Renovations continue to inconvenience students

by Jeremy Krause
News Writer

On-campus students may be a little inconvenienced now, but it's all being done for more convenience in the future.

DeBot is undergoing a $3.2 million renovation, which is more than it cost to build the dining center in 1965. The project is being funded by student fees rather than by the taxpayers and is expected to be completed sometime next fall.

Changes being made include a larger lobby to accommodate students better in cold weather. An overhang will also protect students in foul weather.

Currently, the only accessible entrance is the north entrance facing Knutzen Hall. The new entrance will feature restrooms and an elevator for handicapped access.

Jerry Lineberger, the Associate Director of the University Centers, said, "Another drastic change is that there will not be as many hot food lines." He said that students eat from the salad bars more today than they did in 1965.

There will also be new dish-washing machines installed that are similar to the ones used in the Wooden Spoon. This is to prevent dishes falling down the shaft.

A circular driveway is also planned instead of the straight driveway being used now to insure the safety of the students and also for the convenience of the truck drivers.

The basement of DeBot is not escaping change either. An improved bakery will serve the dieters' needs better. The roof will also be replaced and so will the air conditioner.

Renovations continue to progress on DeBot. The $3.2 million project should reach completion sometime next fall semester. Pictured are changes being made to the south side of the building. (Photo by Lisa Stubler)

New director appointed

"The University of Stevens Point has one of the country's finest housing programs," said Randy Alexander, the new director of Residence Life.

Alexander succeeded Robert Nicholson in January after Nicholson became UWSP's Student Conduct Officer.

Randy Alexander
Residence Life Director

Alexander is now responsible for the total operation of the 12 residence halls and the direction of their 3,500 residents. He will also be in charge of a staff of 50 full-time professionals and several hundred part-time student workers.

Alexander came from Wichita State, which is twice the size of UWSP but only has 1,000 on-campus residents. Alexander was chosen out of 30 applicants for the position here.

"I got to know the people here and their program through business conferences and I was very impressed. For the town's size, it has a lot to offer," said Alexander.

One of the first tasks as director will be developing new living options for students and overseeing residence hall renovations.

"The master plan for the halls is to change them, make them different from each other. Not all students are the same, they have different needs. The halls should serve those different needs. One of the things we're planning is an upperclass hall that will have suites and semi-private baths," said Alexander.

Beginning this summer, Pray-Sims will undergo total renovation. An elevator will be installed for use by the handicapped.

The age and obsolescence of all the halls will require major work in the next few years. Alexander believes that the buildings are well-suited to structural alterations.

A native from Fort Worth, Texas, he holds a bachelor's and master's degree from East Texas State University in Commerce.

Alexander began his career in collegiate housing work as a residence hall director at Eastern Illinois University in Charleston.

Later assignments were as assistant dean of students at Stephen F. Austin State University in Nacogdoches, Texas, for two years, then director of residential living at Southwestern Texas State in San Marcos for two years before going to Wichita.

He is past president of the Upper Midwest Region of the Association of College and University Housing Officers. He is married and has two children.

Former Pointer in jail again

by Sarah Sell
Contributor

Former Pointer football player, Keith Lenard Majors, who cost the football team a share of the NAIA Division II championship in 1987, has been leading a life of crime since his days at UWSP.

Majors is currently being held in the Milwaukee County Jail for a felony forgery charge and two misdemeanor counts of obstructing an officer. He could face up to 16 years in prison if convicted.

When Majors was charged with these crimes, he was already on probation for felony charges in Texas and misdemeanor charges in Portage County.

The former athletic star's troubles began when he and teammate Aatron Kenney transferred from Angelo State in San Angelo, Texas, to UWSP. Both failed to inform university officials that their eligibility to play football had been used up.

Majors was the second leading rusher for the Pointers and he was also the team's third leading receiver. The team ended the 1987 season with a 13-1-1 record and tied for the NAIA Division II championship.

After Majors' and Kenney's ineligibility was revealed, the team had to forfeit its games and give up the title they shared.

In the time that followed, Majors was charged for issuing worthless checks and fraudulent use of credit cards. Majors disappeared from Stevens Point before he was actually convicted of the charges.

He was found at a motel in Portage County using a false name. After being arrested, Majors attempted to hang himself in July 1988 in a Portage County Jail cell.

Majors spent time under psychiatric evaluation and was put on probation for four years. He now faces having his probation revoked because of the new charges.

Fees go into effect Feb. 18

by Kelly Lecker
News Writer

Membership fees for the new Health Enhancement Center will be put into effect starting February 18. These fees will be charged to university personnel and members of the public who wish to use the fitness and recreation center.

"There will still be absolutely no fee for the students," said Dr. Jerry Gotham, director of physical education. "The students have already paid for the center."

For a recreation membership, the public will pay $150 annually or $20 monthly; senior citizens will be charged $25 annually and guests, $5 per day. University personnel and a spouse will have to pay $50 per person each year. The children of university workers will be charged $10 annually.

The membership fees were created by a university committee and were then approved by the Faculty Senate.

"The money collected will be used mainly for supervision of the facilities," said Gotham. This will include both student and faculty supervisors.

The Faculty Senate defeated a proposal by John Munson, chair of the School of Health, Physical Education, Recreation, and Athletics, for the installation of 100 parking spaces on the west side of the center. The Senate instead proposed using the area for greenery and installing only six parking stalls for handicapped parking.

"The decision for parking is now in the hands of the Chancellor," said Gotham, "and he is expected to decide that matter very soon."

ROTC cadets awarded

by Cara Kinczewski

Contributor

The Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) held its semi-annual awards ceremony on Feb. 7. Some 50 cadets were given awards in the areas of academic achievement and military skill.

Twenty-four cadets received Letters of Commendation, which means a grade point average of 3.0 or higher, and 17 cadets received the Academic Excellence Award, which means a grade point average of 3.5 or higher.

Mike Waubanascum and Jenny Gonzales received the Army Physical Fitness Test Improvement Awards. Collin Albrecht and Pat Gottsacker received the Varsity Athletic Award. Lynn Bielmeier and Terry Twet were awarded Fitness Excellence Awards.

The award many cadets were waiting for is actually more of an assignment than an award. The MS Branch Selection is the career choice of the cadets after they finish college.

