Family Planning Service Available

The Family Planning Service of Portage County, with a new Main Street location, offers a variety of services to any inquirer. Information, referral services, and financial aids are available.

FPS has been in operation in Stevens Point since October, 1971 but moved in June of this year to a convenient new location at 132A Main, above the City News Stand. Another Main Street location refused to rent to the Service.

Ilona Rooda, chairperson of the Family Planning Service, reports funding of $6200 from the Wisconsin Division of Health. $4200 of this is used to subsidize doctor and drug expenses for those unable to bear the whole cost, based on a sliding income scale. The remaining $2000 is used for general overhead.

The Stevens Point United Fund also made a $1000 allocation to the Service, making the Portage County FPS the first in the state to win such support.

FPS will answer any questions about contraceptives, reproduction, venereal disease, pregnancy, infertility problems and adoption. Free brochures are provided and reference books available, with numerous visual AIDS employed.

The Family Planning Service will also provide a list of area doctors who have indicated willingness to prescribe and fit contraceptives; a list of drugstores where contraceptives are available with a price listing; a list of abortion referral agencies in Madison and Milwaukee, and a summary of services available to students through the University Health Center.

The Service is open Tuesday evenings, 7-9:30, and Saturday afternoons, 1-4. The office is staffed by two volunteer workers at all times, working one day per month. These counsellors have taken training from medical personnel consisting of lectures and extensive reading.

FPS indicates the average number of inquiries per day is three or four, making prompt and personal service as close to perfect as possible. Visitors are not questioned as to age or marital status.

Don Luce
Student Senate
Ethnicity
On September 14th and 15th, the UW-SP campus hosted internationally known Vietnam expert Don Luce, who appeared in conjunction with the Indochina Mobile Education Project (IMEP) at the local YMCA, spoke to several university classes during his two day visit.

The IMEP is independent support afforded by several national church organizations, aims to provide educational material on the culture, history, and everyday life of the Indochinese to communities in the United States.

Luce is co-author of the book, Viet Nam: The Unheard Voices and has testified before the special Congressional Ad Hoc Committee on the Pentagon Papers.

The Pointer spoke with Luce prior to his departure on the 15th, and the following is an account of that conversation.

Pointer: When were you in Vietnam, and in what capacity were you there?

Luce: I went in 1958 and was there from "58 until May, 1971. In '71 I was kicked out because I took two U.S. congressmen out to the Tiger Cages at Con Son. (Con Son, which housed the "Tiger Cage" isolation cells, is one of South Vietnam's largest prisons.)

I started as an agricultural volunteer, I was working on sweet potatoes in the villages and so on, until '61, and then was the director of the International Voluntary Services (IVS). A Peace Corps type organization, but one that has volunteers from many different countries. I was the IVS Director from '61 to '67 then resigned and came back to this country in '68. I was a back in '68 as a journalist and wrote for the San Francisco Chronicle and a couple of other papers, and was working on a book by Dispatch News Service. Then in June, '69 (1) joined the World Council of Churches, and then in May, '70 took the two congressmen out to the Tiger Cages. There were 180 men, 300 women that were kept in these five feet by ten feet cells, and they were begging for food and water, and so on. Since then, one of the things which has not been reported very widely is that after the publicity here, the Saigon government first said they were going to do away with them, then they ordered the political prisoners to build new ones as a self-help project. They have released them, but their own Tiger Cages were put back into shackles. Then on January 26th, the U.S. government gave us a $400,000 contract to an American contracting firm to build 364 new Tiger Cages, or isolation cells as they're called in the contract, which are two square feet smaller than the former ones. (The new ones are six feet by eight feet)

Pointer: So they still do exist, and where do they exist?

Luce: The new ones were built by the United States, on Con Son, the same place. One of the things that was interesting to me was that American papers, for example, all were interested in what was going on about the Tiger Cages when it first came out. Almost none of them (only three newspapers according to Luce) printed about building new Tiger Cages. I think the difference is that when the Tiger Cage story came out, this showed Vietnamese mistreating other Vietnamese; building new Tiger Cages showed Americans mistreating Vietnamese. So a lot of the newspapers editors, I think, just decided not to print it because they were afraid it would be bad for advertising or something like this.

Pointer: Could you give us some background on how you got the information about the cages initially, and how you got it published?

Luce: Yes, a friend of mine had spent 14 months in the Tiger Cages, and after he was released and talked with me, I translated a report that he had written. I got this to a group of 10 American Congressmen, and one of them was interested. It was Congressman Hawkins of the Watts area of Los Angeles. Hawkins asked some other congressmen to come to his hotel room, and two of them came, neither of them would believe me about the tiger cages even though he had shown them scars on his body where he'd been shackled, where he'd been beaten in prison. So that's what got it published?

Pointer: What do you think about U.S. Education Program in Vietnam, and specifically, do you know about this university's role in that?

