The City of Stevens Point was 36 years old when a new institution was added to its growing family: the state's sixth Normal School. From the mortared loins of Old Main have sprung a varied collection of offspring known collectively today as the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point. Nearly 90 years have passed since the university and city began their joint adventure. There were some pitfalls and disagreements over the years, but both of us have grown because we shared a common identity. This symbiotic relationship has resulted in well-deserved national recognition. Though both can boast of individual accomplishments, joint projects have earned the widest acclaim. The wellness program begun at the university and enthusiastically embraced by folks throughout the area is a prime example. If duplication is the highest form of flattery, then let both city and university blush together, for the Wellness program has been widely imitated throughout urban and rural America. Local citizens and students have benefited from a wonderful quality of life created by the union and unequalled by most smaller institutions. Cultural events, sporting contests, and wide-ranging educational opportunities are just a few examples of things that make living and going to school in Stevens Point a real pleasure.

So, on the occasion of Stevens Point's 125th anniversary, let the two primary actors in this long running public drama clasp hands and take a bow together. We hope to see the show held over another 125 years.

Chris Celichowski

The politics of the senses

The sensitivity. Philosophers for thousands of years have debated the role the senses play in gaining, and therefore using, knowledge. The antithesis of the senses in this dichotomous scheme is the prior, the realm of ideas. Although philosophers in their tedious probing tend to concentrate too much on the segregation of these concepts, the fact that the senses and ideas are related in the living of life cannot be argued. The recent Wisconsin Democratic Party convention is a good example of a setting where both the senses and ideas could be expected to be valuedly employed. This gathering of politicians and political did not fail to fulfill this expectation. However, this gathering did exhibit without surprise, gross over-emphasis on the use and exploitation of the senses and dramatically scant utilization of ideas. The reason I say "without surprise" is that going into the convention I expected this to happen. I suspected that however genuine Senator Cranston's proposal to pay for hotel rooms was, it would be exploited and misused by people both inside and outside the Cranston campaign. Although the Cranston campaign caught hell for this proposal, the Mondale campaign went unscathed in offering free food which was catered by six different restaurants from Milwaukee. Suits and ties, high-heels and make-up, free beer and wine everywhere, the dominant emphasis in Milwaukee that weekend was on pleasing the senses, particularly by the presidential campaigns for the voting delegates.

What's so wrong with that? In moderation, nothing. Afterall, such a gathering should have a festive aspect of celebration when people unite. However, intoxicating the senses is dangerous because it distorts reality such that you can think that what is true is not really true. The Democrats, to accomplish their unanimous goal of devastating President Reagan in 1984, are saying they are not "frivolous." In America so much dominated by exploitation and manipulation of the senses, the tactical emphasis of this convention can hardly be called new.

Todd Hotchkiss

Jim we hardly knew ye

Not too many people have or take the time to examine the world around them in detail. It is the exceptional one among us who scrapes past the surface veneer and focuses in on life's intimatetopography. Jim Pierson was such an exception.

Jim was the coordinator of photography and graphic arts at UW Stevens Point until his shocking death on June 9 at the age of 34. He had been ill for only a few days with a viral affliction. It would be exploited and misused by Jim wasn't much of a photographer in the commercial sense of the word. Certainly, he made a respectable living with his cameras; what I meant was Pierson didn't need the headlines like so many of today's arrogant young shutterbugs. He didn't enter shows or submit photos to the major art mags, although some of his work would certainly have merited the attention of such established peers.

No, Jim was content with handling our photography needs, giving a hand to a
Dear Editor,

Thank you for bringing the fact that obscenity is not protected by the 1st Amendment to the attention of your readers. However it does not follow that because the UAB films did not receive legal scrutiny “their airing of the flicks was legitimate.” It only means that if there is indeed a local law possibly covering the UAB films no one checked the content of the films against the supposed law.

I find the definition of obscenity in the article confusing because you begin speaking on it in the literal sense but then move on to the word pornographic and your “traditional” definition of it and related arguments. Obscenity is a legal term and still is but pornography is not a legal term.

Yes the graphic depictions of sex do “offer ideas”. As you said “every idea is an incitement. It offers itself for belief and if believed it is acted on......” Ask Charise Kamps who was killed by a friend in a similar manner as in the film they had just viewed. The police dubbed it the “Caligula Murder” — or the incest victim in the educational film “PORNOGRAPHY, YOU ARE ITS VICTIM” (available upon request) who was forced by her father to act out what he viewed in an adult X-rated film or ask Father Ritter about the numbers of teens kidnapped as children and forced into pornography and prostitution and then discarded by “elimination”.

Yes “What the American people do not know (about pornography) can kill them.”

Dom Gordon
President
Morality In Media of Wisconsin, Inc.

Would you pay taxes for peace?

To the editor,

I was fortunate to attend the World Peace Tax Fund national conference in Washington D.C. on April 29, 1983. A group of citizens who are morally opposed to having their tax dollars used for war related efforts converged in an attempt to work towards the passage of the World Peace Tax Fund Bill (House of Representative Bill 4897 and Senate Bill 880).

This bill, which currently has about 50 co-sponsors in the House and Mark Hatfield as sponsor in the Senate, would allow conscientious objectors to have the current military portion of their income taxes (approx. 41 percent) diverted to a peace account. This account would be monitored by 11 trustees (9 presidentially appointed and 1 from each House) who have demonstrated a commitment to peace. These funds would then be assigned to such projects as a National Academy of Peace and Conflict Resolution, disarmament efforts, international exchanges for peacefull purposes, etc. The Congress would then be responsible for the final approval of the spending of these funds.