Selections were distributed as follows: Collin Albrecht, field artillery; Brian Bornick, combat engineers; Nick Corrao, infantry; James Davel, field artillery; Keith Fabry, finance; Raquel Johnson, finance; Kenneth Kunst, armor; Paul Lemke, infantry; Amy Schroeder, air defense artillery; Mark Spoehr, combat engineers; and Terry Twet, air defense artillery.

The keynote address was given by Dr. Eugene Johnson, associate dean of the College of Letters and Science. Johnson spoke of the fine qualities of the ROTC cadets, especially their ability to adjust in times of crisis.

Bock Run on Sunday

The Stevens Point/Plover Area Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the Tenth Annual Point Bock 5K and 10K Race in Stevens Point on Sunday February 17.

THE BIG PICTURE

Nelson Mandela warned that if economic sanctions against South Africa are lifted by the European community his African National Congress will make the country so unstable investors will be scared off.

The 12-member European community formally supported lifting sanctions when the government moved to repeal certain apartheid laws.

The South African Parliament scrapped the Population Registration Act, the Group Areas Act and the Land Areas Act, which determined where certain people could live, work, eat and be born or buried. However, the passing of these acts has only symbolic meaning at this point for all black South Africans.

The classification system now used in South Africa will not be changed for current citizens (having been previously classified). It will only prevent those born from now on from being classified according to the old laws. But even this must wait until a new constitution is ratified.

Lithuanians defied President Gorbachev's appeals and overwhelmingly voted for independence from Moscow. 90 percent of all votes cast were in favor of the independence move, which saw about 85 percent of all eligible Lithuanians vote. This decisive event is expected to encourage other republics to similar action.

The Soviets are also considering dissolving the Warsaw Pact, Eastern Europe's answer to NATO. Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary Romania and Bulgaria all support the move. A conference at a later date is being planned to discuss the matter more seriously.

Last week California officials said the state-controlled water supply system would cut off all farmers in the San Joaquin Valley from water through irrigation systems, which will result in over 500,000 acres of fields not being planted, adding up to $2 billion in lost agricultural production.

The San Joaquin Valley currently grows one-half of the nation's fruits, nuts and vegetables. Experts, however, claim that this will have little effect on food prices at the supermarket. Slight increase will be seen in foods such as cauliflower, broccoli, almonds and peaches, with the largest increase to be seen in lettuce.

After a decade of what department officials call "semi-neglect," stemming from extra programs, more students and the removal of cauliflower asbestos, Wisconsin is building and refurbishing its state school buildings at its highest level in 15 years. This year, $413 million in construction projects were either begun or planned. Taxpayers are being asked to fund a large percentage of this construction.

While burglaries in Milwaukee declined about 5 percent this past year, the number of robberies soared 80 percent. Law officials there blame the increase in the spontaneity and quickness of robberies over the planned strategy of a burglary.

Freedom fighting or self-serviance?

by Ron Wirtz

Editor-in-Chief

Rhetoric. It gets old, especially when it's unchained and unsubstantiated. Every time you turn around some politician is filling your ear with rhetoric that's either not nothing new or totally illogical (with respect to your own viewpoints, obviously). We all know politicians really are logical, right?

One thing that this rhetoric has yet to focus on is how the U.S. freedom fighting machine sifts through the spectrum of world turmoil to find a cause worthy enough for its intimidating power.

There have been plenty of opportunities for the U.S. to fight for the cause of freedom. China (Tieneman Square), Panama, the Falkland Islands, Grenada, and of course Iraq. Where does the presidential office keep that sacred equation which determines U.S. involvement in a situation?

Support of the troops in Iraq becomes tempered by the fact our fight against world oppression is conditional. We fight wars of economics. We are in one right now, battling a man-looking for power through economics and aggression.

We fight battles against drugs, going into Panama with the sole purpose of bringing Manuel Noriega out. And for what? A few federal charges which may not even stick. Noriega will be paroled in a couple years, and doing the kucharacha around the White House because he could have been executed if tried in Panama. Oh, the irony of freedom fighting.

We fight battles of rhetoric when maybe we should have been the runners of democracy we claim to be. China, two years ago in Tieneman Square, thousands of Chinese students and citizens gathered demanding democratic changes. The demonstration was violently crushed.

But where was the beacon of democratic light? Still in Washington washing its hands of any involvement in China. But Washington officials did make a statement on the situation:

"Bad China. Bad, bad China. Any more of that and we'll cut off our ginseig exports." Token regrets and soft reprimands. Apparently the freedom fighting machine was grounded, possibly due to the great strength of the would-be foe.

What exactly that sacred war equation consists of I don't know. If we were true oppression fighters we would be getting involved in the Soviet unrest. Here are people demanding independence from the Kremlin. In Lithuania last week, 90 percent of the people voted for independence. I seriously doubt there was that much support for our own revolution.

However, we have no business interfering with Soviet social evolution. Getting involved in a Soviet civil war would be as absurd as the Russians getting involved in our own 125 years ago. Yes, conditions there are bad, Perestroika has not taken hold or been effective and the government is unstable at best.

The difference is Russia cannot spend money it doesn't have, while we have a $3 trillion deficit. Not exactly a good economic example.

We're just lucky our credit cards are good in other countries, or we'd be standing in food lines too.

But back to the subject, instead of the rhetoric of freedom fighting for the ideals of democracy against oppression, let's label things as they are. The U.S. fights for its own use, and for no one else (at least directly). That's not necessarily bad. But if this is the case, make sure the rhetoric is used as a motivator, and not as a cover.

Open minds needed on all levels

A few days ago I was watching a television program with a group of people about women who had such severe postpartum depression after giving birth that it developed into a psychotic state and possessed them to become very hostile and to go so far as to kill their own babies.

As we listened to these women recall some obviously very painful memories of how they murdered what was once a part of them without even realizing what they were doing, I couldn't help feeling deep sympathy for them. They were obviously sick and in need of help.

But what appalled me were the reactions of the audience and especially of some people in the room. They hated the women and declared that they would like to kill the women for what they had done. Being in a psychotic state, they argued, was clearly an excuse in order to get away with coldblooded murder.

We should try to look at everything through the other person's eyes before we judge

This kind of narrow-minded thinking can be seen in many places around campus. Students show prejudiced attitudes against racial groups, homosexuals, and people of the opposite sex.