Luce: Let me comment on first the U.S. aid program to Vietnam. We've been giving through a period of increases in American aid to things like the police and prisons, and a decrease in aid to many of the social services and so on, like education, agriculture and public health. For example, aid to the police and prisons in 1970 was $28.9 million, in 1971 this increased to $30 million. At the same time, our aid to the education system went from $61 million down to $4.3 million. So in '71 for example, we were spending about six times as much tax money on the police and prisons as we were on the entire education system. The questions that I would have about Americans working in Vietnamese education, I think one is that you have to be very, very careful in the past the United States has, either consciously or unconsciously, changed many of the things in terms of the culture and the cultural values. For example, most of the textbooks for the grade school children in Vietnam are written by Americans. Now when you look at these very carefully you find that much of the history has been cut out, particularly the history in terms of the war against the French. The second concern that I have is that most of the student leadership is in prison; many of the students themselves are in prison. So that our aid to the education system, particularly at the university level, and at the high school level to a lesser but still important extent, is really aid to help the children of the elite and those few students who agree to support the Saigon regime. I think that if a university is working with the universities of Vietnam, it has to protest, very loudly and very clearly, the arrests and the torture of the Vietnamese students. This is very well-documented. It's been in American newspapers, the Vietnamese themselves have protested it from Vietnam. (Luce quoted an Aug. 13th article from the New York Times which detailed the torture of several students. The information had been smuggled out of South Vietnamese prisons.) So that I think that an American university that works with universities in another country has responsibility not only to the government of the country where we are working, but also a very important responsibility to the students. If the government of that country is arresting and imprisoning the students, then it seems to me that the university, as a saster university, has a responsibility to speak out very loudly and very clearly. Perhaps the University of Wisconsin has done this, or will do this soon. I would hope the university here would find out exactly what's happening to these students, and make sure you don't get involved in assisting, or just doing your eyes to, the widespread arrest of all of the student leadership and the students themselves.

Probate Reform Controversy Continues

Probate reform has become an important issue in Wisconsin. Organized groups and thousands of petitions are now circulating in the state asking for changes in Wisconsin's probate system. Robert Sweet, a Stevens Point man who is active in the reform campaign, says students should get involved in the reform movement and be interested in helping a student group get started.

The petitions for probate reform originated with a group called Wisconsin Citizens for Legal Reform whose chairman is Walter G. Heiden of Milwaukee. About 75,000 signatures have been handed in to courts in protest of the petitions still in circulation. The goal is 500,000 signatures.

City Attorney Louis Molepske defined probate as the orderly disposition of the deceased's property, that is, all property that the decedent held in his own name, protecting beneficiaries, creditors, and the government.

Basic what happens in probate is that the estate of the decedent is assessed for what is owed, that is, taxes to the state and federal government are paid rightful heirs are proven and the estate is distributed.

When an estate is under $10,000 it is probated by summary assignment and the process is fairly simple and brief, but estates over $10,000 must undergo full probate which includes a court proceeding about three to four months or more to complete. While the estate is probated a personal representative of the decedent or executor takes charge of the estate and hires an attorney, which is where the legal mechanism in motion. The lawyer charges a certain percentage of the estate as his fee.

Wisconsin Citizens for Legal Reform is mainly interested in eliminating the law which requires an attorney to handle estates, thereby saving the court the cost of probating by eliminating the attorney's fee.

The petitioners are asking that the legislature set up an advisory referendum in which voters would be asked about eliminating the assignment of probate.

The referendum would also ask if heirs should be allowed to use a simple form to handle probate and whether the state should be asked to raise from $10,000 to $100,000 the minimum estate which could be probated by summary assignment.

Both Heiden and Sweet feel that most people can handle their probate affairs, particularly if a more simple form is used. Heiden stated that probate should be simple and heirs should be able to look at a step by step procedure which tells them how to handle probate.

Molepske stated that a justification for having a lawyer is that if probate is going to be in the courts, there shouldn't be too many lawyers involved who know nothing about court procedure and legal affairs. The State Supreme Court upheld this position in 1965 when they decided that if the executor is not an attorney, probate matters must be presented in court by an attorney.

The legal profession in Wisconsin is against reform because they feel the layman knows little or nothing about probate, and tax laws have made it complicated. They feel there is a need for a lawyer to tell people what to do in probate matters.

Heiden's group is asking that more probate matters be taken out of the court by having estates under $10,000 handled by summary assignment, which doesn't involve a court hearing. This would help eliminate the supposed need for a lawyer in a courtroom. But Heiden and Sweet also believe that lay people can handle themselves in court, contrary to what some lawyers believe.

Molepske said that there is a lot of work involved in the legal profession, which is familiar with probate laws since there may be legal questions involved and the process can be complicated.

Heiden said this argument is the scare tactic which lawyers use to make people think that probate is so involved that no one but attorneys can handle it.

The other major issue involved, of course, is the fees charged by lawyers for handling probate affairs. The State Bar of Wisconsin has established a minimum fee rate for handling probate. The lawyer can claim 3 percent of the gross on a $10,000 estate, 3½ percent of the next $30,000, and 2½ percent on everything over that.

