Uncle Bob's favorite line

Bob and Mike's last words

Yeah, the rumors are true. We are leaving Pointer Magazine. So all those Bob and Mike critics who regularly use our copy to potty train their puppies, nyah, nyah, you won't have US to kick around anymore. Don't fret, we're sure you'll find somebody else's work to verbally lobotomize in no time at all. Any fans we may have picked up over the years, we'd like to take this chance to say thanks. We think you're really "boffo" too!

But far be it from Bob and Mike to sign off without chipping in their two cents worth. So here is our tidy little list of all the folks we wish us to kick around anymore. Don't fret, we're leaving Bob and Mike critics who regularly send their letters complaining to the editor.

STUFF WE WON'T MISS

Irate phone calls at all hours of the night.
Lawsuits
Articles and photographs which mysteriously disappear from the face of the earth. Until a week later.
Wellness
Aldicarb, Acid Rain, ROTC, and various inaudible other non-nutritive additives in the collegiate milieu.

All the broken typewriters in our office, especially the one without the r, p, t, s, y, or b.

Snotty letters to the editor
Having to write clever headlines to snotty letters to the editor.

Snotty letters complaining about the clever headlines we wrote for snotty letters to the editor.

The Peat Journal janitor's police band radio
Meeting (and not meeting) deadlines.

Having to come up with witty retorts week after week, for the question, "Will my classified be in this week or next week or what?"

Persons of any particular race beating the crap out of persons of any other particular race, on any given evening, at any given bar. (Hope we didn't offend any-given-body with this.)

Really swell humor pieces that don't make it into the paper because the printer refused to print them.

Having to think up droll little editorials like this one, at the last minute.

STUFF WE WILL MISS

Lou Grant (we already do).

Neat moviemakers who send us posters to decorate the office.

Junk food and Frosty Root Beer at beer.

Pointer Mag Covers
The environment, if James Watt doesn't take a hike soon.

Pointer Office Parties
The phrase, "Rise up students, you have nothing to lose but your chairs!"

Rogue Beavers and Moon Week
Nebule, naked women running amok through our offices. (Just kidding.)

Paychecks
Investigative reporting, which enjoyed a resurgence in this year's paper.

The occasional nice letter. (This year's was written by Tom McCaig. Thanks Tom.)

Ronnie Reagan's hard-to-believe but fun-to-write-about policies.

Free tickets to UAB events, which we didn't get, but which we'd miss if we had, but we didn't, so we can't. Except for a couple of coffeehouses—and we were away that weekend.

Joey and Ricky and Lora (not Lori) and Jimmy and Billy and Mary and Teddy and Johnny and Petey and Jayne and Gina and Danny and the whole Pointer Mag gang of contributors. We'd also like to thank all you little people who read our product, even though it was hard to turn the pages with your teeny little hands.

And best of luck to next year's editor, Chris Celichowski, a real prince of a guy and a regular dresser. He did a super job in this year's guise as news ed and should do equally well as the paper's chief nabob.
Canteen ends twelve-year food service Saga

After 13 years of operating the food service at UWSP, Saga, Inc. will be replaced this summer by the Canteen Corp.

Saga lost its contract in recent bidding to handle the $3.6 million annual operation on campus.

About 80 people work full-time and 250 UWSP students are part-time employees in the operation which has a $1 million annual payroll.

Robert Busch, director of the University Centers wherein food service operations are centered, said it is customary that whenever institutions have food service management changes, the only disruption of personnel is on the highest levels. Most food service employees are covered under a union contract.

Busch expects about eight management and supervisor employees will move to Saga operations elsewhere and be replaced by Canteen staff members.

Saga, Inc. received the low bid in 1978, edging out Acy Foods, Inc., and has had its contracts renewed numerous times since. Five years ago, it was outbid by A.R.A. Services but that firm withdrew and contested it had made an error in its calculations.

In the most recent bidding, Canteen had the lowest offer of $1.7 million, shared among six firms which entered the competition.

Food service firms receive contracts for one year, but the bidding process usually is done only every fifth year. The bids are run individually and the vendor has options to automatically renew contracts a maximum of four consecutive years after each round of bidding. Busch says Saga has given UWSP outstanding service. He also said Canteen Corp. has a "very good" reputation and long experience in this kind of business. It has been in existence since 1929 and has operated more than 30 units in a total of 19,000 employees.

Busch said Canteen has been serving some campuses for as long as 35 consecutive years. He noted, however, that it has not done a lot of business in the state prior to this.

But in the recent round of bidding, Canteen also was the low bidder to run UW-Oshkosh's food service.

Canteen Corp. is now part of the Trans World Corp. which was formed in 1979 as a link between Trans World Airlines, Hilton International and Canteen. The firm later purchased Spartan Food Systems, Inc. which is Harder's oldest and largest franchisee and Century 21 real estate.

Canteen is headquartered in Chicago. Lessons and projects related to metrics in their classroom activities, Busch said.

Budget cuts have hit the Pointer baseball squad! Here catcher Bill Johnson takes an at to some timber after the team's last bat was cracked at a recent practice.

Meter acceptance inches along

Gov. Anthony Earl has proclaimed May 8 to 14 as Metric Week in the state, but a professor at UWSP concedes there is not a lot of reason to celebrate.

"Right now, metric is losing ground in the eyes of the public," according to William Cable, a metric and mathematics education specialist on campus.

Because the movement toward metrication was considered in the past year or two, Cable says eventual conversion will be costly in the long run to taxpayers and businesses.

"There's no question it (conversion) will happen," the professor says. "It's just a matter of time."

Through the U.S. Congress enacted legislation in 1866 making it legal to use the metric system in this country, it took 109 years before a U.S. metric policy was established by a new law signed by President Gerald Ford.

The latest law set a national policy for coordinating the increasing use of the metric system in the country and established a U.S. Metric Board to coordinate voluntary conversion activities and to assist educating the public.

However, last fall funding problems of the Reagan administration caused withdrawal of operating expenses for the Metric Board which, in effect, put it out of business.

On the bright side, many businesses and industries are continuing to do more in their manufacturing and distribution with metric measurements, according to Cable. It's because nearly everywhere else in the world, metric is the standard and U.S. firms looking to do business on an international level must adapt to the prevailing measurements. The U.S. is, at this time, the only industrial nation that does not have a firm commitment to conversion to metric, he explained.

In addition, some teachers in the Stevens Point area who participated in a metric workshop at UWSP about two years ago are continuing to include lessons and projects related to metrics in their classroom activities, Cable said.

