Phi Sigma Kappa takes the heat

Was it a fraternity function? Or wasn’t it?

The Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity on the UWSP campus is under fire for allegedly holding a party which was broken by the Stevens Point Police Department early Saturday night. It was the second largest raid on a house party with 73 citations issued. The largest was in September when 101 students were cited at a party occurring in a house on College Avenue.

The police received a call at 3:30 a.m. about a loud party in the Phi Sigma Kappa house. The group of officers who responded found 30 people, many of whom were drinking heavily, said an officer involved.

The officers who arrived at the party were surprised to find that the Phi Sigma Kappa house was completely empty.

The officers decided to break into the house and found that the party had been moved to another location. The officers then witnessed the party taking place in the backyard of the house.

The officers arrested two members of the fraternity for disorderly conduct and one member for public intoxication. The officers also observed a large number of alcohol bottles and cans outside the house, as well as a large number of beer cans and bottles inside the house.

The officers then issued 73 citations to members of the fraternity for violations of alcohol laws.

The Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity has been suspended by the university for its involvement in the party.

The suspension comes after a series of parties held by the fraternity, which have resulted in multiple citations and fines.

The fraternity has been given a deadline of 48 hours to remove all alcohol from the house and clean it up.

The fraternity has 10 days to appeal the suspension, but it is expected that the appeal will be denied.

The suspension is effective immediately and the fraternity will be unable to hold any events or activities until the suspension is lifted.

The fraternity has been asked to pay all fines and fees associated with the party, as well as all costs associated with the suspension.

The suspension is a significant blow to the fraternity, which has a long history at UWSP and is one of the largest fraternities on campus.

The fraternity has been involved in a number of incidents in recent years, including a party that was broken up by police in 2018.

The suspension comes as the university continues to grapple with alcohol-related issues on campus, including a series of alcohol-related deaths in recent years.

The university has implemented a number of measures to address alcohol-related issues, including stricter alcohol laws and increased enforcement of existing laws.

The Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity has been a frequent target of university enforcement over the years, and the suspension is the latest in a series of incidents that have involved the fraternity.

The suspension is expected to have a significant impact on the fraternity, as it will be unable to hold any events or activities until the suspension is lifted.

Comm students place in advertising competition

by Jodi Ott
Staff Writer

Three Division of Communications students won second place in a marketing/advertising contest held by Lands' End, direct merchants. There were a total of 102 entries in the contest. The UWSP team entered the contest as part of their advanced communications class.

The team consisted of Paul Campbell, a Communications major and psychology minor; Dave Coulthurst, Communications major and a business marketing minor, and Darren Newby, a Communications major and art minor. Three finalist teams made presentations to judges in Dodgeville, Wisconsin on Feb. 1. Richard Dubiel and Larry Kokkeleer, both professors of communication, accompanied the students as advisors.

The contest was introduced in Dubiel's copywriting class and Kokkeleer's advertising class this past semester. Ten groups from Stevens' Point entered. One other group placed in the top 15.

The goal of the campaign was to introduce Lands' End to the college market and start a relationship with the company. "Our campaign's focus was Biff Baxter, a comic strip type character/spokesman, for Lands' End that would run in college newspapers," said Coulthurst.

Coulthurst described the comic strip as more of a soft sell approach that emphasized the quality and ruggedness of Lands' End clothing through the outrageous and humorous adventures of Biff Baxter.

"The rewards are better than if we would have gotten money. Just the idea of presenting a real campaign to real people is something you really don't get to do in school," said Coulthurst.

The team and Dubiel will spend a week between Virginia and New York City this June touring operations related to Lands' End.

AMA gets career advice

The American Marketing Association (AMA) kicked off its first meeting of the spring semester Thursday, Feb. 9 in the UC Green room. The group was enlightened by Mary Mosier of the UWSP Career Services office.

Mosier spoke about the many job search resources that are available for graduating Seniors. "We encourage you (graduating Seniors) to come in for a number of reasons. We have quite an extensive career library and it also helps us get to know you," explained Mosier.

Mosier discussed a wide variety of sources that are available through the Career Office. "We exchange our job lists for job lists from other schools," said Mosier. Mosier emphasized that the Career office is open any time the office is open and that students are welcome to stop in and see Career Services can help them. She also mentioned that there are a number of employers who come on campus each semester.

Said Mosier, "We work with students at any point during their tenure at Stevens Point Students to Alumni. Our office has quite an extensive list of graduate catalogs."

