From students to soldiers
Pointers speak out on Operation Desert Shield

by Jodi Ott
News Editor

With the recent downfall of snow in Wisconsin, a buildup of military personnel in the sands of Saudi Arabia seems quite far off. Yet, the crisis seems to be hitting home.

The Student Academic Advising Center said that 14 students have been called up, which includes 10 men and four women. Lois Crick from that office said that one more male and one female came in on Wednesday to make arrangements for leaving.

"It hit home to a lot of students when an RA from our hall was called up," said Chris Carter.

"The students have mixed reactions. Some are surprised. Some are shocked to be called up so soon and some are upright and rightly so," said Crick. "Others have accepted it well." Crick said he and a committee have left so quickly that they hadn't had a chance to return to the office. Others have had three of four days to get matters straightened out.

Since most students do not want to abandon a semester's work when they are activated, arrangements with their instructors vary. Some professors require an extra paper or some other type of work to make up for the missing part of the semester. Incomplete may be given or a student may entirely withdraw.

The choice often lies between grades or a tuition refund but the time that a soldier serves is invaluable to the extent that he or she will be put that much farther behind in finishing college.

"It hit home to a lot of students when an RA from our hall was called up." He had a 22-hour notice that he was going to Fort McCoy and on Monday he went to Saudi Arabia, said Chris Carter, a political science major and sophomore resident of Roach Hall.

"Our hall is involved in letter writing and collecting non-perishable goods to send over like Kool-aid, powdered toothpaste and suntan lotion," said Carter.

But is all this necessary? Should we have troops over there in the first place, and if we do, how many is enough?

"The troops need to be there just in case something happens," said Gabrielle Barrett, a senior wildlife major. "I'd like to think we won't have a war."

"I don't think the general public is too gung-ho about it," said Doug Bireman, a sophomore biology major.

"We shouldn't be this involved. I don't think they should send any more troops over," said Deena Andrews.

"We shouldn't be this involved. I don't think they should send any more troops over. We have enough," said sophomore Deena Andrews, a communication disorders major.

"I have mixed opinions. Yes, we should be over there but we shouldn't be sending over Guards and Reservists because they're not as skilled as the actual military," said Dave Schoepke, a non-traditional senior majoring in physical education.

President George Bush announced another call-up of 13,500 troops of Reservists and National Guard members planned for today.

"I think about it every day. I think about the people over there, about those who have been there since August," said Tracy Thompson who is a communications major graduating in December.

"How do you prepare yourself for war?"

Thompson has served in the Reserves for five years and now has one year left of Reserve active duty. She could be put on alert at any moment.

"I wish there were something we could do but I guess it is in hands of our elected officials," said Thompson. "I agree with Congress that the President should not be solely responsible for deciding the fate of so many lives."

"I think Bush is right for being there, the last time that somebody forcefully took over a country, millions died. Bush is right for standing up to a bully and stopping aggression," said Andy Witt, a junior majoring in political science.

"Last time Chamberlain appeased a dictator, a lot of deaths resulted, so it is wrong to get down on Bush."

"As with everyone, I hope there will be a peaceful solution. Saddam Hussein has gassed his own people, manipulated and lied, and you can't trust him. If he's killed his own people, how can you trust him with a peaceful resolution?" said Witt.

But what if there isn't a peaceful resolution?

"I say fight or go home," said Patty Platt, a junior education major.

"I feel that the longer they are over there, the harder it will be for an attack. Just get on with it," said Schoepke.

"I personally don't agree that it's worth the hundreds of thousands of American lives that it would cost," said Thompson. "Operation Desert Shield is going to be an economic issue, too, especially with this enormous budget deficit."

However, Thompson feels that whatever happens, "it's going to be fast."

"If there is fighting, it will go very quickly," said Brian Bornick, a senior communication major and member of Reserves Officer Training Corps (ROTC).

"We have military superiority and we have a combination of ground, air and sea attacks. We couldn't beat them simply on the ground but we have technology on our side. I think it would be a matter of weeks to a few months," said Bornick.

"One of the things that scares me is their use of chemical warfare."

Bornick said he noticed an "anxious feeling" among ROTC students but he doesn't think that they will see action. Before actually being deployed, ROTC candidates must complete a four to six month course at Officers Training School and become commissioned.

"One of the things that scares me is their use of chemical warfare," said Bornick. "There used to be a joke in the army that NBC which stands for nuclear, biological and chemical warfare really stood for nobody cares. No one really took the training seriously. Now they're getting scared."

Thompson also expressed her fears about fighting in a desert.

"I've never had any real desert training. I've had a lot of arctic training, because, my deployment was to Alaska," she said.

Thompson said she is preparing herself mentally in preparation of possibly being activated.

"It's hard. How do you prepare yourself for a war?" said Thompson.

Was this Horizon showing off its horsepower or was this student pulling this car out of a drift? Monday's snowstorm kept many inside, but a few sturdy souls ventured out. All classes after 2 p.m. were cancelled as Stevens Point received over 11 inches of snow. (Photo by Lisa Stubler)

Don't literally screw your roommate

Psychology professor Nancy Bayne did not agree. Bayne opposes the dance because she feels the title carries a negative sexual connotation. "On one hand we really need to teach people to respect each other and encourage others to be sexual in a positive manner. Then we turn around with a dance entitled 'Screw Your Roommate.' It doesn't necessarily encourage people to be sexually aggressive but it isn't consistent with the message we are trying to send people," Bayne said.

With campuses across the nation battling sexual harassment and intimidation, Bayne believes the connotation and the source of the word 'screw' is still sexual and often aggressive.

Aside from the sexual implications, Bayne also disagrees with the premise of setting your roommate with someone inferior. "Is being mean always good fun? The chance for the roommate to react to the set up in a hostile or defensive way is always there."

Waston Hall Hall Director Yuhang Rong explained the dance's incorporation in terms of a stress releaser and "the chance for students to play with the party. Many students often go to bars on Thursdays so the dance offers a good time in a safe social setting."

"The dance was coordinated by the student hall council and hall council has to be a very fun and positive experience," Rong explained. "We don't literally screw your roommate."

