UW-STEVENS POINT, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1973

NO. 13

Students come from across a state, across a nation, across the world to join this community, a few permanently, but most on a transient basis. They come to study, to learn, to participate. (1970 WSU-SP IRIS)

The Pointer is a second class university publication, published weekly during the school year in Stevens Point, Wisconsin 54481. It is published under the authority granted to the Board of Regents of State Universities by Section 37.11, Wisconsin Statutes. Publication costs are paid by the State of Wisconsin under contracts awarded by the State Printing Section, State Department of Administration, as provided in State Printing Operational Bulletin 9-24 of August 16, 1973.

It is not that we do something for someone, It's that you be something for someone.

The present moment is significant, not as the bridge between past and future, but by reason of its contents, contents which can fill our emptiness and become ours, if we are capable of receiving them.

God grant me,
The courage to change
what I can,
The serenity to accept what
I can't change,
And the wisdom to know the difference.

Godspell Set For Saturday

Godspell, a rock musical based on the Gospel according to St. Matthew, will be presented at UWSP on Saturday, Dec. 1.

The 8:30 p.m. performance will be held in the Quandt Gymnasium of the Fieldhouse. Tickets are available at the UWSP Student Union Information Desk, Westenberger's, the Stereo Shop, Church Drugs in Wisconsin Rapids and Bob's Musical Isle in Wausau.

Critics have described Godspell as being "part clown show, part minstrel show, part vaudeville and a magnificent celebration of the life of Christ."

The musical, which opened off-Broadway on May 17, 1971, is now in its third year of production.

Since its opening, Godspell has won a number of awards, including the National Theatre Arts Conference Award. John-Michael Tebelak, the musical's 24-year-old creator-director, was named most promising director by the Drama Desk. Additional Drama Desk awards went to Stephen Schwartz, Godspell composer-lyricist, and Susan Tsu, its costume designer.

The program will be sponsored by the Stevens Point University Activities Board.

Gold Mass Set For Sunday

The Catholic Newman Community of UWSP will celebrate its annual "Gold Mass for the poor" Sunday, December 2 at 6 p.m. in St. Stanislaus Church.

Featured speaker for the ecumenical event will be the Rev. Larry Boyd, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church in Wisconsin Rapids. People of all faiths are invited to participate and bring their contributions of money or food wrapped in gold or yellow paper.

Music for the liturgy will feature the UWSP Choir under the direction of Professor Kenyard Smith. The choir recently completed a successful tour of Europe and an award winning concert in Vienna.

The Gold Mass has been celebrated annually in the Newman Community for eight years and has come to be synonymous with charity for the poor. Its origin is the late middle ages but has endured, as a custom and gesture for the poor in many lands around the world. In past years money and food were collected for various needs. However, since the creation of the Pantry, a campus and student center centered food bank, recent donations have been used to help needy students.

This year, both the Pantry and Norwood Hospital patients will share in the gifts from those who attend.

How to succeed in religion...

On December 4, University Film Society brings to campus the much acclaimed film "Marjoe." Winner of the Academy Award for the Best Documentary in 1973, the movie is the true story of Marjoe Gortner.

In "Marjoe," he discusses his life as a con-man on the evangelical circuit, and the ethics of his colleagues in the "religion business."

Graduation Costs, Grading Highlight Senate Meeting

by Kris Moum

Proposals for an honors program were presented to the Student Senate for consideration at its Nov. 18 meeting. Other topics discussed were grading systems, graduation costs, a two year I.D. program and free transfer parking.

The honors program proposal consisted of two sections. The first required the student to have a 3.00 or better grade average and maintain this average while in the honors program. To graduate in the honors program it would be necessary to have 24 credits.

A departmental honors program was the second suggestion. Each department would be responsible for establishing their own requirements.

After discussion on the proposal, a motion was made to table a decision allowing time to reconsider the proposal.

A plus and minus grading

history evaluations available

The UWSP chapter of Phi Alpha Theta, the national history honorary, would like to inform interested students that copies of course evaluations are available for those planning to take any history course(s) next semester (Spring 1974). These booklets are course summaries which will tell you how many exams, papers, readings, etc. to expect from a particular history course.

This information was submitted to Phi Alpha Theta from each member of the UWSP History Dept. Due to printing costs, these booklets were originally made available only to history majors or minors. However, a number of copies remain, and anyone who would like a copy is welcome to pick one up at the History Dept. Office, Room 424 COPS while the supply lasts.

system and an evaluative statement were proposed as replacements for the present grading system.

It was decided by the senate to reject both considerations. Some senators felt that in many situations where a final grade is on the border-line, the teacher will give the student the benefit of the doubt. Others stated that allowing a plus and minus grading system would hurt the student's grade point more than help it.

The proposal of an evaluative statement system was rejected, mainly because it is easier to get into graduate programs with straight grades than with a written statement.

The cost of graduation was discussed by Controller Bob Badzinski. Graduation costs this year will be $8.50 for undergraduates and $12.50 for graduate students. All graduating seniors are required to pay this fee, even if they do not attend the graduation ceremony.

Badzinski proposed that a fee of $5.50 for graduation be adopted. This would pay for the checking of grades and the production and mailing of diplomas. If the student wished to attend the ceremony, an additional fee would be charged.

The senate passed the proposal after discussion. Many senators felt that if the graduation fee did not include the ceremony, graduates would not attend and the ceremony might no longer exist.

In other action, the senate passed a motion to accept a fee of one percent of all student organization accounts to restore the reserves and group money funds.

Group money is used for service programs by UWSP organizations. Each organization is allowed $100 per year.

Money from the reserves fund is available for programs where funds have been refused by the Finance and Allocations Committee.

The senate is having the Finance and Allocations Committee check into the possibility of having a two or four year I.D. program. A savings of up to $4000 on next year's budget would be possible with this system.

A Student Affairs Committee having an equal amount of faculty and student members was approved by the Student Senate and will go before the Faculty Senate for its consideration. The committee will consist of nine faculty members and nine student members.

Faculty members will be chosen from the Colleges of Letters and Science, Professional Studies, Fine Arts, Natural Resources and Learning Resources. There will also be one faculty member appointed by the chancellor and one faculty member not represented by a college.

Student members will consist of three appointed by the president of the student government according to the constitution. Six students, chosen by the chairman of the Faculty Student Affairs Committee and the president of the student government, will be representative of the student body.

Free transfer parking will be looked into by the Business Affairs Committee. Lots J, Q, L and W are being considered.

Transfer lots will enable the student to park in any of the four lots without receiving a ticket, provided he has purchased a parking permit for one of the lots.

In other action, a sidewalk consisting of field stones or large flat stones to be laid on the already existing path between the Phy Ed and Science buildings was approved by the senate. The sidewalk will replace the dirt path created by students cutting through while going to and from classes.

The senate approved the appointments of Liz Britton and Abaka Jackson to serve on the Human Relations Committee. This committee will investigate charges of discrimination towards members of the university community.