UAWS student appointed to Council on Financial Aid

Craig Schoenfeld, Academic Affairs Director of Student Government Association, has been appointed to the Council on Financial Aid (CFA) for the state of Wisconsin. Schoenfeld is one of four college students in the state on the committee.

Schoenfeld has been Academic Affairs Director of SGA since May 1, 1989. He has also been active representing UW-Stevens Point's student government at United Council meetings around the state during the past year. United Council is a student lobby organization in Madison.

The CFA is a financial aid study committee. The committee works on improving the financial aid system of the state. CFA plays an advisory role to the Higher Educational Aid Board (HEAB). HEAB is the policy maker for state student grant programs.

Black history celebrated on campus this month

February marks the 64th annual Black History Month. Black History Month was established in 1926 by Carter G. Woodson.

Bill Wright, the advisor for the United Brothers and Sisters says the purpose of Black History Month is to show that Blacks have done more to develop the country than just being slaves. Blacks, whites, American students were sold a bill of goods and American students knew the development, there wouldn't be such a negative connotation of blacks.

United Brothers and Sisters and the Minority Affairs committee will be sponsoring a variety of programs, including: Poetry Readings in the Encore at 8 & pm on Mon. 12; "Myths of Black Women" discussion in the Wisconsin room, form 12-1pm on Wed, 14; "Racism from My Perspective" discussion in the Wisconsin Room form 12-1pm on Tues, 20; Milwaukee Riveredge High School Swim Choir Performance in the Encore from 11am-12pm on Thurs, 22; Haki Madhubuti at 7pm (location to be announced) on Fri., 23; "Curiosity or Ignorance?" panel discussion in the Wisconsin Room from 12-1pm on Mon., 26 and Tribute to Black American video in Core on Wed, 28.

Let's mark the lots a bit better

by Blair Cleary
Editor-in-Chief

One of the more financially painful things a new student here at the university can get at the beginning of a semester is a parking ticket. As if paying $150 for books and supplies wasn't bad enough, to say nothing of the two grand for tuition, room and board, some people get the additional "pleasure" of paying between $2-$25 dollars for parking right.

Did you lose your parking permit? If not, you get a $10 fine. Is your permit exposed on your rear bumper so the parking enforcers (who seem to be everywhere at once, somehow) can see it? If not, you get a $2 fine. Did you park in the handicapped spot? OUCH! $25 dollar fine, non-appealable! Keep clear of "limited zones" $5, and stay in the lot that you get assigned to or you lose $7.50.

Now don't get the wrong impression. This isn't some bleeding heart "parking tickets are bad" editorial. If someone parks in a handicapped spot or in a lot he or she didn't pay for, thus blocking someone who paid from parking, they deserve a ticket.

Also, if you get a parking permit, as a special bonus you get a map with all of UWSP's parking regulations on it. On that same map, with the regulations is a number you can use once a week to call in your car so that you don't get a ticket. If you park where you are assigned, read your parking rules, and have half a brain you shouldn't get a ticket.

If you do get a ticket for an unjust reason, say for parking without a permit, and you have a permit, but if you post it on you fender, you go to the parking appeals board and try to have your ticket voided or reduced.

Now, getting back to the matter at hand, there is one aspect of the parking situation that could stand some improvement. This is the poor and confusing separation of the joint student and faculty lots.

These lots, S and J, V, and P, and M and T are the cause of many student tickets at the beginning of the year. Now students that have been here for a year or two should know better than to park in the wrong lot but new students, transfer students, and visiting parents often park in the faculty section of the joint student and faculty lots by mistake.

One can hardly blame them. The sign in lot S/J for example says "S Lot J." It doesn't really tell what lot S is or J. Even if one were to walk about the lot and look for signs the only visible one to a casual scan is the "S Lot J" sign. Who can blame a new student for getting it wrong?

Lots T and M have a few more signs around but these are small and confusing. It would be tough to tell exactly where one lot ended and a new one began.

Lots P and V have better signs, and a snow fence that separates them. The signs could be bigger, however, so that people know what the snow fence means.

Overall I think the campus could do a better job of informing the students which lot is where. They could use a few more fences and some bigger, brighter signs that clearly explain what lot is where. Then, perhaps, the parking enforcer wouldn't have to work quite as hard. To say nothing of students that have better things to spend their money on.

The university should also make it a point to educate residence hall assistants (RAs) on parking. A member of the parking appeals committee said that their job would be easier if RAs knew what they were talking about when telling students where it was ok to park.

One final thing a student can do to save his or herself some grief is follow this simple principle—"Think before you park."

You're smart enough to get your Geography, Entertainment and Sports & Leisure wedges all in one turn.