Religious Fanaticism Demonstrates the Contradiction That Lies Between What Religion Should Teach and What It Actually Does Teach

Common sense and human compassion have come upon this scene at some point. People on both sides of this violence don’t realize that they go against one of the most universally religious laws—the sanctity of life. How can they consider themselves devote followers of any god when they have a complete disregard for everything that religion stands for—standing, forgiveness, and compassion.

Religious fanaticism demonstrates the contradiction that lies between what religion should teach and what it actually does teach. It should teach fortitude in the face of persecution, patience and understanding—standing to alternative views and their values.

Religion should encourage alternative answers to all things, seeing nothing as all-right or all-wrong, not etch-in-stone doctrine which must be blindly followed. Religion should lead to the stimulation of murder toward things outside people’s own experience, not to the narrowing of minds which won’t accept beliefs contrary to their own.

The sad part of Amnon Pomerantz’s death is he is not the first, and will not be the last. Death’s stemming from the Israeli-Palestinian conflict is not even big news anymore. People have come to expect it. The media has desensitized the public to heinous acts like this.

We are led to believe that retaliation is justified in many instances, but it has gone on too often in this case. People need to recognize the falacies in the believing that they are “horrifying” a god through a senseless waste of life.

On Smokers in this School of Wellness

by Barry Radler

A stagnant air has slowly but surely descended on this campus the last few years which threatens both students’ and faculty’s right to breathe. It’s been beaten to death again and again and once again. Our sacred right to do with our bodies what we will is perilously near extinction. This naked aggression will not stand.

This campus is supposedly national, revered for its wellness orientation. Is it healthy to deny an individual autonomy of their own body? Undeniably not, and it is hypocrisy that this institution builds a multi-million dollar monument to “wellness” and then categorically denies its citizens the right to choose their own lifestyle. If that is wellness, it nauseates me.

Correct me if I’m wrong, please, but we do not live in a democracy where life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness are guaranteed in the Declaration of Independence.

It has been repeatedly revealed to all of us since grade school that we live in a unique country where the oppressive and the xenophobic need not be accepted or even tolerated. I thought Roe vs. Wade had emphasized this with abundant clarity.

So why did I wake up one day only to find I was living in Stalin’s Russia or Ayatollah’s Iran where the holier-than-thou sentiments of Pro-lifers are forced down unwilling throats? Did anyone consult the Pro-life element before dropping an intolerable and ostracizing iron curtain on the buildings of this campus? No, the Pro-life element just assumed they knew what’s best for everyone and they rub our faces in it by posting those stupid, little stickers on every dorm door on campus and putting big ashtrays outside those doors.

If Pro-life really had everyone’s best interest and concern, they wouldn’t insist someone with tar-coated lungs outside where they must contend with the possibilities of pneumonia and frostbite, now would they?

The amount money lost to such a thoughtless policy would probably be more than enough to provide old-fashioned smoking rooms in each of this university’s academic buildings.

Sure there are yet bastions on this campus for those who choose, smoke, and live the LC. But if we are not vigilant, even they may be denied.

Beyond the immediate threat against the freedom to choose lies a possibility which is endangering one of America’s greatest cultural traditions. Tobacco and tobacco culture are indigenous to America.

Imagine PDR without a cigarette holder jauntily clenched between his teeth, or James Dean without a cigarette dangling coolly from his lips, or Humphrey Bogart without a smoke—the man couldn’t kiss worth a damn but expressed an unmatched sensuality with his cigarette. Imagine Steve Miller singing ‘I’m a Jock, but I’m not a smoker or a midnight toker because it’s illegal.” I can’t, I refuse to.

People, don’t let smoking be stripped from our history as it seems to have already been on this campus.

The FAR Side

"They’re Neanderthals, Loona… Every one of them."
"Screw your roommate" slanted by media

Dear Editor:

We feel that we deserve to offer a few words in defense of a long standing college tradition that has suddenly been found insulting and off-color.

First of all, someone screwed up and the name of the dance is not only absurd, but it ignores the other definition of the word screw. It is not "obviously" a "sexually connotative word" as Professor Bayne stated, but can mean to trick, cheat or to make a mess of something.

If it was thought of as sexual, it would seem that we are encouraging roommates to have sex... that is sheer stupidity and not true. We want students to have fun with their roommates as they wonder who their blind date is. There has also been other misinformation recently publicized.

The "Screw Your Roommate" event was a dance, not a party, sponsored by Watson Hall Council, but not held at Watson Hall. Also, the dance was organized strictly by students for other students, and yet no student thoughts or opinions have been considered during the time the event has come under fire.

Second, we aren't talking about a bunch of junior high kids here. Give the students of this campus a little credit. Do you really think that at age twenty-one a man will be influenced by a phrase or word to such an extent that he would commit a crime? As young adults, our values and morals have been shaped by everyone and everything we have come in contact with. And yes, believe it or not, college students do have morals. If some don't "believe in an ethical way" by now, believe it or not, probably never will, and the name of a dance will have no bearing on their decisions.

Although not all students have what some may consider strong values, to stereotype us memory: Watson Hall Council should do their best to portray UWSP in a positive light. Professor Bayne talked about ethics, yet is it ethical to turn mass media with a complaint and an opinion before speaking with the students?

Who will benefit from this controversy? Certainly not the students, and aren't we the most important part of this system? Why is it that no mention was made of all the wonderful things students on this campus have done in the past four months? To refresh everyone's memory: Watson Hall collected food for senior citizens, Baldwin Hall invited grade school kids to trick or treat there... Shall we go on?

While we the students are doing our best to interact with the community, it is frustrating to see someone who is supposed to be missing in class, and yet is it ethical to turn mass media with a complaint and an opinion before speaking with the students?

In conclusion, it is our belief that "Screw Your Roommate" is a harmless dance whose purpose is only to unify the students, to serve as a "mixer" where students can meet more people, and to provide a safe, fun, alcohol free event.

Since the name of this dance is not unique to Watson Hall, this campus, or even the state of Wisconsin for that matter, it is really sad that this is the first time an innocent night out has been twisted, analyzed, and blown way out of proportion.

