The University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point will hold its seventh annual "Summer Theatre Festival" during the month of July.

Dr. Selden Faulkner, chairman of the drama department, said four shows have been arranged, each to be presented on Wednesday through Saturday nights at 9 p.m. in the Warren Card Jenkins Theatre of the Fine Arts Building.

The schedule: "Dracula," July 5 to 8; "lovers," July 12 to 15; "Blithe Spirit," July 19 to 22; and "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown," July 26 to 29.

Faulkner said tickets for the shows will be more expensive this year because the Senate Senate Finance Committee, which funds the fine arts, "called" for an increase in prices due to rising costs and a limited budget.

Students with identification cards will be admitted at a rate of 50 cents per performance and members of the public, $2.50 per performance. Season tickets will not be available, but it is possible to order passes for all performances at one time to assure reserved seating. Persons who order the tickets by contacting the drama box office, either by mail or telephone.

Alice Peet Faulkner will direct "Blithe Spirit," the classic chiller which is comprised of two one-act comedies by Brian Friel. The show recently closed on Broadway where a New York Times Critic called it "simply hilarious." Faulkner said comedy is Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit," which is filled with the following ingredients, according to Professor Charles L. Milton, Husk's department head: "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown," featuring the Peanuts characters of Charles Schultz. The season includes Snooky challenging the Red Baron, Lucy lecturing Linus and Charlie pitching baseballs. Professor Faulkner said it is intended to be entertaining for persons of all ages.

Tickets for the four plays to be presented in the Summer Theatre Festival in July at the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point will go on sale June 15.

The box office will be open between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturdays.

In a meeting on June 20, the Academic Council approved a proposal to move the spring recess back three weeks. The proposal, submitted by Registrar Gilbert Faust and Vice Chancellor Gordon Herber- tecker, which was passed unanimously, shifted the spring recess from April 13-20 to March 25-31.

The recess was shifted due to the fact that it would occur very late in the term, and would leave only 17 days of classes and exams after the break.

A recommendation that students and faculty have April 20, Good Friday, off was also passed.

The council also approved continuation of the present policy of holding commencement on the Sunday afternoon preceding the last day of examinations. The commencement dates for the 1972-73 school year will be Sunday, December 17, 1972, and May 13, 1973.

It was also recommended that the newly formed Academic Affairs Committee review the 1972-74 calendar in regard to future recess and commencement dates.

Campus School

Now

Gesell Institute

In December of last year an old landmark of the UW-SP campus received a new name and function. The Campus School is now known as the Gesell Institute for Study of Early Childhood.

Previously the top floor of the building is being renovated to accommodate space for the Department of Education. Video taping and self-instruction are two aspects of the Education Department that will be using the facilities.

The remainder of the Gesell building will be used to school 275 pupils with specific learning disabilities. Their disabilities will be of a "perceptual nature" according to Dr. John Pearson, Professor of Education and Director of the University Laboratory Elementary School. A learning disability involves the senses of hearing, seeing and touching.

Dr. Pearson stressed that the Gesell Institute will be the only institution without a large radius of Central Wisconsin. It will provide the laboratory needed to train students and teachers in the field of Learning Disabilities. As a laboratory it will afford the student the opportunity to work directly with the pupils. The usual method of observing the classes will be from the Gesell student as well.

Increasing the number of well-trained teachers will be the primary importance of the Gesell Institute. As for the future of the Institute, Dr. Pearson pointed out the need for teachers in the field of Learning Disabilities is great. In the midst of a 50 per cent unemployment rate among school teachers this is welcome news for some students in this area of study.

New High For Summer Enrollment

Enrollment for the 64th annual summer session at the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point may reach an all-time high.

The registrar’s office reported that approximately 2,400 persons had signed up through June 15, 1972. These numbers will be on the roster by summer’s end.

The total figure would then approach the 3,700 mark and compare with about 2,550 which was a record figure last year. A final count is impossible even at the end of the first week of the summer session because there will be several special workshops held later.

A General In "Wolf's Clothing"

Protests from outraged conservationists have apparently convinced the Department of Natural Resources to cancel their order for 250,000 pounds of wolf fur.

In a letter to Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird, the Executive Vice President of the National Wildlife Federation, Thomas Kimball, stated that one half of the wolves remaining in North America would have to be killed in order to fill the contract.

Kimball based this estimate on the size of the hoods, approximately 1 ½ " wide and 45" long, and stated that about ten ruffs could be made from the average wolf hide, calling the killing of 25,000 wolves to fill the order.

The Timber Wolf exists in sizable numbers only in Canada and Alaska, and is carried on the Federal government’s list of endangered species.

Last week, the Defense Supply Agency announced that the order for the wolves had been canceled, and that some suitable substitute, possibly a synthetic substance, would be used instead.