I am a white female and am definitely not a homosexual, but I do not feel I am superior to any other group of people (In fact I happen to like men very much). Who is to say that one race is better than another?

And though I cannot understand how a homosexual feels, if they are happy and not hurting anyone they should not be condemned for their actions. Students and everyone else for that matter should be able to express themselves through music, dress, speech and actions without being labeled a freak.

These same students also have narrow views about students from lower income families. With many farms and small businesses being shut down, families are finding themselves without money and sometimes even without a home.

I have listened to people in my classes talk about how these people should have enough dignity to find a "decent" job and get back on their feet. Well let me tell you, having lived on a farm all my life, it seems impossible to me for someone who has worked at an occupation all his life to suddenly start a new career. He does not have either the money or the resources to get a new education, and his business is all he knows.

I am not trying to imply that everyone on campus has narrow-minded views of the world. Many, if not most people here, are very open to new ideas and

Walleye run spawns fishing frenzy Techniques for nailing ol' marble eyes

by Buck Jennings
Contributor

Well, last week's unusually warm temperatures worked the campus into a vernal froth. Yes, the same 40 degrees that warranted a parka in September had every moron in neon pseudo-surfwear strutting around half-naked.

The cartoon dream clouds over their blissful heads spun endless film loops of beach parties and backyard barbecues. My hitherto peaceful ice-fishing haunts looked like parking lots. Nature's serene frozen beauty bastardized by pick-up trucks brimming with booze swilling half-wits blasting George Jones (There's nothing like good country bass-line to attract fish).

Despite the "sportsman's" unbridled enthusiasm, the fish remained sluggish. It's still mid-winter to them and it will take more than a week of warm temperatures to speed their biological clocks. But basking in the sun in the ample time between strikes, I must confess, that I too was a bit intoxicated by the wanna-be spring fever. It caused me to reflect...Last Springs's Walleye Run.

Ah, those were good times. Bathed in the warm spring sunshine, my companion Kenny V. worked the fish call below the DuBay Dam and those fish were stacked up like cordwood, and we really nailed 'em. Among our trophies, a nine pound female released to thrill again.

Moved by sentimentality I took a ride down to the highway 10 side of the DuBay Dam to soak some minnows. The banks were coated with snow and ice and through the haze that hung over the open water I could decipher the images of six boats.

"I'm sick of ice fishing," defended the angler launching boat number seven. I fished for about an hour and caught three small walleyes. My bait, and this, brings us to the subject of this column--the Buck Jennings neutrally weighted floater natural bait presentation or TBJNWFNP for short (I'm open to acronym suggestions).

I've never been one to volunteer information. I keep my secret spots a secret, and rarely divulge my secret methods. I know however, that of the people who read this paper, 90 percent won't read this column. Of the people who do read this column, 90 percent won't bother to try this method. For the meager few who try and prefer this fishing method, you will be successful and more wealthy? Success? How about three to six fish to my competition's one. Wealthy? OK. Less poor.

On one episode, below the DuBay Dam, I caught over 200 (no kidding) walleyes, on the same rig (I changed the hook once). This same rig secured my status as fishing god when I caught two fish, first a smallmouth, and then a walleye, on the same single hook. Ok, this was an extremely rare case, but the bottom line is that this system works.

This system was developed over a couple of years, while fishing under a specific-set of

Steps for alleviating problem hook snags

by Buck Jennings
Contributor

The fish are in there thick, but so are the wood, rocks, concrete, cables, and re-bar. These are just some of the lure eating structure encountered while fishing rivers. A few tips and some planning ahead can help prevent the tragedy and heart wrenching pain and suffering that accompanies the loss of a loved lure.

First, assess the situation, watching the current for breaks and patterns that indicate underwater fish holding structure. If you can get upstream of the chosen fishing spot do so. Allow your bait to drift downstream to the fish. This is a natural presentation, and it's what the fish are expecting. When your line snags you can pop it upstream, opposite the direction it came from.

When casting upstream, don't cast farther up than you can walk. If you get hooked up and you can walk past your lure you can tug it from the opposite direction. 90 percent of the time it will pop out.

If you are retrieving a lure upstream against the current and you snag up, don't panic. Quickly give the lure slack. If it remains snagged continue to give it slack until a "bell" in the line forms downstream of the lure. Lock your bail and take up some of the extra slack. A quick, sweeping jerk (sounds like a janitor I once knew) will often pop out the lure.

Finally, if you or somebody else keeps getting snagged in one spot, DON'T CAST THERE!! Well, I'd love to sit and talk, but I've got to put on my treebark hat and pants, a flannel shirt and go down to the CNR and hustle chicks.

CNR professor wins state award

by Maria Hendrickson
News Writer

A forest production expert was appointed Wisconsin's Distinguished Professor of Forestry award at UWSP last Friday.

Dr. Robert L. Govett was nominated by the dean of CNR, Dr. Alan Haney, and was chosen for the award by the UW System Board of Regents. He was the eighteenth professor to receive the award since its inception in 1987 and the first from UWSP.

"There was a one-year national search to identify the best," said Haney. Govett's research specialties are in the areas of forest products marketing, production, wood energy and forest product development. "We've been recruiting for new academic positions for the wood utilization market. The solid wood industry is second only to paper in the state's wood products, and due to typically small, family owned businesses, they often lack trained personnel in their marketing," he continued.

Govett will teach, advise, and set up internships for students in wood production. "He will also set up an outreach program consisting of personal consultation and short courses for those already active in the industry," said Haney.

Currently a professor at the University of Idaho, Govett will begin his appointment at UWSP effective June 24, according to Haney.

Govett has a bachelor's degree in business administration

UWSP offers seasonal programs

Families may experience "Spring Magic" by spending the weekend of March 8-10 at UWSP's Central Wisconsin Environmental Station on Sunset Lake.

This is the first in a series of three "Sense of Wonder Family Weekends" being offered by the station from Friday night to noon on Sundays. "Splash into Summer" will be June 14-16 and "Autumn Harvest" will be Sept. 20-22.

Staff members predict each program will celebrate the beauty of nature and the joys of family unity by focusing on the natural wonders of the season. Participants will join other families in environmental awareness, recreation, and family-related activities led by parent-leaders and naturalists.

Fees covering food, lodging and program are $60 for adults, $40 for children ages five to twelve, and $25 for children one to four.