Moreover, Gov. Earl, in his proclamation, noted that Wisconsin recognizes the need to assist its citizens through information and education programs to become familiar with the meaning of metric terms and measures in their daily lives."

"Twelfth Night" to attain greatness this weekend

"Twelfth Night," Shakespeare's action-filled, multi-launched romantic comedy will be the final Jenkins Theater production of the 1982-83 season at UWSP.

Directed by Ed Hamilton of the theatre arts faculty, the play opened Friday, May 6, and will continue on the evenings of May 7 and 8, and 11 to 14, at 8 p.m. Tickets are available in the theatre arts box office, Fine Arts Center.

Hamilton describes the set designed by Stephen Sherwin of the theatre arts faculty as "multiple staging with a slight rake." There are at least seven levels where different scenes occur which was common for the staging of Shakespearean plays. The colors are monochromatic and much is done with the lighting (also designed by Sherwin)," Hamilton continues.

"The costumes are a combination of 18th century French designs and Persian-style outfits with turbans, which are worn by the Illyrians," he says. They were designed by Linda Martin Moore, UWSP costume.

Kreston Peckham of Waukesha will play the role of Orsino, Duke of Illyria; Regina Kirby of Wauwatosa is Viola; Michael Accardo of Port Edwards is Sebastian; Jeanne Stehr of Wauwatosa is Olivia.

The assistant director is Beth Radtke of Wauau, the stage manager is Dawn Wenzel of Stevens Point, the technical director is Mike Pawlowski of Topeka, Kan.

PM on ROTC: censorship or editorial discretion?

To Pointer Magazine,

Where do you get the audacity to run a special issue on censorship? Your staff is the largest bunch of hypocrites I ever hope to run across. You have been practicing censorship of the ROTC and its involvement with campus and community affairs. (We are a campus activity!) Of all the articles delivered to your office by the ROTC department not one has been published. How can you justify that?

The ROTC detachment has contributed to campus and community activities and has never received mention in your publication. (I call it your publication since you deny us the right to publish veterans as Memorial and Veteran’s Days.

The ROTC also sponsors a rifle team which has gained national recognition (except here on campus). They have won the State Conference (1804), State Sectionals and have competed in national level matches, always placing among the top three teams.

The ROTC students have also received military honors for excellence in both academic and military subjects. I would wager that the ROTC students have a higher GPA than the campus average. The ROTC department expects and even demands academic excellence. Military subjects are of secondary importance to academic subjects. Last summer the UWSP-ROTC class placed second in the nation for its excellence in military subjects and leadership. We competed with schools such as UCLA, USC and Arizona State. Stevens Point Journal has given us excellent coverage but our own school ignores us.

It makes me sick to think that I have dedicated my time, effort and maybe my life to protect those very basic rights that you so readily deny me. Without those freedoms your newspaper might not exist. Just remember that the Constitution was written for both of us and not just for the people or organizations which you think are deserving.

Perhaps if you were not so biased and made a radical change your paper could be more objective than subjective in its reporting of campus events.

Smoke free for you n' me

To Pointer Magazine,

What are the rights of smokers as opposed to non-smokers? I am writing in regards to an article printed in the Pointer on April 21 by Ciccolini and Hutchinson. The title of their article was "Pending Bill Provides Smoke-Free Areas." The bill referred to, if passed, would provide for the rights of smokers and non-smokers in a more equitable manner than at present.

Ciccolini and Hutchinson are not only in favor of the passage of this Wisconsin legislation, but are in the process of proposing policy adjustments for smoking regulations in the University Center.

The recommendations for policy changes are based on the results of a survey of students who frequent the UC. The recommendations to be made to the UC Policies Board are: 1) better communication of smoking areas in the new restaurant areas to the public by putting small signs on the tables, or changing the smoking area to the enclosed area connected to the Encore, 2) since the majority of people surveyed said they wanted some kind of smoking restrictions in both the main lounge and the TV lounges, the recommendations will be that the smoking policy be changed accordingly. This will probably result in segregated smoking areas. Eligible percent of the students surveyed were non-smokers. This is close to the national average of smokers vs. non-smokers.

Both smokers and non-smokers have a right to do whatever they want to do, but not if exercising that right interferes with anybody else's right to do whatever they want. I feel these policy revisions won't greatly inconvenience smokers and will greatly benefit non-smokers. Overall, they would be positive in effect.

This letter is in support of Ciccolini and Hutchinson's recommendations. They have put a lot of time and effort into the changing of the policy, and I feel they deserve recognition for their actions.

In some ways, the 1982-83 school year was one which students and university and community officials would like to forget. In July, local news was dominated by attacks on Nigerian students. Subsequently, according to community and university officials, to put Stevens Point on trial along with the accused assailants.

On the positive side, the university was host to several prominent speakers ranging from a former U.S. president to a spokesman for the Democratic Revolutionary Front of El Salvador. Also, positive steps were taken to promote the participation of minority students and women.

Assaults on students

The July 4 weekend was marred by an attack on four Nigerian students outside the Outer Limits Bar. One of the students, Anthony Isua, suffered permanent damage to his left leg.

The Stevens Point Police Department was roundly criticized for its handling of the beating. A third party investigation by Wausau Attorney James Kurth revealed an insufficient investigation of the beating incident. The Police and Fire Commission absolved itself of any wrongdoing, prompting city alderman Roger Bullis to call for the reinstatement of all Police and Fire Commission members. The commission later certified its investigative procedures.

The area men, Paul Wojtalewicz, Michael Stremkowski and Robert J. Horvath, were found guilty of battery in the July 3 beating incident. James Wojtik, a town of Hull resident, and Thomas Pawelek were found guilty of disorderly conduct in the March attack.

In response to these incidents, the city and university formed a Minority Action Council. Some of the actions taken by the Council included the creation of a "neutral ground" program for those with grievances concerning discrimination, a "minority hot line," and a program to teach foreign students about American law. In addition, the city of Stevens Point expanded the power of the Affirmative Action-Fair Housing Committee to enforce its fair housing ordinance which prohibits discriminatory considerations in the selling or leasing of housing units.

Fire

Another tragic summer occurrence was the death of UWSP student Dean Smith. Smith died of first and second degree burns while sleeping through a fire in his home at 1218 Franklin Street. The fire was set by Ricki Krueger, an acquaintance of Smith's roommate. Krueger later pleaded guilty to charges of homicide by reckless conduct and of causing property damage.

Fall and Spring Elections

Last autumn Assemblyman Dave Helbach, State Sen. Bill Bablitch, and Congressperson Dave Obey, all Democrats, easily won re-election to their respective offices.