If passed, it is estimated that to begin with about 4 percent of the population would exercise this option upon payment of their taxes. It is also thought that more overall revenue will be collected because of the many people who are currently not paying any taxes due to moral reasons.

One of the main strategies of the World Peace Tax Fund National Council is to get as many co-sponsors for the bill as possible so that when it comes up again in the House this year it cannot be easily passed over. While I was in Washington, I met with aides of my senators (Kasten and Proxmire) and representative (Obey), as well as with Senator Proxmire.

Cont. on p. 11
Rally urges military changes

By Todd Hotchkiss

A rally and march highlighting the celebration of International Disarmament Day June 20 at the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point featured three speakers: Tim Victor, a Vietnam veteran; Kip Cornell, a refugee from El Salvador; and Malcolm X. The speakers discussed the need for military changes, particularly in the U.S. policy in El Salvador.

Tim Victor, a Vietnam veteran, spoke first of similarities between U.S. policy in Vietnam and El Salvador. Victor expressed concern that the solution to the conflict in El Salvador is not a military one, but rather a political solution involving elections.

Kip Cornell, addressing the International Disarmament Day rally, and in insert, was one of three speakers to talk about El Salvador and nuclear weapons. (Photo by Rich Burns)

Nigerian update

Unusual sentence passed in beating case

By Chris Celichowski

Although it has been near a year after the original incident, the repercussions of the July 3, 1983 beating of three Nigerian students at the Outer Limits nightclub are still being felt.

In mid-May, the incident, the victims, Anthony Isu, Nathaniel Aiyedawia and Olufunsho Adeshina, filed a $26 million damage suit in Madison's US District Court.

The suit named the city of Stevens Point, four city police officers, the co-owners of the Outer Limits, and the two men convicted in the beating.

On Tuesday, May 24, Paul J. Wojtalewicz, a Stevens Point man, was placed on three years probation for his role in the beating of Isu and Adeshina.

Although Portage County District Attorney John Osinga recommended the maximum two year sentence, Judge Fred Fleishauer stayed the prison term in favor of three years probation and a year in jail with Huber Law privileges.

Wojtalewicz, a Town of Dewey resident, had been convicted earlier of being party to the battery of Adeshina and being party to the aggravated battery of Isu.

Fleishauer made the following conditions for Wojtalewicz's probation: he must pay the victims' initial medical expenses, provide 240 hours of community service work, undergo a psychological examination and alcohol assessment, refrain from drinking and stay out of establishments where the victim works, bear witness.

In addition, Wojtalewicz may further reduce his jail sentence by turning in book reports of works by noted black authors, said Fleishauer.

Each report on Alex Haley, Dr. Martin Luther King, and Malcolm X would be turned into the judge for a 10 day credit on Wojtalewicz's jail sentence.

"You have very few legal difficulties except for assaultive behavior, and your conduct is not one described as criminal," said Fleishauer.

However, Fleishauer scolded Wojtalewicz for offending "the dignity of this community. The entire community was hurt by your course of action."

Osinga had argued for the maximum two year term, noting Wojtalewicz's previous probation had been revoked after the beatings and his refusal to take advantage of an available alcohol program.

rights, which is legally necessary for the Reagan administration to continue providing economic and military aid to El Salvador. "We will wait to see if it works with the American people."

Schneider maintained that violence from the Right in El Salvador is intensely perceived and simultaneously revered. Shortly after the four Dutch journalists were found murdered in El Salvador, the Hernandez-Martinez Brigade made public a death list of 35 additional journalists who were still living. Most of them immediately left the country.

This brigade is named after El Salvador President José Mojica, from 1981-14, who within weeks of his successful coup ordered the "Matanza", the massacre of over 2,000 peasants. Said Hernandez-Martinez: "It is better to kill a man than to have one man be reincarnated while an ant dies forever." Schneider said that the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, Jeanne Kirkpatrick, has called Hernandez-Martinez a "hero." "This," said Schneider, "expresses sentiments very similar to Adolph Hitler."

Sandwiched between these cont. on p. 10.

Both Wojtalewicz and his attorney James Babitch argued that he was the victim of selective prosecution due to his past record and size. In addition, the defendant said he had been the only one of three men convicted in the beatings to tell the truth. The others, said Wojtalewicz, only gave statements favorable to their case.

"I have nothing against blacks. I feel I have been prejudiced against the most because of the things that have happened," said Wojtalewicz.

Wojtalewicz also regretted the "hurt" he did and caused his family, whom he described as "Catholics, Chinese, and very strong Christians."

Babitch dismissed the possibility of a successful appeal to a state appellate court.
SUMMER FILMS FROM FLASHY...

Flashdance

By Chris Celichowski

Many of us chase dreams, like elusive butterflies, hopping to catch them and savor their beauty and vibrance. "Flashdance" is an exciting film portraying a young woman's pursuit of her fluttering dream in working-class Pittsburgh. As in your own lives, the spirit and power of her venture lay not only in her lofty goal, but in its pursuit.