Searching for reasons in the Middle East

Dear Editor:

Ok, enough is enough about the flimsy, guilt crisis nonsense. Day in and day out, we Americans are bombarded with biased news about the man our government would have us believe is the anti-Christian. Granted good ol' Saddam isn't a likely candidate for the Nobel Peace Prize, but does this patriotic citizen who committed such a "naked act of aggression" as President Bush likes to call it (the invasion of Kuwait), deserve the split blood of our countrymen? Most Americans, or few at best, knew little and cared even less about the tiny nation of Kuwait a little over three months ago, and now they're expected to die in her defense. Traditionally we like to have a reason, a noble cause to fight for, such as freedom and democracy, but is what or where is the reason hiding behind this latest conflict? The Bush administration's policy has changed with the season in the handling of this crisis.

One minute we're there to defend our friends and interests in Saudi Arabia, and the next we're there to boot Saddam out of Kuwait. But while he is filling with his policies the nation is beginning to demand a cause or an ideal worth the destruction of what will be hundreds of thousands of lives. If it is, I think we should re-evaluate our presence in the Gulf. Perhaps the reason President Bush is not telling you of much nobler reasons to wage a long and costly war, is because the truth hurts. Perhaps if we were told we were there to bring the hostages home we would realize that they would probably be the first victims of the planes sent to rescue them.

If perhaps we were told we were there to return sovereignty back to Kuwait, we would have to ask why there are more troops than Kuwaitis, and why this filthy rich money can't flip the bill in defense of their own country rather than the American tax payers.

Iraqi soldiers will suffer far less from the effects of bombing and raids than what will be left of the Kuwaiti citizens, oil wells, and buildings of Kuwait. Unless the American public is ready to face the blood stained deserts of the Middle East, the famine, economic strain of an oil crisis far worse than with- nessed in the 70's, and retaliation from an angry Islamic culture with historically long memories for years to come, they must begin the search for a noble reason. For peace.

Punish skipping profs too

Dear Editor:

I'm writing about a situation that I have encountered twice this year. Two of my professors have cancelled class because of one reason or another they were unable to attend. I have no complaints about this whatsoever. In fact, I could use a break from classes every now and then- and I'm sure they could too.

What bothers me is that both professors proceeded to give assignments or require us to meet with them at an alternate time to make up for the class time that class wasn't be considered disrespectful, even though I am paying your salary.

Rowe showed his true colors

Dear Editor:

I'm writing in response to Thomas Rowe's letter which appeared in the November 29 issue of the Pointer. His letter concerned "one student's decision to miss class during the 1990 deer hunting season."

After reading your letter, Mr. Rowe, it is obvious that the issue at hand is not "tradition vs. priorities" or "disrespect."

Quite simply, you are an anti-hunter who was offended by the fact that a student preferred to spend a couple of days with family and nature rather than in your classroom.

You say tradition is a lame excuse for missing class. I must assure you of how many students miss their classes due to, let's say, hang-overs. I'm sure the number is greater than that of students who miss for deer hunting, but yet I doubt that you would blame them against them with the same force and rudity.

Also, it is my opinion that when we are aware of how much time he'll be missing in class, he is showing initiative to learn, not asking for the professor's approval or showing disrespect, as you believe.

Furthermore, I believe it is closer to the truth to say that you didn't disapprove of his missing class, but that you disapproved of the fact that he is a deer hunter.

What shocked me most was your comment "The truth is the great majority of the hunters are out there because they have a chance to kill something," which I found appalling. Obviously, Mr. Rowe, you are uneducated about the sport of hunting, because tradition, camaraderie, and enjoying nature happen to be very legitimate reasons to take to the woods (and miss class).

I say this as a hunter who missed classes to spend time in a tree stand. I didn't shoot a deer, but enjoyed myself immensely.

Finally, for not being interested in imposing your lifestyle or values on others, your letter appeared to be a valiant effort in doing so.

Possibly, Mr. Rowe, it's time you missed classes to play tennis, since you admittedly would rather be doing that, instead of teaching.

You have my approval, and don't worry, your absence from class won't be considered disrespectful, even though I am paying your salary.

Hearings scheduled on dump closure grant

A 10-year, $20 million cost-sharing grant program to help municipalities with the cost of closing old dumps will be the subject of hearing scheduled for early December.

The hearings will be on Department of Natural Resources administrative rules that will define grant eligibility and application procedures for the dump closure grants established by the state recycling law.

Gun deer harvest tops 334,000

The tabulation of registrations from Wisconsin’s nine-day 1990 gun deer season has hit an all-time high mark of 334,788, topping last year’s total of 310,192 deer, said Bill Ishmael, Department of Natural Resources deer, bear, and fur-bearing ecologist.

“The final nine-day figure may be higher than 335,000 deer because all registration stubs will have to be hand counted and validated,” Ishmael added. “The season total won’t be known until after the extended season ends December 2. The individual district totals will shift somewhat as the stubs, are checked and moved into the proper districts in the final count.

The DNR’s Western District topped all districts with 74,254 deer registered. That area includes the counties along the western border of Wisconsin. The Northeast District recorded the next highest total registrations with 68,555, followed by the Lake Michigan District in northeastern Wisconsin with 67,561, North Central District with 63,322, and the Southern District with 51,872. The Southeast District total was 5,641.

Another factor to be a big factor in both of the success of hunters and in their lack of success. The unprecedented warm weather put nearly 670,000 hunters afield during the opening weekend.

The warm weather also kept many of those hunters tight to their stands almost all day long, which decreased hunting pressure and did not move deer in many areas.

There’s a good snowshoe hare population; these animals can be found in popple cutovers and heavy evergreen cutovers. Ruffled grouse are heading for heavy cover in evergreen trees.

There’s not much action to report on the fishing front.

Anglers are getting steelhead at the Stiles Dam in Oconto County. Walleyes continue to bite at the dams in Grant County. Anglers are trolling with crankbaits and jigs such as Mr. Twisters. They’re having some success catching walleyes on the Wisconsin River in Columbia County. Bass and walleye fishing should be good in shallow water at this time of year. Smaller lakes and bays in the north are beginning to freeze over.

As the snowmobiling season approaches, remember that children ages 12-16 may not operate a snowmobile unless they hold a valid snowmobile safety certificate or are accompanied by someone over 18 or by a person over 14 years of age who has a safety certificate.