This spring Bablitch abandoned his Senate seat to run for a seat on the Wisconsin Supreme Court. He won the state primary election by a surprisingly comfortable margin and defeated Outagamie County judge Gordon Myse in the nonpartisan general election.

On May 9, Helbach announced he would seek Bablitch's vacated Senate seat for the 34th district.

Speakers

In addition, several spirited debates, most notably Proxmire-McCallum, Bablitch-Myse and a Stevens Point mayoral debate, added to the wide range of views expressed.

United Council

On October 13 and 14, UW-Stevens Point students gave overwhelming support to a referendum testing their resolve for continuing our connection to the student lobby group United Council. Four days after the referendum, the student body voted and gave UC the nod 1,109 to 148.

In recent weeks Bentley's leadership has come under increasing fire from campus newspapers across the state. Bentley has been accused of intimidating Legislative Affairs Director Curt Pawlik, the student body and of prohibiting the delivery of a financially prosperous campus newspaper. The fire from campus newspapers across the state. Bentley has been accused of intimidating Legislative Affairs Director Curt Pawlik, the student body and of prohibiting the delivery of a financially prosperous campus newspaper.

The Pointer Magazine and Madison's Daily Cardinal have called for Bentley's resignation and urged impeachment action if Bentley refuses to step down.

Joanis Controversy

Retired Sentry Insurance executive John Joanis was in the news last summer when court depositions revealed that he had been involved in a "minority hot line" and that he was accused of financial misconduct. In addition, the city of Stevens Point expanded the power of the Affirmative Action-Fair Housing Committee to enforce its fair housing ordinance which prohibits discriminatory considerations in the selling or leasing of housing units.

The Pointer Magazine has handled the situation by creating a "neutral ground" program for those with grievances concerning discrimination, a "minority hot line," and a program to teach foreign students about American law. Charges against Bentley mounting

By Joe Stinson

Pointer News Writer

Pointer Magazine learned Tuesday afternoon from United Council Director Jane Shattuc that President Scott Bentley was charged with drunken driving, while using the organization’s car, March 11.

Bentley admitted in an interview Tuesday night that he had been charged, but that he had not been on UC business when the incident occurred. He said that “traditionally the car has been used at the president’s discretion.” He added that his license had been revoked.

Shattuc that President Scott Bentley was charged with the organization’s car, March 11.

By Joe Stinson

“Charges are inexcusable.”

UC Legislative Affairs Director Curt Pawlisch said in a telephone interview Tuesday that he and Jane Shattuc, UC executive director, approached Bentley Tuesday afternoon to ask that he resign. Bentley refused, he said.

As a consequence, Pawlisch speculated, a motion to begin impeachment proceedings would be introduced at the UC meeting to be held June 17 in Green Bay.

Pawlisch also said that he and Shattuc would meet with UC delegates from Whitewater, Oshkosh and Stevens Point this week, in Madison, to review evidence that points to Bentley’s ongoing use of UC funds.

"After we present the evidence that we have against Scott, it will be up to UC delegates to begin an investigation,” Pawlisch commented. He added that he and Shattuc would be drafting a letter, to be released to all UW-system student newspapers and UC delegates, that calls for 10 reforms to increase accountability on the part of the UC executive staff.

In addition to an earlier release, by Shattuc, of suspect UC financial records—that point to a misuse of UC money by Bentley—recent disclosures also suggest more UC money remains unaccounted for.

One check, Shattuc said, written by Bentley while she was absent from the office due to an illness, was marked “void” on the check stub. She said the cancelled check shows Bentley cashed the check for $25. Shattuc said Bentley would not account for the expenditure, nor had he paid the UC back.

Bentley contends that the money went for flowers for Shattuc while she was in the hospital recovering from an operation.

Shattuc said Wednesday morning that “this kind of thing has never been done before with UC money,” and added that she was going to spend UC money why didn’t he make the check out to the florist.

Another check, written for a trip Bentley took to La Crosse for UC business, was cashed for $110. The money was to pay for two nights’ lodging for Bentley’s trip to Eau Claire May 2 to lobby the school to join UC. According to Shattuc, Bentley only stayed one night in La Crosse, and he never made the trip to Eau Claire.

Bentley said that he could not remember whether he had stayed one or two nights on the La Crosse trip, and he added he would have to check his personal records about the trip.

He also commented that he was very concerned about the accusations being leveled against him. He said that recent comments by Pawlisch to UC delegates and the press were “half-cooked allegations.” Pawlisch has recently said that the UC “suffers from a lack of accountability and integrity,” and suggested the UC office purchase a time clock “so that employees will have clear records of the time they spend in United Council.

"If students want us punching in and out and sitting in the office, instead of out on the road going to system schools, fine,” he said. "But they should understand that a time clock costs money," he added.

When Bentley was asked whether he would welcome an audit of the UC financial records he responded, "well if the students want to pay for it fine."

The UC president has also been accused by UC staffers of using Eau Claire’s 998 machine, postage meter, long-distance line, and other UC office supplies to campaign for re-election.

UW-Madison’s Daily Cardinal also reported that Bentley had apparently plagiarized parts of his campaign position papers and then refused to defend his campaign position papers. Krantz’s position papers verbatim.

In a related matter, Pawlisch also admitted that he has been the primary author of Bentley’s statements to the Board of Regents. Pawlisch explained that he took the presentations and that the presentations included some of Bentley’s personal thoughts on the current administration; however, the passage, which read, “I am too young to remember the past, and romantic conceptions of what life was like then on the campus” was actually written by Pawlisch.

Former Academic Affairs 1,138 bachelor’s, Heim also contends that Bentley’s testimony in December 1982 before the Regents on draft registration and the Solomon Amendment was not his own.

“But Scott never, ever wrote a word of this,” he said. He added that Bentley never wrote a draft of his monthly reports to the Board of Regents, and that he often didn’t understand the content of his reports.

SOG President Scott West said earlier this week that he would like to see an “outside auditor come in and look at the books.”

Feast feels that a third party—someone not involved with the UW System—would not “play favorites.”

“I feel we need to have an audit done first before we can launch an investigation into the charges against Bentley,” West commented.

West commented that he thinks the organization has been ineffective recently because of the controversy.

“Two important issues came up recently before the Regents—the tuition increase and faculty salaries—and yet we’ve gotten no feedback from Madison. There’s been nothing,” he said.

“Right now UWSP students are not getting their money’s worth from UC,” he added. He also said that he would, if the organization continues on its present course, put a referendum before UWSP students about whether the school should continue to be affiliated with the lobby group.

We admitted that “the press has been way ahead of the UC directors in finding out what had been going on in Madison.