And you're still smoking?
Valentine's day: a survivor's view

It never fails. In the creeping tedium of February, once I've finally recovered from Christmas and New Years with a secure place within my sanity and finances, Valentine's Day appears out of nowhere like a bad case of exema. We all know the feeling. Each year we struggle through the heinous February weather, the heavy hearts, the rising prices, the smothering of love and the screaming.

For example, Whitman's Sampler finally recovered from gloom through We pray we will drop wearing red.

February fourteenth always wears a somber ring to the word "date." It inspires all the psychological symptoms of catastrophe, beginning with shock. What... Valen what!!! I usually wander around for a few days in an inescapable haze mumbling things like "When I was one and twenty, I heard a wise old man say, "For romance is the opium of the masses." When I was two and twenty, I gained coherence the rage period sets in. I consider bombing Patty Parmy and other friends to obtain cultures of rare floral diseases. I send threatening letters to Harry Potter. Eventually frustration forces me into denial. I avoid radio and television shows that feature public places and sit cloistered in my room reading Sylvia Plath into the late hours. Until 11:55 pm on the thirteenth I accept the appearance phrase.

Fifteen minutes after slipping into my resided slumber I dream I'm trapped in a flaming house of greeting cards. Moments before I'm consumed cupid flames put out the blaze with a bucket of network per­fume. Rushed to the hospital they give me inter-venus, and I'm attended by Dr. Love who insists I need my heart amputated. In post-op they show it to me and it looks like a Whitman's Sampler with a plastic rose on the front. I wake madly screeching.

About 8:00 am I call campus radio to find that I'm already the twenty-first person to request "Paint it Black." I'm not comforted. In class everyone is wearily all dressed in black. I angrily down the hall in a giddy crimson tide while I hug the wall, hyperventilating. At the CL I listen to the girl at the next table gab about her imminent evening of dinner and dancing. I sit down and land a spit ball in her banana clip when she's not looking. I practice drawing Mr. Yock faces on all the hearts in the Daily.

Annual eagle walk scheduled

by Steve Schmidt
Contributor

The Student Government Association will hold its ninth annual Eagle Walk on Friday, March 16 beginning at 8:00 a.m. at the University Center.

This 200 mile walk is sponsored by the student Environmental Council in hopes to raise over $2000 for the Wisconsin Chapter of the Nature Conservancy. Each walker can raise the $200 and through a matched grant fund, the state will donate an equivalent amount to the Nature Conservancy in hopes that it will continue to preserve endangered species and create public awareness.

We walk about 20 or 21 miles a day, and then stay in community buildings such as churches and schools. There we receive meals and the hospitality is great," stated Jay Rabuck, president of the Environmental Council. "It'll be my third year this time. You learn a lot about what you're made of and get to know the people around you real well," continued Rabuck.

Participants will stop off on a Friday morning with their necessary gear and food. Their goal is to reach the Eagle Valley Preserve which is located south of Prairie du Chien on the Mississippi River.

"We take nine days to get there, and we are busied back on Sunday," said Diane Nelson, secretary of the Environmental Council. "When asked if the trip is a good time, she replied "Well it's a real challenge."

"Everybody is welcome to participate, in fact a SPASH student will join us this year," said Nelson.

For further information regarding the 1990 Eagle Walk, contact Jay Rabuck, at 346-2823.

Wisconsin outdoor report

Ice conditions are becoming unsafe on some areas of the Mississippi River and other waters, particularly in southern Wisconsin, due to the warm weather. Backwater sloughs (swamps) of the Wisconsin River in Iowa County have very dangerous ice. Check with a local bait shop, resort or other anglers to find out where any problem areas are before you venture out onto the ice.

Fishing reports are mixed this week. In the north, crappie action is good in the Phillips Chain; northerns are being taken with dead smelt bait on many Taylor County lakes. Anglers are having good luck catching crappies and perch in Woodruff-area lakes, where numerous large northerns have also been taken.

Ice fishing activity is high in the Wisconsin Rapids area, where anglers are catching mostly panfish, along with a few walleyes and northerns. Along Lake Michigan, perch fishing has been excellent this week at Dyckesville, with catches in the eight- to nine-inch range observed. Perch fishing has also been excellent off Red River and Green Bay.

Nice catches of walleye and northern are being taken on upper streams of the Menominee River in Marinette County. Lake Winnebago is still producing a good white bass, but not in the numbers found earlier.

In the southeast, bluegills weighing a pound or more are being caught in Rice Lake in the Southern Kettle Moraine Forest. Walleyes and northerns have been biting after dark on Pike Lake in Washington County, and nice crappies and northerns are being taken on Lake Five near Hubertus.