No children under the age of 12 may operate a snowmobile unless accompanied by either a parent, guardian or someone over 18 years of age. To find out the times and locations of snowmobile safety courses in your area, contact your local DNR office. And be sure your machine is registered for the upcoming season.

You can decorate a tree outside your home with special treats for birds and small mammals. Use cranberries, peaches, raisins, corn, whole wheat bread crust and popcorn strung on ribbon, yarn or string.

A reminder that a permit is required if you want to cut a Christmas tree in the Nicolet and Chequamegon National Forests. Permits, tags, and regulation information can be obtained at the DNR’s district offices.

Wildlife managers are continuing to monitor the deer herd’s winter condition.

 UWSP offers archeological field trip

An eight-day field trip to archeological sites in Illinois, Missouri, Oklahoma, and Arkansas to lead to credit in one of several disciplines will be offered next spring by UWSP.

Headed by archeologist John Moore, geologist Marshall Perry and soil scientist Clarence Milford, the trip is scheduled from March-30-April 6. It will offer visits to sites of archeological and geomorphological interest, including Cahokia Mounds State Park, which is the new interactive center in Illinois, Spiro Mounds State Park in Oklahoma, the University of Arkansas Museum, and the Arkansas Archeological Survey.

Two credits in archeology, soils, geology or geography may be earned by participants, who will be asked to keep a log, complete questionnaires, answer questions, and enter into the spirit of community. Costs will include transportation, lodging in motels, food, and tuition.

Camping in state park campgrounds also will be available on five of the seven nights.

Further information is available through Moore, Anthropological Studies Institute, UWSP, (715)346-3752 or 346-3060.

Large deer kill falls short of designated quota

Possibility of harsh winter concerns DNR

by Steve Schmidt

Despite the longest gun deer season in modern history, Wisconsin deer hunters did not reach the Department of Natural Resource’s (DNR) expectations of 400,000 deer.

And if the extended season totals fall short of 360,000, the department believes 200,000 of deer could die of starvation due to a harsh winter.

Given a mild winter, DNR big game specialist Bill Ishmael feels the deer herd will still amount to 1.2 million animals. Another reason to worry about the future could be forcing the population of deer to live on an unsuitable diet.

Ishmael maintains that severe winters in the past have resulted in losses of 15 to 20% of the northern deer herd. In the 1960’s, for instance, some winters yielded a loss of 30,000 to 40,000 deer.

The extended hunting season in 67 management units was endorsed by the National Resources Board to address what the DNR calls the “crisis problem” of the expanding deer herd. The large herd was causing crop damage and creating the model for a high mortality rate should a severe winter result.

A lack of snowfall and the delayed announcement of the extended season may have contributed to the lower than expected turnout of hunters, say game wardens.

DNR wildlife managers, members of the Natural Resources Board, and Conservation Congress representatives are scheduled to meet in Stevens Point on Friday to analyze the 1990 deer hunting season.

Following Monday’s violent snow storm, area woodlands are in preparation for the cross-country skiing and snowmobile season. And of course, sightseers can always take advantage of these white wonders.

Clean bird feeders help prevent avian diseases

Although winter bird feeding can help songbirds survive harsh Wisconsin winters, it could prove fatal to many bird species if feeders aren’t properly cleaned.

According to Department of Natural Resources Wildlife Health Specialists Sarah Hurley, parasites and Salmonellosis, a disease caused by Salmonella bacteria, can be transmitted by fecal matter left on feeders and beneath feeding stations.

“When you have birds feeding and defecating in the same area, there’s the potential for disease to be spread and any species is susceptible,” said Hurley.

Sometimes called “songbird fever,” Salmonellosis can lead to an acute intestinal infection that weakens birds and often proves fatal. Parasites can lead to chronic, low-grade infections.

“You’ll find dead birds if there’s a disease problem at your feeder,” added Hurley. “These problems occur at different locations from year to year. Usually there are pocket outbreaks in certain neighborhoods, not devastating nationwide epidemics.”

Keeping your feeding station clean is the best way to prevent the spread of avian diseases. Hurley suggests disinfecting your feeders each time they are refilled.

Using a 5 percent bleach solution, scrub feeders with a stiff brush, making sure to get the bleach solution into the cracks of wooden feeders. After scrubbing, let the feeder air dry.

Refilling bird feeders with fresh seed or suet will help maintain a disease-free feeding station. Disposal of seed litter on the ground is also important. (Photo by Lisa Stubler)

Hunter contends deer are scarce

DNR perceives whitetail herd as overpopulated

by Steve Schmidt

Outdoors Editor

According to information the DNR has been spreading across the naive minds of the news media, Wisconsin’s overall whitetail deer herd is too healthy, possibly approaching overpopulation.

Supporting this claim by the fact that the state yielded another record-breaking gun deer season, they make it sound like the truth. And why wouldn’t it be? The department tackled on an extra seven day extension in 67 units to boost the antlerless deer kill among the largest ever, not to mention pathetically increasing the number of Hunter’s Choice permits.

Public consent, however, of hunters who spent deer season on the roads, in state or county lands, is a far cry from satisfaction. And it appears the overwhelming complaint of most hunters, this year, was a drastic decrease in total numbers of deer seen.

Yes, I know, there are always those hunting parties that consistently manage to fill up by the first Sunday with a meat pole wall-hangers. But something was unusually strange about this year’s gun deer season as far as numbers of deer are concerned.

I, for instance, saw no deer opening day as opposed to at least ten or twelve on last season’s opener. Sunday’s hunting hours were slightly more productive with a doe and two fawns nonchalantly traveling through a ag alder thicket. Monday was again deerless. Tuesday provided me with a spike buck at about 9:30 a.m., the only deer I spotted this day. And Wednesday morning’s miserable weather in conjunction with a head and chest cold limited me to the shack until our departure at noon. Similar reports came from the others in my hunting group.

Well, what caused this decrease in the apparent numbers of deer? Granted, the weather was extremely warm and the absence of snow made it difficult to identify movement of whitetails, there were plenty of hunters. Yet, I personally heard fewer shots fired than last year’s opener and witnessed more deer drives in operation. This tells me that other hunters weren’t seeing the deer they had expected either.