"If it wasn’t for the student press and Curt Pawlisch we wouldn’t know all we know now.”

UWSP to confer 817 degrees

UW-Stevens Point will confer 762 bachelor’s degrees and 55 master’s degrees at its commencement this spring.

The entire UW System will award over 13,000 degrees this spring.

The breakdown is as follows: Eau Claire’s, 998 bachelor’s, and 43 master’s; Green Bay, 317 and 7; La Crosse, 630 and 73; Oshkosh, 814 and 10; Fond du Lac, 413 and 25; Platteville, 446 and 39; River Falls 450 and 30; Wisconsin Rapids, 443; Superior, 254 and 33; Whitewater, 819 and 32; Madison, 3,640 bachelor’s, 784 master’s, 210 doctorate, 255 law and 148 medicine; and Milwaukee, 1,660 bachelor’s and 40 doctorate.

Foot patrol
The Student Government Association and a local sexual assault task force established a campus foot patrol. The patrol is responsible for informing campus security of crimes in progress and for deterring campus crimes from taking place.

LRC and Gym Projects
A $3.2 million expansion project for Quandt gymnasium was a big loser in the state battle to cut large state deficits. A modified $2.5 million plan was passed. The 47,000-foot expansion will add one new floor to the library and widen the existing structure.

Bungled Energy Project
An energy modification project designed to save the school $50,000 annually fell victim to bureaucratic snarls and was halted. The $555,000 plan, affecting UWSP's Collins Classroom Center, the College of Professional Studies, and the Phy Ed building, was termed "a disaster" by Assistant Chancellor for Business Affairs Zeha Torzewski.

Proved by the State Building Commission and the UW System Board of Regents. The 47,000-foot expansion will add one new floor to the library and widen the existing structure.

Silvermint Arcade

Silvermint Arcade owner Gib Zinda and Terry Kluck fought the Common Council over its refusal to renew their amusement's license last summer. The Council, after hearing complaints from local merchants alleging the arcade attracted juvenile delinquents, refused to renew the license in two 7-6 votes.

Zinda obtained an injunction to keep the arcade in operation, but in December Kluck and he received citations totaling $1,547 for violating the local arcade ordinance. In February they responded by suing the City of Stevens Point, Mayor Mike Haberman, and Aldermen Joel Mahvic and Roger Bulis, both UWSP Communication professors. The $1.15 million suit alleges the Common Council and the individuals violated several of Zinda and Kluck's constitutional rights.

Jankowski's Major Problem

Student Joe Jankowski claimed the standards used to end his music major candidacy, and the manner of his denial, were discriminatory. Jankowski argued his denial resulted from personal minority conflicts with several Fine Arts faculty rather than any lack of skill. Faculty members responded by accusing Jankowski of several inadequacies in his ability to play the piano. Such shortcomings, they believed, justified the refusal of his intended major.

Solomon Ruling

U.S. District Court Judge Donald Alsop issued a temporary injunction against the Solomon Amendment, which would require young men applying for federal financial aid to first prove they have registered for the stand-by military draft.

Alsop ruled the amendment violated an individual's right not to incriminate himself and that it constituted a bill of attainder, which prosecutes by legislation rather than by trial.

However, Solomon proponents vowed to fight the ruling.

The survey said the average overall pay for all faculty in the Big Ten was $32,600.

U's Want More

Major Midwest universities, dismayed by declining support from state and federal government, warned they may not be able to do much to revitalize the economy.

Goal not met
Several members of the UW Board of Regents said they were disappointed by not meeting its minority enrollment goal of 9,000.

Cody J. Fish, appointed to the Regents by former Gov. Lee Dreyfus last year, doubted whether the university was doing everything it could to attract minority students. Another Regent, Edith N. Finlayson, said the lack of minority faculty in second-rate schools and universities is a contributing factor to the lack of minority students in state universities.

Code revisions

The UW Faculty Senate is considering revisions in its administrative code. The revisions are related to outside business activities of UW faculty members. Senate members have proposed the creation of an ethics committee at each institution in the UW. The ethics committees would be responsible for handling conflict of interest questions involving faculty members.

Other proposed changes include requiring faculty members to submit annual reports of outside activities if they serve, direct or own at least 10 percent of outstanding equity in an organization. The faculty members would be responsible for informing students doing research of any financial interests related to the research.

The first records of financial interests reported by professors were released to the public last week.

Salary ranking

The annual salary review conducted by the American Association of University Professors shows the University of Wisconsin-Madison fourth among Big Ten schools in average faculty salary for 1982-83.

Wisconsin, with an average faculty salary of $33,000, ranked behind Michigan, Northwestern and Illinois.

The U's in Madison reported a study last year that indicated there was an average of $2,000 less in faculty salaries at Wisconsin than at comparable institutions.

Free voice for Poland in Stevens Point

By Laura Sternweis

The Gwiazda Polarna is the largest Polish-language weekly newspaper in the United States. Published here in Stevens Point, it is an independent paper in a democratic country, providing a free voice in a free land.

"We are a free voice for Polish people in the United States and all over the world," said Leszek Zielinski, one of the paper's editors. "We are not just writing stories. We are sending a message to Polish people, a message that they want to hear." The Gwiazda Polarna has been sending that message since 1960.

Stevens Point had had a Polish-language newspaper since 1911, when Zekie Hutter and Trefoil Krutzka began publishing the Rolnik, a weekly paper designed for rural Polish immigrants. In 1958, Joseph and Stephen Wozzala bought the Rolnik from Hutter and Krutzka, and continued its publication. As the years passed by and the area's Polish population expanded, the need for a more independent Polish paper was acknowledged.

Gwiazda Polarna offers free six-week subscriptions to new immigrants, he said. "We feel we have to approach the newcomers. We must appeal to them."

Polish immigrant Arthur Steinwels, along with Marshall Crenshaw, is planning tours for the summer. Crenshaw, who has been with the Pretenders since 1987, is due for release a new album due for release in May. "Field Day," the Pretenders' latest album, is produced by Steve Lillywhite, and will feature Chris Donato on bass and Robert Crenshaw on drums. Crenshaw, from Detroit, should not be confused with the Pretenders' drummer.

A new album from Elton John is due for release on May 25. It will feature 10 originals by Elton John and Bernie Taupin, Davy Johnstone on guitars, Dee Murray on bass and Nigel Olsson on drums.

Writing lab tutors travel to Purdue workshop

By R.C. Woods

Special to the Pointer

Question: Does UWP have that many Big Ten schools don't?

Answer: A Writing Lab that helps students and the community with all facets of writing.