Molepske was asked if he feels that attorneys put in as much work as they are getting paid for or do their secretaries do most of the work. He said that there is a lot of work involved and even though the secretary may fill out the forms the lawyer must still tell her what to put on the forms because attorneys aren't trained to practice law.

Heiden stated that probate is definitely a lucrative source of income and Sweet said that probate lawyers do as much work as they were getting paid for. Sweet stated that attorneys were lining their own pockets at the public's expense.

Molepske and another local attorney, Martha Babbitch, feel that some estates could be handled without an attorney and Ms. Babbitch said that a good deal of estates could be taken out of the courts. She also suggested that a public expert who is paid by the state be available to people to help them handle probate against higher than the national average and these attorneys must be supported. Sweet does not rule out the possibility that an attorney could be helpful in probate for some people, but he feels that the public should not be made to hire an attorney and he should be paid for the work he does, not just an attorney fee.

Sweet feels that the Bar is the main obstacle in the path of reform. He said that the Bar resists change. He stated that there has been little done in the State Legislature because the assembly judicious committee, which all judicial matters must pass through before coming to a vote, has been made up of mostly attorneys. Some action may be made soon in the senate because the Governor has listed probate reform as one of his top priorities for action, Sweet commented.

Heiden feels that if the goal of 500,000 signatures is achieved in the next few months if reform seems confident it will, then the petitions will be very effective in forcing state officials to change the probate system. Sweet feels that the Bar will come around. He stated that for the good of the Bar the lawyers should want to reform, the better. For the more they resist, the more the issue will last.

Sweet feels that a student group studying this issue would be of great help to the reform campaign. The state and a group at UW-SP and make it a pattern for groups at other universities in the state. He stressed that he would only act as advisor to get the group going. Any interested students should contact him at 1916 Pine Street in Stevens Point.

UW-SP Gets Ethnic And Minority Center

A center designed, in the words of its director, “to get to know our neighbors better” has been established on campus. The Ethnic and Minority Studies Center, originally located at UW-Platteville, moved to UW-SP this summer. The Center, under the direction of Norman Lederer, who also headed it at UW-Platteville, serves as a clearing house for UW campuses on information dealing with ethnic and minority groups and women.

Lederer, a Milwaukee native, earned his bachelor’s degree from UW-Milwaukee. He received his MA from Louisiana State University where he has completed most of the work for his Ph.D.

The Center was transferred, according to Lederer, because the UW-SP faculty and student senate overwhelmingly approved of bringing it here. Lederer added a second factor, noting there is a considerable number of faculty working in ethnic studies on campus.

In 1971, the Center was started as a one-year pilot program at Platteville. If progress was shown, said Lederer, the project would be expanded for another year, either at Platteville or some other campus. Last June, bids were received from Platteville, Waukesha and Stevens Point to move the Center. It was decided Platteville would sponsor the Center because of its central location.

This year, the Center must be a $25,560 budget, funded by the Board of Regents Office in Madison. When the budget expires June 30, 1973, Lederer indicates it will be up to in- individual UW campuses to bid for the Center and provide funding.

Norman Lederer, Director of the Ethnic Minorities Center, and Jane Copp, work study assistant.

Chancellor Dreyfus has already expressed his desire to retain the Center at Point permanently. He has since established monies out of a special supplementary fund to budget the Center at the present level. At this level, once the director and the secretary’s salaries are taken out, only a few hundred dollars is available to carry out the system-wide operations. Lederer receives a salary of $13,500.

“Even though the budget comes from the Board of Regents,” said Lederer, “the school here has been more generous in providing space for the Center and a work study person. I’m sure that given a need for emergency, we could get more, once the year, the University will supply them.”

He added the funding the Center receives from UW-SP for the fiscal year for one work study student doesn’ t take away from any existing account or department budgeting.

Lederer feels some hope for more funds may lie in the Act recently passed by Congress and signed by the President. The Act, which is designed to aid in the creation of ethnic awareness, is awaiting funding.

Encouraging the Center “is not just a service center for minorities.” Lederer termed it “a service center for all students, faculty, administrative and staff personnel.”

The philosophy behind the Center deals with what Lederer calls “ethnics.” He describes ethnics as the influence of ethnic and ethnic backgrounds in the behavior of individuals and in the community. He cont. on page 12.
The residents of Knutzen, Thomson, Burroughs Hansen, Watson, and Schmeeckle Halls: As you may know, I am running for Student Senator, representing the 3rd district. My platform for this campaign is simple, no big promises, just wholehearted representation.

As senator I will try to serve you to the best of my ability. I will try to represent the needs and desires of the students in the 3rd district. I can relate to the feeling of the students of the 3rd district because I have decided to make Stevens Point my home for the next four years. My home town is Muk-wanago, Wis., and my previous experience includes 3 years of high school student council and one year as parliamentarian. I also served on numerous committees in those three years. If you have any questions or comments about my candidacy, please contact me at 122 Burroughs Hall, or call 346-6529.

Voting will be held at the desk of your hall on Sept. 25. Your vote for Gilbert Yeike will be greatly appreciated.