Gary Winters, vice-president of student government, was approved to serve on the Parking Appeals Board for the remainder of the semester.

Winters will be representing off-campus students while serving on the committee. The board deals with campus parking only.

The question of allowing high school students in the grid and games room was brought up. A ruling on keeping non-students out of these areas exists but the enforcement of it is in question at the present. The Student Affairs Committee will look into the matter and report at a later date.

Dreyfus Parts With Vest For UWSP Telethon

Chancellor Lee Sherman Dreyfus may be in Poland this weekend, but his renowned red vest and good wishes will be in Stevens Point at the WWSP Sixth Annual Christmas Telethon.

In the past, the vest was stipulated to be permanently awarded to the highest bidding organization for three consecutive years. Betty Eckardt, second-year WWSP Telethon Chairman, said a change has been made so that the Telethon will award Dreyfus' "Parkinson's Clothier custom-made" vest to this year's highest bidding organization. Dreyfus said while in Poland he may figure out a way to place a direct phone call to the Telethon to check on its progress.

The student-operated radio station at UWSP has established a goal of $7000 for its annual WWSP-FM Christmas Telethon to be held from noon Saturday, Dec. 1, through midnight Sunday, Dec. 2.

Proceeds will go to several charitable organizations in Portage County.

Betty Eckardt, chairman of the event, said the 36 continuous hours of broadcasting will be done under the theme: "All Kinds of People."

To call attention to the fund raising efforts, the radio staffers will host a variety of entertainment, public appeals, progress reports and so forth via their own station plus simultaneous broadcasting on Channel 6, the local outlet for Teltron Cable TV.

The telethon will be conducted in the Gridiron Room of the University Center.

Miss Eckardt, who was chairman of last year's telethon, said: "In order to broadcast the telethon live for 36 continuous hours, the staff of WWSP must put in a full year of preparation. The staff members receive nothing for their work except the personal satisfaction of helping others in the community. However, when the telethon begins at noon Saturday, Dec. 1, it no longer belongs to the staff of WWSP, but becomes a united campus and community effort. Actually, the telethon is all kinds of people helping all kinds of people."

WWSP has sought out those which center their work in the Stevens Point area and are not funded by the United Way or the state or federal government. Any service organization wishing to request possible telethon assistance may contact Miss Eckardt by calling WWSP at 346-296.

Impeachment Committee Informs Students

by Roberta Pearson

A committee for the Impeachment of the President has been formed on the UWSP campus. Its purpose, according to chairmen Joe Sienkiewicz and Richard Christofferson, political science professor, is to inform students about the impeachment process and what it means.

Sienkiewicz said that the idea to form such a committee originated the weekend that Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox was fired. "I felt that there was sufficient material to justify impeachment according to the second Article of the Constitution," said Sienkiewicz. He, Christofferson and other volunteers then circulated a petition for President Nixon's impeachment, which was sent to local Congressman David Obey. Sienkiewicz and Christofferson appeared on WSPT-TV and Radio to explain the petition and why President Nixon should be impeached.

To many UWSP students impeachment means removal from office. Impeachment, as defined by Christofferson, is a process whereby charges are brought before the House of Representatives. If they vote by majority that there is enough information to warrant removal from office, they sent it to the Senate. The Senate then acts as a jury, and must vote by two-thirds if the President is to be removed. "Many allegations have been made against the President," said Sienkiewicz. "If they are false, then the impeachment process will clear the air, and if true, it will serve the obvious function."

"I don't think he (Nixon) will resign," said Christofferson. "Many people are capable of being President, among them, Gerald Ford." When questioned about the long-term effects of such a move, Christofferson said that he doubted if the government could become anymore immobilized than it is right now.

Historically, the President has been given several hundred emergency authorities, such as emergency power to deal with the energy crisis. Impeachment would necessitate that Congress look at those statutes. The "extra-legal" powers of the President should be curbed, according to Christofferson. Impeachment could then help redefine the powers of the President's office.

The Committee for the Impeachment of President Nixon has plans for a possible rally at a later date.

Hamilton Seeks Restoration Of $1 Million

by Lydia Abel

"The current furor over user fees has masked the more important issue confronting UWSP," said Student Government President Jim Hamilton.

"We must restore the $1 million that was cut from the state General Purpose Revenues (GPR) category," Hamilton said. "We must write our legislators urging this restoration when it comes up in the January budget review."

The controversy began with the governor's Executive Policy Paper No. 16, which directed the University System to study the potential for raising additional user fee revenue in intercollegiate athletics, intramurals, non-credit producing uses of physical education facilities and other unspecified "non-instructional" activities.

The University System's GPR budget for 1974-75 was subsequently reduced by $1 million in anticipation of additional user fee revenues to support affected programs.

The recommendation that user fee increases shall not apply to students was vetoed by the governor.

"When this came out last spring, we really fought it," said Vice President Gary Winters. "It meant a cut of $80,000 at UWSP from non-academic, non-credit producing activities. Intramural and intercollegiate sports were most affected."

A real surprise came when the assembly voted on Oct. 26 to override the governor's veto, Winters said. "Students had activated and raised enough hell to force some action." Students talked to legislators, wrote letters and ran an extensive lobbying effort, he said. The senate will vote on the governor's veto in January.

"The user fee is still an issue," said Hamilton. "It could go one way or the other, although it doesn't appear as if the governor's veto will stand. The important thing now is restoring the $1 million. We should write to all the Democratic state senators and tell them to forget about the veto, but give back the $1 million."

Hamilton said he would like to see the $1 million restored for a short period of time, with HPERA, drama and music activities supported by state revenues as well as by segregated student activity fees. Hamilton said he is opposed to the Central Administration recommendation that eventually the state would support all academic, credit-producing activities and the schools would use segregated funds to support non-academic activities.

"Leave it on a voluntary basis," he said. If segregated funds are not limited to any specific area, schools can maintain a balance of programs and keep control over those areas in response to student needs, he said. "Our system works pretty well on a 50-50 basis."

"Money still has to be raised," Hamilton said. "We will have to start absorbing salary increases and new programs. Some sports will have to be eliminated. We have a choice of total elimination, elimination of lowest priority sports or elimination of the most expensive sports. Lower priority sports include more students, so if those are cut, we face an enrollment drop and faculty cuts."

Students may write to these Democratic senators urging restoration of the $1 million cut from the GPR in anticipation of additional user fee revenues:

Dance Program Threatened By Budget Cuts

by Lawrence Wilson

One of the fundamentals of fine arts, the dance program, is next on the list of budget cuts for the 74-75 school year, said Sue Hunt of the Theatre Arts Department.

This, she said, would have a detrimental effect on the whole department. She compared it to "having a concert and, because of low ticket sales, sending the violin section home." Sue said important areas of community interest influenced by dance include:

the International Folk Dancers, providing instruction and choreography for surrounding high schools and participating in local religious activities.