Registration and further information are available through the station, 7290 County MM, Amherst Junction, WI 54407, (715) 824-2428.

Planetarium series continues

by Tamara Obermeir
Contributor

Part three of this year's planetarium series, titled "The Dawn of Astronomy" began Feb. 3 and will run through Mar. 24. The programs start at 2:00 p.m. every Sunday and last approximately one hour. They are open to all UWSP students, and to the general public, free of charge.

Dr. Randy Olson, professor of astronomy and director of the planetarium, feels that a large number of students are attending the programs. "We average 14,800 visitors to the planetarium a year and about 30-40 percent of them are students," he said.

"The Dawn of Astronomy" goes back in time 5,000 years to explain why the pyramids of Egypt were built.

The planetarium and observatory are also open to UWSP students every Wednesday evening during the school term at 8:00 p.m. to view the night time sky. The planetarium is located on the second floor of the science building in room A217.

parameters. I often find myself fishing below dams in snag-infested waters and I often find myself completely broke.

In the spring of the year, when the water temperatures reach the 40 degree range, walleyes will begin to move upstream to dams and riffles to feed, pre-spawn. When water temps increase to 45 and 50, large female walleyes will move upstream to join the males who preceded them. They will feed heavily before spawning.

These fish will continue to feed in heavy rip-rap, and turbulent oxygenated water from pre-spawn through post spawn before most move back to their deeper, downstream haunts.

Anglers often capitalize on these feeding frenzies. Floating jigs, lead-heads and occasionally sonars and crank baits are most common in the angler's arsenal. The baits must be weighty to reach the bottom in these turbulent waters, and snags are common in the obligatory rocks that surround the walleyes spawn cycle areas.

Well, jigs snag all the time. The weights required to reach the fish make them harder for the fish to inhale. I watched Babe Winkelman once (How come his name is Babe, and his wife's name is Charley? Domestic role reversal?)

He explained how walleyes were only hitting on fuzzy grubs with the fuzz pulled out of them. Is this guy on acid? Are we jiggin' and wigg'in' with Babe and his dominatrix wife Charley?

Fuzzy grubs are $1.85 apiece. I don't know about you but I don't have tackle endorsements or the opportunity to get my baits for free. Another downside to jigs are their hooks. They are too big, too small, too dull, too brittle, and they rust.

How about a Lindy Rig and a floater? Once again, they snag often. Littering the river with lead, while not economically feasible is also bad environmental science. (There's talk of banning lead fishing weights, then what?)

As for the floating jig head, the hooks suck and they're expensive. When properly rigged they hang upside down. Oh, that's natural. They also tend to be hard, offering little incentive for Mrs. Marble eyes to hang on. The soft floaters on the market are even more of a screw, money-wise.

You're talking to the perpetually broke money-making genius who invented the absolute value checkbook (the more you spend, the more you earn).

Well this does leave the college angler in a quandary. When the going gets tough the tough go fishing and poverty is the seed of invention. My infinite quest for a better cheaper way gave birth to the Buck Jennings neutrally weighted floater, natural bait presentation.

A small roughly round segment of a twister tail serves as a "float" and a fish attractor. I prefer chartreuse. But other colors have their days. Bite off a small piece of a twister tail or a rubber worm before tying on your hook. Using your hook like a sewing needle, thread your line through. Pierce your rubber segment through the center and pull your line through. Slide the segment up the line to get it out of your way.

Additionally, a small plastic bead is threaded on the line. This will keep the rubber segment from sliding down the line and onto your hook where it can impair hook penetration. Now you can add your hook. I like a #6 aberdeen type hook. They are very sharp and if they get snagged, a few pops and they'll straighten out. The rig is retrieved, the hook is reshaped and the rig lives to catch again, not decorate the bottom and tap the pocket book.

Because this rig does not float, rather the current picks it up off the bottom, very little weight is needed. I can usually get by with a split shot or two. Heavier currents might warrant the addition of a bell sinker but remember this must be determined before the rigging is done. Snap on type barrel sinkers have proven worthwhile.

The hook is tipped with a minnow or a nightcrawler and the rig is fished. But how? Well, I'll tell you. The rig can be still fished in the current, but I prefer to keep it in motion. Using minimal weight to avoid costly snagging, cast the rig upstream. Allow the bait to continue downstream while keeping your rod tip up. Keep light tension on the line so you can feel the rig progress.

Picture the bottom and picture the fish. Allow the bait to drift down to them. The fish are waiting in slower water near current breaks for injured bait fish and forage to drift by. Understand the fish. They are expecting an easy meal with little energy expenditure. Give them what they want.

This rig allows the minnow to look natural. It's not slamming down the bottom on a half-ounce jig and it's not floating upside down on a hard bogus floater. The bait looks natural and the eyes slam it. Because the hook is smaller and the bait is soft, they hang on. It's tough to lose a fish using this method.

Try it, it works. Or don't try it, see if I care. You might get lucky and hook up with a "bonus" carp. I caught an eighty pounder this way last year. Try it with crawlers in the summer for walleyes and smallmouth.

Finally when you catch that big-pig female walleye just full of spawn, release her! If you gotta keep them, keep the small males. The big ones taste like poo anyway. Slay and fillet.

Winter sends critters out of sight, not out of mind

Winter snows may have covered many signs of Wisconsin's endangered and nongame species for the season, but they are not out of the minds of the Department of Natural Resources biologists who plan for their welfare year-round.

Much of the planning and habitat protection work done by biologists in the DNR's Bureau of Endangered Resources is supported by the Endangered Resources Fund that Wisconsin taxpayers can donate to on their state income tax form. Monies from these donations goes to protect Wisconsin's 207 endangered and threatened species.

One of the sure signs of spring is the emergent activities of many of nature's hibernating creatures. In Wisconsin, for example, hearing sounds of frogs in swamps and ponds is a sure sign that spring is at hand.

Reptiles and amphibians are ectothermic, which means their body temperature is set by the temperatures of the air, land or water. When temperatures drop below 50 degrees, their activity slows.

"Nature has provided for their survival in cold temperatures by allowing these critters to go dormant," said Bob Hay, Bureau of Endangered Resources nongame herpetologist. "When they can't sustain normal functions of surviving--breathing, eating and moving-- ("Mummenschanz," the Swiss mime-and-mask performing troupe, will appear at 8 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 26 at the Sentry Theater. Since its initial international engagements, the troupe has captivated audiences with its unique mixture of acting, mime, dance puppetry and magic. Tickets are on sale in the College of Fine Arts box office.)