Worse weather conditions in previous deer seasons have been less of a hindrance in comparison to this year’s “deer- location” ordeal. Therefore, I find it safe to assume that the weather conditions were not the major cause of the problem.

Using the area in which I hunt, unit 45, as a model for my explanation of the problem, let’s examine my theory of why there seems to be less deer.

First of all, I hunt Marinette County property located north of Amberg and south of Dunbar in Northeastern Wisconsin. The land primarily consists of mixed Aspen and Tag alders. Green swamps with dense spruce pockets thrive in the more wet areas along creeks and streams. And an occasional oak ridge breaks the monotony of scenery here and there.

Consequently, this area, which is typical of most Marinette County land, offers little in the way of an efficiently

Professor's study aids in assessing water quality

A water resources specialist at UWSP has returned from a stint as a visiting scientist at the Smithsonian Institution and will conduct a similar residency at the Illinois Natural History Survey in December.

Stanley W. Szczytko, a professor in the College of Natural Resources, recently spent two weeks in the nation's capital using the institution's research facilities to further his studies of a family of aquatic insects.

For several years, Szczytko has been concentrating on a type of insect called the stonefly, which thrives only in "clean water." For this reason, identifying and quantifying the many species of these invertebrates aids scientists in assessing water quality in streams and rivers.

According to Szczytko, in order to understand why and how the tiny animals indicate water quality, it is necessary to identify different species and to know their life histories. His identification of at least 10, if not more, new species of these invertebrates is an important step in assuring the accuracy of these biological assessments of degrees of water pollution.

The professor funds much of his research through grants from agencies outside the university which he supplements with smaller internal grants awarded by the University Personnel Development Committee (UPDC).

He commends the UPDC for its efforts, calling the money a "big help" to him. According to the professor, just the cost of publishing a small paper on your own can be more than $800, and an annual "memories" publication which he compiled several years ago with a colleague costs more that $2000 to release. However, prolific publishing and successful grant seeking usually go hand-in-hand.

The fund which Szczytko receives from various sources such as the DNR, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and the National Science Foundation, is used to finance graduate students, laboratory support, and transportation and supplies.

"People sometimes have the erroneous assumption that these large sums of money somehow end up in the researchers' pockets," he says. None of the money goes to the professor unless he includes a request for a small summer salary when he is not teaching. He employs 10 undergraduates, three graduate students, and a full-time technician on projects which he coordinates. The students get a salary plus fringe benefits including insurance.

A Festival of Lessons and Carols mandatory, an ecumenical celebration featuring six choirs from UWSP and the community will be held at 8 p.m., Thursday, Dec. 13, at St. Stephen's Catholic Church, 1601 Clark St.

Tickets are available at Sweet Briar, Park Ridge Pharmacy and the College of Fine Arts and Communication box office. The cost of tickets will be $5 donation per person. Seating is limited to about 650 people. Proceeds will be used to support the UWSP music department's choral activities.

The program will include carols from the various choirs, plus traditional favorites such as "Silent Night," "The First Noel" and "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing," sung by the choirs and the audience.

The festival Brass Quartet will play prelude music before the concert. Father Dennis Lynch, a priest at St. Stephen's Church, will lead the opening prayer, and Rev. Ken Knutson of Trinity Lutheran Church, will give the closing blessing.

Organizer James Bezzmeiler will accompany the vocal ensembles and play prelude and postlude selections. Musician John Lay will provide guitar accompaniment for "Silent Night," sung by the audience and a select group of students from St. Stephen's School.

The vocal groups will be the Madrigal singers, University Choir, and Pointer Varisty Men's Chorus, led by David Saladino, and the Women's Chorus, conducted by Jean Saladino. In addition to these groups, the senior combined choirs of St. Stephen's, conducted by Bennumiller, and the senior choir of Frame Memorial Presbyterian Church, led by Lenore Jirovec, will sing together in a combined performance.

David Saladino, director of choral activities, said his trip to the Carol service began in England and were popularized about 70 years ago by BI. College in Cambridge, England.

They have since been adopted all over the world. Saladino founded a similar event in Appleton 10 years ago which has become so successful it draws about 5,000 attendees on two nights with two performances each night.

Saladino says the program is about brotherhood and goodwill. The participants, who represent various walks of life, symbolize the common desire for peace, joy, and love among all people.

Legal advice offered to students

by Jim Rabbitch

Money may or may not make the world go around. But everybody will acknowledge that the financial resources of a person have a direct impact on that person's ability to make use of the legal system.

Most students are "poor," and poverty seriously impedes their ability to solve their legal problems. The purpose of this article is to list several sources where students can get free or nearly free, legal advice.

PUBLIC DEFENDER SYSTEM: If a person in Wisconsin is charged with a crime, he or she is entitled to a lawyer at public expense if the person cannot afford to pay for a lawyer.

In order to assure the poor of competent counsel in criminal cases, the legislature created the Wisconsin Public Defender's System. A branch of the Public Defender's System is located in Stevens Point. The Stevens Point office employs four (4) full-time lawyers and one investigator who do nothing but defend people charged with crimes.

The Stevens Point office represents defendants in Wood, Portage, Waupaca, and Adams counties. About one-third to one-fourth of the public defender's cases are handed over to private attorneys. These attorneys own expertise in criminal law.

If the defendant is over 18 years of age, parental income is not a factor in determining eligibility for an attorney at public expense. Many students, therefore, are entitled to a lawyer if charged with a crime.

WISCONSIN JUDICIAL, INC.: Wisconsin Judicare, Inc., provides legal assistance to the poor in civil cases. Clients must be determined eligible for judicare assistance. An application for this purpose can be obtained through the Community Action Program (CAP). CAP has offices on highway 10 just outside the Stevens Point city limits.

Once a client is determined eligible for services, he or she is entitled to a judicare card, along with a list of attorneys in the area who are willing to accept judicare cases.

S & S review the new "Predator"

by Terry Speers and

Dennis Skrzypkowski

From the heart of the jungle to the heart of the big city streets, the alien hunter is once again on safari. It is now in Los Angeles, 1997, and amid the turmoil of war between rival gangs of Jamaican and Columbian cocaine dealers, the predator is back and has entered as a third player in the war. The story is a rehash as a streetwise cop who is trying to clean up his town and find his killer's brother. But, as he continues his investigation he finds some "unearthly" clues as to who this killer really is, and finally meets him face to face in a spectacular showdown.