Jennifer Beals, played by an alluring and spirited Jennifer Beals, works as a welder in a steel factory while moonlighting as a dancer in a local bar. Although a talented modern dancer, she yearns to join the Pittsburgh Ballet Company. Unsure of herself and fearing failure, she begins to question her dream when her boss, self-made businessman Nick Hurley (Michael Nouri), enters her life.

Nick's personal success story provides the impetus for Alex to pursue her dream. In turn, Nick lacks the drive to take up where their query is certainly a valid one. Why would anyone make this way, then I suggest this production crew tackle something a bit less ambitious next time. Hitchcock's indelible image has been too much for us to swallow.

Nouri, a former member of the "Search for Tomorrow" cast, gave a strong but not spectacular performance. Casting him in the role of Nick Hurley was wise because his age and apparent maturity complemented Beals' young innocence well. The supporting cast gave lively and believable performances and provided the necessary back-up strength.

Psycho II

Twenty-two years have passed and Norman Bates, the original psycho movie slashing either of them all, has returned to the Bates Motel. But in Psycho II, there is a major difference. Horror is not responsible for Norman's mother's specter anymore. Norman is an appealing thought and encourages Alex's high hopes. Waitress Jeannie Beals imbued her character with just the right measure of charismatic warmth and power. One of the film's highlights features a group of street kids performing "break" dancing with some unbelievably slick and stylistic moves ala Michael Jackson.

After her spectacular performance in "Flashdance" Ms. Beal appears headed for sure stardom. Drawing her strength from the raw energy of street life, Alex becomes a lovable character. Beals imbued her character with just the right measure of charismatic warmth and sweetness, avoiding a fairy-tale stickiness that would have been too much for us to swallow.

The dance numbers drew gasps of delight and surprise from many in the audience, due to their frank sensuality and power. One of the film's highlights features a group of street kids performing "break" dancing with some unbelievably slick and stylish moves ala Michael Jackson.

Somehow the film manages to take the immortal Hitchcockian images and turn them into dull, plodding pop-corn breaks or irrelevant distractions from the latest artistic indiscretion. The plot follows Norman's release from an insane asylum and his homing to the Bates Motel. But before he can settle down to a reformed, knife-free lifestyle, someone starts playing tricks on Norman, claiming to be his mother. Then people, starting dying gruesome, blood spurring deaths, the likes of which splatter bad class "C" films, not those of aspiring new generations.

As any passing Psycho fan knows, Norman poisoned mother dearest as a child. So who could be behind the but...
40 years of the Pointer: From hot bat to they're new!

What do we do now

Well, we were going along at a pretty good clip and then the japs had to go and fill the streets. And we've got to protect our rights the hard way. This writer has no fears that the hard way will be too hard for us to work out to a successful end. The hard way is expensive; it's bloody; it's the ultimate in horrors and heartbreak; but there has yet to be a way discovered which is too hard for Americans to travel its full length.

Now where do we college students fit into this picture? Every one of us is 100 percent American. America is in trouble and it is our duty to do our utmost to see to it that we come out on top and right side up. Should we join the armed forces immediately? Should we go to work in defense industries? Let's not. Let's stay where we are until we're told to go someplace where we can be of some service. Let's do our level best to avail ourselves of the educational opportunities before us. Let's prepare for our part in peacetime national defense; the education of the young, the land. Han. the youth of Germany, Italy, and Japan been taught ideals of democracy and the God-given rights of man during the last 25 years, they wouldn't be blindly following the dictates of maniacs today. With proper education, our job for tomorrow, the youth of America will never lack the ability to weigh right and wrong; to stamp out all aggression and oppression.

Therefore, let's prepare for that task until our government deems our presence necessary elsewhere. When Johnnie D. (or Johnnie C.) says, “This is our land” let's answer “on the double” and do our part and more in order that when it's over, we may take another part, that of spreading the cherished ideals and enlightenment which have made America the nation she is today.

Democracy going, going...

In 1924, Nicolai Lenin, the man who has influenced the Communist World Movement as much as Marx, if not more, noted historians think, said; “First we will take eastern Europe, then the masses of Asia, then we will encircle the United States which will be the last bastion of Capitalism. We will not have to attack. It will fall like an overripe fruit into our hands.”

Lenin was not an idle philosopher. “We will not have to ask for a cent.” Or they will not have to attack. There is no need to. “Appeasement is surrender on the installment plan.”

LBJ

The Communists are a sharp group; they know what they want and how to get it. Do you think they want to convert Americans to Communism? No, they have no need. All they want Americans to do is to do nothing. Listen to what Franklin Roosevelt, a former President of the United States, said about them. “We believe that if the Communist any more than you do, but there is nothing wrong with the Communists in this country; several of the best friends I have got are Communists.” — Congressional Record, Sept. 22, 1950.

This naive stupidity did not go too far to hasten the advance of the free world. As a matter of fact, when Roosevelt was President, the Communists seized control of 14 previously free countries. From late 1939 up to 1945, 86,655,000 people were lost to Communism: the people in Estonia, Latvia, Poland, Bulgaria, Tannu Tuva, East Prussia, Romania, Southern Sakhalin, Kurile Islands, and Yugoslavia.

And then Truman, from 1945 to 1952, lost eight more countries with 727,354,000 people: Albania, North Korea, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Mongolia, East Germany, Bulgaria, and China.