1. Kerry Wilson, will be a candidate in the 4th district. I served last year on the Senate as a member of the University Affairs Committee. Our work included a survey of the various Faculty Committees so that students, and the Student Senate especially, could be more effective in dealing with those committees. I firmly believe that the year's experience can be of great value this year in getting our program passed.

I am strongly in favor of the proposed campus mall and believe the Senate must play an active part in helping the Student Foundation establish a successful student-owned bookstore. I would greatly appreciate your support at the polls on September 26.
New Proposals Suggested

For City Parking

In recent years, the downtown shopping district has encountered problems due to the fact that there is often too much traffic for Main Street to handle. Several years ago Main Street was changed to a one-way street partially in hopes that it would alleviate some of the problems. In the past several weeks the issue of parking has come up with the result of free parking in the city owned lots in the downtown area.

The discussion over the downtown parking situation has been present since the flood of opinion expressed against proposed removal of Highway 10 from Main Street started. It has been estimated that most traffic going through the downtown district on Main Street is not through traffic on the highway but pedestrian shoppers looking for parking spaces.

Last August a suggestion made at a public meeting recommended the removal of all parking on Main Street in the business district for a two-month trial period. The suggestion was taken up by the Stevens Point Parking Meter Board as one of the possible alternatives to moving Highway 10 traffic off Main Street. Much of the support behind this plan was that it was financially easier than constructing a possible bypass.

The Parking Meter Board requested that the local Chamber of Commerce survey the Main Street business firms to learn their feelings on the proposal. A questionnaire undertaken by Dick Sandal, Chamber manager and a member of the Board. Sandal commented that there was an over-all positive response to the questionnaires sent out.

The first question asked the merchants’ opinion concerning the trial Main Street parking ban. Almost three-fourths of those responding were against it. The second proposal dealt with on the questionnaire was favorably overwhelmingly by the merchants. It dealt with the opening of parking lots least utilized in the downtown district for free parking.

Sandal noted that at a meeting of the retailers’ Division of the Chamber of Commerce several weeks ago, the forty members present all opposed the Main Street parking ban.

In discussing the merchants’ feelings on not accepting the measure even for a trial period, Sandal noted two reasons: “We had a growing concern that if the meters were removed from Main Street, a four lane situation would develop tending to speed up the traffic rather than slow it down. It’s difficult for us to get across Main Street in some instances and speeding up the traffic would mean speeding up the same thing.”

Sandal also said that the city had no proposals concerning the immediate addition of new parking lots to make up for the approximately 80 spaces that would be lost on Main Street.

Sandal stated that the downtown merchants felt that free parking in city lots downtown would be something to pursue in the near future, considering the number of parking centers in the outlying areas of the city that provide free parking for their customers. Several announcements have hinted that the number is likely to increase in the immediate future.

On September 14, the idea of banning Main Street parking was dropped by the Board. It then threw its support to the plan advocating free parking.

The Board decided that the program should start by opening the lots at Main and Crosby, and at Water Street South. It was suggested that along with the “first come, first serve” basis for parking, the 2am to 6am parking policy be observed in order to not hamper snow removal and other maintenance. All aspects of the proposal must be approved, however, by the City Common Council.

The major obstacle preventing the possible opening of all city-owned lots to free parking is the $290,000 downtown parking lot expansion program in 1966. At the present rate, it will take four years to repay it. Most opinion expressed recently contends that the debt must be completely paid off before the city will be willing to switch to entirely free parking in all of its lots.

A suggestion calling for the creation of a special assessment district was brought up at one of the Board’s meetings recently. Under the plan, a special tax would be levied against the downtown property owners in order to pay for any new parking lots. It was suggested that such a plan might be feasible in lowering the current debt more quickly, but this was found to be illegal.

Sandal stated that as of yet there was no specific information relating to the building of any new parking lots in the downtown area. He felt, however, that even when all lots were open for free parking the parking spots on Main Street should remain metered because there are “prime spots that people should be willing to pay for”. Stevens Point has recently been included in several phases of the Urban Renewal Program and in the future their planners will submit recommendations concerning the building of new lots if any.

Sandal said that if the Common Council does approve the Boards recommendation, that the results won’t be too dramatic. “This system probably won’t drastically stop the congestion that we have now, but it is worth a try in that it shouldn’t create any additional problems. Hopefully it can continue to add more free parking in the downtown area in the years to come and bring it closer to the shopping district.”

UW-SP Theater Opens New Season

This year, UW-SP has expanded its theater schedule to five plays, one dance theater, and one opera. Supplemented by these productions are Studio Theater productions, which will be presented in the basement of the Jenkins Theater, and are student-directed.

The first play of the season is “What the Butler Saw” running from September 24 through September 30. Directed by Antoinette Levasseur, the play may shock a few members of the audience, when, during the play, a psychiatrist interviewing a secretary asks her to remove her panties. By the end of the play, most of the characters will be “stripped to the audience. When during the play...”