"I,ions and tigers and bears, oh my!"... by D.S.

"Predator 2' is a high energy and high tech movie that is very reminiscent of the first film. It seems they brought some of the memorable moments from P1 to P2 and gave you a feeling of deja vu. I liked P1 better because the jungle setting gave you a greater feeling of the unknown, whereas the city is something we can all relate to much better.

The film is very fast paced and it may take at least two viewings to grasp all the little details that flash by. I felt the film was well done and developed and would say that if you liked the original, it is a safe bet you'll like the sequel. So, on a scale of 1 to 10 (10 being best), I give 'Predator 2" a 5 1/2.

Hunting was never so easy... by T.S.

Predator 2 is full of action and incredible scenes that will make you wonder how they did it, but it lacks a flavor and style that made the first film so successful.

Although I was fairly pleased with the film all in all, I found myself thinking of ways they could have changed it to make it better. De'mon, I must give Predator 2 a 6 1/2.
Loan office lists meetings

The staff of the Perkins/National Direct Student Loan Office at UWSP would like to take this opportunity to congratulate the 1990 December graduates. At the same time, we would like to advise all students who have received Perkins/National Direct Student Loans (NDSL), of their responsibilities to UWSP. Before leaving UWSP, all borrowers must make arrangements, with our office, for an exit interview.

On Tuesday, November 27 and Wednesday, November 28, joint Stafford (GSL) and Perkins/NDSL information meetings were held. We appreciate the large number of borrowers who took time to attend one of these sessions. For those of you who did not receive notification, or were not able to attend the combined session, the Perkins/NDSL Office is conducting additional group interviews as follows: Tuesday Dec. 11 at 3 p.m., Wednesday Dec. 12 at 1 p.m., Thursday Dec. 13 at 3:30 p.m. and Friday Dec. 14 at 12:30 p.m. All interviews will be held in the Turner Room of the UC.

All Perkins/NDSL borrowers receiving a bachelor's or master's degree in December, who did not attend one of the combined Stafford and Perkins/NDSL meetings, must attend one of the above sessions, or contact the Perkins/NDSL Office, Room 002 Main, 346-3473, to make alternative arrangements. This is necessary even if you are planning to continue taking courses at UWSP.

Non-graduating Perkins/NDSL borrowers who are not planning to return to UWSP in the spring semester, must inform this office of their separation, even if they are planning to continue their education elsewhere. Failure to do so will result in serious consequences.

If you do not know for sure if you obtained a Perkins/NDSL, it is to your advantage to check with our office.

Folk singer to play Saturday

Musician Mike Rayburn, an award-winning folk/rock soloist, will perform pop hits and original tunes Saturday, Dec. 8 at 8 p.m. Sponsored by the University Activities Board, the show will be in the Encore of the University Center.

Admission will be $2 for students and $3.50 for the public.

According to critics at Georgia Technical College, Rayburn is "An exceptionally classical guitarist and extremely easy to work with. The students really enjoyed his performance."

The first snowstorm has hit, don't you feel cold enough yet? If so, you may be in need of this year's newest outdoor clothing: the hoodscarf. As the name implies, this knitt piece is a hood and scarf in one. You can cover your head and wrap the scarf ends around your neck. The hoodscarf is flattering to any face shape and is practical too. Most are treated with a water-repellent finish so you can just shake off the snow.

Now I'm not against earmuffs or umbrellas, but when a blizzard strikes you may need more. Earmuffs are okay alone when it's not real cold or snowing out. In snow though, your ears will stay dry but you'll have a wet head. This is important to remember since a lot of body heat is lost through your head. For more protection wear your earmuffs under a hoodscarf. Umbrellas are fine if there is not much wind, which is rare in Stevens Point. The hoodscarf as an alternative won't blow out of shape, rip, or tear. It will also give you a free hand.

So when dressing for walking to class, walking downtown, or anywhere outside dress appropriately. A hoodscarf will protect you from the cold, wind and snow. Don't be left out in the cold—open coats and uncovered heads and hands are not fashionable in any cold weather.

LEGAL

The clients make an appointment with one of the attorneys on the list, take the card to the lawyer's office, and discuss their legal problem with the lawyer.

Because of greatly reduced funding, the number of cases a judge or court is willing to cover is fairly limited. Among cases judges are willing to cover are social security disputes, unemploy­ment compensation claims, small tenancy litigation, and landlord-tenant cases. Only a few attorneys are willing to take cases because of the low legal aid pays lawyers who accept their cases.

But despite the modest scope of the judges' program, and the few attorneys participating in the judges program, Wisconsin judges still represent the students best resource if they have non-criminal legal problems.

STUDENT LEGAL SOCIETY AT UWSP: The Student Legal Society operates a legal program for students in the University Center. The lawyer is available for consultation every Thursday from 1:00-6:00 p.m. Members of the Legal Society do the intake work for this program. The student fills out a form describing the problem and must then pay a $4.00 processing fee. Appointments are then made with the lawyer. During the conference with the lawyer, which lasts between 15 and 45 minutes, the student should get feedback about his or her legal problem and should receive suggestions about how the problem can be remedied.

Censorship program rescheduled

The final program in a three-part series called "Censorship in the 90's," sponsored by the Social Issues Forum at UWSP, will be held on Monday, Dec. 10. It originally was scheduled on Dec. 3, but had to be canceled because of the snowstorm.

At 7 p.m. in the Encore of the University Center, a panel discussion featuring faculty, artists and a religious leader will provide various viewpoints on the issue of censorship. It is open to the public without charge.

Brass Trio to perform

The Faculty Brass Trio and student guest artists will perform at 8 p.m., Thursday, December 6, at UWSP. The recital, open to the public without charge, will be held in Michelson Hall of the Fine Arts Center.

Members of the trio are Robert Dierksen on trumpet, Patrick Miles on horn and Brian Martz on trombone.

Student guest artists are Andrew Naumann on trumpet and Andrew Klotz on tuba.