Eisenhower wasn't quite as bad, he only lost track of 17,012,000 people in three countries: North Vietnam, Tibet, and Cuba. However, during his term the Communists lost control of Guatemala.

But in 1960, we had John Kennedy to lead us. He certainly could speak well couldn't he? Only thing is, actions are what counts, not words. From 1960 until 1963 and from then until now, under Kennedy's running mate, Johnson, the Communists have grasped control of eight more countries with 22,782,000 people. These countries were Algeria, Guinea, Ghana, Zanzibar, West New Guinea, British Guinea, Burma, and Indonesia.

Do you know what all this means? This means that in the last 25 years $7,363,000 people in 33 countries have come under the rule of Communists.

For the record, let's recall what Lenin said. The Communists are right on schedule. It's about time we did something, don't you think? Isn't it about time we should be fighting for what we believe? And for God's sake, there are more ways of fighting than on the battlefield.

The best place in Hell is reserved for those who remain neutral in time of crisis. — Dante.

DEN Mullen

Climbing costs

It looks like next year college students at Wisconsin State Colleges will be burdened with another addition to the ever increasing college tuition. There is a proposal before the state legislature now that would raise the state college tuition from $50.00 per semester to $60.00 a semester and there is also the likelihood that students will also have to buy their text books or pay an additional rental fee on them of about $6.00 per semester.

May 9, 1957

In four year's costs here at CSC for college entrance (tuition and student activity fee) have risen from $7.50 a semester to around $90.00 a semester. Where has this increased cost come from? Except for the $7.50 per semester which was added on to our student activity fee for the building of a new student union, the Student Activity Fund Committee has managed to hold the activity fee at $12.50 a semester despite rising costs and increased enrollments. (The $7.50 addition was not in the hands of the SAFC, but was rather a special assessment on the students.)

This means that the remainder of the raise has been solely in the tuition portion of enrollment costs. From $50.00 four years ago the tuition alone will be at least $80.00 next year, and this will no longer even pay for the college text books! Why has this steady increase in tuition continued these past few years? Honestly, we can give no answer to it; rising costs do not give

May 9, 1957

In four year's costs here at CSC for college entrance (tuition and student activity fee) have risen from $7.50 a semester to around $90.00 a semester. Where has this increased cost come from? Except for the $7.50 per semester which was added on to our student activity fee for the building of a new student union, the Student Activity Fund Committee has managed to hold the activity fee at $12.50 a semester despite rising costs and increased enrollments. (The $7.50 addition was not in the hands of the SAFC, but was rather a special assessment on the students.)

This means that the remainder of the raise has been solely in the tuition portion of enrollment costs. From $50.00 four years ago the tuition alone will be at least $80.00 next year, and this will no longer even pay for the college text books! Why has this steady increase in tuition continued these past few years? Honestly, we can give no answer to it; rising costs do not give

May 9, 1957

In four year's costs here at CSC for college entrance (tuition and student activity fee) have risen from $7.50 a semester to around $90.00 a semester. Where has this increased cost come from? Except for the $7.50 per semester which was added on to our student activity fee for the building of a new student union, the Student Activity Fund Committee has managed to hold the activity fee at $12.50 a semester despite rising costs and increased enrollments. (The $7.50 addition was not in the hands of the SAFC, but was rather a special assessment on the students.)

This means that the remainder of the raise has been solely in the tuition portion of enrollment costs. From $50.00 four years ago the tuition alone will be at least $80.00 next year, and this will no longer even pay for the college text books! Why has this steady increase in tuition continued these past few years? Honestly, we can give no answer to it; rising costs do not give les to a nuclear freeze

Enjoy a peace of Ground Zero Day

What are the little things you look forward to in life? Opening day of baseball season, maybe, or a performance by your favorite musician at a favorite TV show or a fun weekend? If nuclear war happens you can forget it.

Full-scale nuclear proliferation is completely possible. And if it occurs, it will disrupt not only your life but the entire world as we know it.

Let's face it: no one wins a nuclear war. Nuclear weapons have made war virtually obsolete.

And Ground Zero Week was started to acknowledge this. Ground Zero Week is a "nation-wide week of non-partisan, community-based discussions and events designed to educate and involve the American people on the issue of nuclear war," according to the Ground Zero Organization based in Washington, D.C.

April 22, 1982

Ground Zero Day is today at UW-SP. There will be a rally this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the sundial by the LRC. Ask yourself: Am I for or against nuclear war? If you are among the 65 percent of Americans who are concerned about the possibility of nuclear war, then why not join faculty and students and citizens who will be participating in this rally?

The Ground Zero Day Peace Rally is not a protest, but a prayer by Americans who hope to avert the nuclear holocaust and possible horrors that a nuclear holocaust will produce.

The issue of nuclear war is clearly the central moral issue of this decade. It's not just the knee-jerk liberals suggesting these ideas. Such noteworthy statesmen as Robert McNamara, "Father of the Nuclear Navy" Admiral Rickover, and the creators of the original bomb at Los Alamos have gone on record questioning the rationality of the nuclear arms build-up. So have National Security Agency members Admiral Noel Gayler, and former Salt II negotiator Paul Warnke and many others in similar positions. So have numerous groups, conservative and liberal alike, that include physicians, politicians, lawyers, clergy, and regular citizens.

"Apathy can make oppression possible today," claim Jewish survivors of the first pre-bomb holocaust, survivors who endured the greatest moral obscenity of our century to date.