Walleye and sauger activity remains good on the Wisconsin River below the Dells dam, and nice catches of crappies have been reported on the Mississippi south of Casville. Some nice northerns are being caught on Madison's Lake Monona, and anglers are getting bluegills on Lake Mendota along the UW-Madison shoreline.

Fishing has been good on most lakes in the East-Claire area. Nice bluegills and crappies are being caught off Rice Lake and snowmobile trails were in good condition. Snow depth was 30 inches in Hurley and 19 inches in Mercer. All trails in that area were in good to excellent condition, as were those in Sawyer County. Trails should be in fine continued on page 7

by Timothy Byers
Staff Writer

This week’s Eco-Briefs will focus on one current issue, a pending bill in the state legislature, AB 660. This bill could also involve environmental education bill, successor to similar legislation enacted by Wisconsin lawmakers over the years.

AB 660 deals with creating an environmental education board attached to the Department of Public Instruction (DPI). This bill would authorize the making of grants for environmental education programs, establish the board here at UW-Stevens Point, and allow rule-making and appropriation authority.

Why is this important? It is important in two ways. One way is by formalizing an authority that can act as a clearinghouse for Wisconsin environmental education efforts, provide resource help, and keep Wisconsin's efforts in the nation's lead. A second way is to assure the continuation of high quality environmental education and programs in our state.

The 1990s have been identified as the decade to get it right. We have a chance to slow down and even stop environmental degradation if we act now and in the near future. What has given us this chance? Awareness of problems, knowledge of skills that can solve them, and the will to act on those problems.

Let's take one example, the Wisconsin River. Not too long ago the river was not very clean, fish were not tasty, and banks were unsightly. While the river is not a wilderness waterway it has returned to a semblance of health. Fishing and fish have returned. Shores are cleaner and water quality is much better than it was. How did this happen?

The public brought pressure to bear on the legislature and laws were enacted at the state, local, and federal levels that forced cleanups. Some people recognized the problem, got other people to get involved, and the result is a turnaround. Pollution loads decreased, treatment plants were built (at public expense), and industry reacted to new laws.

This is an example of environmental education at work. It is a subtle kind of education. It may not mean knowing an exact chemical formula, but it does mean recognizing that the health of an environment depends on responsible treatment of it. We can not overwhelm natural systems with unnatural acts and expect them to remain healthy.

Environmental education allows us to see the connections in nature, the role humans play, and shows the way to skills that can restore natural processes.

What can you do to help improve passage of AB 660? If you live in Wisconsin you can write, phone, or telegram your representatives in the assembly or the state senate. Tell them that you support environmental efforts in our state. You are for bills that support those efforts and provide the means to make our environment better. Let them know that you are willing to support such legislation and that they, as your representative, should also vote for passage of AB 660.

You can also write, phone, or telegram the governor. The battle will not be won until AB 660 is safely signed into law by our state's chief executive. His support is not all assured unless we can demonstrate broad public sentiment in favor of the bill.

What if you are not a Wisconsin resident? You can still have an influence by writing. Tell our legislators that you are interested in improving the state’s environment.

Wisconsin’s attractive environment depends on firm commitment to clean air and water and the people who can insures the continued health and restoration of our land, air, and water. Recruit your schoolmates, your friends, your acquaintances to enjoy nature and tell them how much you like to visit and stay here.

What are some other good reasons you can use as facts in your arguments? The law would provide for statewide training needs in environmental education. It would assist the DPI in its assessment of environmental literacy among teachers and students. With teaching experience would be trained to give programs for state teachers. School districts would receive much needed help in conducting environmental education programs.

In addition, curriculum and materials would be further developed, workshops and consulting services would be available, and UW-SP would more readily serve teachers pursuing master's degree work in the environment.

Other state agencies, extension, conservation groups, youth organizations, and nature centers would also be served by the new law.
State seeks input for outdoor rec plan

MADISON, Wi.—The Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources has begun work on a new Statewide Comprehensive Outdoor Recreation Plan (SCORP). The plan will offer guidance to all levels of government, businesses and organizations that provide recreation. The SCORP will also be used in allocating federal and state grants.

Funded jointly by the DNR and the federal government through the Land and Water Conservation Fund, the plan will be completed in June 1991 and offer recommendations for 1991-1996.

Bormie Gruber, SCORP planner, invites suggestions from people throughout the state for things that could help them enjoy the outdoors over the next several years. Send your suggestions to Wisconsin DNR, Bormie Gruber, P.O. Box 7921 Madison, Wi 53707.