Naumann, a music education junior from Pewaukee, recently took first place in a statewide music contest. Klotz, also a junior, is from Rhinelander and is also a music major.

They will play Handel's "Fugue in C," arranged by Mertz; Villa-Lobos' "Can­cione," arranged by Block; Sanders' "Trío," Bach's "Con­trapositive III," arranged by King and Beza's "Sonatine."

Adopting a plant based diet improves environment

by Paul C. Easton
Outdoors Writer

10-20 million people die of starvation every year, yet we produce enough food to feed every person on the planet. The obvious question should be "where is all this food going?"

The answer—livestock to produce meat, eggs and dairy products for the developed countries is being fed to animals in the developed countries and on an increasingly exalted scale.

Adoption of a plant based diet is imperative if we are to solve world hunger. A 10 percent reduction in America's meat intake would save enough grain and soybeans to adequately feed the number of people who starve to death every year.

Hunter

obtained food supply for whitetails. In the area, deer are forced to browse in logged-out sections or in the few hardwoods.

As a result, the numbers of deer are inherently low to begin with verses the abundant deer numbers on private farmlands south of Amberg.

Nonetheless, its is my personal belief that the DNR has been misleading hunters into believing there are healthy amounts of whitetails on state lands. In actuality, the heart of the deer herd in most northern counties is confined to farmlands where deer cannot be hunted by most of us.

Despite this rationality, the DNR continually increases the numbers of antlerless deer permits for unit 45. Of the total 534,370 Hunter's Choice permits available this past gun deer season, some 20,000 were supplied for unit 45. And for this reason, every Tom, Dick, and Harry flocks to the county properties to shoot a doe or fawn. Apparently, this continued hunting pressure has depleted the populations of deer residing on lands with public accessibility.

It only makes sense that the annual killing of does to the extent as occurs in Wisconsin, will have an adverse effect on the deer population in heavily hunted areas.

Now is the DNR guilty of ignoring this problem for the purpose of selling more hunting licenses and in turn making a bundle? I think so. It would be difficult for the department to maintain an unawareness of the overpopulation of hunters in proportion to the statistical health of deer herds on public lands. Not all deer hunters in unit 45 hunt private lands.

And if the DNR legitimately believes this is the case, someone is not doing their job as far as wildlife surveys go. If another mild winter presents itself this season, I will hate to see what the Department of Natural Resources has in mind for next year's gun deer season.

Men's basketball team splits pair in North Dakota

by Kris Kasinski
Assistant Sports Editor

The UWSP Men's Basketball team now holds a 4-2 record after their trip to North Dakota this past weekend. On Friday, the Pointers defeated Valley City State 86-66 and on Saturday, they fell to Division II North Dakota State 84-77.

In Friday's victory, freshmen Billy Fraaza and junior transfer Vince Nichols led the Pointers past Coach Parker's old team with 29 points each. The Pointers out rebounded the Vikings 42-30.

On Saturday, the Pointers four game winning streak was snapped after they took on Division II scholarship school, North Dakota State University and fell 84-77.

Vince Nichols led the scoring for both teams with 29 points, giving him a total of 47 points on the weekend. "Vince played an excellent game," said Coach Parker. "He's been struggling with his shot but really threw the ball in the hole tonight."

Also in double figures for UWSP were Chas Pronshinski with 14 points and Jon Julius with 13. Julius also had a game high 17 rebounds.

The Pointers hit 27 of 56 shots for 48.2 percent while NDSU hit 28 of 67 for 41.8 percent. The Pointers were 18 of 25 from the free throw line. NDSU out rebounded Point 49-42 and had 4 steals. Also in double figures for UWSP were Billy Fraaza with 14, and Mike Harri sons with 12. Jon Julius, Justin Freier, Chas Pronshinski and Twunn Clayton added 8 points each.

The Pointers went ahead again with 7:47 left when Pronshinski scored to put the Pointers ahead 58-57. The Pointers last lead of the game was with 3:11 remaining when they were ahead 73-72.

NDSU went ahead for good with 2:20 to play in regulation. They protected their lead scoring nine more points and came out with the 84-77 victory.

"It was a game we could have won," said Coach Parker. "We keep shooting ourselves in the feet by not taking care of the basketball. We didn't play well at all. It was a good weekend to get ready for our conference schedule, but we have to learn to play well on back-to-back nights."

The Pointers will have their chance to do that this weekend when they open up WISO play on Friday in River Falls and take on the number one nationally ranked Eau Claire Bluejays in Eau Claire on Saturday.

Stahley leads Skaters to sweep

by Kris Kasinski
Assistant Sports Editor

The UWSP Men's Hockey Team improved their record to 6-2 after sweeping Eau Claire with a 7-6 victory on Friday in Eau Claire and a 6-4 victory on Saturday in Stevens Point.

In Friday's victory, the Pointers were led by captain Mike Stahley with a trick and an assist. Kevin Marion stopped 29 shots in the Pointer net. "Mike Green got things going at 6:41 in the first period when he beat Eau Claire's goalie McKen. He was assisted by Marc Strafon and Pat Moran. Just two minutes later, Eau Claire took advantage of the first of many power plays on the night. Alex Hicks scored a power play goal with an assist from his brother Mark. At 12:23 in the first period, Scott Krueger scored unassisted, but once again Eau Claire answered with an ower goal from Mark Hicks. Stahley scored his first goal of the evening at 19:46 to give the Pointers a 3-2 lead at the end of the first period. UWSP increased its lead to 4-2 when Caufield scored just one minute 13 seconds into the second period. He was assisted by Stahley. Stahley then scored his second and third goals in a span in just 5:15 to boost the Pointers lead to 6-2. He received assists from Caufield, Frank Crown, and Jared Redders.

Eau Claire, however, was far from finished. The Hicks brothers once again led the Bluejays scoring attack when Mark Hicks scored a power play goal at 11:28, and Alex Hicks scored with just 23 seconds left, to bring the Bluejays within two.

Hockey

In the third period, Eau Claire kept the puck evading skiing by skating at 13:24 to bring score to 6-5. Freshmen Sean Mansar answered the challenge for the Pointers by scoring an unassisted goal at 17:15 to make it a 7-5 Pointers lead. This proved to be the winning goal because with just 13 seconds left in regulation, Eau Claire scored another power play goal to bring the score to 7-6, where it ended.