The second play of the season is “The Killing of Sister George” running April 29-May 5. The play depicts the life of a soap-opera actress whose career is about to end. The theme of lesbianism is evident.

The last play of the season is “Soldier Schweik,” directed by Robert Barnach, running April 29-May 5. The play will be performed.

A musical, “My Love My Life,” will run from October 29 and end or the play. The musical portrays some unforeseen consequences found in our books.

The award winning musical, “Company”, will start out the second semester schedule, running from February 11-17. The last play of the season is "The Killing of Sister George" running April 29-May 5. The play depicts the life of a soap-opera actress whose career is about to end. The theme of lesbianism is evident.

Aqua Prowlers Make Ecology Dive

An "ecology dive" will be made by Poseidon's Aqua Prowlers, scuba diving club, next weekend (September 25-24). The dive will be made at Devil's Lake. Divers will attempt to pick up garbage on the lake bottom and dispose of it properly.

Craig Hagen, the Club president, says about 20 members will make the dive. Some of the clubs will also experience in open water diving. Divers have passed the pool course after a full semester of training last year. Have passed a written test, and have only the open water phase uncompleted.

Club advisor Lyman Ecology provided the instructions. This semester Ecology is teaching scuba diving as a regular physical education course. He will judge the dive and Devil's Lake. President Hagen has had six years experience in scuba diving.

Pointer Gets New Office

Earlier this semester the Pointer was evicted from its editorial office to make room for the new university Reservations Office. The Pointer’s request for additional space filed with the Chancellors office resulted in the opening of a summer office from which the Pointer was allowed to choose.

The new office, formerly used by UAB’s “Butt Cellar”, is located on the second floor of the Center, south of the Frank Lloyd Wright Lounge. It will be used as an editorial and business office. Students are asked to take note of the change. University Center staff member Bud Steiner has informed the Pointer that the move will take place as soon as various other changes in center offices are completed. The Pointer will retain its present office for secretarial and reporter’s use.

"Marking Feather No More Needed"

by Pat Girard
A Native American Student

Once began a man of red
he alone knew of the dead
He followed quietly the hidden paths
He respected all, even the rats
He learned about the growing tree
Love was not an absurdity
Cherishing the ground he stepped but soft
Returning back he brought more of his kind
They shared his ways and all were fine
Then one day a different man came
This man gave blankets, to his dismay
Why did he look upon Earth as being this way?
Soon a floating board came with all different men like the trader
Articles given and artifacts taken
A flag was put high to mean something but—it surely was not a treaty that could send messages to the Great Spirit.
Peoples of the floating board then took the feather and made markings for which to speak but like the markings (able to be destroyed)
They also tried the same with the spiritual sky.
Life went good for some time of seasons
Corn grew and women gathered it’s ears,
Squash was cooked for new births to feed upon
The different peoples again returned, with wrapping of cloth that were for trade
Now the red man knew sharing was for all and for everything to be
So cloth was traded for many beads.
When coldness came again the men of red brought deer and antelope from afar,
No making wrappings for their children the red peoples did.
Soon these and many things were shared among both peoples.

When the red man learnt words of his fellow neighbors he soon read the markings
It was agreed a treaty had done good
There he was to remain (the red nation) he undid/Pinned
NO! He cried but could not speak too—it the lost defeat
Another sign came to the men of red
People wearing wraps of black a white with hands together and head bowed to the dead that wanted no evils, no danger of fight
You must follow our words! was the peoples main request, and like the red man, he followed this test.
But found he already believed in the sky and wanted out of the biblical lines
For some moments he went along trying to please these biblical ones and learned of ten great laws to obey, of which some seemed to be dying some are these:

law number five-Thou shalt not kill of which he saw his numbers very ill, law number seven-Thou shall not steal of which he no longer had access to great fields
He was told when the feather marked the treaty his land was “owned” by his peoples
Now he did not understand this—for how can any man own some plot of Mother Earth—how come these different men don’t listen to my peoples beliefs?
This is today a question from the elderly Indian peoples
So that time passed and young ones came, they too were taught of these great laws
It happened not suddenly, but slowly and quietly the red peoples land had become smaller. Was the great spirit not hearing the cries of the red man’s children?
I believe not, but the fifth law was maturing quite rapidly as the biblical one had no powers
Not only did the red peoples find a smaller plot of Mother Earth to survive on but found their brothers and many elders died of unknown causes.
Now there must be an evil operating through these peoples because too their meat was slowly decreasing in herds.
How must we survive if not to have togetherness of our people? How must we be with nothing for child’s hunger?

Cannot we share or maybe sign once more with marking feathers?
The response he was given - and only in time was to keep his numbers small and he was taught of rich foods, herbs and spices.
He learned of farming and was given pebbles of hard metals to trade for his needs.
He found this odd but did of many needs.
Soon bells from afar off made his children learn and no longer could he ever return to the call of the birds in the woodlands.
There was at the time a great number of his tribe being of old,
These people knew that one day Grandmother moon would come and take them - that they find no worry
Again today Grandmother moon is still around no matter how much she sometimes is hidden Again today my people are of old though truths and freedom they are not given
Now, however I listen more carefully to hear them tell of what will come of the future
Now, again their voices are quiet but honest ones are they in these times of riot.