Fishing contest to be held on Big Eau Pleine

The UWSP Student Fisheries Society will hold its sixth annual ice fishing contest on the Big Eau Pleine Flowage Saturday, February 24 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Prizes will be awarded for each of the three longest crappies, perch, walleyes and northers.

The fisheries society has imposed a 20 inch minimum size limit for northers to be entered into the contest.

In addition to the contest the society will sell raffle tickets. Proceeds from the event will help fund habitat improvement, fish population surveys, dissolved oxygen monitoring and spawning migration patterns research.

The registration site will be located off Big Eau Pleine County Park.

Mandela-free at last

by Mary Kaye Smith
Features Editor

This past Sunday yet another link in the chain of apartheid which binds the South African people has been broken. After 27 years of incarceration, Nelson Mandela is free at last.

Mandela was sentenced to life imprisonment in 1961 for his membership in the African National Congress (ANC) which had been banned by P.W. Botha. The ANC was an underground activist group which struggled to change the country's oppressive system of white minority-dominated government.

In 1985, the South African government offered Mandela his freedom on the condition that he would no longer speak publically or engage in any form of activism. He refused saying that he could not be free unless his people were also free.

Although today Mandela holds no official position within the ANC he is viewed almost universally as its leader. He has committed himself to serve as a negotiator for relations between the black community and the white government. He endures, as quite ecstatic, on the other hand I was very skeptical. It's scary because of the new turn in the government and all the things that are going on right now. I was talking the news and the stuff I saw was totally contradictory to my feelings. Because what I saw was... people still getting beat just because they were celebrating his release. So they have another way... but they still have a long way to go... until... it's a great thing for South Africa and for this new decade. Hopefully it's going to change the situation in South Africa and make it a better place for the black people to live. It's a start to end apartheid

Greg Anderson, who is a member of the United Brothers and Sisters, said, "I think that it's a great thing that they've released Nelson Mandela. I feel that it just goes to prove my own personal theory that you cannot keep a people down forever. I also believe that it's kind of ironic (that) in this country a woman had to be arrested (Rosie Parks)... for us to start our own freedom marches." The release of Nelson Mandela illustrates the end of apartheid in Africa. I think black people have been held down a lot by different forces and I think that it's a great thing that people are finally realizing across the world that you cannot keep a good people down.

Casandra McGraw, President of the United Brothers and Sisters, said, "On one hand I was quite ecstatic, on the other hand I was very skeptical. It's scary because of the new turn in the government and all the things that are going on right now. I was watching the news and what I saw was totally contradictory to my feelings. Because what I saw was... people still getting beat just because they were celebrating his release. So they have another way... but they still have a long way to go... until... it's a great thing for South Africa and for this new decade. Hopefully it's going to change the situation in South Africa and make it a better place for the black people to live. It's a start to end apartheid

Due to the length of this article, the features section was unable to run it at its entirety last week. Here is the conclusion of the LAQ interview.

How has the LAQ changed?

The LAQ is in its 5th edition, the LAQ is based largely on research findings in the various wellness and health profession disciplines. Changes are made as research unfolds new information, and as students point out a possible improvement in the current form. Our input is valued, Hettler said, and our requests changes in wording of the questions, for example may very well determine the 6th edition.

"In addition," Hettler points out, "a 1985 group of students at UW Stevens Point volunteered their data as part of a study which will address lifestyle changes throughout their college career. These students will be following another LAQ at the end of their final semester here and the results will help the NW1 and Health Services determine what improvements might be made with respect to programming courses and services offered by the University."

What are students getting for their money?

According to Hettler, Health and Lifestyle Improvement Center provides many services, the students who use these services are getting much more than what they are paying for.

- A visit to the Health Center might include a doctors visit, a prescription, use of the lab for a blood test, throat culture or immunization. "That service is not cheap," Hettler said. And chances are, that yearly fee is about the best deal you're going to find. Health insurance costs outside the University are extremely high."

If you would like additional information about the LAQ, Life Style Assistants (LA's) offer a variety of life style improvement programs, such as stress management, nutrition, massage, smoking cessation, etc. Employee Wellness (E-4530 133 Old Main), counseling, or wish to meet with one of the professionals at the Health Center, call 346-466 or visit one of the M.D.s, D.A.s, R.N.s or L.A.s on the 2nd floor of Deloit Hall. They are there for you and you are paying for the service so use it. The Doctor's waiting!

Is the LAQ flawless? No. And I'll admit, as a freshman I did not look forward to another TEST; I sneered at it as I did my December utility bill. But I was young, impatient, and irritable then. There was nothing more distressful to me than standing in lines for hours, then having to sit back down to fill something ELSE out. But I can improve in that area, he "personal profile" tells me so.