Kevin Marton got the victory, stopping 29 shots and allowing only two of the six goals on five point blank shots. The other goals were all scored on Eau Claire power plays.

In Saturday's victory, "The Sarge" Mike Stahley once again led the Pointers scoring surge with nine points, followed by fifth-ranked UW-Superior with eight. The Pointer lead, however, may be short lived as UWSP hosts Mercyhurst College (Penn.) this weekend for a two-game non-NCHA series.

While the Pointers will be enjoying a weekend away from the NCHA, Mankato is poised to take over the lead with one win in its two game series at River Falls.

Eau Claire scored twice in the second period, before Monte Conrad, who left the game with a broken nose, scored off assists from Stahley and Sean Mansar. Munson, just 27 seconds later added the Pointers fifth goal. He was assisted by Strang and Morrow.

In the third period, Jeff Marshall rounded out the Pointer scoring at 7:17 with a power play goal with assists from Caufield and Redders. Eau Claire scored twice in the period, but could not score without the help of Stahley who came away with the 6-4 victory.

Ted Chin had 22 saves in goal for UWSP. Eau Claire's goalie Steele stopped 32 shots.

The Pointers will be home this weekend in the Hardee's Hockey Challenge against Mercyhurst of Pennsylvania. Game time is 7:30 p.m. both nights. This weekend is also parent's weekend.

Announcing... Pointers lose close match to Northern Illinois

The UWSW wrestling team lost by a score of 18-12 to NCAA Division I Northern Illinois University last Friday in DeKalb, Ill.

Winners for the Pointers were: at 126 pounds with a 9-7 decision, Brian Drolbinski, at 150 pounds with a 5-3 decision, Carl Schenkel, at 167 pounds with a 5-3 decision, Tom White, and at 177 pounds with an 11-2 decision, Collin Green.

Coach Marty Loy felt that his team wrestled well and matched up well with a Division I school.

"This was a very good Division I team we wrestled," said Loy. "We wrestled well and did what we had to do to win but unfortunately a couple of let-downs left us a little short."

Loy also said that the tough competition in Northern Illinois helps his team develop as the season progresses.

"Our schedule doesn't allow us to go undefeated," said Loy, "but it does prepare us better for the conference and national competition."

"It doesn't get any easier from here either."

The Pointers return to action this weekend when they travel to meet NCAA Division II Lake Superior State University.

Pointers lead NCHA standings

The UWSP sweep over UW-Eau Claire last weekend put the Pointers in sole possession of first place in the Northern Collegiate Hockey Association.

The Pointers, who are ranked second in the NCAA Div. III coaches poll, lead the NCHA with 13 points behind a 6-2-0 record, one point ahead of second place Beloit State, who had 11 points with a 5-2-1 record.

Mankato State is third with nine points, followed by fifth-ranked UW-Superior with eight. The Pointer lead, however, may be short lived as UWSP hosts Mercyhurst College (Penn.) this weekend for a two-game non-NCHA series.

While the Pointers will be enjoying a weekend away from the NCHA, Mankato is poised to take over the lead with one win in its two game series at River Falls.

best record in the National Basketball Association.
Portland has only lost one game so far this year and looks like it may be able to finally knock the Detroit Pistons from the NBA title.
Probably the biggest disappointment in the NBA this year has to be the poor start by Michael Jordan and the Chicago Bulls. Jordan, undoubtedly the best player in the NBA, has been unable to get the "ish" higher than third place in the Eastern Conference's Central Division.

However, we played well and it is beginning to show. "We were better than both teams we played this weekend, and the only reason the games were close was because of how young we are."

In the National Hockey League, the Chicago Blackhawks look like they may be the team to beat this year. Chicago, behind the outstanding goal tending of Ed Balfour has managed to notch the highest point total in the NHL.

The Pointers, who are now 2-1 overall, open their Wisconsin Women's Intercollegiate Athletic Conference season tonight when they play host to UW-River Falls. Game time is 7 p.m. in Berg Gym. On Saturday, the Pointers travel to UW-Eau Claire for a WWIAC game.

Youngbear-Tibbets receives $60,000 to study native peoples

A new member of the geography/zoology faculty at UWSP has received a $60,000 grant from the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation to travel to Polynesia, Australia, New Zealand and Alaska to study their native peoples.

Holly Youngbear-Tibbets, who came to UWSP this fall, is the recipient of a research grant from the Chicago-based foundation's program on peace and international cooperation. The fund supports innovative work with implications for creating social policy.

Youngbear-Tibbets' research project will explore the land tenures of each nation's indigenous populations, focusing on the emerging leadership roles of women in asserting self-determination for their people.

As a member of the Sac and Fox Indian Tribe, Youngbear-Tibbets has a longstanding interest in the subject of native peoples, their land and their histories. During her childhood, she and her family were victims of "relocation," forced to leave their home and move to a large city. Following her marriage to a Chippewa, she lived for 16 years on a reservation in northern Minnesota.

She refers to populations such as America's Indians and New Zealand's Maori people, who compromise nations within another nation, as the "Fourth World." The prime focus of her research will be on the women of these cultures--how they have served as leaders in preserving cultural traditions and in seeking political autonomy and self-sufficiency for their people.

She refers to this female leadership as a "new vision," and a return to "balance" without the power relationships that men have promulgated, especially in the post-colonial era.

She says that the emerging leadership of women in promoting autonomy has coincided with a federal movement toward deregulation and privatization of delivery systems. The first self-managed American Indian service in the United States was founded in the early 1970s.

Youngbear-Tibbets will gradually begin traveling next summer and fall, starting out with shorter trips in the U.S. and Canada, and then going "Down Under" during the spring semester.

It took Galileo 16 years to master the universe. You have one night.

It seems unfair. The genius had all that time. While you have a few short hours to learn your sun spots from your satellites before the dreaded astronomy exam.

On the other hand, Vivarin gives you the definite advantage. It helps keep you awake and mentally alert for hours. Safely and conveniently. So even when the subject matter's dull, your mind will stay razor sharp.

If Galileo had used Vivarin, maybe he could have mastered the solar system faster, too.