I know, I was at Purdue University May 5 and 6, along with nine other peer tutors, three faculty members, and the Purdue Lab secretary, to attend the national Writing Centers Association Fifth Annual Conference.

We discovered that our lab is a model for the nation, that it provides a warm, supportive, yet stimulating environment for all writers. In many schools, writing labs are remedial. Students are only sent there if their writing is deficient. If our lab, however, helps people with research papers, short stories, poems, resumes, journals, and other writing assignments in all subjects. We are also unique in that we not only serve students at all levels, but professors, administrators, and the community as well.

At the Purdue conference we tutors conducted a session on how to use microcomputers to teach writing in a lab, and we staffed a display of UWP Writing Lab materials. As we worked at the display, writing lab directors from all over the nation said they were impressed by the work our lab published. They commended us especially for our collection of student writing and for the Rites of Writing book we published this year.

From the trip we learned ways to improve our own lab. We found some new directions to take in tutoring basic writers. We also brought back a large stack of handouts on business writing and other topics.

In addition we learned how fortunate we are at UWP in our lab's relationship with administrators, faculty, and students. A major reason for the success of our lab is that everyone at UWP, from the office of the provost on down, recognizes the importance of writing and the need for good teaching and writing on our campus.

Our trip to Purdue was funded by the generosity of the Student Government Association through University Writers, Deardurff Eagon, Vice Chancellor Patrick McDonagh, and the Writing Lab.

I'LL SLEEP WHEN I'M DEAD

"What?"

"We polished off four cases of Olyn, then somebody started passing 'a joint around..."

"Uh huh..."

"I'm takin' a hit off it, trying not to burn my lip, when the chick says, she says, "Hey man, your mustache is on fire!" I'm tellin' ya, I just about freaked. She was kidding, ya know..."

"Huh..."

"I mean, that's cruel, sayin' that to somebody. Jesus, Hey, watch drinkin', man?"

"Uh huh..."

"What's drinkin'? Lemme buy ya one, hey.

"Hmm..."

"About Major Ham—are you in there, man?"

Ever had one of those nights? One of those nights when being conscious is like being conscious living on top of a crowded bar, and the noise has reached the level where its doing permanent damage to your chromosomes—and there's some random kid talking to you in earnest, slightly blursed tunes—and you can't hear what he's saying? You just stand there and say, "Uh huh," and nod your head until you feel like throwing up.

One of those nights that begins at 3:30 in the afternoon and ends 13 hours later with the 79 rpm bedpans—where you're lying in bed and you suddenly feel like you're a worn-out, warped LP going around and around, playing some archaic up druncked dirge—and you have to grab the golden bedpost and switch on the lights and put your feet on the floor to make sure that the room is not on a turntable.

Ever had one of those nights? Don't shake your head, you have too. I've seen you. Out there with your shoes untied and Blue Bullet suds under your nose. Sitting there with a big dopey grin on your face, and your eyes unfocused and your heart going like the opening of "Born to Run."

I've had a lot of those nights. I like getting destroyed—once in a while. Not everyday, you understand, just on special ocassions—like my birthday. Or Christmas or New Year's. Or Halloween. Or nightfall. There's nothing wrong with the pursuit of pleasure. Hedonism has been with us for a long time—ever since the first Hedons landed in America and put up a tavern on Plymouth Rock.

There are, however, other ways of pursuing pleasure besides getting wasted. Should we not, as adults, be able to enjoy ourselves without resorting to chemicals? Should we not, from time to time, pursue pleasurable sober pastimes? Should we not refrain from destroying our few remaining braincells? Should we have another beer or should we switch to bourbon? Can we get to the bar? Where's the bathroom in this place, anyway?

Before we go out and get twisted again, let's outline a few basic rules. It can't hurt—we'll probably get really smashed and lose the list anyway. Okay, here are the rules: From now on, we'll only get drunk on weekends and holidays. No more getting smashed before class, unless it's phy ed. No more Broin' up and saving the nads for a nightmare. And we'll try to never again climb the streetlights and scream, "Come and get me, Portage County Pigs!" to the local men in blue.

There, that wasn't so bad. I feel a lot better. See you out there tonight.

UWSP's comic eminence has quipped his last. Uncle Bob is finally turning in his Pointer Mag press pass and calling it a college career.

Uncle Bob, a.k.a. Bob Ham, has spent the last eight years unleashing his special brand of madcap mayhem on campus readers. But the time has come to explore new mediums, to discover new ironies, and to boldly go where few sane comics have gone before.

Ham's cult followers, and I certainly count myself within their ranks, may find that last statement inherently impossible.

There are many who believe that Uncle Bob has left no comic boundaries uncrossed and that they've shared a healthy, happy snort with each gag along the way.

However, in recent years, a large number of traditional minded students have indicated their disagreement with Uncle Bob's bawdy material and ribald sense of humor. One candidate for last year's Editor in Chief position made it quite clear she wouldn't put up with such "tasteless vulgarity" if selected for the job.

Well she wasn't, and Uncle Bob's 1982-83 contributions now are firmly cemented in the annals of Pointer Mag comic history. And you should thank your rogue beavers, they are! Uncle Bob brought a satirical bite and etique talent for parody to this year's paper which will be a topic of conversation for some time to come. Future Pointer humorists deserve our pity—they will be toiling in the shadow of a local legend.

Al Stanek, Mary Dowd, Gail Gatton, Kurth Busch, Suzy Jacobson, John Teggatz, Mike Ken, and Mike Daesh. Uncle Bob has had timecards signed by each of these Pointer nabobs during his tenure with the Pointer. The hats he's worn are almost as numerous: Theater, Film, TV, Music, and Book Critic, Features Editor, Copy Editor, Satirist, Columnist, Pointer Program Compiler, Typist, Copy Editor again and Senior Editor. Quite an occupational smorgasbord, yet the list fails to mention the immeasurable influence Uncle Bob also had on each year's staff simply by providing a voice of experience and by being such an all around nice guy. And having an editor of Bob's merry making prowess about sure.
The following is a small smattering of Uncle Bob's comic classics over the years. We emphasize the word "small" as it took three thick and brawny Pointer Sports writers just to carry his portfolio from the car into the office. Among those Ham highlights which are a) too long, b) too wide, c) too ambitious, or all of the above are:

Ditto for Uncle Bob columns;
Every April Fool's Pointer since the dawn of time;
Pointer Games: Take the Money and Run, Stay Warm, Sixties Flashback, Uncle Bob's Christmas Fun Page, The Bowling Game;
The Cry of the Falwell—Jerry Falwell's hair raising experiences as a werewolf;
The 3-D Pointer comic strip—"It Came from the Outer Limits!"
And the credits could keep on rolling; Ham's quantity has been as prolific as his quality.