Support for the program is being gained through letters by students and their parents to the chancellor and the Board of Regents.

Alice Faust, acting chairman of the Theatre Arts Department, said, "We are trying to prove to the administration that it would be more beneficial to keep the program, rather than lose the students who will have to go elsewhere to find a suitable course of study."

She pointed out the increased enrollment in Theatre Arts on the whole, but especially the increase from 18 dance minors two years ago to around 50 this semester.

She explained that UWSP offers fundamentals in both ballet and modern dance, while the larger campuses at Madison and Milwaukee offer only one or the other.

More people, she said, would probably come here if they could be assured of a continuing program.

Another contributing factor, she said, is the number of requests from freshmen and sophomores to obtain a major in the field of dance.

William Hanford, dean of fine arts, explained that due to the forecasted enrollment decline for the 74-75 academic year each of the four colleges of study had to cut a certain amount of money in order to comply with next year's budget.

He said the resignation of two of the three faculty positions in dance, and the fact that the program is a minor, resulted in its being cut. Under the circumstances, Hanford said, this was the only possible solution.

"Being an optimist," he added, "it is hopeful that the program will be reinstated by next year."

Psych Warfare In Family Hits Theatre

"The Effects of Gamma Rays on Man-In-The-Moon Marigolds," a tender drama about psychological warfare between a mother and her two daughters, will be presented by the Studio Theatre at UWSP Dec. 3 through 6.

Performances will be held at 8 p.m. nightly in the Studio Theatre of the Fine Arts Building. Tickets will go on sale Dec. 3 in the Theatre Box Office, located on the upper level of the FA.

The cast includes Nancy Hosman, who plays the part of "the mother," and Dena Green as "Tillie," one of the daughters. "Ruth," the other daughter, is played by Alison Jones. The part of "Nanny," an older woman who boards with the two girls, is played by Julie Barras. Cindy Scroggins is cast as "Janice Vickery," a friend of Tillie.

Paul Zindel's play, which won the Pulitzer Prize, the Obie Award and the New York Drama Critics Award as Best American Play of 1970, is directed by Lynda Andert.

The play revolves around the insecurity a mother has for her two daughters, years after her husband has left her. Although she loves her daughters, says Miss Andert, the mother is jealous of them. She would not hurt them physically, but she does psychological harm by killing the girls' pet rabbit.

Michael Sheridan serves as assistant director. Set designer for the production is Rene Boer and Alan Kilmpke is in charge of lighting.

FAC Meets Mondays

by Lydia Abell

The Student Government Financial Allocations Committee will begin regular Monday meetings at 7 p.m. in the Van Hise Room of the University Center, said Controller Robert Badzinski.

"We encourage students to come down and gripe about a student organization, fees or anything bothering them," Badzinski said. "The only way we can be effective is if students come in and voice their opinions."

Badzinski defended the Student Activity Fee challenged by Frank H. Horn in a letter to the editor (Pointer, Nov. 15, 1973, p. 18). "Education doesn't end when you walk out of the classroom," Badzinski said. "We fund the radio station, the newspaper, student government, UAB, which all provide invaluable work experiences for students who want a career in radio, journalism, government or programming. Where else can a student pick that up at any university?"

Badzinski also defended the funds given to student organizations such as the Black Student Coalition, AIRO and Vets for Peace. These organizations use the student funds to provide cultural experiences for the whole university, he said.

"We do not fund political policies. It is only the cultural aspects we sponsor."

"I say 'fine' if a student wants his $42 back, but then he should talk about paying the entire cost of his education," said Badzinski. "Tuition would come to about $1500 a semester. Now we're only paying one-quarter of the cost."

UWSP Gets Lower Budget

by Roberta Pearson

UWSP has been granted a proportionally lower budget than other schools in the UW system, according to the 1973-74 operating budget determined by Central Administration. The operating budget lists the allotment for each school in the system (UW-Milwaukee and UW-Madison are funded separately).

The total budget or general purpose revenue (GPR) support for each student is found by dividing the total number of student credit hours by 15, the average full-time student load. Then that figure, known as full-time equivalent (FTE), is divided into that university's GPR. UWSP's GPR support per FTE is $1690, compared to higher figures for other UW schools averaging $1951 and ranging as high as $2601 per student.

Len Sipple, budget analyst for UWSP, cited several reasons for the difference in university funding. The smaller schools in the system benefit, he said, because it takes more to run them per student. The larger schools can be run more economically. "The problem is that when the present UW system was formed, the base or minimal support budgets were not equalized at that time," said Sipple. He said the money allotted to run the administration is far too low, which has forced us to dip into our base operating budget which is lower than most other UW schools. Central Office administrators would have to lift funds from schools like Green Bay, Parkside and possibly Oshkosh to equalize everybody's base budgets.

"I'm sure this would meet with opposition from those campuses and others who would be cut," said Sipple. "Our money goes toward teaching first and administration costs second. So far the administration is taking the brunt of this, but teaching is affected, too."

Carol Marion, UWSP history professor, is the state secretary for The Association of University of Wisconsin Faculties, (TAUWF), an independent organization representing faculty interests in the UW system. TAUWF Executive Secretary Ed

Muzik recently wrote the governor, saying that the funding formula "does not represent equal opportunity for all students within the state."

Miss Marion said that since UWSP did not meet the expected enrollment, a portion of the money granted us must be returned to Central's administrators by Nov. 15. "We are trying to anticipate where the money will come from to pay Central after next year's expected drop in enrollment." TAUWF is seeking an emergency solution for next year's budget, then a long-range solution. "The problem is not only the present system of funding, but the base budgets of the UW schools, as well," said Miss Marion. "In general, I don't feel this is hurting us academically."

Students will find some teachers and courses not available next year. Miss Marion feels this should not impair anyone from getting a good quality major, except in the dance department which will be virtually wiped out after this year. "We're having to release some good teachers because of lack of funds," she said.

TAUWF will meet at UWSP Nov. 16-17. Last year's membership for Stevens Point alone was 374 members. There are approximately 50 delegates representing. Further lobbying concerning funding will be discussed at that time, according to Miss Marion.

Madrigal Makes

Medieval Meal

The fifth annual series of Madrigal Christmas Dinners is scheduled for Dec. 7, 8 and 9 at UWSP.

About 25 students will provide programs during and after the meals, to be served at 6:30 p.m. in the court yard of the Fine Arts Building. A traditional old English holiday meal will include roast oxen (beef) as the main course.

Tickets are on sale at Citizen's National Bank, First National Bank and Holt's East Side Drug Store during regular business hours and at the University Theatre box office from 1 to 4 p.m. on weekdays. There is a policy of no refunds.

The annual dinners were started in 1969 by Professor Kenyard E. Smith who directs the UWSP Madrigal Singers. Professor Smith said the program will include 12 singers plus Renaissance instrumental consort, minstrel singers and trumpeters. A concert of Christmas music will close each of the dinners.

