Tell them," she said, "come on, be Indians, it's fun."

Putting pressure on congressional representation is important and she urged her listeners to encourage their congressman to support a new congressional petition abolishing termination. She ended her performance half singing, "We've been a long time coming, we've been a long time gone, and you are going to see a lot more of us from now on."

These photographs, taken Sunday October 18 by the Pointer at the Menominee demonstration in Keshena, Wisconsin, correspond to last week's centerfold feature, detailing the background of the Menominee protest.
FBI Wis Bombing Report Examined

Madison, Wisc. (CPS) - Two weeks ago, the Mathematics Research Center (AMRC) at the University of Wisconsin filed an affidavit alleging that certain men were involved in the bombing.

The affidavit states that the people of this country know about the alleged involvement of these men in the bombing. The affidavit itself is contained in that one page document.

Just how accurate and correct is this powerful affidavit?

Four major areas of evidence presented by the FBI are questionable:

1. The evidence presented by the FBI that the bomb was made from fuel oil.

2. The identity of the four suspects. The FBI has alleged that the bomb was made from fuel oil.

3. The evidence presented by the FBI that the bomb was made from fuel oil.

4. The evidence presented by the FBI that the bomb was made from fuel oil.

In any case, Sliter's story by Jim Hougan printed in the Capital Times, Sliter is quoted as remarking that young people like the Armstrongs would never tell "anything like that (the bombing)" to an old man like him.

Sliter claims he is being used and reused. Other observers of the scene, familiar with FBI methods, contend that the release of the name of a prime informant is very rare in cases like the bombing. One theory speculates that Sliter is being used by the FBI to cover up for their true informer, if indeed they have one.

In any case, Sliter's credibility as a witness, should the case ever come to trial, has already been seriously undermined.

Waste Treatment Grants Cut

The Senate has joined the House in allowing only $1 billion for fiscal 1971 waste treatment grants instead of an authorized $1.5 billion, according to the Senate Subcommittee on Public Works. The authorization was overruled by the House. The Senate Subcommittee, chaired by Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, recommended the full $1.5 billion. The Senate voted three times to reduce the authorization, and each time the House voted to restore the full amount.

Conservations were disappointed that the Congress did not allow the full $1.5 billion, efforts were made to learn what happened within the Senate Subcommittee on Public Works in the Senate. It was reported that Senator Allen J. Ellender (La.), chairman, recommended the full $1.5 billion. However, a one-vote, 51-50, vote was overridden by the Senate Committee when statistics showed the Senate would lose by about $1.5 billion if it said no. The House approved a supplemental budget request.

Counties To Protect Shorelines

Orders requiring compliance with Wisconsin's shoreline protection regulations have been issued to 20 counties, the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) announced today. The 20 counties have so far failed to demonstrate adequate progress toward adoption of ordinances for the protection of shorelands in unincorporated areas, as required by statute.

Wisconsin's 1965 water resources law gave the DNR authority to approve or disapprove of county shoreline ordinances, and to formulate such ordinances for delinquent counties with costs being charged back to them.

Requirements of the DNR orders vary according to individual circumstances. In general, however, the orders establish February 1, 1971, as a final deadline for adoption of regulations. In many cases, county officials have told DNR that proposed ordinances are ready for submission to their county board.

The shoreland protection requirement specifies that counties shall enact satisfactory zoning regulations, land division controls, and sanitary rules, and that administrative procedures to implement them, including appointment of an administrator, be adopted. The 20 counties in unincorporated areas have so far failed to comply with one or more of these requirements:

- Adams, Ashland, Bayfield
- Buffalo, Burnett, Door
- Douglas, Fond du Lac, Iron, Kenosha, Racine, Rock
- Rusk, Sawyer, Sheboygan, Taylor, Walworth, Washburn and Waushara

Predators Protected

The archaic practice of undisciplined predator control is fading slowly, according to the Wildlife Management Institute. Officials of the Oklahoma Department of Wildlife Conservation recently announced that predator control is no longer practiced on the McCurtain County Wilderness Area. The area was established as an inviolate sanctuary for all forms of wildlife, including coyotes, wolves, and bobcats. It is being managed to maintain a stable population of ecological condition within the state. Tackling this, all species, including predators are being protected.

The 20 counties have so far failed to demonstrate adequate progress toward adoption of ordinances for the protection of shorelands in unincorporated areas, as required by statute.

Wisconsin's 1965 water resources law gave the DNR authority to approve or disapprove of county shoreline ordinances, and to formulate such ordinances for delinquent counties with costs being charged back to them.

Requirements of the DNR orders vary according to individual circumstances. In general, however, the orders establish February 1, 1971, as a final deadline for adoption of regulations. In many cases, county officials have told DNR that proposed ordinances are ready for submission to their county board.

The shoreland protection requirement specifies that counties shall enact satisfactory zoning regulations, land division controls, and sanitary rules, and that administrative procedures to implement them, including appointment of an administrator, be adopted. The 20 counties in unincorporated areas have so far failed to comply with one or more of these requirements:

- Adams, Ashland, Bayfield
- Buffalo, Burnett, Door
- Douglas, Fond du Lac, Iron, Kenosha, Racine, Rock
- Rusk, Sawyer, Sheboygan, Taylor, Walworth, Washburn and Waushara

Predators Protected

The archaic practice of undisciplined predator control is fading slowly, according to the Wildlife Management Institute. Officials of the Oklahoma Department of Wildlife Conservation recently announced that predator control is no longer practiced on the McCurtain County Wilderness Area. The area was established as an inviolate sanctuary for all forms of wildlife, including coyotes, wolves, and bobcats. It is being managed to maintain a stable population of ecological condition within the state. Tackling this, all species, including predators are being protected.

Superior Yellowjackets Outlast Pointers

Hand Point 22-7 Homecoming Defeat

Superior took possession. This was the last serious threat the Pointers were to make for the afternoon.

All scoring shortly ended as Superior again used Mertzig to carry in the goods, this time scoring from a two yard dive over right tackle. And Mertzig was there for a 2-point scoring strike from quarterback Russ to put the frosting on the Yellowjacket cake, 22-7.

And now it’s the Pointers turn to become spoiler. They travel Saturday to Menominee to take on the Stout Blue Devils at their Homecoming, and if the prospects of upsetting any Homecoming plans the Blue Devils might have aren’t enough incentive, the Pointers might take some encouragement in Stout’s D-4 record. We’re still looking for our first win too, you know.