So we ARE offering is only the proverbial ham's ear of all Bob's comic masterpieces. But read on anyway and grab a few final chuckles on the departing humorist's tab.

A listeners band of Ask Uncle Bob letter writers established the "Hammin" at last year's Yacht Club coronation ceremony. Most of the cult's "real" degenerates can be viewed each April Fool's eve at midnight outside the club duelling each other with bathroom plungerS and sporting elk antlers on their foreheads.

M.D.
When asked why he needs so much sleep, the subject becomes extremely defensive. He claims that he does not actually sleep the whole time he is in bed, but that he spends a great deal of time (as much as fifty percent) thinking about very complicated and important things. When asked for a specific example of this, he said, "Okay, I go to thinking about the other night about goose down. You know, it's in damn near everything -- there are down sleeping bags, down pillows, down jackets. And I wonder...what do they do with the goose after they take the feathers off them? How do the poor birds get along?" The subject claimed he had once seen, "a v of hald geese silhouetted against the moon," and said he had given him the creeps.

Q: How did Jesus feed the 5,000 with only five loaves and two fishes?
A: Child's portions.

Q: What is death?
A: Panduro, a philosopher and a Roman Senator in the year 137 AD, had this to say about death: "Why are you afraid of death? Death is nothing that you want to see something that a girl who works at the Circus Maximus -- she does this act with a unicorn -- it's just unbelievable. She'll knock you out, I really mean it."

Pandurose was an idiot. How he ever got to be a Senator is beyond me.

Of course death is something to worry about. It's cold and icy and smelly and dirty and rotten and awful, and anybody who tries to tell you it isn't either owns a funeral parlor or is writing some dumb book like Dying Can Be The High Point Of Your Life, or Death Is Just A Long Nap.

When Pointer editor Kurt Henry, a young participant in the Cheerleading Clinic, he seemed to know exactly what kind of story he wanted. "What we're looking for, Bob, is something that's perverted and disgusting," said Kurt, who went on to elaborate on this car- nal conceit: "Look, a good night's sleep is the first step to clearing up. At 10:20, he had been in bed for three hours, and he was still wide awake. He claimed he had once seen, "something is going to happen," and said it had given him the creeps.

Q: What is natural?
A: Well, well, well. Seems like just about everything we eat nowadays is at least 100 percent natural. Not to mention high-fiber, low cholesterol, and sugar-free. Well, what's the hell is so great about nature, why is that guano natural? Isn't that fungus? Monkey fuzz? Goose poop? Do you want them in your granola?

DON'T go to expensive grocery shopping. It may seem like a good thing when you're zoned, but later you won't know what to do with all those double-dunk Oreos.

DON'T go to a funeral, a library, a church service, or any place else where you could get into serious trouble for giggling like an idiot.

DON'T get paranoid. It's reasonable to lock the door and draw the curtains, but not to lock the machine gun nest in the window is going a bit far.

DON'T try to use "funny" long-distance calls. It's very expensive, and no one in Australia will talk to you no way.

DON'T fall in love. This is tricky business under any circumstances, but particularly when your discretion has been impaired by no other than your own. Falling in love, on the other hand, is perfectly acceptable.

DON'T try to tell a joke. When you get started, then you'll get a few incelentable stumbles. And if you try it more often, then you'll shrilt and choke and fail completely, and everybody will think you're just kidding.

DON'T try to act normal. It doesn't work. Ever.

DON'T make amazing remarks to law enforcement officials.

Bratfest '83

By Jerilyn Anderson

Pointer Features Writer

You take a ton of brats, 100 half-barrels, 2,600 people, live music and put them all out in the sun for four hours. That's the recipe for a great time at Bratfest.

On Saturday, April 30, Sigma Tau Gamma once again sponsored Bratfest in Bukolt Park. Despite predictions of bad weather, all 2,500 advance tickets were sold by Friday afternoon. One hundred additional people were allowed in at the door.

According to Jeff Gress of Sigma Tau Gamma, this year's crowd was "the biggest ever." The area was enlarged in anticipation of the record-breaking turnout, and extra grills, taps and restroom facilities were in operation.

If you've never been to Bratfest, you might wonder what makes people stand in long lines to get into the park just so they can stand in line again waiting for beer, brats, and bathrooms. But anyone who's been there will tell you the atmosphere and the spirit of fun and camaraderie that prevails make it all worthwhile.

Although the weather wasn't as nice as it was at last year's fest, it didn't get in the way of anyone's good time. People seemed to be really enjoying themselves, getting into the music of La Crosse's Centurian and renewing acquaintances with friends.

And Bratfest '83 wasn't plagued with the crowd control problems so often associated with such large gatherings. Gress said there were "no problems or fights."

Gress described the event as overall success. Those who were there can attest to the truth of that statement. Those who weren't will have to wait for Bratfest '84 to see what they missed.

In this final issue of the year, the environmental staff has decided to provide you with our summary of what we consider the most important environmental stories to have hit our planet. Each of these stories reflects a single environmental issue, yet these stories, combined to make a measure of success, others a painful frustration, exhibit the precarious state of our environment. Although some do not point directly to the Reagan administration, all are contained within the context of the president's environmental policies. These policies have caused a groundswell of reaction by concerned Americans against the degradation of our planet. Our coverage of the environment has reflected this activated climate.

A stock, students, of the following chronological summary which should serve both as a springboard for environmental action. Please take notes. This context is exemplified best, of course, by the Environmental Protection Agency fiasco, which continues to simmer.

Nuclear Freeze

The nuclear freeze movement succeeds in gaining the passage of the first state nuclear freeze referendum in the United States. Area freeze proponents, most notably the Central Wisconsin Peace Coalition and the Students for Peace Against Nuclear Extinction were pleased when Portage County voters approved of the measure by an 8 to 1 ratio, the second highest next to Dane County. It exemplified what hard work on the part of a dedicated community outreach program could achieve. During the summer prior to the vote, the groups held two rallies, brought Admiral Carroll, a nationally known arms expert and freeze proponent, to campus, to get the City Council to endorse the Freeze, and erected a couple of door to door campaigns to get out the vote. The freeze helped launch these two groups, and portaged the issue as a factor in the growing political awareness of the city and school.

clients such coincidental clients as Exxon and Union Carbide.