Don't let the greatest moral obscenity of our century be upstaged. Get involved.

Mike Heim

California screws over environment

Fornication, or rather Calibration!!! That's what it is.

The green cushion just north of campus is falling victim to convenience and there is apparently nothing we can do about it.

The City of Stevens Point Monday night winked through approval for the Michigan Avenue Extension and what used to be referred to as "Dreyfus Lake." A petition signed by about 1000 of us was withheld so as not to inconvenience the insurance company that would create the lake by removing fill for their new complex.

McDonald's is moving in completely with oodles and oodles of unnecessary wrappings. (Everybody that can see past their nose knows that with Big Mac comes the Whopper, the Barn Burger and every gastronomical atrocity conceivable.)

Next to McDonald's plot will be a new IGA store and there's even a sign bragging up a new shopping center. It's going to be furtimes in that area let me tell you. You'll be able to start at Fourth Street with a twenty, sample every neon sign's big feature, and by the time you get to Holiday Inn you won't have enough left for a pack of Rolaid.

It's California right in front of our eyes.

It wouldn't bother me but I used to think I wouldn't mind putting down roots here.

Six years ago when I called Minneapolis my home I used to relish visits to Point. The city had two, or maybe three, stoplights.

July 24, 1975

You'd look out one of the northeastermost dormitory windows and see beautiful, tranquil bliss, serene "nothing."

This university has had its real drawing card a quiet and clean environment. Sure at most three, stoplights.

This university had as its real drawing card a quiet and clean environment. Sure at most three, stoplights.

But now there is a new McDonald's and a new shopping center. (I'm sure that this is also true at other colleges.)

Now it's obvious that those acres of frogs croaking and four-legged beings roaming around are about to be lost.

Stevens Point is dying of gastronomic complaints. Is it really convenient to have such a wide selection of bar-burger joints? I don't think so.

Oh well. I guess it's just progress conveniently becoming a means rather than an end.

No hard feelings Ronald. Everybody loves a clown.

Hours not to reason why

A short time ago, a transfer student asked us why the girls on this campus were forced to be in at specific hours. We quickly brought out the time-worn answers—namely:

1. Worrying mothers are put at ease when they learn that their daughters will be safely behind locked doors at 10, 11, or some other specified hours.

Nov. 8, 1956

2. Well, after all, most of the other colleges do it, too.

After some thoughtful reflection, we wondered if perhaps the arguments were not quite overworked and totally inadequate. When we realize that many of these girls will be old enough to vote while still subject to rules that are better found dealing with juvenile delinquents, we feel that this idea of rigid hours has been carried too far.

The girls certainly should be old enough to think for themselves, and we feel that this arbitrary establishment of hours is a poor reflection on their intelligence and common sense.

La modá Americana...Have a Coca-Cola

...an American custom as seen in Italy

People overseas are impressed by the American flag and our friends here among his fellows. They see his homespun and sometimes his good home. Here 'n Coca they tear him say we buildin', and they begin to understand America. You, the James that speaks with unison Coca-Cola, speak of the friends among Main Street and the family of soda.
Tracksters sixth at nationals

By Chris Celiowski

UW-Stevens Point, led by national champions Tom Weatherpoon and Steve Brilowski, proved it is a stride ahead of most track squads in America by capturing sixth place in the 1983 NCAA Division III National Meet in late May.

Weatherpoon, a junior from Brookfield, was a jump ahead of his competition at the meet, capturing first in both the long jump (24'11١/٤") and the triple jump (50'11٠/٤"). Brilowski, a SPASH product in his last year of track, dominated the field by streaking across the line first in the 800 meters (1:49.36).

In a gutty performance 19th place national qualifier Gary Van Vreede finished fifth in the decathlon despite torn ligaments in his ankle. The Pointer mile relay team earned All-American designation and a new school record by capturing sixth in their event in a blazing 3:12.1.

"I think we were the only team to have three national champions and I know that total equals the all-time number of national champs we have had at Point," said proud Pointer coach Rick Weatherspoon.

The double national championship performance by Weatherpoon capped an already fantastic season by the Brookfield native. He captured first place in both events in the WSUC indoor and outdoor track championships and a sixth place long jump finish in the prestigious Drake relays. In addition, his tremendous talents also helped the Pointers in the sprint events.

"Weatherpoon was just awesome in the 800 as he won over a second, and the race was not even that close. He had the best time in the preliminaries and people were really keying on him," said Witt.

"No one was able to stay with him as he ran his race as we planned. He was capable of running much faster if he only had someone to really push him. He and I both feel he is capable of running in the low 1:48s or high 1:47s."

In order to run those times, Witt feels Brilowski will have to run in a race where the competition is better than he so that he can be pulled along to a better time. Both Brilowski and Wetherpoon will get that opportunity when they compete in The Athletics Congress (TAC) national meet in Indianapolis June 17-19. If they perform well enough at the TAC meet both athletes will have a chance to run in bigger meets, including the National Sports Festival.

Gary Van Vreede, defending national champ in the decathlon, earned a fifth place finish in that event this year. He fought back from a nearby disastrous ankle injury earlier in the season and chose to attend the meet despite persistent pain.

"It shows what kind of man he is when he went into the event that he had won the year before and knew he was not in shape to win. However, he earned us eight big team points and earned All-American status," noted Witt.