INFLUENZA VACCINE AVAILABLE AT HEALTH CENTER:

Influenza vaccine (1973-74 NIH formula) is available at the University Health Service in limited quantity. Each year the National Institutes for Health analyzes the influenza virus currently found to be at large to determine which type and strains are most likely to cause symptoms in susceptible individuals. This results in a vaccine "formula" with the most threatening viruses in largest quantity. The "formula" is given to pharmaceutical houses that prepare and distribute biological products, and the production and distribution is done from these firms, in an effort to prevent epidemic outbreaks.

Partly as a result of these investigations at NIH, vaccination policies have recently changed somewhat.

First, mass vaccination is no longer considered necessary, as a rule. Only people with chronic health problems, such as diabetes, heart, kidney or lung disease or other long-term illness are considered for routine vaccination. People over 65 years of age are also advised to be immunized, as are travellers who may be going into an area of the world where the disease is rampant and living conditions may be somewhat austere.

Secondly, the new vaccines are ultra-refined and the new dosages are half the size of the former vaccinations, and also only one dose is needed to immunize.

The vaccine will be given at the Health Service, using the priority list noted above. Students who qualify will pay no charge; faculty and staff will pay a nominal fee.

Sesame Street Symposium

Dear Editor:

On November 8th I attended the symposium on genetics and probably was one of a very few who stayed from beginning to end and listened to every speaker. I had asked earlier to address the panel but was told because of tight scheduling that I would not be allowed to do so. I was told to submit questions and that they would be answered at the end. Well my questions were referred to as being loaded and never were answered except for a part of one.

I thought you students were attending an institution of higher learning? Is it a place where you gain intelligence in order to suppress knowledge?

One speaker said the people should get involved. When I tried, I was treated like I had the plague. The intellectual community speaks of apathy but I notice that if you call their bluff they put their tails between their legs and run.

I could have resorted to a demonstration but it appears that this is something only college students feel they are entitled to do.

At any rate what I saw at the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point in regard to holding a symposium and educating the public, makes me understand why we live from crisis to crisis.

The enclosed statement has been sent to a number of newspapers in the country including the New York Times.

The next time your university holds a symposium on an important issue, I will not forget to bring my crayons and coloring board.

Sincerely,
Kenneth Quade

Two New Classes Offered

To the UWSP Students:

What kind of parents will your grandchildren have? You might say this is a strange question to ask students. The crucial issue in that question is: How well are you preparing yourself for parenthood? Most students will be parents within five years of graduation. (10 to 15 percent of students are presently parents.) One of the most important roles you will play during your lifetime will be the role of parent. Some students will also become teachers. The responsibility of these dual purpose individuals as examples to developing children must be emphasized.

The Health, Physical Education and Recreation Department is offering two new courses next semester that will provide students with an opportunity to better prepare themselves for adulthood and parenthood.

The first course is HYPER 104, Critical Health Issues, a two hour general elective. The course offers current information on health issues that can affect your life expectancy.

This health course will include physical and emotional assessment. The course will emphasize the concept of prospective medicine. This concept teaches individuals how to avoid or minimize the illnesses or injuries that can be avoided or minimized. Other subjects to be discussed include drugs, diet, sexuality, how to get your best buy in medical care and how to prevent heart attacks.

The second course is entitled Responsible Sexuality. This is an experimental course numbered 140X. The course meets two times a week for two hours of elective credit. The course will be open to the first 50 students to register.

The course will provide students with the most current information regarding human sexuality and aid students in learning how to transmit that information to their children or other persons in need. The first half of the course will bring the students' understanding of human sexuality to such a level that he can teach others. The second half of the course provides methods for teaching the appropriate information at the appropriate time to all ages of children.

Both of these courses will utilize the expertise of specialists from throughout the university. Both courses are listed in the timetable. If you have any questions, check with the Health, Physical Education and Recreation Department.

Appeals To Students

Dear Mr. Hamilton, student government president

I am writing to you to ask your support to see that the User Fee concept does not become a reality. The next 2 months the final decision on user fees will be made by the Governor and introduced to the Legislature during the January session. It is my hope that the Governor will request the Legislature to reinstate the $1 million earmarked to be raised by user fees back into the University budget.

I see no justification in increasing the financial burden upon university students. As was pointed out in Central Administration's report to the Regents, students are already paying a considerable amount for both students of many activities that should be included in a college experience and price many others out of an education.

I have spoken to the Governor about this issue on several occasions, and plan on speaking to him again towards the end of December. Before that time, I would like to generate as much mail as possible to his office to keep him aware of the public sentiment against such a move.

My office has been in touch with Randy Nilsestuen and T.J. Hankerson of United Council, and they agree with me that a mailing campaign within the next 2 months will greatly enhance our position. I would appreciate it if you could do all you can on your individual campus to see that as many people as possible write letters to the Governor. If we could have 100 letters from each campus within the next 2 months, it would make a significant impact upon the Governor's final decision. His address is: Executive Office, Capitol Building, Madison, Wis. 53702.

You should also encourage your student body, while they are home on semester break, to have their parents write. I cannot stress enough how important such letters will be. The Governor has to make a final decision before he submits his budget review at the end of January. This means that his final decision will be made sometime before the middle of January.

Thank you for your help and if I can be of any assistance to you in any way, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Very truly yours,
William A. Bablitch

Student Responds To Activity Fee Support

November 29, 1973

THE POINTER

In Haven There Is No Booze

To the Editor:

I would like to respond to the letter in support of mandatory student activity fees which appeared in the last issue of the Pointer. The author of this letter feels that because the present compulsory student activity fees and freedom of choice are in direct opposition to one another, and because some of these funds are allocated for "partisan political purposes representing views not shared by every student," we should follow the Governor's advice and establish a user fee system. It seems to me this type of feeble thinking smacks of outdated individualism, threatens the political action life of the university, and is in great part responsible for the breakdown of institutions in this country.

Those who assert that mandatory student activity fees are forms of "thought control that spell tyranny and oppression," and those who defend this system "have a fundamental lack of faith in freedom itself," clearly reflects a naive understanding of the realities of life. We live in a system of relationships. Taxes are distributed to the institutions and agencies, who spend them according to indirect input from voters. There can be little dispute over the necessity of taxes, but much controversy over how they are spent. In a more real way, a student is a political entity; he has direct input into the many organizations which are founded by his money. It is the student's responsibility to insure freedom, by action, thought-action, within these organizations, almost all of which are clearly accessible to students at UWSP. These organizations I feel are indispensable aspects of the university as a center of critical thought. The fantasy of individualism would do away with these organizations.