I want to conclude with a story about one of my first check ups; it was memorable not for the "stick out your tongue bring AHHHHH bit, but for my Doctor's other words of wisdom. Staring him straight in the knees I demanded: "Why do I have to get all these shots and check ups?"

"Well," he replied, "think of your body as a house; only you can't move out if someone falls apart on you. Only you get one, so you gotta take care of it."

So think of the LAQ as a tool that you may use to keep your house in check. Use it and the many services that this University has to offer.

I hope this article has cleared up a few things about the LAQ. Now you have the facts; the rest is up to you. If you still question the value of the LAQ and want to see a change, it is up to you, the students of UWSP to make your comments and suggestions known.

UAB brings Comedy Sportz to campus

The University Activities Board (UAB) will present Comedy Sportz Saturday Feb. 17.

Comedy Sportz incorporates an athletic theme, improvisation and audience participation for an evening of one-of-a-kind entertainment.

"Comedy Sportz is the most exciting and original comedy event in the country today. It gets the whole audience involved in the show. People of all ages will enjoy this comedy competition. It is to comedy what baseball is to America," said Mike Kornmann, UAB's Special Programs Coordinator.

Prior to the performance, the comedy troop will be presenting an improvisation workshop. The workshop will begin at 2 p.m. Admission, which includes the price of the evening's performance, is $10 with student i.d. and $15 without.

Nelson to present sexuality talk

"Struggling With Our Sexuality," a presentation by James B. Nelson, will take place Monday, Feb. 19, at 7 p.m. in the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point's University Center.

Nelson will answer questions about sexual ethics and how people have become the sexual being they are today. The seminar, sponsored by United Ministries in Higher Education, is free and open to the public.

Nelson, a professor of Christian ethics at United Theological Seminary in the Twin Cities, is nationally known as a speaker in the area of spirituality and sexuality and has written over a half dozen books. His most recent book is "The Intimate Connection: Male Sexuality, Masculine Spirituality."

In addition to publishing his eighth book and receiving the position of Seminary Professor from United Seminary, Nelson has also earned the Excellence in Teaching Award from the Board for Homeland Ministries of the United Church of Christ.

According to United Seminary President Benjamin Griffin, Nelson "assumes that the teacher becomes a learner with the students even while leading them. This results in students discovering that they are engaged in ethical reflection rather than simply studying a subject."

FASHION POINT

by Susan Stadler

I am sure at one time or another you have bought something on impulse. Often you end up with an item that goes with nothing, you decide you don't like, or which falls apart in a month. By following these simple guidelines you can decrease your chances of buying an unusable item, and build a working wardrobe in the process.

-Focus on the basics. The backbone of your wardrobe should consist of neutral colors - black, navy, and shades of brown. Red has even become a neutral color.

You can update your basic wardrobe each season with accessories. Coats, belts, scarves, balls, gloves, and jewelry, or one key piece - a jacket, blouse, skirt, or pants. This eliminates the need to buy entire outfits each season since ensembles from a few seasons ago are outdated.

-Make a habit of going through your closet at the beginning of each season. Don't hang on to items you've never worn, hoping someday you will. Also eliminate clothes which are worn out, can't be repaired, or are outdated.

-Never buy unrelated pieces. After going through your wardrobe you should know what you have and what you need. When you go shopping for key items, make a list and stick to it! Sales are a great way to update your wardrobe inexpensively - but before buying, ask yourself, Do I need it? Will I wear it? Does it go with the rest of my wardrobe?

-Buy items which fit you. Even if it's the last one in a smaller size and you planned on losing a few pounds anyway, You don't know for sure if you'll lose those few pounds, and if do your new piece may not fit as you expected. Also watch for shoes which are too snug, tight waistbands, and pants and skirts which are too short (longer i.d. can always be shortened). Clothes which don't fit you well in the store won't fit any better when you bring it home. If the shoe fits, wear it!

So next time you're about to buy that new item of clothing make sure it fits your wardrobe, and most importantly you.

NWF survey says college students environmentally concerned

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Today's generation of college students, often maligned as materialistic and socially disconnected, are actually deeply concerned about the environment, with 95 percent agreeing that Congress should pass tougher laws to protect the environment, and 94 percent willing to pay more products that are environmentally safe, according to a new opinion survey commissioned by the National Wildlife Federation (NWF).