Student Supports Magazine

To the Editor:

Dear Dave Coker,

Do you believe that granting the students' request for a Holman Art and Music Center would solve the parking problems? Also, does the Administration have any interest in creating a student government?

Thank you,

The Administration Responds

To the Editor:

Student supports Magazine

Your letter to Dave Coker regarding the parking issues and the possibility of a Holman Art and Music Center has been received.

While I understand the concerns raised, I must clarify that the Administration's primary focus is to maintain safe and secure facilities for all students and staff. Creating a student government is not within our current scope of operations, but it is a topic we are continually reviewing.

Regarding the parking issues, we have several proposals under consideration. I encourage students to actively participate in these discussions and provide feedback. Thank you for bringing these concerns to our attention.

Sincerely,

Endorses City Bus Service

To the Editor:

Urban University Environment Council

As the Urban University Environment Council, we stand in support of expanded City Bus Service. This initiative aligns with our mission to reduce our carbon footprint and promote sustainability.

It's critical that we work towards a future where public transportation is accessible to all in the community. We endorse this proposal and urge the Administration to consider its implementation.

Thank you for your support and commitment to our shared goals.

Student Senate On Heroin

President Nixon's pledge this week to withdraw U.S. military forces from Vietnam and to start the process of peaceful and lasting settlement in Vietnam and Laos, has once again brought into focus the problem of drug addiction in our society.

In his televised message last night, the President outlined his plan to reduce the flow of drugs into the United States by increasing border controls, information campaigns, and promoting public awareness. He also announced the establishment of new federal agencies to control drug trafficking.

As members of the Student Senate, we are committed to addressing this issue within our campus community. We have already initiated a series of workshops and seminars on drug awareness and prevention. We urge all students to attend these events and to stay informed about the dangers of drug use.

In summary, the Student Senate reaffirms its support for the President's initiatives and encourages all members of our community to actively participate in the fight against drug addiction.

Sincerely,

[Name]

The Elections: Issue

As long as the democratic system ignores the unfaltering issue of the domino theory or the world will suffer from Viet Nam and its consequences.

Student Senate elections and campaigning are not accepted. Are the real issues removed from the current political climate? Student Senate elections and campaigning are not accepted. We urge all students to engage in meaningful discussions and to participate in the political process.
The Standard station on hyws 51 and 10 was built on land zoned for conservation. After it was discovered that Standard Oil wouldn't move Portage Co. and the Town of Hull did. The land was rezoned for commercial use. The penalty, a mere $10.00 per day (from Jan. 19-Feb. 28) for operating without a permit. Such a deal.

Grievances Aired

To the Editor:

To certain freshmen and other students of 1st grade mentality who consistently garbage 2nd Street with their bodies:

We veterans of the college set revere our bars and want to retain them. A particular atrocity, i.e., the numerous physical manifestations we have witnessed polluting our local drinking environment by blocking the main thoroughfare to those utopias that we find necessary to sustain our equilibrium and maintain our sanity after a week of academic grind, will in all probability be resultant in the termination of alcoholic establishments on 2nd Street.

Most of you are probably not paying taxes as we are. Not only are you wasting our money in the form of wages for those police officers who must be hired to babysit you, but you are endangering and threatening the existence of our places of leisure, i.e., Gym Mill, Big Daddy's, and the Yacht Club. For those of you who have reading difficulties or lack of concern to consult local publications, all three of these establishments hold probationary liquor licenses. Discrepancies in protocol of various patrons of the 2nd Street Educational Extension Facilities for Independent Study will be resultant in the removal of these probationary licenses and should accept responsibility for their actions. Prior to the enactment of the eighteen year-old drinking law, no disruptions of this sort commonly occurred on 2nd Street.

We find it amazing that no disruptions or blocking of the street occur after the younger students have departed from the premises, e.g., Between 1 o'clock and 2 o'clock a.m. during this hour the situation seems to revert back to what it was prior to March of last spring '71. In our years of frequenting the 2nd Street bars we note that no police action was necessary until 18-21 year olds began to frequent these places.

It becomes obvious to us, as well as to many of the upper class students that juvenility still exists in our younger "adults" who by their actions are ruining things for others even though these supposed "adults" made claims of responsibility and considered themselves "adults" in their requests for an eighteen year-old drinking law. We have seen little if any of this adulthood and responsibility among these students.

If those of you who cause these disruptions consider yourselves adults, then please accept the responsibility by behaving as adults.

In simple down to earth language:

Pointer: What do you think about President Nixon's programs?