One such organization, which Frank Horn failed to mention, and which I am a part of, is the Environmental Council. We will not be able to survive under the user fee system, simply because the apparatus needed to gain voluntary funds does not exist. The Environmental Council, which serves as an information center for students, has become an integral part of serious thought at this university. During project information over 4500 pieces of information were disseminated amongst students. Over 1000 reprints provided by the council to faculty have been incorporated into classroom curriculum. In addition, the council this semester sponsored the Environmental Education Workshop, researched the area of recycling, sponsored a paper drive, and co-sponsored speakers with the Senstock Lecture Series on Nuclear Power. All of this has been accomplished within a $500 dollar expenditure, one half of the year's allocated budget. In my opinion the council has made significant contribution to the university and community and deserves every penny allocated to it. The user fee system will destroy all these accomplishments under the false visage of individualism.

I hope that those who support the User fee will earnestly consider these points. Accommodation to the "radical-libertarian" fringe of the student body, the stalwarts of Goldwater, can only lead to further degradation of the quality of education at UWSP, and on a broader scale lead to anarchy. Rather than destroy institutions and organizations, it is time to start putting ideas into them.

Terry Testolin
Public Information Officer
UWSP Environmental Council

To the Students of UW-Stevens Point:

We would like to bring up the policy of having hard liquor in the dorms of the University of Wisconsin schools. We feel the Alcoholic Beverage Policy of July 14, 1972 is an infringement of our rights as legal adults. According to Wisconsin law, any person eighteen years or older is allowed by said State law to drink any hard alcoholic beverages.

We wish to request the University of Wisconsin Board of Regents change the Alcoholic Beverages Policy in favor of our rights as legal adults, allowing the use of hard alcoholic beverages in the dormitories of all University of Wisconsin schools.

We are presently polling the students and circulating petitions in an attempt to obtain the feelings and opinions of those concerned. Any feedback in regards to this policy would be appreciated. We welcome the opinions of everyone.

Wrestlers Fall Flat In First Appearance

The UWSP wrestling team opened their 1973-74 campaign on a flat note this past weekend during the Northern Open at Madison. The tournament, in which schools of all sizes participate, usually provides experience and a few surprises for the wrestler as well as coach.

The surprises that were noticed by Pointer Head Coach Reg Wicks, however, were mainly of the negative source. Wicks commented, "We did not perform well. Last year we did much better, but this time we were just flat."

One of the problems that the team encountered was being overweight, forcing a few boys to wrestle one weight class higher than normal. Bad pairings in the opening rounds, which matched boys from smaller schools against major college opponents, and the age old problem of inexperience also contributed to the Pointer defeat.

Two boys did fare pretty well for the Pointers. Russ Golla, wrestling at 177 lbs., defeated his opponent from Northwestern 4-3 in the first round, but came up on the short end of 8-5 score in round two. Kent Casper also won his first round match 7-1 over a Harper junior college opponent only to lose in the second round.

Coach Wicks called for a strong week of practice, working specifically on conditioning to get his boys down to their proper weight before the Parkside Tourney this weekend at Kenosha.

"This tournament is back in our own caliber," said Wicks, "but we are going to have to prepare ourselves better."

Women Finish One and Two

The UWSP Women's Field Hockey team finished in the Midwest College Tournament-North with one win and two losses. Point lost to Bemidji, 3-0, and Northern Michigan, 3-0, Saturday but came back Sunday with a victory over Concordia, 2-1. Both goals were scored by center forward Marcia Engebretson in tightly-knit action within the circle.

Jeanne Jenkins scored once for the Eteetera team which also played Saturday. Other members on this team included Mary Elliot and Chris Hilbert.

Those making the Midwest College III team included tight halfback Carol Hill, left halfback Becky Schatzka and center forward Marcia Engebretson. Left fullback Lynn Gierach was selected for Midwest I along with Marcia as alternate forward. Both Lynn and Marcia will be traveling to Deerfield, Ill. this weekend for possible selection for finals at St. Louis, Mo.

The hockey team ends the season with a record of 6-5-6.

Puckers Start Season

UWSP Hockey Coach Dick Kottke began daily workout two weeks ago with 12 returning lettermen and 24 freshmen. The squad is made up entirely of freshmen and sophomores.

The hockey program is presently entering the second year of varsity status. The program will get a boost with the completion of an indoor facility in mid-December, said Kottke.

Last year the Pointers were 6-8-2.

Returning lettermen are: Tim Gaffney, Joe Weigand, Gary Girolimon, Jim Burandt, Jeff Lepely, Steve Fiala, Pat Beyer, Jim Knilans, Dave Brown, Pat Grzadziewski, Geoff Dean and Dave Gruner.

Deer Kill Up In Most Areas

by Dennis Cox

Wisconsin's 1973 deer gun season is now past history, leaving some hunters pleased with their success and others discouraged and frustrated over their lack of it. Yet, if preliminary reports are to serve as any indication, this season's kill should easily equal the 80,000 mark projected by the DNR. The DNR's prediction of an improved season has for the most part been borne out, with only a few local exceptions. State-wide the opening weekend deer kill was up 39 percent from that of a year ago, most of the increase taking place in the northwestern and north central areas with a 19 point 330 pound buck reported to have been taken in Bayfield County.

Closer to the Stevens Point area, hunters experienced some success along the ridges in the Portage and Waupaca County border district. Two spike bucks in addition to the 6 pointer this reporter managed to bring down were taken off a ridge near Amherst opening morning. Other hunters in the vicinity appear to have done as well, as a check at the registration station in Amherst revealed 39 bucks had been registered there by noon.

Hunting pressure continued to increase this year especially in the central counties which seem to have experienced the heaviest invasion. In spite of this there was only one deer hunting fatality recorded as a result of gunshot wound. Along with the number of hunters, arrests also have increased. Over 700 violations were recorded in the nine day season.

Home Stays First With Spare Room

by Jim Habeck

The All-Campus Bowling results show the Home in first with room to spare. The winners had a score of 1574, to second place Sigma Phi Epsilon's 1546. 1 East Hayer topped the dorm results with 1401, while 4 East Pray came in fourth overall with a score of 1387.

Playoffs for the volleyball championships have begun this week. Magnus Rux won the right to represent the Independents division, while the Vets will represent the student organizations. Sigma Phi Epsilon is representing the Fraternity division.

2 North Hansen, 1 East Hayer and 2 South Baldwin will each play for their respective dorms. Battling for the championship of their dorms will be the following wings: 1 South vs. the winner of 1 East and 2 South Knutzen, 3 North vs. the winner of 4 South and 3 South Sims, 2 East and 1 West Watson, 2 West and 4 West Pray, 4 North and 3 West Burroughs, 3 North and 3 South Smith.

Quarterback Gets Honorable Mention

Recognition of senior Mark Olejniczak as the All-WSUC quarterback and the league's honorable mention of six other athletes are the newest indicators of the success earned by the 1973 UWSP football team.