Romantic music during February

In keeping with the traditional February Valentine theme of love, the Central Wisconsin Symphony Orchestra will present concerts of a romantic nature on Saturday, February 23, at 8:00 p.m. and Sunday February 24, at 3:00p.m. (matinee) in Sentry Theatre-Stevens Point.

Two of the major works will be the Tchaikovsky-Romeo and Juliet, and the Prokofiev-Romeo and Juliet. In the Prokofiev, the presentation is as a complication of the suites restored to the original order of the ballet which tells the very touching and tragic story of the young lovers.

The concert will be under the baton of the second Guest Conductor of the season; Mr. James Plondke. Mr. Plondke, Associate Professor of Music at Lawrence University in Appleton is the conductor of the Lawrence Symphony Orchestra and instructor of double bass. He holds a Bachelors Degree from the University of Illinois, a Masters of Music from Northwestern University and is presently in the doctoral conducting program at the UW-Madison.

The orchestra will also be joined by guest soloist Patrick Miles who will perform the Lars-Erik Larsson Concertino for Horn and String Orchestra Op.45, No.5. Dr. Miles is Assistant Professor of Horn and Director of orchestral Activities at UWSP where he also teaches honors theory. Patrick performs with the Fine Arts Quintet, UWSP Faculty Brass Trio, and as Principal Horn with the CWSO and LaCrosse Symphony as well.

Tickets for the concert are now available by calling the UWSP Fine Arts Box Office (Mon.-Fri 11:00-4:30 346-4100) and will also be sold at the door. Senior citizen, student, and group rates are available. For more information, call the symphony office at 344-1420.

POINT OF STYLE

by Alphonsus Chung
Contributor

Greetings readers and welcome back to yet another semester of academic pursuits, freezing temperatures and of course, style at its best.

Fashion Point has now become Point of Style with me being the new contributor after Susan Stadler.

As the title suggests, we are in the decade where fashion has become very much for the moment, while style, being personal and not dictated, is the 'buzzword' right now. This simply means that there should be an attitude of confidence, creativity and an element of fun when it comes to dressing.

What is in store for the subsequent articles will also focus on grooming tips, fashion previews of the latest trends that might be spotted on campus and if you have not noticed yet, men's dressing.

1991 has, so far, been uncertain and dismal in terms of world events, so fashion trends have also been affected. However, clothes for this coming season are still bright and colorful but yet simple and uncluttered.

This is a perfect foil for the current wave of recession that we are in. Vogue magazine's January 1991 cover reads "colorful and confident" and that is exactly how we should approach dressing and style.

With neon brights becoming passe, color takes on a spectrum of contrasting tones and shades which seem apparent in many of the leading designers' collections in New York. Looks to note for women are the return of the dress and the 60's inspired style. These will be discussed in subsequent articles.

Men should not shy away from colors as they do wonders for one's wardrobe. Feel free to experiment with sweaters, jackets, shirts and pants. Watch out for the new, clean "washed" colors which is the median between brights and muted shades. These will definitely make an impact on the springwear for men this coming season.

Men should look out for a softer silhouette that will dominate with lighter, softer fabrics like linen and rayon while taking precedence over heavier fabrics like wool.

Men should watch for the sporty-like styles which include the versatile shirt which is also a jacket. This worn over a T-shirt is the relaxed yet confident look for Spring 1991.

Pointer poll: How do you feel about Valentines Day?

"Can I say something political? Did you see as you're walking over here what they wrote in chalk? 'Killing one person is murder; killing a 100,000 people is foreign policy.' It seems like there's something not quite right the way that stuff balances together between love and flowers and Valentines Day and then we have this war. We have to know there's a war going on and talk about that a little bit more than focusing on dumb hearts and flowers."

The pressure's on to like your girlfriend and to get her roses and you don't feel like getting her roses. So on Valentines Day you kinda say forget it."

"I love Valentines Day. It gives me a chance to slow down and say, 'Hey, I'm in love with...' whoever I'm in love with at the time. It is such a wonderful holiday simply because it gives people an excuse to love each other simply for the sake of loving each other. I mean really now, what other holiday does that? Thanksgiving? Hell NO! And what about Independence Day? Guess Again!!!"

Tutoring alternatives to the bathroom wall

by Ron Wirtz
Editor-in-Chief

It's a cold, icy night. Your final paper needs to be handed in tomorrow, but you've seen writing on the bathroom wall with better organization than your paper. So what do you do?

Usually you'd go to the Academic Achievement Center, where you can get on-the-spot tutoring, even at night. But tonight, it's just too cold out to leave your hall room. You're stuck. Or so you thought.

Starting on Sunday, Feb. 17, and running through Monday, Feb. 25, the Academic Achievement Center will be going to the residence halls to do tutoring. "We hope that by going into the halls and demonstrating the center's usefulness and availability, students will begin to use the center on a regular basis over their entire college career," said Director Richard Behm. He added, "Students in the residence halls need to know there is tutoring available for any academic problem."

"House Calls" will run once a week (either Sunday or Monday night) for two weeks in each residence hall. Interested students will sign up for a half hour tutor session at night, which will be held right in their own hall. Said Behm, "By bringing our services to the halls, we hope that students will see we are enthusiastic about helping them reach their academic potential."

The program was initiated after a survey showed that there was a lack of awareness of the Academic Achievement Center's services among students in the residence halls. The center, located in the basement of the library, welcomes both walk-ins and appointments. It offers help in both writing and reading.

The writing lab offers tutorial help with all forms of writing, from resumes to research papers. The writing lab also assists in the technical areas of writing, such as organization, structure and grammar.

The reading lab offers similar help with any reading material which poses a problem for a student, be it Chaucer or psychology. Both labs can help you become more efficient in your study habits and patterns, which every student can use. After all, the bathroom wall can only teach you so much.

Sting: The Soul Cages Review

One might well argue that death is not a motivator, but for Sting it is the basis for his latest release "The Soul Cages" on A&M Records.