Luce: I think the most important point about President Nixon is that he has not wound down the war, he's merely changed tactics. He's changed from a ground war to an air war, he has increased the technology. The number of Vietnamese, Cambodians and Laotians being killed has been increased. He has widened the war into Cambodia. We are no closer to peace in 1972 than we were in 1968. One thing I would agree with President Nixon on, and that is a statement he made in 1968. That is that if a president cannot end the Vietnam War in four years, he should not be re-elected. I am not saying that President Nixon should not be re-elected, I'm only saying that if he doesn't end the war before November he shouldn't be re-elected.

Luce: I think that the best thing for the United States and for the South Vietnamese people would be a complete withdrawal of American soldiers, bombs, and military support to the Saigon regime. I think if we did that there would be peace in Vietnam, and the American prisoners of war would all be released.

Pointer: You do think that after a withdrawal the North and the South Vietnamese could resolve their problems?

Luce: That's right, I think that there would, say within three to five years, be a unification of Vietnam. I think the immediate effect of a withdrawal would be a government of reconciliation in the south, that is a coalition between the NLF (National Liberation Front) and the non-communist opposition to the Saigon regime.

deepen, but not as much as others. It is not yet clear how deeply it (ethnically) goes. I think what we can learn from it is that people make strengths they persevere.

Lederer states that he hasn’t found racism on campus, but added “anywhere you get any group of people together you get racism of one form or another.” He went on to say racism is built into the educational system, media and parental attitudes.

“There is no criteria for judging one ethnic group more racist than another,” noted Lederer. He stated the Center is against labeling certain groups with certain attitudes. He added the Center is trying to curb and eradicate racism on campus by providing ethnic data and by making the faculty aware of the need to emphasize minority cultures.

However, Lederer said “bleeding-heart liberalism is just as condescending as racism.”

The Center gathers its data from 50 state newspapers in addition to pamphlets and reports. Bibliographies, syllabi and book lists are compiled to aid in finding information. Lederer reports an average of five people daily seek information on ethnic and minority topics. Recent requests have dealt with feminist studies and the women’s rights movement.

He invites students doing term papers to use the Center’s facilities or other information sources fail to provide adequate material. He noted the library of ethnic press classifications are out of date, as far as ethnic and minority groups are concerned, because much of this material is found in pamphlets, periodicals and reports is not easily classified.

Students For Bablitch Organize

The University Committee for the Election of Bablitch has announced its committee for the November election. Members are: Jim McGivern, Jim Hamilton, Maggie Balistreri, Tom Wimpel, Ron Kolok and Patty Gleitmon. The committee was formed to support Bill Bablitch, candidate for the 24th State Senate seat, in the University community, and is open to all students and faculty.

The committee headquarters are located in the basement of Papa Joe's Cocktail Lounge, 233 Division Street.

A UW-SM identification card is an innocent-looking 3½-inch, combination of plastic and paper which is used for various purposes throughout the school year. For instance:

- An ID card is necessary to check out books from the library.
- The ID will admit you to many university activities.
- The ID admits you to those food center meals.
- An ID can be entertainment as the object in "Find the ID Card!"

To replace the ID card, if you lose the game along with your card, costs you $2.00.

After several inquiries into the policy by a Pointer reporter, Student Affairs has decided to change the present system. As explained by Dr. Leonard Gibb, Associate Dean of Students, current copies of off-campus student ID cards will be kept at Campus Protection and Security. The policy concerning on-campus ID cards will not change. At the end of the school year all the ID card copies will be destroyed. Those copies presently stored will also be destroyed.

Platteville Clobbers

Pointers 51 To 0

by Dave Worzalla and Tim Sullivan

The Pointer football team journeyed to Platteville last Saturday to take on the rugged Pioneers. As the saying goes, 'That was a big mistake.' Point was destroyed 51 to 0.

In the first quarter, Platteville was having a tough time trying to move the ball against the Pointer defense. Late in the first period, the Pioneers Greg Weist punked, and the Pointers dropped the kick. Platteville recovered the fumble on Point's 39, and the Plungin slaughter was about to begin.

After Point was called for being offside, Platteville quarterback Bud Nystrom threw a pass to Bill Riley, giving Platteville a first down on Point's 12.

On the next play, Nystrom pitched out to halfback Bill Jones, and the running back circled right end for the first Pioneer touchdown. DeKeyser added the PAT, and Platteville was ahead to stay.

The Pointers picked up 107 yards passing, but lost 15 yards trying to run during the game. O'Halloran said, 'I'm certain that this kind of performance is not going to happen from here on in.'

'Vell find out tomorrow.' The Pointers open the home portion of their schedule Saturday, meeting St. Norbert College in a 1:30 non-conference game at Goerke Field.

Point Booters Score Victory

Last Saturday, the UW-SP Soccer Club opened its 1972 season with a 3 to 1 victory over Mount Senario College.

The Pointers scored early in the game on a 30 yard free kick by Joe Wegand that hit the crossbeam and spun in. The remainder of the first half was dominated by the Pointers, but they failed to score any additional goals.

The third quarter saw Mount Senario pressing strongly against the Pointer defense, trying desperately to tie the score. About two minutes before the end of the quarter, one of Mount Senario's players was fouled within the penalty area and was awarded a 12 yard free kick. Mount Senario converted the kick and tied the game at 1 to 1.