The six Pointers acquiring the WSUC's honorable mention distinction are Pat Robbins, place kicker and defensive halfback; Mark Anderson, offensive guard; Bob Rivard, linebacker; Orie Sjoberg, offensive center; Jim Quaerna, linebacker; and Jeff Gosa, receiver.

The observation of these seven individuals by the league ranks as the best Pointer representation since 1967, when four standouts were all-conference and six others honorable mentions.

The loop's final offensive statistics show why passing architect Olejniczak, sure-handed Gosa, hard-working Anderson and consistent Sjoberg were noticed. They helped the Pointers open the WSUC's eyes primarily by leading the most productive passing team and second most fruitful total offensive outfit among its nine competitors.

Individually, the bulky 6-foot-4, 210 pound Olejniczak spiraled to the conference's number one position in total offense and in passing; and the young 6-foot-1, 180 pound freshman Gosa hauled in the league's receiving title and a share of the scoring championship.

Olejniczak also owns nine conference records while Gosa has tied one league mark.

As a team, Stevens Point furnished the most yards gained passing and second highest figure of passing and rushing totally, compared to the eight other teams.

Robbins added consistent place kicking efforts to the Pointers' offensive show. The veteran senior ranked in the conference's top 10 in scoring; defensively he had six passing thefts.

Aside from Robbins, linebackers Quaerna and Rivard were also singled out on defense, despite the fact Stevens Point proved to be one of the easiest team to rush, pass and score against. The quick reacting 5-foot-10, 210 pound Quaerna had two interceptions and picked up two loose pignisks during the eight game league schedule.

Olejniczak, Anderson and Robbins are all seniors but the four remaining standouts have at least another year to improve or maintain their status in WSUC football competition.

MED SCHOOL ADMISSION PROBLEMS?

EuroMed may offer RX via overseas training

For the session starting Fall, 1974, EuroMed will assist qualified American students in gaining admission to recognized overseas medical schools.

And that's just the beginning.

Since the language barrier constitutes the preponderate difficulty in succeeding at a foreign school, the EuroMed program also includes an intensive 12 week medical and conversational language course, mandatory for all students. Five hours daily, 5 days per week (12-16 weeks) the course is given in the country where the student will attend medical school.

In addition, EuroMed provides students with a 12 week intensive cultural orientation program, with American students now studying medicine in that particular country serving as counselors.

Senior or graduate students currently enrolled in an American university are eligible to participate in the EuroMed program.

Sensational Superpickers Almost Sweep

by Tim Sullivan, Joe Burke, and Mike Haberman

Last week most of the students picked up and headed home. We didn't mind that very much. The Pointer staff also took a week off and headed home for the turkey. Still, we refused to get upset over everyone suddenly deserting us.

However, the National Football League insisted on playing games on Thanksgiving and the following Sunday. That bothered us tremendously.

You see, with most of the students gone and the Pointer away on vacation, there really was no way the Superpickers could tell you how we were picking last week's games. Normally, we wouldn't even bring the matter up. Unfortunately, we have to bring the matter up, because the Superpickers went ahead and picked last week's games anyways. The result was a grand total of one wrong.

In case you happened to miss our predictions last week, which is understandable because the Pointer didn't print them, we will briefly replay them for you now.

We took Washington over Detroit and Miami over Dallas on Thanksgiving. For the Sunday games, we picked Atlanta over the Jets; Minnesota over Chicago; Los Angeles over New Orleans; New England over Houston; Philadelphia over the Giants; Oakland over San Diego; Denver over Kansas City; Cincinnati over St. Louis; Baltimore over Buffalo; and Green Bay over the 49ers. Our tossup was the Pittsburgh-Cleveland game, which Haberman and Burke won by taking Cleveland.

Our only loss was the Baltimore-Buffalo game, and it took a last minute interception by Buffalo to win. We don't know how the Packer game came out and could care less.

The only proof that we had such a tremendous week is the fact that Ray Nitschke's Pro Report printed our Thanksgiving week predictions. We're happy that those guys don't go running off on vacations every time a holiday comes along. Now that everything's back to normal for a while, we'll give you this week's picks, and dammit, pay attention, because we're only gonna give them to you one time.

BROWNS OVER CHIEFS - This hurts. Boy, would we love it if they'd bring back the old AFL power era. Five years ago, we'd take Kansas City by 1,000. However, we'll have to go with Cleveland, even though they seem to play the Oilers, patched-up Steelers or Iowa every week. Browns by 7, and we hope we're wrong.

DETROIT OVER ST. LOUIS - The Lions' owner has twice this year publicly blasted his team after losses. He probably meant what he said, but we doubt he'd be willing to trade all his players for those who let us say play for Houston. For that matter, it's doubtful he'd take the Cardinal gang even up either. Detroit by 7.

EAGLES OVER SAN FRANCISCO - A long, long time ago the experts and us said that Frisco would repeat as divisional champions. Maybe the experts still think so, but we have our doubts, and to prove it we take Philadelphia by 7.

PACKERS OVER SAINTS - Hopefully the Saints are done winning for the year. They won more than enough than they were expected to, so they should be ready to call it a year. Pack by 10.

DALLAS AGAINST DENVER - The weekly tossup. Haberman and Burke take the Cowboys, because Dallas knows what it's like getting to the playoffs. Sullivan picks Denver, because if the Broncos ever come close to getting into the playoffs themselves, this is the year.

RAMS OVER BEARS - Give the Bears credit. A lot of them seem to be thinking out there. If they win a game they know they'll have to carry 300 lb. coach Abe Giron off the field. Los Angeles by 13.

PATRIOTS OVER CHARGERS - This is the game that everyone in the nation has been waiting for. If it happens to be televised, we'll make it a point to watch an old "Cisno Kid" or "Lone Ranger" rerun. Meanwhile, it'll still be Pats by 10.

REDSKINS OVER GIANTS - We don't think the Giants will be printing Super Bowl tickets this year. George Allen already has his printing presses rolling. Skins by 7.

DOLPHINS OVER STEELERS - The rumor in the media is that Hanratty is back for Pittsburgh. We'd do a handstand or two right now, except that Miami will still win by 14.

OAKLAND OVER HOUSTON - The Astros would have just as much of a chance winning this as the Oilers have. Houston is undoubtedly the only team in the entire NFL that we have complete confidence picking against. Raiders by 20.

VIKINGS OVER BENGALS - Simple theory. The Vikes have a playoff spot locked up. Cincy needs this win to get to the playoffs themselves. Cincy also is playing at home, and Cincy murdered St. Louis last week. It all works except Alan Page doesn't go by simple theories. Minnesota by 3.

ATLANTA OVER BUFFALO - Another big game for Atlanta. Sounds like a stupid cliché again, but it's true. O.J. might want to break Jim Brown's rushing record, but Atlanta wants to play in the Super Bowl, and the Falcon players would rather sit around all spring counting their playoff money than reading about O.J. in every sport magazine. Falcons by 17.