Sting returns to the music scene after a three year layoff with one of his most powerful efforts. Following his world tour for the 1987 release "...Nothing Like the Sun," Sting was faced with the tough ordeal of losing both his parents in a sixth month span. It was the loss that became the basis for many of the songs on "The Soul Cages."

In general, the album is quite somber and depressing, with reflections on death and some strange interventions of religion, but that doesn't stop it from being a solid musical performance.

Sting has made a few changes in his band and they do an excellent job of backing up some fine songwriting. The most noticeable change is in guitarist Dominic Miller (King Swamp).

Miller's tasty guitar playing gives a lift to many of the depressing tunes on the album. The only musicians that have appeared on all three of Sting's solo albums are keyboard player Kenny Kirkland, and saxophonist Branford Marsalis. These two gentlemen have been the most noticeable on his two previous efforts but on this album their roles are greatly reduced leaving the path clear for Miller to fill the remaining space.

On the whole, if you want an emotional lift, than the soul cages may not be for you, but if you enjoy some fine songwriting played by some of the finest musicians today, then "The Soul Cages" may be right up your alley.

people. I am also not saying that I am always totally open-minded, although I do try to see and respect others' opinions.

Coming from Cecil, Wisconsin, a town of just over 400 people, I know how easy it is to accept your home and upbringing as the only correct way of thinking. What I am trying to say is that there is a whole different world -- bigger than Cecil and yes, even Stevens Point, and we need to wake up and realize that the world does not revolve around us.

There are many different people with many different lifestyles and beliefs, and we should try to look at everything through the other person's eyes before we make unfair judgments. People with mental or physical disabilities are not freaks.

The homeless and poor are not stupid or lazy; they all only need a little help and understanding, a little of your help and understanding.

they hibernate."

Two important needs must be met while critters hibernate, according to Hay. First, the animal must remain protected from freezing either by staying in unfrozen, moving water or by going below the frost line. They still require oxygen. Second, animals that go underground require moderate to heavy soil moisture to keep from dehydrating and drying up in nature's refrigerator.

"For most species the hibernating period runs from mid-October to April," Hay said. "This dormant time off from activity really compresses their active time for mating, producing young and growing, to six or seven months from April to October."

Some species, such as our state's two types of rattlesnakes, often have only five months of activity because of their intolerance for cool and cold weather."

Right now the wood turtle (Clemmys insculpta), a Wisconsin threatened species, is generally hibernating in open water rather than burrowing into the soil. Wood turtles rely on moving water to keep from freezing and to provide oxygen.

They don't breathe during hibernation, according to Hay, but can take in oxygen through permanent gill-like structures on the throat and through some special oxygen-gathering glands in the cloaca (a body cavity that the intestine empties into).

"The soft-shell turtle utilizes oxygen similarly, as it also transfers oxygen through its skin, a process unique to that turtle species in Wisconsin," Hay explained.

Many snake species congregate in great numbers in the fall at denning sites called hibernacula, which are underground areas below the frost line. "These areas provide the necessary temperature and moisture needed for survival."

The messasauga rattlesnake (Sistrurus catenatus), a Wisconsin endangered species, is one exception to the denning rule. They usually hibernate alone in crayfish burrows, often below water level. "We don't know the mechanisms that allow the messasauga to hibernate underwater," Hay said.

"And an exception to hibernating is the mudpuppy (salamander) which remains active all year," Hay added. "Its activities continue despite water temperatures."

Insects behave a little differently during their winter inactive period. A threatened butterfly, the Regal Fritillary (Speyeria idalia), a big showy insect, winters as a young larva in the leaf litter and duff in the forest floor.

"This is a four-stage insect that develops from an egg to the larva stage and then to the pupa and finally adult stage," Tim Vogt, DNR zoologist, said. "Another endangered insect, the northern blue butterfly (Lyciaes idas), winters as an egg."

The northern blue butterfly only feeds on dwarf bilberry (Vaccinium cespitosum), an endangered plant. Another endangered insect, the Phlox moth (Schinia indiana), winters as a pupa in the soil. It is found around Eau Claire and in Jackson County in the sandy soils of jackpine barrens.

"One three-stage insect, the extra-striped snaketail dragonfly (Ophiogomphus howei), winters as an aquatic nymph in big, clean, fast-moving rivers," Vogt said. "The extra-striped snaketail dragonfly emerges as an adult in late May or June."

In the middle of this long, cold winter season, donating to the Endangered Resources Fund income tax checkoff offers an opportunity for you to start looking ahead to the warm season, a season, critical to special reptiles, amphibians and insects.

LOSE 20 POUNDS IN TWO WEEKS!

Famous U.S. Women's Ski Team Diet

During the non-snow off season the U.S. Women's Alpine Ski Team members used the "Ski Team" diet to lose 20 pounds in two weeks. That's right — 20 pounds in 14 days! The basis of the diet is chemical food action and was devised by a famous Colorado physician especially for the U.S. Ski Team. Normal energy is maintained (very important!) while reducing. You keep "full" — no starvation — because the diet is designed that way. It's a diet that is easy to follow whether you work, travel or stay at home.

This is, honestly, a fantastically successful diet. If it weren't, the U.S. Women's Ski Team wouldn't be permitted to use it! Right? So, give yourself the same break the U.S. Ski Team gets. Lose weight the scientific, proven way. Even if you've tried all the other diets, you owe it to yourself to try the U.S. Women's Ski Team Diet. That is, if you really do want to lose 20 pounds in two weeks. Order today. Tear this out as a reminder.

Send only $10.00 ($10.50 for Rush Service) - to: SlimQuik, P.O. Box 103, Dept. 2R, Hayden, ID 83835. Don't order unless you want to lose 20 pounds in two weeks! Because that's what the Ski Team Diet will do. © 1990

Men's Basketball lose out on quest for revenge on Blugolds

By Ginger Parker
Sports Writer

The Men's Basketball team took the floor Tuesday night in Quandt Fieldhouse with revenge in their eyes. UWSP was out to redeem themselves after getting killed by Eau Claire on their home court.

Point raged onto the floor for the battle versus the Blugolds, but as the game grew short, the Pointers also grew short. The Pointers lost the crusher 71-66.

The Blugolds, now 21-2 overall and 12-2 in the conference, still control first place. Point's 13-9 overall and 6-6 conference record is keeping them in the battle for a playoff position.