Minorities Center Moved Here

The University of Wisconsin System’s ethnic and minorities studies center will be moved from the Platteville to the Stevens Point campus this fall.

The UW Board of Regents approved the new change Friday at a regular monthly meeting in Madison.

Basically the center is a clearing house for the UW on information and materials dealing with all minority groups. Bibliographies, syllabi and booklists are prepared.

Dr. Norman Lederer of the Platteville history faculty, will take up residence in Stevens Point in operating the center locally for at least one year. A secretary will be hired.

System Receives $89 Million

-Gifts, grants and government contracts are running nearly $111 million above last year’s income from these sources for the University of Wisconsin System.

This increase was reported Friday to the Board of Regents. For the five months ending May 31, the total was nearly $93 million. The total of gifts, grants and government contracts for May is approximately $14 million.

Most of the funds went to the former UW units, more than half for research projects.

The former Wisconsin State Universities received approximately $322,500, with more than $172,000 going to UW-Stevens Point from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for construction projects and payment of interest.

Gifts and grants for the past month ranged from a $10 contribution to a scholarship fund to a $2,755,000 gift from the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation to support research at Madison and Milwaukee for 1972-73. The WARB gift includes $3,200,000 for Madison and $555,000 for Milwaukee.

Lucey Dedicates Treatment Plant

By Ellie Peterson

Governor Patrick Lucey participated in the dedication of Consolidated Papers Wisconsin River Division's new primary treatment plant Wednesday, June 21, with introductory remarks and the unveiling of the dedication plaque.

The $830,000 water pollution abatement system has been in operation since last November. The plant has reduced the amount of solid effluents discharged into the Wisconsin River from 12 tons daily to 2 tons daily, meeting the water quality standards of the State's Department of Natural Resources.

Process water from the mill is piped to the clarifier where the settleable solids are collected and processed through a centrifuge to sludge used for landfill.

George Mead, Chairman of Consolidated Papers, Inc., reviewed Consolidated's "ongoing, continuing environmental control program" and continued: "Obviously, environmental control programs are expensive; yet it needs to be done. We must balance cleanup programs - environmental protection, however, with the economics of our operations, so at the same time we protect the security of our operations which in turn has critical impact on all of us - employees, communities, and the State."

Mead called attention to two "unsolved" problems concerning the effluent: "The first is that it occurs at all. There ought not to be anything inherent in the papermaking process which would cause these particulate materials to go to this treatment system.

"Secondly, the only feasible disposition of the solid material after it is separated from the water stream is as land-fill. Surely there must be a better use for this by-product."

Mead urged continuing research in these areas.

Students To Participate In Wine Tasting

A "wine tasting" sponsored by the Wine Growers of California will be held at 3:00 P.M. Monday (today) in the student Union's Nick-Jo Marquette Room.

The Wine Growers of California will supply locally purchased wines for this event so it will reflect wines students can purchase on their own. Bread and cheese and educational brochures will also be provided.

The "wine tasting" is estimated to take less than two hours. After the comparative tasting, more wine and discussion will be available.

Mary Mosier, Director of Student Activities, encourages interested students to sign up at the University Center Information Desk or at Pray-Sims Hall.

Participants must be 18; ID's will be checked.

Change In Status Concerning Travel

Section 20.916 (4) (c) relating the use of a personal automobile in lieu of public transportation was amended to read as follows:

"For travel between points convenient to be reached by railroad, bus or commercial airplane without unreasonable loss of time, the allowance for the use of a personal automobile shall not exceed the lowest cost of the most practical means of public transportation between such points. The department of administration shall give due consideration to the circumstances in each case when determining the most practical means of public transportation. Reimbursement for meals and lodging shall not exceed what would ordinarily have been required had the most practicable form of public transportation been used."

The amended law quoted above seems reasonably clear in its intent to limit the travel reimbursement for an employee who elects to use his own car on state business instead of lower cost public transportation. Travel expenditures will be audited on this basis, and all agencies should inform their employees of this fact.

Section 20.916 (4) (e) was created to read as follows:

"When an assigned or pool state-owned automobile is available and tendered, and an employee exercises the option to utilize his personal automobile, the mileage allowance shall be a rate equal to the approximate cost of operation of state cars, including depreciation."

We have been advised that further information on this subject is being issued by the Department of Administration and Central Administration of the University of Wisconsin System. These regulations will be put in effect for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1972.

The University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point travel procedures manual is being amended to show this change.

Any questions concerning this change in the statues should be referred to Mr. Kelch at extension 4129.

The Ellsberg-Russo Trial: Defraud or Patriotism?