JETS OVER COLTS - It's doubtful either team will kill itself trying to win this one, but Namath will probably throw some touchdown passes just for the hell of it. Besides, Baltimore has to lose a few more to get those good draft choices next year. Jets by 14.

Last week the Superpickers blew a great chance to silence our critics forever by only missing one game at this point in time of writing. But our fabulous week is now behind us. This time we'll nail them anyway.

POINTERS Ranked Second In Passing

Both the UWSP football team and its quarterback Mark Olejniczak are ranked second in the country in three passing departments, according to the NAIA's semi-final statistical release.

Coach Monte Charles'

Pointers averaged 273 yards in passing offense after 10 games this year. National leader Abilene Christian of Texas owns a slightly higher 278 yard average.

Olejniczak, owner of all 12 school passing records and nine

WSUC all-time marks, is rated as the second most productive individual in passing and total offense, finishing the season with an overall average of 250 passing yards an outing. Unfortunately, the Pointer quarterback can't run with the ball, which has resulted in a negative rushing average and a 233 yard total offensive mark.

Abilene's Clint Longley is the only man ahead of Olejniczak in the two categories with a 298 yard total offensive average, 227 yards which were gained by passing.

The Pointers' Jeff Gosa dropped from the top 20 in individual pass receiving after enjoying a brief experience as the country's 16th rated pass catcher last week.

Although the Pointers completed the season with a 4-6 record, many of the ranked teams and individuals, including Longley and his Texas attackers, play this weekend before the final statistical report is compiled.

gymnasts end season

by Diane Pleuss
The UWSP Women's Gymnastics team competed in two gymnastic meets Nov. 3 and 9. The Pointers finished ahead of Stout and behind Madison and LaCrosse in the Nov. 3 meet at LaCrosse. In the following week the Pointers returned home where they placed fourth in a five team meet.

Lack of depth plagued the Pointers as other teams racked up their points by having more participants, according to Coach Mrs. Rosalind Taylor.

Carol Krautkramer starred for Stevens Point in the LaCrosse meet by taking a third in intermediate optional team competition. Stevens Point used a team effort in beating Stout, but were nosed out by three points by Madison.

In the home meet Nov. 9, Oshkosh and River Falls were first and second in team points, while Platteville and Stevens Point battled for third. Platteville accumulated 100.8 points while Stevens Point racked up 85.65. Coach Taylor said, "We were missing one team member and this could have made the difference in beating Platteville this weekend."

Carol Krautkramer was again the individual star by taking seconds in intermediate optional beam and intermediate compulsory and optional floor exercise.

Mary Herzfeldt starred by finishing second in the beginning compulsory uneven bars with a score of 5.4 out of a possible 10. Points were also contributed by Mary Williams with a second in the beginning compulsory vault.

Saturday, Nov. 17, the Pointers take to the road in a meet with Stout. An optimistic Coach Taylor said, "We should be able to take first if we really do our best."

BRAVE NEW WORKSHOP IS COMING

Keeping An Eye On The World

by Bob Kerkisieck

A Soviet-built Mig and an American-built Phantom tangle over the scorching Sinai sand. A blond, high cheekboned Ukrainian watches his Egyptian charges plot the course of the now victorious Phantom on their Sam VI radar screen. A curly-haired immigrant from Milwaukee swears under his breath in Yiddish as he swings his charge into a tight S-turn to escape destruction.

A lean, dark-eyed Czech engineer helps a Cuban naval officer guide his men as they outfit a patrol boat with a Styx surface-to-surface antiship missile. The place: A few miles down the coast from the U.S. base at Guantanamo Bay in eastern Cuba. Just inland, a tall, bronzed Hungarian observer watches Cuban artillerymen place another heavy artillery battery behind freshly dug revetments which look down upon the Guantanamo Base.

A stocky technician from Moscow helps a North Vietnamese counterpart install an electrical system in a Soviet-built Mig. The Mig, and others, will soon give air support to 200,000 North Vietnamese troops and 750 Soviet-built tanks now in South Vietnam, when they launch their final war to "liberate" the South.

An absolutely outstanding Soviet dance company entertains an admiring full house at this university. Similar Soviet groups are entertaining Americans in every state in an obvious effort to win our goodwill.

And now, according to the Nov. 5 issue of Aviation Week and Space Technology, the Soviets have supplied Egypt with as many as 1000 surface-to-surface missiles, each equipped with a nuclear warhead.

All told, it seems to be the Kremlin's policy to lull us to sleep while building up a mighty dagger with which to stab us in the back.

Befuddled by Watergate, shocked by an energy crisis and scarred by inflation, a divided America must keep abreast of what is happening in the rest of the world. Otherwise, we may only be something to read about in history books.

From the president

by Jim Hamilton-Student Government President

Over the semester I have been sighting inconsistencies with the concept of quality education and action taken by the administration and faculty towards the achievement of that goal. The past mission hearings, held two weeks ago, have shown what cooperative effort toward the achievement of common goals can produce. These hearings showed how efficiently and effectively programs can be carried out when the elements involved are given the responsibility to do so. But before I get rapped up in another plea for more decision making responsibility I should remind myself that this is an artical expanding the virtues of cooperative effort and not necessarily organizational autonomy.

The mission hearing was a gratifying example of organization and execution toward a common goal because of the serious ramification which could have resulted if such cooperation were not undertaken. Another example of such cooperation dealing with a serious problem was the study done by a student-faculty - administration committee on the effects of the user fee on this campus.

On each of these projects the unity was there and the result was good. I use these examples, knowing there are more and hoping they will expand, to point to the future. Many problems will inevitably arise over the next year and indeed over the next few years while the universities find their new place in society. It will take a great deal of coordinated effort to preserve and enhance the university system. It will take a great deal of give and take on the part of all the factions within the university and it will take a breaking down of the old stereotypes and myths about the faculty and student roles.

Students today are more intelligent than they ever have been before and they are searching for more responsibility so that their knowledge can be tapped and used as a valid resource within the university. The revised membership of the search and screen committee for a vice-chancellor is an example that many faculty members are beginning to realize and accept this premise. Another example is the attempt to have a student and faculty observer on the academic council where most decisions involve the university are made. Many faculty members who realize this change of student attitudes are supporting the concept of equal representation on the Faculty Senate Student Affairs Committee.

There are still many differences between the administration, faculty and student viewpoints on many issues, but I believe that these differences can and should be examined on a collective basis and not as an "us" and "them" situation. I hope that this proposal is examined and discussed.

Radio station WSKI hired a new reporter a short time back. The new reporter went out to tape his first interview with a health food expert in Plover.

"Excuse me sir. Can you tell me why you're rummaging through that compost heap?"

"Hi, I'm Urine Gabby. Do you know that many parts of a pine tree are edible?"

"No, but if you hum a few bars, I'll have the disc jockey play it this afternoon."

"Goldenrod also makes a delicious tea. Let's go inside and have a cup. It will put color in your cheeks," says Urine.

