Ski team misuses state vehicle

by Jodi Ott
News Editor

The UWSP Ski Team has lost all funding for transportation for the rest of this year and all of next year. Members of the team were caught misusing a state-owned vehicle early in February.

A UW employee from another school observed the vehicle approaching in his rear-view mirror at an excessive speed. The vehicle was headed east about 20 miles west of Menominee on Interstate 94.

The caller said that the vehicle was traveling at speeds in excess of 85-90 miles per hour and then proceeding to weave in and out of traffic.

The caller also reported that the occupants had been drinking from cans. He reported the incident to the Transportation Department which then traced the vehicle to UWSP.

The Transportation Department referred the incident to Protective Services who then conducted an investigation.

Charges included misuse of a state vehicle, open intoxicants in a state vehicle, underage drinking, contributing to the delinquency of minors and speeding. Also, the driver was not authorized to operate the mini-van.

Student takes action against racial remarks

by Cara Kinczewski
Contributor

"It's surprising and shocking that there are Americans that are still racist and bigoted. It's more surprising at a university where they are pushing cultural diversity. People on my wing call me Malaysian geek," said Nilesh Timbadia, a UWSP student from Malaysia.

Timbadia is also a resident assistant in Steiner Hall. On March 2, a series of messages full of racial slang were left on his answering machine.

Timbadia has decided to take the racial harassment incident to the Affirmative Action Office. This type of case has not been brought up for many years.

"I knew these things (racial harassment) have happened to other people. I wanted to be the first person to tell Americans not to take advantage of us," said Timbadia.

The messages were in response to Timbadia's reprimand of two residents. They had been caught stealing signs and Timbadia wrote them up at approximately midnight on March 2.

When Timbadia returned to his room at 1:50 a.m., he found the messages. Since the case is still in progress, the Affirmative Action Office asked that the tapes not be quoted. Timbadia has described a lot of people laughing in the background on the tapes.

"If they could hear the tape, if they could put themselves in my shoes, they wouldn't be laughing about it. No way," said Timbadia.

Steven Bridgett, Steiner Hall director, made in-hall punishments. The students had to apologize with a written and a verbal statement. They are also to attend minority related activities. In addition, they were also put on first-time probation in the hall.

ROTC protested Board still inactive

by Amanda Scott
Contributor

On March 8, the UW Board of Regents met with quite a surprise. The Progressive Student Network (PSN) came up from UW-Madison to give the Board a report card regarding their performance on the issue of the Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) discriminating on the basis of sexual preference.

Currently, the Defense Department does not allow lesbians, bisexuals and gay men to become members. This is a violation of UW System statutes which state that no program can discriminate on the basis of race, creed, gender or sexual orientation.

The faculty of UW-Madison voted on Dec. 4, 1989 to advise the Board of Regents to disaffiliate ROTC from the university. On Feb. 7, the Board of Regents was supposed to vote on the issue.

Several resolutions were presented. One was to sever all ties between the university and ROTC by 1993. Another proposed resolution included lodging a protest against the Department of Defense and Congress to change their policies. Neither proposal was pursued since the issue was not brought up.

"The Board of Regents wouldn't even consider disaffiliating ROTC from the university so they had to lobby the Department of Defense," said Joe Mingle, senior at UW-Madison and a member of PSN.

"It's not a big issue to them. It's not their top priority so they don't care," said Chris Babiarz, a graduate student at UW-Madison and another member of PSN.

Last year, the PSN presented the Board with a statement, in which they refused to accept their authority as being legitimate, specifically because of their lack of action on the ROTC issue.

At the February 1990 meeting, the Board promised to investigate the matter and report its findings in one year. Since they failed to place it on their February 1991 agenda, PSN continues to defy the Board.

Over the past year, the PSN has done much work regarding ROTC. They have met with Navy ROTC Cadets and they have debated the issue with College Republicans. PSN also compiled a petition with over 500 signatures calling for the university to disaffiliate with the Corps.

PSN strongly opposes ROTC's presence because they receive money from the federal government that could otherwise go toward purely educational facilities that don't stress military commitments. PSN also opposes the open discrimination against students based on their sexual preference.

In an act of protest, PSN attended the Board of Regents meeting on this campus on March 7 and handed out a report card. The report card graded the Board on their actions and also made comments on their behavior.