The Pointer mile relay team finished less than one second out of first place but had to settle for a sixth place in the tight race.

"The guys on one mile relay team were disappointed with the sixth they earned because they thought they were the only team that did, but a couple of collisions on exchanges where they did, but a couple of collisions on exchanges where they did, but a couple of collisions on exchanges where they did, but a couple of collisions on exchanges where they did," said Witt.

Earning All-American honors for the mile relay team were Eric Parker, Tim Lau, and Brilowski.

The results for UW-SP were Tom Bechinski, high jump, 13th at 6'7"; Dan Bradford, 110 hurdles, 13th in :16.6; and Al Hilgendorn and Rick Perona, 400 meter intermediate hurdles, 13th and 14th with times of :54.4 and :55.0. Bob Ulrich qualified in the pole vault but did not place.

Glasbord State (N.J.) won the meet with 110 points and was followed by Hamline (Minn.), 94; Mount Union (N.Y.), 82; Lincoln University (Washington, D.C.), 69; Univer. of California-Pomona, 64; and UW-SP, 80.

Women's Track

Riedi jumps to high finish

Behind the second place finish of freshman Michelle Riedi in the high jump, the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point women's track and field team finished 22nd in the NCAA Division III National Track and Field meet in late May.

UW-La Crosse easily won the meet with 156 points, while UW-SP was the second best Wisconsin based school with 20 points.

Riedi, the first year performer from Green Bay, tied the title for the height in height with a top jump of 5'9", but finished second on seconds on misses. The first place finisher was Gilnies Payne of Carthage College.

Nauschutz, who has one year of outdoor eligibility remaining, finished first in the 200 meter run with a time of 25.1 and was second in the 100 meter hurdles, :15.2.

Tracey Lamers, a senior from Kimberly, placed 10th in the 10,000 meter run with a clocking of 37:17.72. The time represented a drop of 43 seconds off her previous best time.

The ankle injury suffered by Nauschutz was severe enough to scratch her from the open hurdles competition and the 400 meter relay team.

UW-SP coach Nancy Schoen prided the three people who scored points for her team and in the process earned time for All-American designation.

"Michelle (Riedi) was somewhat disappointed with herself since she was capable of winning, but for a freshman I would say she performed very well," Schoen said of Riedi.

"The excitement and intensity of a national meet is quite different from all others and it adds much more stress to competitors. She'll be back next year.
Straw poll pampers delegates

By John C. Savagian

Environmental Co-Editor

Straw polls sometimes set the stage in the bigger things of more to come and of more to come and those on the short end of the stepping stones, they are not a number of ironies in their wake. The media is sometimes called, do leave a number of ironies in their wake. The media is breath as national primaries sometimes called, do leave a number of ironies in their wake. The media is camps, all the while filling their heads with illusions they are deciding the fate of those who participate in those who participate in those who participate in:

take on a kid gloves and let it disintiwho can stay upset for very

the faces of all the Man . . . "I'm going to vote for Walter Mondale. I think he has the experience needed to be president and I think he would run a strong campaign. We need an experienced person to be president, that's been proven by Mr. Reagan's lack of performance. I don't think he had what it took and we need someone like Walter Mondale with a good real government background to handle our country."

Man . . . "Because he has the most definitive answers and the most progressive record of all three candidates. He has excellence status as far as the three here today."

P.M . . . "What do you believe is the major issue today"

Woman . . . "Jobs and Peace."

P.M . . . "And you think Cranston can do better. Does he have any specific proposals?"

Woman . . . "Yes, he has. He's developed an eight point plan, I won't go into it because quite frankly, I don't have the whole thing memorized but it is very comprehensive. It begins with the assumption that we must control the defense budget. Once we have done that there will be other ways to reinvest the money rather than putting it into an overrated defense plan."

Man . . . "Well, I've been looking at all the candidates for the past week or so and I decided last night that Gary Hart would get my vote."

P.M . . . "Did he talk to you at all?"

Man . . . "I've spoken to a number of people that supported him and based on that and on just meeting him a few minutes ago that was enough for me."

Cont. on p. 10
It's a winner, a wino, it's Superman III

By Chris Celichowski

"Look, staggering through the rain, it's a congressman, it's Superman!?!"

Although the preceding is not an actual build-up for the Man of Steel, it accurately portrays Clark Kent's alter ego during some portions of the delightful sequel "Superman III." During this flick you'll see Superman as you've never seen him before—spiteful, arrogant, and lustful. Although the change is shocking and a bit disturbing, it's also a lot of fun.

You see, Superman (Christopher Reeve) made the mistake of crossing one of the world's richest and greediest men Ross Webster (Robert Vaughn). Webster is so rich he has a ski hill and swiss chalet in his basement apartment, but it remains in his control the world's coffee supply. Webster commissions one of his brainy, lecherous genius Gus Gorman (Richard Pryor) to program a US weather satellite to destroy Columbia's coffee crop, thereby giving Websc- co International complete control over the coffee market.

When Superman saves Columbia from torrential rains, flooding, and tornadoes, Webster has Gorman devise a way to stop him. Gorman drunkenly polishing off the last drops of whiskey in a Metropolis Bar and then riding into its interior. How- ever, through an unexplained comic-book phe- nomenon the outside of Superman soon splits and he death to the in falling for each other. Their initially hesitant but touching relationship provides the romantic interest in the sto- ry.