In the first half, the Pointers took control of the game. UWSP connected on 14 of 22 for 63.6 percent, while Eau Claire could only hit on 11 of 26 for 42.3 percent. This sharp shooting by the Pointers helped them to lead at halftime 40-30.

As the second half was underway, Eau Claire pounded their way back into the game.

With only 10 minutes left in the game, the score was tied and the Pointers could not hold their own. Point converted on only 8 of 27 in the second half for a 27.6 percent from the field. Eau Claire took advantage of this and shot 11 of 24 for 45.8 percent.

"We couldn't make the key shots, but it was a gutsy performance and I'm proud of our people," said UWSP coach Bob Parker.

Pointer guard Mike Harrison led the way for the Pointers. He tallied a game high 26 points, sinking four of eight three point attempts.

Two other Pointers reached double figures. Vince Nichols grabbed 15 points; 8 of those were free-throws. Jon Julius had another strong performance nailing 11 points and grabbing 7 rebounds.

With only seconds left, Senior guard Chas Pronschinske fouled out. He managed 6 assists, but the Blugolds shut him down to only 4 points.

"We only played two-thirds of the game and against Eau Claire you have to play a full game," said Junior forward Scott Frye.

Frye had a steady performance, controlling 6 rebounds and 6 total points.

The Pointers will now be on the road until their final home game against UW-LaCrosse on February 23.

Women's Basketball dominated by UW- Eau Claire 78-57

by Kris Kasinski
Sports Editor

The UWSP Women's Basketball team took on Eau Claire in the first of a double header with the Blugolds on Tuesday. Unfortunately for the Pointers, Eau Claire was too much to handle. UWSP fell to Eau Claire 78-57.

The Pointers jumped out to an early first half lead on a Amy Felauer three pointer. The Pointers held the lead through almost the entire first half. The Blugolds took the lead with just 1:56 remaining, and went into the lockerroom with a 35-30 halftime lead.

The second half was clearly dominated by the Blugolds, as they lead the entire half. The Pointers closest margin was 6 points, and at times they trailed by as much as 23 points.

The Blugolds shot 49.2 percent from the field while Point was held to just 36.4 percent. Eau Claire shot an outstanding 90.9 percent from the free throw line. The Pointers shot 53.8 percent.

The Pointers were led by Tricia Fekete with 16 points and Julie Schindler, who sat out most of the first half with foul trouble with 13 points.

Senior Kate Peterson was out with an ankle injury, and it is undetermined how long she will be out.

The Pointers return to action Friday when they travel to Superior. Saturday the Pointers will host UW-Stout at 7:00.

Track men finish seventh at Stout, women second at Eau Claire

By Mark Gillette
Sports Writer

The Men's Track team went to UW-Stout's Johnson Fieldhouse last Friday to participate in the Burger King Invitational Track and Field Meet.

Stevens Point finished seventh out of a twelve team field in the meet with 42 points. UW-LaCrosse finished first with 149.5 points, St. Thomas second with 99, and UW-Stout third with 70.

Stevens point had one first place finisher in the meet, Dean Bryan, who completed the 200 meter race with a finishing time of 22.35. In the 55 meter hurdles, Chris Larsen finished second with a time of 8.14.

Other strong finishers from Stevens Point were Scott Hellmich, who finished fourth in the 55 meter hurdles with a time of 6.73. Bryan finished fifth in the 55 meter hurdles at 6.78.

In the 1500 meter race, Matt Hamilton rounded out the top five with his time of 4:01.86. Marty Kirschner finished fifth at 51.90 in the 400 meter race.

John Ceplina earned the fifth best time in the 800 meter race with a time of 2:01.41. Point finished fourth in the 4x400 meter relay at 3:28.89.

Overall, Point had one first place winner, one second, two fourths, and four fifths.

The Women's Track team traveled to Eau Claire over the weekend to participate in the Women's Invitational on Saturday.

Stevens Point did very well in the meet, taking second place with 140 points. UW-Eau Claire came in first with 215 points, and UW-River Falls came in third with 80 points.

Stevens Point had eight first place finishers in the meet.

Coach Hill was very pleased with the experience the Pointers gained. The strong finish the women had should prepare them well for the WWIAC Indoor Championships coming in two weeks on the same track in Eau Claire.

Sara Salaj, a Junior from West Bend, had a great day in finishing first in the 300 meter race with a time of 43.10. "I was extremely pleased with the performance of Sara. In her second season as a Pointer she is showing some maturity and is performing like a seasoned veteran," Hill commented.

Salaj finished second in the 55 meter race with a time of 7.62. Salaj also helped Point place second in the 4 x 400 meter relay along with Tami Langton, Amy Voigt, and Nancy Kortenkamp. They finished at 4:13.84.

Swimmers at UW LaCrosse Invite

The UWSP Swimmers traveled to LaCrosse on Saturday for The LaCrosse Invitational. This meet was not scored and there were no places given.

"We arrived and were only given a half an hour to warm up which didn't really give us enough time to loosen up properly. We would normally need an hour or so to be totally warmed up and loose," said assistant coach Pet Zenboi.

When the meet began the Pointers were as ready to go as could be expected.

"Our team stayed focused, didn't complain about the short warm up, and really went after their races," said Zenboi.

The Swimmers of the week were John Pearson and Jenny Bradley.

"John's swims were extremely impressive," said Zenboi. John swam the 500 free in 5:07.99, a personal best, the 200 free in 1:51.57 (a 5.5 second drop), and the 100 free in 50.67 seconds (another personal best.)

"Jenny Bradley has improved a great deal in the last three weeks. She's swimming her races smarter and stronger as a result from continuously working hard in practice," commented Zenboi.

She swam the 200 fly in 2:26.31 and her 200 free in 2:10, a personal best.

John Pearson, Dan Kelly, Mani Zarrehparver and Dan Janiga swam the LaCrosse Invite shaved and tapered to swim their best races of the year.

Zenboi also recognized Beth Watson, Nino Pisciotto and Juan Cabrera as having excellent swims this weekend.

The swimmers' next outing will be the Conference meet on February 21-23 in Menomonie.

Hockey settles for sweep with Irish, look to Mankato

By Kris Kasinski
Sports Editor

The UWSP Hockey team traveled to South Bend, Indiana to take on the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame last weekend and came away with a split of the series. On Friday, the Pointers won by a 5-1 margin and on Saturday they suffered a 7-3 loss.