"We wanted to give them this report card saying you didn't turn in the work you were supposed to in February or in March so now we're giving you an incomplete, and if you don't vote by April you'll flunk," said Mingle.

"Next month, when the Board comes to Madison, we want results! We'll have a lot of people there and we'll expect results," said Mingle.

Informal action could be taken where Goldsmith, Timbadia and the two residents met and discussed the most effective punishment.

If the punishment is not satisfactory to the victim, then the residents would go before a panel. From the panel, the case could be taken to court where the residents could be expelled or suspended from the university. Timbadia does not wish to see the students expelled.

The procedures for the case are in the formative stages because this case has no precedent.

SGA elections coming up

by Maria Hendrickson
News Writer

Student Government Association (SGA) elections for president, vice president and student senators will be held March 18, 19 and 20.

A resolution concerning UWSP's membership in the United Council will also be on the ballot. The Council is a student state lobbying organization in Madison which acts as a liaison between students and the Board of Regents and state legislation.

"We're really encouraging people to get out and vote this year," said SGA Public Relations Director Julie Apker. The voting is spread over three days and will cover many different areas of campus.

"We're especially trying to increase voting accessibility to the residence halls," said Apker.

Voting times and locations to cater to this group are as follows: 11 a.m. - 1 p.m. in the Freight Yard Lounge of the Allen Center and 4 - 6:15 p.m. in the computer room of the Debort Center on March 19th.

On March 18th from 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. voters can cast their ballots in their respective colleges as follows: the cafeteria of the College of Professional Studies, the first floor hallway of the Communication Arts Center, the courtyard of the Fine Arts Center, and the lobbies of both the Collins Classroom Center and the Natural Resources Building.

On March 20th ballots can be cast in the University Center concourse from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m.

SGA's goal is to register at least 2,000 voters. Last year only 10% of the student body participated in the elections, according to Apker.

Governor proposes cuts Regents talk of increase

by Paul Matsuda
Contributor

UWSP hosted the University of Wisconsin System Board of Regents meeting last week. Regent members' opinions of the budget varied.

Regents did not come to an agreement about whether to confront Gov. Tommy Thompson about his proposal to slice $40 million from the UW System budget each year and about whether to push the Legislature to restore the cut.

UWSP System President Kenneth Shaw and Regents' President Thomas Lyon said the university will press the Legislature to restore the trimmed budget.

University officials "will actively pursue attainment of the needs within the confines of the overall budget of the state," Lyon said.

But some regents said the tuition increase should be higher than what the governor proposed. Thompson's proposal was 2.1 percent increases each year for next two years. They called UW tuition a "bargain."

Thompson appointee regent George Steil agreed with several regents who even suggested increasing tuition by 6.3 per cent each year.

"We would be less than realistic if we did not recognize the state has other needs besides the university," said Steil. He suggested to cut university counseling and social service programs as a way of saving money.

✎ Palestinians in eight Mid East countries are now urging the US to put pressure on Israel to relinquish its hold on the Occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, which they have held since the summer of 1986. Israel has offered in return a limited autonomy to the 1.7 million Arabs in the territories, believing that giving the territories up completely would endanger national security.

✎ Los Angeles Police Chief Daryl F. Gates has stated that he wants three officers charged for the beating of Rodney Glen King, an unarmed motorist who had been pulled over for speeding. The incident was captured on video, and has provoked civil rights leaders to call for Gates' resignation, saying that this is not an isolated racial incident, but a regular occurrence.

✎ 500,000 protestors filled Manezh Square next to the Kremlin demanding President Gorbachev's resignation. It was the largest protest in the Soviet Union since the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution. Other rallies were held in as many as 16 other cities.

✎ President Bush will ink a pact this week with Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney to curb US-caused acid rain pollution. The pact will commit both countries to specific timetables to reduce acid rain. It will mainly concern airborne pollutants that travel from US industries to Canadian air and water. Canada has said that as many as 14,000 lakes are in jeopardy from US pollutants.

✎ A UW-River Falls

professor burned a flag in his classroom in front of students to spark debate over free expression. Associate professor Jeffrey Gerson said he burned a 6 in. by 4 in. flag in his freshmen political science class.

Many people in the class objected, and UWRF Chancellor Gary Thibideau criticized Gerson for his actions. Gerson, however, has stated that he plans to burn another flag in front of the same class to be consistent.