The reporter takes a sip of tea, turns green, and runs outside.

"I guess green is a color," laughs Urine, "if you hum a few bars, indeed."

Most individuals would give up after the tea, but the reporter is determined to get his interview.

"People say that you will eat anything. What is the most unique thing you have eaten?"

"A fish from the Wisconsin River. I deeply regret that meal. People can look at me now and tell exactly what temperature it is by the level of mercury in my body," says Urine sadly.

"What else have you eaten?"

"I used to eat elm trees, but after I got that Dutch disease I had an idea that made eating a lot easier," says Urine.

"What was that?"

"Well, the cereal companies were going through a lot of trouble to make chocolate, sugar-coated cereals. I showed them how to make more money on natural cereal they didn't have to do anything to."

"How has this affected your eating?"

"With what those companies paid me, I can afford steak for every meal," laughs Urine.

"Doesn't your conscience bother you?"

"No it doesn't but you're beginning to bother me! Did you know that many parts of your microphone are edible...CRUNCH!"

He Leaves Us Cold

so can we. Unnecessary gas users such as snowmobiles, boats and mini-bikes should be curtailed for the duration of the energy crisis.

4. There will be a 25 percent total reduction in air travel. This should have been done a long time ago; now, if only the presidential jet would remain in Washinton for longer periods of time. Also on the Washington front, the use of those big gas-guzzling government limosines should be discontinued.

5. A ban on lighted outdoor advertising and limits on storefront displays will be imposed. This also includes Christmas lighting. Scrooge himself would be proud of our selfishness in exploiting the world's resources in order to celebrate Christmas. There is no reason to celebrate with lighted displays for well over a month in the name of commercialism.

Nixon's energy solutions suffer in other aspects. The big oil companies got their Alaskan pipeline. Soon every environmental standard will be relaxed. We may not freeze to death but we will eventually choke to death as a result.

Perhaps the worst result of these energy solutions will be the nuclear fission reactors. With all the other viable alternatives, why do we choose such a dangerous power source?

Point Blank

by Bob Ham jr.

The turkeys of the nation were starting to get wise. They knew what time of year it was. They knew why they were suddenly getting extra helpings of turkey chow. How long did we think they would stand still for it anyway? They were tired of ending up as bread-stuffed mannequins every November. They disliked sharing heated plates with obscene cranberry sauce and lumpy mashed potatoes. And so this year they took their grievances to Washington. The President's handling of the crisis was swift and to the point. Who will ever forget his historic dressing of the turkeys. Er, addressing of the turkeys.

"My fellow turkeys, we are here today to try to avoid a major crisis. To try to straighten things out. To separate the dark meat from the white meat.

"Why are we wasting our time with Thanksgiving? There are other matters which desperately need our attention. For instance, the laxative shortage in this country could bring the entire American way of life to grinding halt. I may have to outlaw excretion on Sundays. I say, let others concern themselves with such poultry matters as Thanksgiving. This administration will not stagnate.

"I think the press has blown this entire matter out of proportion. They have gone so far as to say I should resign. It is a fowl, fowl thing they are doing. They want my head on a platter—or at least securely wrapped up in yesterday's New York Times.

"My friends, I have meditated upon these matters a great deal. I have even tried standing on my head. And I have reached a decision. There is simply no way I can leave this country without a president in these troubled times. More than any other time in history, America needs a strong, able leader. And as soon as I can find one, I will gladly step down. But until then, I AM THE PRESIDENT. You can make all the turkey noises you want. I refuse to put my head on the chopping block. Thank you and good night."

Rising from the ashes?

by Debi Hill

Here's an eye opener for you! The blinding reason for the non-existence of the Stevens Point university yearbook (formerly known as the IRIS) is the lack of student interest. Student interest, so often the key to student activities and organization, has also been the problem.

Interest in a yearbook has apparently been established in Student Government. Vice President Gary Winters said the issue was brought to mind earlier this month and a committee was set up to investigate the possibility of a yearbook. Tim Sweeney was appointed chairman.

Ideas immediately flashed out; Student Government was impressed by the photo sections of the Pointer and felt that campus life and educational facilities could be combined to design a yearbook that would recruit as well as serve as a "scrapbook of photographed memories."

Gary Winters suggested that "it should be a complete illustration of what happened during the school year; a true remembrance, something you could page through and simply recall the past, your college years."

President Jim Hamilton stressed the idea of a yearbook being a recruiting catalogue. "It should give you a feel of what is really going on; so many kids get turned off by lists of classes and requirements. What we have isn't a 'selling catalogue,' it's more of a book of grim fairy tales."

According to Dr. William Witt, former IRIS advisor and assistant professor of communications, previous interest in the IRIS has waxed and waned when there was work to be done. "Students closer to high school age showed greater interest in preserving the past than the upperclassmen," said Witt.

In 1971, a Student Senate sub-committee on financing the yearbook reviewed all student activity allotments, petitions of requests and correspondence to other state universities to inquire of existence of yearbooks and student interest. Of the six state universities and the University of Wisconsin-Madison, River Falls' yearbook publication was the only one to be terminated and that in 1969.

Marc Vollrath, former IRIS editor, observed at that time an attempt was being made to develop some substitute for the yearbook. On behalf of the committee the Student Activities Office, with the aid of work-study student assistants, conducted a telephone survey of student opinion on the yearbook with startling results.

From a 10 percent random selection (every tenth name on a second semester print-out of students enrolled), 797 students were asked the following question:

"If you had a choice, do you believe this campus should have a college yearbook?"

Possible answers were "Yes", "No" and "no opinion."

If the student asked: "What type of yearbook - the magazine or the traditional?", the reply was: "Please answer the question assuming it would follow the format you prefer."

If the student called asked: "What does this yearbook cost me in activity fees?", the reply was: "It was estimated that the cost would be between $3.50 and $4.00 per year."

The survey contacted 608 students (77.7 per cent) and the results were: Yes, 520 (85 per cent); No, 62 (10 per cent); and No Opinion, 26 (4 per cent).

The Pointer notes that people occasionally ask about the yearbook but no great throngs have beaten down any doors over the issue. Some believe the traditional yearbook has died, others respond with extensive concern-even to the point of reviving the thought to probable action.

Bring Back The Iris

by Bob Kerkiseck
POINTER EDITOR

Three years ago the last Iris, the UWSP yearbook, was printed.

Since then, I feel there has been a void here at Point. There is nothing we can page through to bring back memories.

With this issue, we are attempting to fill part of that need. Those who wish to keep something for memories may save these outside 2 pages. If reader response is favorable, a larger feature may be run at the end of next semester.

Although I feel the Pointer has a certain responsibility to fulfill the yearbook void, we cannot, for lack of budget and time, completely fill it. If you are interested in the possibility of having a yearbook, please contact either the Pointer office or Bob Busch, student activities office. Maybe, just maybe.