In what many have said will be his final performance as Superman, Reeve performs well, especially as the city junk yard. Who wins? Sorry, you'll have to go and find out.

Superman's alter ego, Clark Kent, also has his share of problems. He re- turns to farm-town Small- ville for a class reunion and falls in love with high school sweetheart Lana Lang (Annette O'Toole). Lois Lane, played by Deirdre, is conveniently on assignment in Bermuda while Clark and Lana are fallen hero. The audience has come to accept his all- American personality and good looks so completely that getting them to believe in Superman's malevolent turn-around was a formidable task. Reeve shouldered that burden easier than the nearest tall building.

Richard Pryor plays Gus Gorman with total effectiveness. Although he unwittingly helps Webster in his plans to destroy Super- man, the audience chuckles at his bumbling yet brilliant character. He knows he's too nice a guy to stay with the bad guys long. Pryor's ability to turn a down-and-out character into a charismatic winner is, as always, delightful and appealing. And he does it all while maintaining the film's PG rating.

O'Toole plays wholesome Lana Lang extremely well with a sincere sweetness that made me question whether my loyalties lay with her or Lois Lane in face to Clark Kent's heart.

This also brings to mind the film's one weakness. When the credits roll, no one can tell whether Clark ends up with Lois or Lana. Worst of all, there may be no sequel to give us the answer.

Despite this weakness, "Superman III" is tremendously entertaining as a box-office smash. It takes wholesome, fun entertainment up, up and away to new cinematic heights.

Psycho II, Cont.

cherings at the Bates? Could it be that man's master has risen from the grave as an incredible Oedipal? Could it be the unforgiving and overtaking Lisa? Perhaps it's the man's shower guest all those years ago? Has Norman returned to stress-less his point of view with sharp kitchen utensils? Or could it possibly be someone character who's been introduced early in the film and then benched until the revelation scene? Keeping in mind that the already mentioned lowlights, this answer should be a cinch.

At the beginning of the movie's acting was also lackluster and despised back in 1960. Now he's just a cardboard as it's written rather than mindless (pardon the pun) actor.

Martin's "Two Brains": mindless fun

By Chris Celichowski

I think I finally figured out why they named this film "Two Brains." To really enjoy "Two Brains" the viewer must leave his outside the theater and open his mind.

Don't get me wrong. This flic features Steve Martin at his outrageous best and has some very funny moments. It's just that the gags are so blatant you need not in full control of your senses to understand them. Maybe that's why my two compa- nions "kamikaze"-filled wine skin along.

The Man with Two Brains" stars Steve Martin as Dr. Michael Hufurhurr, the world-renowned inven- tor of screw-top brain surgery. Hufurhurr has married and raised his own ex- patients, a beautiful but lecherous woman (Kathleen Turner) who hopes to tor- ment him to death and col- lect his substantial inherit- ance.

After his wife tortures him slowly by refusing to have sex with him, Martin finally discovers her plan. He then falls in love with a brain owned by a deranged but brilliant Austrian scientist (David Warner). Martin and the brain communicate via telepathy. Their relationship provides some entertaining, but strange, moments. Mar- tin even goes so far as to fit himself into her storage jar with a pair of plastic lips so they can kiss. His obsession eventual- ly drives him to look for a beautiful dead body (by fair or foul play) so he can per- form a brain transplant and bring his beloved brain to "life."

Most of the gags in this film succeed, although one running joke involves everybody's in- ability to pronounce Dr. Hufurhurr's last name. It's fun- ny enough the first time but after the fourth and fifth try it loses its comic flavor.

Avid Martin fans will find some of the lines they can share between themselves in posterity. "In the mud, scum queen, and "Get that cat out of here" are just a couple of them.

Despite a few short-comings the film is funny enough to warrant a recommenda- tion. If you're looking for a flick with a deep message, you're looking at "The Man with Two Brains." is what most Steve Martin fans are looking for: mindless (pardon the pun) fun.
In addition to representatives of the Soviet Union travelling to the U.S., Cornell said that a handful of U.S. statesmen had travelled to the Soviet Union. Cornell alluded to a trip made by Iowa Senator Grassley. Verbally turning the tables on U.S. policy toward the Soviet Union, a Soviet official, reported Cornell said Senator Grassley what would happen if the Soviet Union would not deal with the United States until it solved its social and economic problems in the nuclear age because we can no longer afford to be apart. Bilateral treaties, travel junkets, joint research and student exchanges are all some of the suggestions Cornell made for improving Soviet-American relations.

Cornell closed by saying that everyone should work even harder for better international relations. "And President Reagan should visit the Soviet Union," said Cornell, of our president who approxi­mately two and one-half years into his term has not even spoken with the Soviets.

Rally followed the rally to the armed services recruiting station at the west end of Main Street. A thirty-minute vigil was held, and repeated everyday last week through Friday.

The sponsoring organizations for this celebration of International Disarmament Day were the Committee on Latin America (COLA) Students Against Nuclear Expenditure (SANE), and the Central Wisconsin Peace Coalition. Moderator for the rally was Marlene Schmaltz of COLA. Also during the rally, John Savagian of SANE provided poignant readings from Joan Didion's new book Salvador.