The survey was conducted in November 1989 by Hughes Research Corp., a national research firm based in Rockville, Md. Five hundred undergraduates students between 17 and 24 years of age were surveyed. All were enrolled in a four-year college or university. Approximately one-half were male and one-half were female.

Based on the sample size, the survey results can be considered accurate to within plus or minus five percentage points.

Other key questions of the survey revealed strong sentiments on behalf of environmental quality.

*Nearly 75 percent believe that recycling of newspapers, glasses, and cans should be required by law in all communities.

*While 66 percent believe that industry today is more concerned about environmental protection than it was five years ago, 76 percent believe that industry influences government to pass less effective environmental protection laws. And students take their environmental concerns into the voting booth, with more than 70 percent agreeing that environmental protection is important in electoral decisions.

*Nonetheless, 80 percent believe that "all of us" have primary responsibility for protecting the environment, with only 24 percent laying responsibility on the doorstep of the federal government.

“We are tremendously encouraged by these results,” said NWF president Jay D. Hair. "College students are expressing a deep concern for the environment, and the overwhelming majority are clearly willing to do something about it."

According to Tom Hughes of Hughes Research Corporation, “Given their intense concern for the environment and their willingness to get personally involved in this issue, this survey paints the picture of American college students as a formidable resource ready to go to work to help solve our environmental problems.”

Hughes Research Corporation was founded in 1988 by Thomas B. Hughes. With two decades, Mr. Hughes has conducted more than 2,000 individual survey research projects, and currently serves on the board of directors of the Marketing Research Association.

The National Wildlife Federation is nation's largest conservation organization, with more than 5.6 million members and supporters and 52 affiliate organizations nationwide. A private, not-for-profit organization, the Federation was founded in 1936.

Point skaters capture title

by Steve Rehbe
Sports Writer

The UW-Stevens Point hockey team captured its second straight Northern Collegiate Hockey Association regular season title by sweeping a two-game weekend series from Bemidji State at John S. Glas Fieldhouse this past weekend.

The series sweep was the Pointer’s first since Jan. 12 and 13 against Mankato State, improved the nation’s top-ranked Division III team to 21-3-2 and 18-2-2 in the NCHA.

The Pointers, who will battle for the fourth and final playoff spot against River Falls next weekend, dropped 14-11-1 and 10-11-2.

The Pointers wasted little time en route to capturing Friday’s 5-2 victory and the league title as they jumped out to a 3-0 lead before Bemidji State got on the board with a midway goal through the second period.

"We played extremely well on Friday night down there," said head coach Mark Mazzoleni. "We knew going in that they were ready to go and were going to have to be very well prepared."

Junior Mike Ract tallied the Pointer’s first score, 12:26 into the first period, when he slipped a low shot past Baver goalie Rob Stevens.

Senior Joe Butcher followed at 16:06 for his tenth goal of the season, when he slipped a pass from Todd Tretter through the legs of Stevens for a 2-0 lead.

"Sarge" Stablig added his seventh goal of the season just 3:21 into the second period, when he tore off a point, cutting margin 3-1.

Pointers coach Scott Krueger called the time-out, regrouped, and played the last 15 minutes of the game very similar to the way we played on Friday," said Mazzoleni.

"We still have to play the two teams that are in front of us (Eau Claire and Platteville) so we’re in a position of having to come up even further in the standings, but we’re going to have to play our best to beat these teams...especially against Eau Claire at their place."

The Pointers will travel to Eau Claire on Friday and LaCrosse on Saturday before returning home to Edgewood College on Sunday. Point will host Platteville on Saturday, Feb. 24 for their last regular season game.

"With the schedule coming up, we’re not going to show the continued character we did all year in order to move up in the conference," added Parker.

We’ll be looking for it.

PREPARED POINTERS MAKE MISTAKES

by Merritt Nenneman
Sports Writer

The Pointers hosted Whitewater in Quadrant Gym on Feb. 9 for Kids and Team Night. Action both teams had 50-0 conference records at the beginning of the evening, but only the defending WSUC Champion Warhawks advanced to the semifinal game and record of the night was over.

The Pointers were strong in all aspects, with many of the talented players maintaining their regular season averages. Several defensive players have been coming through the thick of their regular season efforts.

Bob Berceau, wrestling the feature match of the evening against Tony Schaaf, returning WSUC Champion, took revenge for last year’s defeat at Schaaf’s hands, winning 8-5. Despite Berceau’s victory, the outcome of the tournament was decided by the second all and was won by the Warhawks.

The Pointers next action will be at the Conference Meet in River Falls on Friday, February 16. Wrestling will begin at 10 p.m. and carry over to begin at 9 a.m. on Saturday.