The Pointers came to life in the final quarter. Ted Bastville took a throw-in from the sideline, faked out his defender, and shot the ball over Senario's diving goalie.

With 50 seconds left in the game, Pete Leonard scored the Pointers' (final) goal off a miskick by one of Mount Senario's defenders.

The UW-SP Soccer Club played well in its first game, and the cheers of approximately 150 spectators helped to carry the team on to its first victory of the season.

The Pointers' next opponent will be Ripon College, this Saturday at 4 p.m. It will be a home game.

Superpickers Reluctantly Give Choices

Miami over Houston: The Oilers never play well on enemy fields, and this game is at Miami. Come to think of it, Houston never wins at home either. Ringer: toward Twy leading the Dolphin cheer.

Rams over Chicago: Lutkus and the mean Bears could make it difficult on Gabriel's talented receivers. Chicago's defense is tall and hard to see over, but Lance Hentzel should find a way to expose himself. Rams by 17.

Vikings against Lions: This is our weekly tossup. As Haberman takes Minnesota, mainly because the Vikings have Fran the Scam. Sullivan sides with Detroit, also because the Vikings have Fran the Scram.

Jets over Baltimore: Nittzas is a good quarterback, but all of that Geritol affects his throwing arm. Look for the two Boozers, Emerson and Willie Joe, to run all over the Colts defense. Jets by 7.

Steelers over Bengals: Pittsburgh nailed the Raiders last week, and anybody that can handle Oakland must be respected. The Bengal's top defensive player plays the piano, and that's just too bad for Traxxash too much Steelers by 3.

Diers over Buffalio: Buffalo never plays well when they are coming off a loss. Last year they grooved it 13 times. Brodie leads San Francisco to a 17-point win.

Kansas City over Saints: The Chiefs are due to explode, and the Saints are due to find it out first. New Orleans doesn't stand a chance.

Redskins over Cards: George Allen's teams always win their first several games. The Cards surely won't be able to stop Washington this time around. Redskins by 10.

We are definitely sure that this week's predictions will be a hell of a lot better than our disaster the previous time.

Intramural Program Beginning Again

Jim Clark, UWSP's Director of Intramurals, is a big man, not only in the physical sense, but big on intramurals, as well. In an interview with him, Coach Clark expressed the purpose of the Intramurals Department saying, "We are a student service. Our only purpose is to provide recreational activities and facilities to UW-SP students."

Coach Clark is providing those activities and facilities. Intramural sports at Point cover seventeen organized league sports. In addition, six other sports have been organized on an All Campus basis. These sports include golf, tennis, basketball, raquetball, and wrestling. In league competition, the touch football season is now underway along with tennis and horseshoes. Cross country and the punt, pass and kick competition will be later this month. Various other sports events commence later in the year. These include swimming, volley ball, bowling, basketball, handball, and slow-pitch.

Coach Clark pointed out that the Intramural program at UW-SP is due largely to three factors, "lots of competitors, lots of cooperation, and lots of fine cooperation." Coach Clark said that he could count on having as many as eighty teams participating in a sport. In the case of the Campus Intramural organization is so saturated that Clark will face a facilities problem during the winter.

"I don't know how we can utilize our facilities better than we are now. When we move indoors this winter, we will face a scheduling problem, among other things. We will have to coordinate our activities with the needs of the Phy. Ed. and Athletics Departments. We really need more facilities. In fact, I wish we had our own Intramural Buildings," Clark said. He felt that such a building would be very well installed, however.

Coach Clark also stressed the importance of the fine cooperation that his department has with the students, and that all funds that the program receives are allocated to student allocations.

Student cooperation was also praised by Coach Clark.

"Of course we get the 'anti-rule' complaints, but that type of person is few and far between. Most people come here to enjoy themselves." A good indication of the cooperation that he receives, Clark said, is the number of thumbs up he gets. In two years, only one game has ever been forfeited-an exceptional record. "And that was due to a schedule mix-up. It was not our fault."

Coach Clark did indicate that he was having trouble integrating the dependent student into the Intramural Program.

"Independent tend to be more isolated from University life than the students who live in a dorm. We recognize that it is no easy task to organize a team from off-campus men. So, we allow independents to make their entries a week after on-campus teams must make their entries. This extra week seems to help. Clark hoped that more publicity about intramurals would bring out more independent students.

Intramurals Department directs much of its efforts toward on-organized sports activities, as well as league competition.

"We've got to provide free, unstructured time for the student that just wants to shoot some baskets, or swim a couple laps, or what have you."

This week, various portions of the Phys. Ed. building are open as late as 11 p.m. A Coed sport program is also provided. This program is designed to encourage participation among couples, particularly among female students.

"A lot of these girls are damn good," said Clark. "I hope more girls will participate in this program. Women should not view sports as a males-only activity."

Further information about the Intramurals Program may be found in the Intramurals Handbook, which can be obtained from the Intramurals Department, Room 107, in the Phy. Ed. building.