The President of ORI, Clifford E. Goss (BSPE, MBA) has joined forces with D.D. Slesman (BSSED, MAED) to create a format which is the first of its kind available to only "College Graduates." Vice President F.B. Slesman (BSSED, MAED) emphasizes that the program strategy is to increase a graduate's employment exposure potential by listing the graduate's qualifications in a publication entitled the "Regis­try". Numerous national and re­gional businesses will receive the Registry tri-annually. Business finds the new format attractive in that graduates can be contacted directly with no additional fees being paid by ei­ther party upon employment.

HELP WANTED: College rep wanted to distribute "Student Rate" subscription cards on campus. Good income, no selling involved. For information and application write to: CAMPUS SERVICE, 1745 W. Sandale Ave., Phoenix, AZ 85021.

PREVIEW: Let's hit the water. Rec services is hav­ing a sailing minicourse July 13 and 14 from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. at Koko Park. Sign up at Rec Serv­ices. The afternoon only costs $1 which includes transportation and instruction for beginners and advanced sailors. Get some experience with our new Topcat, calamaran, and sailboards.

Go canoeing! UAB and Rec Services are having a canoeing course on Dreytas Lake Thursday, July 21 from 3 p.m. - 5 p.m. Canoes and instruction are free but please sign up at Rec Services. Come on out and share a fun afternoon with the water.

ANNOUNCEMENT: A Spiritual­ity Institute will be held at St. Joseph Convent, Stevens Point from July 34-29. The theme: WELLNESS will involve a var­iety of prayer experiences and courses. $75 room and board; $5-$10 per course tuition. For more information or to register contact: Sister Marise Zielinski, 3300 Maria Dr., Stevens Point, WI 54481. (715) 346-2128.

ANNOUNCEMENT: MA/MST comprehensive ex­aminations in English will be giv­en on Thursday, July 14, at 9 a.m. in Room 400. Gradu­ate students wishing to take the English comprehensive must register in the English office no later than Thursday, June 30.

ANNOUNCEMENT: Effective June 17, the telephone number for Protective Services became 346-3456. Please make this important change in your directories and/or post near your telephone for quick reference in any emergency.

ANNOUNCEMENT: The Women's Resource Center is seeking volunteers and support group for victims and their partners beginning on Friday, June 30 from 1 to 5:30 p.m.

ANNOUNCEMENT: Operations Research Interna­tional (ORI), a Colorado corporation, is presently offering a program developed exclusively for college graduates known as the Career Expos­ure Program (CEP). The program's purpose is to provide an affordable alternative to the present conventional career and employment services.

The President of ORI, Clifford E. Goss (BSPE, MBA) has joined forces with D.D. Slesman (BSSED, MAED) to create a format which is the first of its kind available to only "College Graduates."
On July 8th. Don't miss U.A.B.'s SUM· MERFEST trip. Featuring at the Summerfest grounds that day will be the very famous HALL
AND OATES. There will also be numerous other attractions at the grounds that day. The cost of this trip is only $9! (Which includes tick· et and transportation.) The van leaves the U.C. at 9 a.m. and return late the same night. Sign up at the S.L.A.P. office soon. Limited' space available.

WEDNESDAYS are LUNCHTIME ENTERTAINMENT days from U.A.B. This summer we have many performers coming. On July 6th — soloist Scott Neubert! July 13—The Ahooa Brothers! July 20th—Jeff Anderson and Jenny Clark! July 27th—Stuart Stotts! Aug. 3rd—Dennis Sla! These events take place on the Patio off of the Park Place food service In the U.C.

ON JULY 12th U.A.B. Is sponsoring a Local Talent night at the Encore In the U.C. Performer is to be announced. Admission Is FREE. Event takes place from 9 a.m.-12 p.m. Don't miss it!

ON JULY 28th. Don't miss U.A.B.'s dance party of the summer! featuring the music of the famous danceable rock group
"SENSATION". Admission is only 98!
It's a great way to spend a Thursday night!
It all takes place at the ENCORE. Remember­ U. A. D. invites you to "experience the U.A.B. and Rec Services will hold a mini-course on July 21 on canoe· ing, and on July 27 and 28 on sailing! The canoeing course will take place at Schmeekle. Cost is free! The sailing course will take place at Lake Dubay.

The cost is $1 for transportation. Sign up for these courses at Rec Services.
A great way to expand your knowledge.

World Health Organization
Listed
Medical School
Saint Lucia Health Science University is located on the island of St. Lucia in the West Indies. Openings are available in the September '83 class.

OFFERING:
- 36 month M.D. degree program
- Instruction in English
- Clinical clerkships in the United States
- WHO-listed-Students eligible to take the ECFMG
- Graduates have been accepted into specialty training in U.S. hospitals
- Transfers especially welcome

SAINT LUCIA HEALTH SCIENCES UNIVERSITY
HENRY GARCIA CO.; 1 RIVERWALK PL., 700 N. ST. MARY'S
SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS 78205 (512) 226-8444 TELEX: 767524
Matriculation Sept. Jan. May 19
Name
Address
City State Zip
Phone ( ) For more information call toll free 1-800-227-3800 Ext. 416

Imports from India, Asia &
the Far East!
Come in & discover our summer clothing — sundresses, shorts & tops.
Hardly Ever
1036 Main

"NO MORE MR. NICE GUY."
"I'm not my old lovable self when I'm around smokers. I get real cranky. So I want all you smokers to quit once and for all. And who knows? You might even put a smile on my face."

American Cancer Society
This space contributed as a public service.