Taking Peshek's place is Kathy Falk, former staff attorney for Wisconsin's Environmental Decade. Falk and the Decade were supporters of and participants in the consensus decision-making process. Environmental organizations from Northern Wisconsin view Falk's appointment with stern disdain. As a matter of fact, Roscoe Churchill, president of the Wisconsin Resource Protection Council, has told Pointer Magazine that the office of public intervenor should be abolished because it does not protect the public.

Nuclear Waste Referendum

Citizens of Wisconsin voted overwhelmingly against the construction of a high-level nuclear waste repository. The referendum, which passed so convincingly in Wisconsin, was ignored by the Reagan administration as being an irrelevant piece of emotionalism on the part of the people of Wisconsin. For the citizens of Central Wisconsin, the issue of whether the federal government was dealing with Wisconsin on a fair and equitable basis was probably decided on February 17, when the DOE and the Wisconsin Radioactive Waste Review Board held a meeting in Wausau. In what can only be considered a lesson in futility, the DOE provided none of the answers and the public was given so many of the questions that the meeting did not end until 3:00 in the morning. No one went away satisfied with the DOE's assurances that Wisconsin is only being looked at in a vague manner. However, this issue certainly did not end with a vote by Wisconsin citizens. As Pointer Magazine reported throughout this semester, radioactive waste is far too important to the DOE's weapons and energy program to be thwarted by the progressive leanings of Wisconsin, but at least the DOE was made aware of the struggle they were creating.

Earth Week '83

Earth Week is celebrated at the UWSP campus. In what was perhaps the most delightful week in a long and at times dreary semester was the annual week of celebration of life known as Earth Week. Earth Week opened with a lecture by Dr. Barry Commoner on the goals of environmental activism and of a fundamental restructuring of our national energy program.

The week of awareness was filled with films such as The China Syndrome, with music provided by Fools Moon, and Jeff Cahill and others, with an excellent mime performance by Friends Mime Theater, all culminating with a rally on Friday.

We may have seen the beginning of a new student alliance between those groups who were instrumental in organizing Earth Week. The Environmental Council, The Environmental Educators and Naturalists Association, Parks and Recreation, and the Students Against Nuclear Extinction showed signs of forming an effective coalition due to combined efforts. For activists at the university, this may have been the most important piece of news to make Pointer Magazine this year.

Pointers earn WWIAC crown

By Julie Denker

Pointers Sportswriter

The powerful UWSP softball team continues to reign supreme in the Wisconsin Women's Intercollegiate Athletic Conference as they again captured the conference championship by beating UW-Parkside 4-2 Tuesday, May 3, at Iverson Park.

The Pointers have now been conference champions all three years that they have participated as a varsity sport.

The win gives the Pointers a very successful 14-3-1 season.

UWSP ace pitcher Sue Murphy hurled the entire seven innings; allowing six hits, two walks and striking out one. She improved her record to 8-3.

The Pointers got on the scoreboard in the bottom of the second inning when Parkside pitcher Michele Martino walked four of five batters in a row to walk home Linda Butzen. That was all the Pointers could get, though, as they left the bases loaded at the end of the inning.

The game was close throughout as the two-run grabber a 3-1 lead in the top of the third inning on an unearned run.

However, the Pointers captured the lead for good in the bottom of the fourth inning when they scored three runs to earn the final 4-2 score.

The fourth inning got started with Sue Schwech and Cari Gerlach reaching base on a walk and an error. Laurie Craft then sacrificed both runners to second and third and former -SPASH standout Dee Christofferson came through with a clutch single that scored both runners.

Five different UWSP players accounted for their five hits. Brenda Lemke had the only extra-base hit, that being a double. Christofferson led the team in RBIs with three.

Coach Nancy Page was very happy with the win.

"I am extremely pleased with the team effort displayed today. Our defense was really strong and we got the clutch hitting when we needed it."

"Dee Christofferson came up with some important hits for us. Our outfield was covering a lot of ground today too. They all did a great job. I'm very proud of all of them, especially showed through today."

The road to the conference championship was a rocky one at times for the Pointers. The Pointers held a commanding 9-1 season record until a 4-1 loss and 4-4 tie in the April 20 doubleheader against UW-La Crosse. In that doubleheader Point was plagued by five errors and a lack of hitting.

But Point proved that they were indeed of championship caliber when they swept UW-Superior the next day in a conference doubleheader 3-4 and 21-4.

With the wins UWSP clinched the Northern Division title which gave them the right to play in the conference championship.

This concluded conference play for the Pointers and gave them an unbeaten 6-0 conference record for the season.

UWSP concludes their regular season schedule with two wins and one loss in the WSUC Outdoor Meet last week as UWSP led the meet for the first 18 events before UW-La Crosse rallied to claim the title. UWLC won the title with 190 points while Point was right behind with 165 and UW-Shout was a distant third with 91. La Crosse was the overwhelming premeet favorite.

Witt honored

SID — Rick Witt, the veteran track and field coach at UWSP has been selected as the Wisconsin State University Conference Track and Field Coach of the Year by his coaching peers.

Witt's Pointer team nearly pulled off a major upset at the WSUC Outdoor Meet last week as UWSP led the meet for the first 18 events before UW-La Crosse rallied to claim the title. UWLC won the title with 190 points while Point was right behind with 165 and UW-Shout was a distant third with 91. La Crosse was the overwhelming premeet favorite.

Witt's team also captured second place in the WSUC Indoor Meet which was held earlier in the season.

Witt has been both the men's cross country and track and field coach at UWSP since 1977. Under his direction, UWSP has had two All-Americans in cross country and 17 in track and field since 1977 and also two national champions in that time.
Netters finish seventh

By Tamas Hoolihan

The UWSP men’s tennis team concluded its season by finishing 7th last weekend in the WSUC tennis championships. Host UW-Stout won the title with 43 points followed by defending champion UW-Whitewater with 39, UW-La Crosse 33, UW-Oshkosh 37, UW-Eau Claire 31, UW-River Falls 6, UWSP 3 and U-W-Platteville 1.

Kussman advanced to the final round—good for one team point—before being defeated. He then won in the first round of consolation play to add another team point. The final point was earned by Kussman and Mitch Melotte who won their number three doubles.

Coach John Kapler was satisfied with his young team’s performance. “It was a rough year to be sure,” he said, “but we were very young and inexperienced. Our captain, Bob Smaglik, is the only junior on the squad, the rest are freshmen and sophomores so we won’t lose anyone through graduation. All seven lettermen will be back, so we’re looking forward to an exciting season next year,” he concluded.

Trackster Second

SID — The analogy of “finishing second is like kissing your sister” was experienced by the UWSP men’s track and field team here at the Wisconsin State University Conference Meet Saturday.