Pointers find third in conference

by Kevin Crary
Sports Editor

The Stevens Point men’s basketball team, looking to clinch third place in the WSUC last Saturday against Oshkosh, found it...somehow.

The Pointers were knocked out of regulation and Stevens Point up by one, Oshkosh’s Steve Deroin was foiled by Andy Boario on a lay in. Deroin made the free throw, putting the Titans up by two. Oshkosh, however, received a technical foul for an illegal substitution. Scott Anderson connected on both free throws to tie the game at 66 apiece.

Point worked the ball around, looking for the last shot. But with two seconds left, Anderson was whistled for a moving screen when he tried to get Andy Boario on a disembarkation. Oshkosh’s Kurt Wolfner to the line. The 6-3 sophomore guard from Lodi, Wis. knocked both free throws to extend the lead to 68-66.

The Pointers were down by nine with 9:33 left to play and even though the game seemed to belong to Oshkosh, Point saw it differently.

"We never think we’re out of it," said senior co-captain Anderson. "We always think and believe that we can win, no matter what the situation.

"Oshkosh’s Deroin created a situation that Point wasn’t expecting as the 6-1 sophomore guard, averaging just over eight points per game, had a game high 28 points, Ric Kunnet and Mark Ziebell added 15 each for the Titans.

"Deroin had a career night," said Parker. "We weren’t doing anything defensively that we should have been doing and he got hot and stayed hot. It’s hard to key on someone else on their team because you’ve always got to be conscious of Bobberson and Kunnet because they’re all-conference players."

Anderson led Stevens Point with 23 points, including a 10 for 12 showing from the free throw line. Boario added 22 and Mike Harrison chipped in with 12.

"By the end of the game the Pointers have found what they set out to look for before the season started...but don’t expect them to just enjoy the sights.

"At the beginning of the season the Pointers come in as the top third of the Division," said Anderson. "Although we feel poody, Feb. 23 and 24, we’re not content with it, we’re still striving for a higher position.

"We’ve still got to play two teams that are in front of us (Eau Claire and Platteville) so we’re in a position of having to come up even further in the standings, but we’re going to have to play our best to beat these teams...especially against Eau Claire at their place."

The Pointers will travel to Eau Claire on Friday and LaCrosse on Saturday before returning home to Edgewood College on Sunday. Point will host Platteville on Saturday, Feb. 24 for their last regular season game.

"With the schedule coming up, we’re not going to show the continued character we did all year in order to move up in the conference," added Parker.

We’ll be looking for it.

Lady Pointers turning things around

by Jeremy Schabow
Sports Writer

Victory - a word that the Lady Pointers have heard many times in the last couple weeks. A turning point has been taking place within the team and their recent competition giving the women athletes spine-tingling spirit, dauntless determination and a sense of feeling good about themselves. UWSP is now third in the conference with Oshkosh taking second and Eau Claire sitting on top. There is still an extremely good chance, however, of that order changing. Head coach Shirley Egner hopes and prays so.

On February 6, the Lady Pointers challenged River Falls and completely crushed them, not even giving their opponents a chance to win. The final score stood at 75-64 and the team, not to mention coach Egner, were on cloud nine. Egner comments: "It was awesome! We did exactly what needed to be done. Total confusion is how River Falls felt when we were through. This was a huge win because they were tied with us for fourth in the conference. The players were fabulous and definitely deserved to triumph that day. It really was great to see them come through in a clutch game such as River Falls and believe in themselves. They have all just turned around 100 percent and the team effort is magnificent. Everybody understands their roles regardless if they are getting a lot of minutes or not. It was awesome."

Three days later, UWSP rivaled St. Scholastica and came up short with the final score being 78-56. "We were flat and we did not execute well," explains Egner. "The team gave good effort, but we shot 23% in the second half and you just cannot win when you do that. Plus, not to be crying about the officials, but they let the game get out of control the first five minutes of the game and never got it back. This was a tough game to lose, however, I think it really opened our eyes. We had won five games in a row and this kind of hit us hard. St. Scholastica deserved it.

"The only thing I would like to say to everyone out there is that day. It really was great to see them come through in a clutch game such as River Falls and believe in themselves. They have all just turned around 100 percent and the team effort is magnificent. Everybody understands their roles regardless if they are getting a lot of minutes or not. It was awesome."

The only thing I would like to say to everyone out there is come watch us play! I believe that if someone would come for the first time that they'd like what they see and come again." You can see the Lady Pointers play on February 13 and 17, when they host Platteville (7 p.m.) and La Crosse (3 p.m.) in Berg Gym.