✎ A congressional investigation has found that the federal government has been sending benefits to employees that have been dead for up to six years. The audit, conducted by US General Accounting Office, found that in one month alone, 20 federal programs doled out $4.3 million to dead people.

The audit also found out that only 18 out of 100 federal programs checked deaths with Social Security Administration data. In one case, one employee who had been dead for three years had since received over $120,000 in benefits from the federal government.

✎ The Lac du Flambeau Chippewa Council voted to lower quotas to ensure three-walleye bag limits for non-Indian anglers. The move was done in an effort to ease the hard relationship between Chippewa Indians and the surrounding community.

Earlier, the tribe had said it would spear 60 percent of the available safe catch at lakes where anti-treaty protests were strongest.

✎ The state senate voted Tuesday to limit the press' access to crime and accident scenes in order to give crime and accident victims more right to privacy. The law, which includes the right for police to not allow the press where it would hamper investigations or rescue efforts, also allows crime victims to bar reporters from areas of "reasonable" privacy.

✎ Various groups are planning to challenge Wisconsin's new lobbying law. The new lobby law makes it harder to make contacts with the government, and anyone looking to directly contact a government official will have to apply to become a registered lobbyist.

Many groups are opposing it because they feel it is unconstitutional on the basis that it restricts their freedom to voice their thoughts to public officials. This law was brought about in order to keep better tabs on who lobbies at the capital.

✎ Eau Claire County Police Chief Patrick McCready was killed by a gunman early Sunday morning. Robert Hoffman shot McCready after the police chief came to Hoffman's home to investigate domestic violence.

Hoffman had come home armed with a 30.06, but the babysitter was instructed to not to let him in. She then called police, and McCready showed up with two other officers. Upon entering, McCready was shot. Hoffman then turned the gun on himself.

What price loyalty to students?

by Ron Wirtz

Editor-in-Chief

When will student organizations on this campus start receiving some of the respect they deserve? Loyalty to the university, and particularly its student organizations appears to be lacking.

For some reason, student organizations get dumped on, being used for their benefits and then promptly thrown away. Unfortunately, people in this university look the other way, leaving only the students to voice their displeasure.

Student organizations do much for this campus. They command recognition for this campus. They provide services for this campus. They get students involved outside the classroom.

So how can student organizations continue to get the shaft, having no say in action taken against their benefit?

The most recent example of this is with 90FM, the campus radio station. It seems Hockey Coach Mark Mazzolini has stiff-armed the station from exclusive rights to the Pointer hockey finals in New York. He has allowed 98FM, WSPT, a commercial station in town, to cover the hockey finals also.

You may ask "So what?" Well exclusivity is priority number one when televising something of this nature. These are not just any games--this is the Final Four, a chance for a three-peat. And Mazzolini shafted 90FM.

90FM has covered every Pointer hockey game for the last 6 years, home and away. Moreover, WSPT has never covered a Pointer hockey game, and sources have said that WSPT wasn't even interested in airing any games until the Pointers made it to the finals.

So where is the justification in this action by Mazzolini? Need he be reminded that he is the head of a student organization also?

So what does the bottom line come down to? Money apparently. WSPT is able to entice more corporate and small business sponsors than the student-run WWSP. More sponsors mean more $ in the hockey pockets.

Loyalty does not factor in here. We're talking about the biggest All-American--the dollar, the Absolute Truth which many decisions are based on.

90FM was a backstab, a wounding of a loyal friend. Any grief Mazzolini receives is justifiable, for he was looking not to the benefit of his team and the university community, but to the financial health of his team.

Remember, this is college, not professional athletics. These

Many people, including Pointer hockey backers and some people in the athletic department have apparently questioned this action. And they should. The decision to mix are the guys playing for FUN, playing for the love of the sport, and for the love of their fans. The hockey team has a very loyal backing. One would hope that student interests would be taken into greater consideration.

The hockey team is not playing to make money. The hockey team plays for the university, for the students. Obviously, making some money can help to build a solid program, but consistency must be viewed throughout, with particular attention paid to what got the team there--a strong hockey community, of which 90FM is a part.

90FM has provided loyal, enthusiastic coverage throughout this hockey season, and in seasons past. But when it comes to handing out the spoils of success, student organizations like 90FM are given little, yet expected to continually absorb setbacks with a grimacing smile.