In Friday's victory, the Pointers were led by goalie Kevin Marion, who recorded 27 saves on the night, including two early breakaways which helped set the momentum for the Pointers.

"Kevin made a very big difference in the game," said Head Coach Mark Mazzoleni.

The Pointers clearly dominated the scoreboard, grabbing a 5-0 lead less than two minutes into the final period.

Jean Marsan got the Pointers started at 10:06 of the first period when he scored off assists from Al Bouschor and Frank Cirone. Mike Stahley increased the margin to 2-0 just over five minutes later with his 15th goal of the season on assists from Mike Toth and Jared Redders.

The score remained 2-0 until 10:37 of the second period when Todd Tretter took a feed from Paul Caulfield and Tim Hale to increase the lead to 3-0. Caulfield then continued his scoring rampage of late with 1:31 remaining in the second period to give the Pointers a four goal advantage.

Marc Strapon closed out the Pointer scoring at 1:31 in the third period for his fifth goal of the season.

Notre Dame's only goal came at 2:22 of the third period to spoil Marions shut-out bid.

On Saturday, Notre Dame came out a different team, and stormed to a 7-3 victory over UWSP.

Mike Stahley got things going for the Pointers, scoring a power play goal with an assist from Dan Bailey at the 4:29 mark of the first period.

Notre Dame responded with two first period goals and two second period goals to bring the score to 4-1 after two periods of play.

Paul Caulfield at 3:17 of the third period scored his 26th goal of the season to bring the margin to 4-2. A little more than five minutes later, Bill Horbach answered for the Pointers to bring them within one, with over 10 minutes to play in the game.

Notre Dame, however, put the game out of reach after scoring twice in 19 seconds and then adding a third goal on an empty net to bring the score to 7-3.

Todd Chin suffered the loss, stopping 21 shots.

Due to playing a non-conference series, the Pointers now stand in third place, just three points behind Mankato State.

This weekend the Pointers travel to Mankato in a close race for first place and will battle for home ice in the playoffs.

"We have to look at how difficult it's going to be. Mankato is undefeated at home this year," said Coach Mazzoleni.

"We're going to have to be at our best. We're going to have to be disciplined and play a total hockey weekend. We're capable of doing it, there's no doubt about it, but we're going to have to play very, very well to do it and I know we can."

Campus radio UWSP 90FM will broadcast the games. Game time both nights is 7:00 with pre-game at 6:45.

These NCHA standings show how close the race for first place is. This weekend the Pointers are looking for no less than a sweep to capture at least second place and gain home ice in the first round of the play-offs. First place Bemidji will travel to Eau Claire this weekend.

Men's Volleyball begins action with victory over Eau Claire

The UWSP Men's Volleyball team defeated UW-Eau Claire in Eau Claire on Saturday, 15-11, 17-15, 15-11, in what could be the eventual conference championship match-up.

The Pointers were led by Bruce Meredith, who with 11 kills and 4 blocks, completely baffled the Eau Claire defense. Pete Klasinski also had an outstanding match, adding 10 kills and 6 blocks. Mike Johnston continued his assault from the middle with 7 kills and 8 blocks. "This was the test, and the boys responded to it beautifully. This was by far our biggest win in the past 3 seasons," said co-captain Jason Smith. "Bruce (Meredith) was unstoppable."

"The setting was excellent, and it's hard not to crush the ball when you get those kind of sets from John (Pohlman) and Jason (Smith)," said co-captain Scott Towne. "Look out Platteville."

Incidentally, the loss was the first home defeat for Eau Claire in the last 3 seasons.

The wins moved UWSP to 3-0 in the Northern Intercollegiate Volleyball Conference's East Division.

The Pointer's next home match is Thursday, Feb. 14 at 7:00 in Berg Gym vs. UW-Platteville.

Admission is free!

Wrestlers host WSUC Championship meet

This weekend the UWSP wrestling team will host the WSUC Conference Championship meet. The first round will begin Friday at 7:00 p.m. Wrestling will resume at 10:00 a.m. on Saturday with the finals being held at 2:00.

"This is one of the most important matches of the year for us because the conference championship is determined by how well you do at the conference meet," said Head Coach Marty Loy.

"We have to wrestle well. We have to beat the teams we've already beaten this year. We'll have to place in every weight class to win. All year we've won as a team and we'll have to do that this weekend."

The Pointers last match was last Thursday when they defeated Marquette University 39-9. Five pointers won on forfeit. Also recording victories for UWSP were Dennis Schmit, Carl Shefchik and Travis Ebner. The Pointers are 7-0 in conference duals and 11-3 overall.

Putting Bull's Eye on the board was Randy Krause with a hat trick, Pat Delany, Dave Spieha and Brian Letinger.

Barahona back in Maine after play in NHL

Former University of Wisconsin Stevens Point hockey standout Ralph Barahona was sent down to Maine of the American Hockey League by the National Hockey League's Boston Bruins Saturday.

The American Hockey League is considered the top minor league in professional hockey.

In three games with the Boston Bruins since being recalled from Maine on February 3, Barahona collected two goals and an assist as part of the Bruin's fourth line.

He scored both goals in his first NHL game against the Pittsburgh Penguins.

Barahona, a native of Lakewood, California, ranks first on the Pointer's all time scoring list with 216 points on 96 goals and 120 assists during a four-year career from 1986-90.

Barahona signed with the Bruins as a free agent last summer after going undrafted in the June NHL draft.

Hockey league continues action

Monday night's first game resulted in Buffy's, defeating Play It Again Sports 7-5. For Buffy's, Tom Pexa, Scott Gulan, Derrick Keppler, Kurt Ostrowski, Jason Welsing scoring one goal each. Leading Play It Again Sports with 2 goals each were Eric Larkowski and Jason Duranso and John Sandstrom with one goal.

Monday's second game matched the Pulk's against Campus Cycle with the Pulk's prevailing 5-1. Scoring Pulk's goals were Scott Swed, Josh Schultz, Mike Wenholtz and Mike Pulk with 2. Dan Brown landed Campus Cycle's only goal.

After three weeks of play, the standings are Buffy's in first place (3-0-0), Pulk's in second place (2-1-0), Campus Cycle and Pine Ridge tied for third (1-1-1), and Play It Again Sports still left winless at 0-3-0.