This was not our usual running team finish, however, as the Pointers led the nine team field through the first 18 events. It was at that point that UW-La Crosse then edged by UWSP on the way to a 25 point advantage and the victory.

La Crosse won its sixth straight title with 190 points while UWSP was second with 186 points. Rounding out the field were, UW-Stout, 91; UW-Oshkosh, 82; UW-Whitewater, 60; UW-Eau Claire, 46; UW-River Falls, 26; U-W-Platteville, 26; and UW-Superior, 9.

Kussman, also last fall, the men’s cross country team finished third in the NCAA Midwest Regionals, which qualified them to advance to the NCAA national meet in New York where they disappointingly were not able to finish in the top ten as they had hoped.

December saw the start of basketball season, a season that for the men’s team turned out to be the best in UWSP history. Facing the toughest schedule ever, the Pointers compiled a 26-4 record, repeated as conference kings, captured the District 14 Championship, and earned a trip to Kansas City for national competition. Running over Point Loma of San Diego in their tournament opener, the Pointers went on to lose to Liberty Baptist College of West Virginia by a two-point margin in their second game. In addition to the team’s accomplishments, forwards John Mack and Freddie Stemmeier were named to the All-WSUC first team, while guard Terry Porter received honorable mention. Mack was also the WSUC Most Valuable Player.

The women cagers also enjoyed success, finishing second only to UW-La Crosse in the WWIAC championship with a 14-10 record.

In other winter sports, the men’s swim team achieved a second place finish in the WSUC championship, falling by only six points to Eau Claire.

In the meantime, UWSP athletic director Paul Hartman resigned in February, later accepting a position as athletic director at Oakland University in Rochester, Michigan. His successor here has not yet been chosen.

More recently, the men’s track team proved themselves when their two-mile relay team took first in the prestigious Drake Relays, and the women’s softball team was crowned WWIAC champions last week.

PERSONAL: Derek. To: Mary. Love ya all.

PERSONAL: To my dearest Sue: Here I am, all alone on this warm evening, reflecting on the moon shine as bright, sounds of nature ringing as clear, thoughts of you bringing me near. Southwest winds blowing upon my face, making me wish you were here to share this lovely place. Your warmth and comfort lies in my heart for as long as I live it shall not part. All my love, Joe.

PERSONAL: Prince Vince, you have made my sophomore year absolutely fantastic. The weekend at the cottage was great. I cried, loved every second of it. We should get it again once or twice. I will really miss your gorgeous paws even every day. I hope the Marty will make it this summer because I love you, Princess Vince

PERSONAL: Nice Renee. I just want to say you are one of the most beautiful and sweetest people I have ever met. I am really going to miss our late night talks and our conversations. If I come in the summer, I have one hell of a bill. Fire up for apartment living next semester and Europe after that. I can’t wait! I’m so glad we share these memo-a-lifetime things together.

PERSONAL: Goodbye—Ranch Hall Rad. Good luck to all of you and thanks for an exciting year. Love ya.

PERSONAL: 1st South Road G.O.S. You always spruced up the look back at Press-Laurie—Have fun in Europe; Laurie—Have fun here and all others. (If you are in Europe)—Ellen—Will have a blast this summer—I love you all.

PERSONAL: Dear Green Hornet, you’re always in my dreams, let’s get together and explore your nest. Love Dave (The Big 7) Ranger.

PERSONAL: Dear Mike: Happy 36th Birthday! Just think, December 30th is just around the corner! Have a Wonderful Year. Love, John.

PERSONAL: To wild Cheryl and gang at Pretzel Ranch: Hope you all have heaps of fun on your finals! Have a super summer up in the Great White North. Keep those cowboys of yours in line, don’t let them stray to greener pastures! Congratulations on graduating and good luck finding a teaching job. Keep in touch—Love, John.

PERSONAL: P.S. For old times sake—Smalt Bre. Inc., G.O. (any business continues)—Granny, we’ll miss ya!—Shelly, you are honorary guest at the National Federation Convention in St. Louis next year—it’s at Uncle Al’s!—The niece, Dr. D.

PERSONAL: Hey 1-North Watch, I just want to say that you guys have been friends to me and I wish I didn’t have to leave—but it looks like we’re all going separate ways next semester and I’m sure we’ll all move up and have a lot of fun. We’ve got a lot in common. I hope you’ll all have a lot of fun. I love you all.

PERSONAL: Ice Machines—Ah, the ecstasy of doing math all over Europe. Hope you can find our room in France. West Virginia & Canada here we come. Thanks for being there for me. Love ya—Little One.

PERSONAL: To the Plumbers and Electricians, I’ll miss you all very much. Each of you have a special place in my heart. Thanks for helping me grow. We’ve had some great times...may the memories linger on forever. Have a sunny summer. Don’t eat too many bananas! Love ya, Jackie.

PERSONAL: Mama & Giggler, hanging in the meadow & dreaming of blonde fuzz faces! Thanks for being such great friends—living for the weekend. Love ya both, Little One.

PERSONAL: Swat, thanks for a great year. Good luck on finals. May your summer be full of fun! Until we gather once again, take care & keep in touch. Love ya all, your fearless leader "Easy".

PERSONAL: Rainbow—Thanks for a Great Year of friendship and fun! You are the true definition of a best friend. I’ll think of you every minute. I love you! Always. I’ll never forever.

PERSONAL: Attention all U.I.E.P. students: It’s Cheryll’s birthday! Please call her anytime at 352-3374. Bobbi Jo, to wish her a Happy Birthday. P.S. this is a joke. Thank you for helping.

PERSONAL: To the girl who did the intriguing idea-life survey and Friday night. The only thing more intriguing than the survey was your voice. Can we meet? You know the number. Ask for two-beers. Ron. 311.

PERSONAL: Guy—don’t forget to keep tabs on what’s going on—I’ve made plans this time. Love CL.

PERSONAL: SFB, hang tough you’ll make it yet. And as for being superior, your puffy mind cannot comprehend the infinite reaches of my intelligence. Keep the fire burning! To PERSONAL: To all of 4-North Hansen, thanks for sharing a great year with me. You’re the "best"! I look forward to our times together next year. May they be even better. Have a great summer. I’ll miss you all—Love Jackie. P.S. Remember our Sentinel o.jging on Friday?

Would Like To Thank UWSP For Making It Happen!

The University Activities Board would like to thank everyone who attended our events and helped to make this year successful, especially our team members. We would also like to thank our advisors, Rick Gorbette and Diane Baliff for all of their help and advice. We look forward to bringing you more interesting, educational and entertaining events next year. See you all this fall. Have a FANTASTIC summer!