Older men declare war. But it is youth that must fight and die. And it is youth who must inherit the tribulation, the sorrow, and the triumphs that are the aftermath of war.

Chalk one up for the Board of Rejects

by Steve Schmidt

Outdoors Editor

Last week the Board of Regents met at wonderful UWSP to jammer over, among other things, a UW-System debt of $40 million. Yes, that's right sports fans, $40,000,000!

I don't want to risk personal brain damage by speculating all the ways in which this sumptuous sum of money was squandered away. But I do suspect the UW-System's actions are the proverbial hole-in-the-pocket responsible for this loss.

And of course, to bring the budget back up to snuff, we the students will be forced once again to bite the big one.

Biting the big one involves three of the four proposals discussed at last week's meeting of the minds. Each considers annual increases in tuition fees or cuts in enrollment, faculty and staff or both. Note that the other proposal is an outright request for more dollars from the state Legislature which amounts to nothing but wishful thinking.

One proposition, a realistic one in the eyes of the "Board of Rejects," calls for potential tuition increases of up to ten percent. I'm sure glad my father is jungle-gym is fine and dandy and maybe its erection was a necessity. But considering that the UW-System is, at this moment, peering into what seems to be an infinite black hole of monetary struggles, I just don't believe the ends are justifying the means. Maybe the board is coming around since they came stead of a decreasing one. It all sounds so logical to me, too.

As far as I'm aware, the CNR addition proposal is currently bouncing among the hollow heads of a select few decision makers. Apparently, these people are finally realizing that prematurely taking a costly dump may not be as wise as getting off the pot.

Meanwhile, caught in the outskirts of all this hype about transforming UWSP into a miniature Manhattan, the communication building still stands as a relic reminiscent of the days when money was spent for up-to-date textbooks instead of elbow room.

All I have to say about the situation as a whole, is I'm damn happy I will be graduating in December. I don't think my pocketbook could survive the vicious demands imposed by the prestigious Board of Regents who so seriously take into account the well-being of UW students.

To bring the budget back up to snuff, we the students will be forced once again to bite the big one a charitable brain surgeon.

Anyway, somewhere out there among the spectrum of financial know-it-alls is a group of bigwigs using our hard-earned cash as if it were pocket change. And UWSP is obviously as guilty as anyone for this kind of gross mismanagement of funds.

Take for example the new $6 million athletic center which is adorned with over $45,000 in weight-lifting paraphernalia alone. Now I'm sure this giant here to see where their (our) money is going.

Furthermore, I was notified last week by a concerned CNR student that an addition may be attached to the College of Natural Resources. Now this makes damn good sense. Let's boost tuition, chop enrollment, give a few professors the shaft and then add an expensive hunk of concrete to a building.

The end result being more rooms than professors to fill them and an increasing debt in-

Ethnocentrism has no place in the university

Dear Editor:

About 250 out of 9000 UWSP students are foreign students.

I am one of these foreign students and want to talk about what most of the foreign students have experienced at least once on this campus--indifference, ethnocentrism and nasty attitudes. It is not all American students, but some students that have some of these attitudes.

Indifference may be a debatable problem in other places. But not on a campus! The main goal of university students is attaining knowledge. Being knowledgeable means enlarging understanding about the world.

Foreign students studying at UWSP are a good source of that knowledge. They can tell others what their values are, what their cultures are like, and what is happening in their countries. Moreover, they have a different view point about American culture, which is a good way to understand each other because American students come to know about how others from different cultures interpret American culture.

The American students who are indifferent to foreign cultures have limited ideas about learning.

Some students think that foreign cultures are not worth learning about. Then, they must think their culture is superior to the other cultures. This idea is called ethnocentrism.

As far as they are ethnocentric they cannot see what others do objectively. It is like wearing colored glasses. If you wear pink glasses, everything would look pink. Ethnocentric students think foreign cultures are stupid, funny and underdeveloped. They look down on foreign students because of this idea.

Most ethnocentrism are from ignorance about others, just as any bias is. If they were to know about other cultures a little bit, they would surely realize that every culture is worth respecting and learning about.

Comparing two cultures is like comparing an apple and a pear, two different things in one category called fruit. NO one can say an apple is superior to a pear.