Former President Lyndon Johnson received a million dollars for his recent book, which quoted extensive portions of the Pentagon papers. The New York Times received journalism's most coveted award - the Pulitzer Prize - for publishing portions of the Pentagon papers. Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo, the men who first disclosed the contents of those same papers face one hundred years in prison. Ellsberg and Russo now stand charged with conspiracy to disclose classified government information to the public.

In the United States government itself has decided to demolish, administratively, the people of the United States. The Pentagon papers prove that the war in Vietnam is not in support of freedom and self-determination but in fact an unjustifiable intervention intended to preserve the U.S. hegemony in Southeast Asia and project the political leadership of anti-communist governments at home.

A conviction under the Espionage Act can come about only if the release of the classified information involves military secrets and the individual releasing the information is proven to believe that the disclosure will injure the United States or benefit a foreign nation. The indictment of Ellsberg and Russo would seem to imply that the government considers the American people an alien power. No one in American history has ever been prosecuted for revealing information to the American public, not under the Espionage Act or any other statute.

The Ellsberg-Russo trial offers a unique opportunity for us to evaluate our position on this vital moral issue. The Ellsberg-Russo trial offers a unique opportunity for us to re-examine our position on this vital moral issue.

To Chicago In An Oxcart

There is no question that Consolidated's highly-touted new clarifier in Whiting will withdraw some papermill pollution from the Wisconsin River. But it is like getting to Chicago in an oxcart.

In this day and age we can treat effluent so that the product water can be recycled, so that it is clean enough to be re-used. There should be no need to continue to run effluent into streams and lakes in public waters.

Organic waste - it has been shown - can be recovered and converted into valuable products. Done right, it means not only a savings in recovery process, or even provide a modest profit. Markets have to be developed for these products, but this must be the responsibility of the paper industry and society in a joint effort.

I am appalled that our Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources allows the continued pollution of our public waters so that flesh and fish of causes our noses to twist indignant and our stomachs to turn. The fish are not pollution killed, but to the fisherman and to the cook they may just as well be.

There is a problem that hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent on an antiquated system which is clearly not the answer to our problems. Clarifiers and lagoons are standard "pollution abatement" equipment for many paper companies.

Unfortunately they are only partially effective. Many harmful substances are still released into our rivers.

I am appalled that modern technology for handling waste has been bypassed under the pretext that its worth has not been proven. How can anyone use such an argument when the proven effectiveness and worth of Consolidated's "miracle" clarifier is like Tom Thumb coming up to bat.

I am appalled that modern technology has been bypassed under the pretext that its worth has not been proven. How can anyone use such an argument when the proven effectiveness and worth of Consolidated's "miracle" clarifier is like Tom Thumb coming up to bat.

The tragic truth is that Consolidated's dedication is that it is too little. Public pressure for less pollution will grow as our concrete begins to weather, new orders will be issued demanding less pollution.

How long will our piecemeal approach continue? How long will the beautiful Wisconsin River suffer by injury? Why do we stand by while she is being abused? Where is our self-respect?

Garrison Continued

In Vancouver, Les Slimon, zone office manager for GM, confirmed that a Paul Mason had been employed by the firm and had called Tuesday to announce that he was quitting and returning the company car. Said Slimon, "He reported in occasionally but there have been a hell of a lot of times when I haven't been able to get hold of him. He hadn't done us a real lot of good here," said Slimon.

Another GM spokesman in Oshawa, R.F. Baker, was asked under what circumstances Gervais had been hired and replied, "I'll have to take the Fifth Amendment on that one." Gervais said that he received $4,000 a year tax free from the U.S. government. He also asserted that the U.S. and Canadian governments had colluded to gain his entry into Canada and to secure his employment at GM.

The chief spokesman for Garrison in New Orleans told Earth News that Mr. Garrison would make no comment on the incident. "It's a matter between the Justice Department and Mr. Gervais," said the spokesman.

Earth News learned that Gervais left Vancouver Tuesday to travel to car to New Orleans. He was not available for further comment.

Haight - Ashbury Is Here

Attorney General Robert W. Warren said that narcotics drug trafficking has increased substantially throughout Wisconsin and added that the same kind of drug symptoms of the Haight-Ashbury District two years ago are now beginning to show in Wisconsin. "Within the last two years, our intelligence reveals that a new style of heroin addict consists of alienated white yuppies who have traveled to the Midwest and are now beginning to show itself in Wisconsin," Warren stated. "Between 1970 and 1971 we had a 173 per cent increase in the number of opiate sale violations. Of even greater significance is the fact that during the first three months of this year, the number of opiate buys equals or more than two-thirds of all opiate buys made in 1971.

The evidence of these sales is clear in southeastern Wisconsin and in particular, metropolitan Milwaukee," he explained. "Recent intelligence confirms that the sale of opiates, mostly heroin, has begun to spread outside of southeast Wisconsin and into some of our less urban areas.