However, many foreign students say they would rather face indifference and ethnocentrism than nasty attitudes. When my female friend walked alone through the U.C. passing a group of American students, she heard them saying, "A stinky Asian!"

This kind of situation doesn't happen when several foreign students walk together and it rarely happens to male students. These nasty American students must want to feel they have power by threatening a weak person. They insult or swear at single foreign students or female students.

It is a mob character--they cannot do anything alone, but when they are together they become wild. They do not have their own opinions or their own standards about what they judge, but they follow others.

This is nothing better than what we did when we were elementary school students.

I think all the UWSP students should let them know that what they do is a shame. They really contribute to building a wall between foreign students and American students. Furthermore, they spoil the reputation of UWSP.

The campus should be the last place where indifference, ethnocentrism and nasty attitudes are found for American students' own sake. Due to developed transportation the world is getting smaller and smaller. No country can develop without international trades. Dependence on each other is increasing for environmental and economic reasons.

University students should notice these changes earlier than the rest of society and prepare for these changes because students are the backbone of the next generation.

Environmental issues need you

Dear Editor:

There is a logical way to deal with the environmental crisis but it can only begin with democratic participation of the people.

Most people feel too powerless in their lives to begin to imagine challenging the prerogatives and ideologies of corporate America. Many agree and sympathize with the concerns and crusades of environmental groups, but feel the problems that need to be faced are too enormous, and often wait for someone else to solve them.

Ultimately, it all comes down to the question of how much love and respect we have for ourselves and all others. I can't see an abundance of love for others as we poison and slowly destroy our land which, by the way, was a gift to us.

Our modern and disposable society is draining our precious resources of air, water, plant, animal and human life. The point which is so baffling to me is that this is all quite so easy to solve. I hardly feel powerless and small in comparison to corporations. They thrive on the consumer's dollar as if it were their oxygen supply and what some fail to realize is that we truly do have the power to put the world back on its environmental feet.

We, in turn, have the purchasing power to communicate to the particular companies who fail to support environmental causes by simply not buying from them.

A little homework on our part to locate and research these companies can literally make a world of difference. I know, the lives of most everybody are already jam packed with stuff that one can barely breathe. Trust me, it is relatively painless.

For example, as I slowly began to come out of my social coma, I was rudely awakened by one dilemma which is beginning to change my life, even for the better. This is the issue of animal rights.

As not to go off on a tangent, I simply wrote to PETA (Protection of the Ethical Treatment of Animals) for information of those companies who do and do

US energy management lacks proper planning

Dear Editor:

I earned by B.S. in Resource Management from UWSP, and I now work as a naturalist. I know logic when I see it. But lately, I just do not see it.

I learned of our national energy plan on public television. We plan to wean ourselves from unstable oil-producing countries while increasing domestic drilling for oil and gas in Alaska and offshore areas.

This plan lacks foresight. While destroying oil-rich Iraq and Kuwait, we will also destroy protected areas here at home, ecologically priceless lands, for a few morsels of fuel.

Where is the logic? I now work at The Grove, in Glenview, Illinois, a national historic landmark. Robert Kennicott, Illinois' first naturalist, grew up at The Grove.

He later explored Alaska's natural decision to purchase Alaska from Russia. I know in my heart that Robert Kennicott would not want our last frontier ironically ripped up and sucked dry to temporarily satiate our endless greed and perceived need for oil.

Where is the logic? Our new energy plan does not stress conservation of our natural resources at home, work, or school.

Where is the logic? We are not behaving like a kinder, gentler nation. I urge American citizens (including students!) and our senators and representatives in Washington D.C. to develop a logical national energy policy and a Bill of Rights for the environment, for the American land.

We need to work together under common, logical principles and ethics to protect and use our natural resources without regrets later. The basis of our very existence and future depends upon it.

Joe Bob goes turkey hunting Wanda is expected to create a big stink

Since it's turkey-hunting season again, I know I'm gonna get major flak from Wanda Bodine as soon as I whip out the old full-choke twelve-gauge, jump into a camouflage jumpsuit, and put on my hat with the little ear flaps.

For the last three, four years, Wanda's been on this animalists bing which includes turkeys. Like they're not gonna die anyway! Like the zoos of America are gonna close because there aren't enough turkeys to look at!

I told her, Wanda, there is nothing strange or perverted about blowing the head off a gobbler and splattering a little turkey flesh on a tree trunk. The whole country was founded on this principle. The Pilgrims did it."

But she won't listen. She thinks a human being with a twelve-gauge shotgun has an advantage over a turkey. And I've told her, "Wanda, there's more turkeys that escape than there are getting wasted. We only kill the stupid ones. It's important that the stupid turkeys die. Darwin said so."

But you can't use logic on this woman. So this year I'm gonna set down the complete rules and procedures of turkey hunting so that all you un-American Pilgrim-haters can understand.

1) We don't chase down the turkeys. No man could move that fast while luggin' a beer chest. We sit in a hollowed-out tree log with bushes on our head, and we make a female turkey noise with a little reedy rubber gizmo that sounds like a fat man blowing his nose.

As soon as he gets close to you, you unload both barrels of buckshot and watch him crumple to the earth and bleed to death. In other words, it's like working Times Square.

2) But let's say you don't want a tom turkey. You want a female. Most females are smarter than the males, so about the only ones you have a chance with are the jail-bait female turkeys, the ones that were hatched this spring. You can buy a honker called a "Kee Kee Run" that will make em think they're going to an M.C. Hammer concert.

Sometimes ten or twenty of em will run up to you together, like you're the New Kids on the Block road manager. You can kill a lot more of these, because they're smaller. We professional turkey hunters call this the Roman Polanski Technique.

3) But the true turkey-hunting experts want to get old gobblers, the ones that are so old they don't mate anymore, and so you don't have a chance using the singles-bar line. They're just like human old people, though. All they wanna do is sit around and talk to other turkeys and complain about their children. So what do you do?

You make these horrible yelping sounds, which is what old gobblers sound like when they're whining, and makes the elderly turkeys think you are an elderly turkey, too, and so you might be willing to listen to him. You're making these noises that, to the turkey, sound like, "Have I told you about my kidney problem?" And so they slowly wander over to you, but they're ornery. They don't trust you. You've got to keep talking forever—and it's worth it, because they're the biggest turkeys you can kill.

And so you throw in stuff like "There hasn't been any decent music since Tommy Dorsey died," and "That Sid Caesar—now there was a comedian." And pretty soon the turkey comes over to bore you—only, as soon as he does, he gets three tons of shotgun pellets in his cute little elderly Mr. Grandpa Turkey face.

And Wanda thinks this is cruel to animals.

Gift allows expansion of Treehaven

UWSP announced that it is receiving a 160-acre gift of land to expand its natural resources field station near Tomahawk.

The property, which has a trout stream flowing through it, is undeveloped and joins the southwestern section of Treehaven, an outdoor environmental laboratory which now encompasses 1,200 acres.

Donors are Jacque and Dorothy Vallier of Mequon, who have given UWSP all of the Treehaven land and have also provided much of the funding for building construction since the station was established in the early 1980s. The couple's most recent gift carries a monetary value of $50,000.

Dean Alan Haney announced the land acquisition during the 20th annual College of Natural Resources recognition program at the Sentry Theater. About 100 students and several longtime advocates of the college received about $65,000 in scholarships and other awards.

Beaver subsidy available again

Trappers are eligible to participate in a special beaver subsidy program in all or parts of 11 counties in Wisconsin in 1991, Laine Stowell, Department of Natural Resources wildlife damage specialist, said.

"The DNR will again be running a beaver subsidy season to reduce beaver damage and protect the cold water resources in northeastern Wisconsin," said Stowell. "From March 16 - April 30, 1991, trappers will be paid $10 for each beaver trapped in the subsidy zone."

The subsidy zone includes all of Forest, Florence, Langlade, Lincoln, Marinette, Menominee, Oneida and Vilas counties, and parts of Marathon, Oconto, Shawano and Waupaca counties.

Details of the program and Beaver Subsidy Agreement forms are available from any DNR office in those counties or by writing to: Wisconsin DNR, Beaver Subsidy Agreements - WM/4, P.O. Box 7921, Madison, Wisconsin 53707.

OUTDOOR REPORT

Most of us are thinking about spring and are eagerly looking for signs of its arrival. Meanwhile, ice anglers, snowmobilers and cross-country skiers are hoping for a few more opportunities to enjoy those activities.

Signs of spring are everywhere: the first robins have been spotted, Canada geese are returning and a few marsh hawks have been seen. Horned larks are showing up along roadsides in the Antigo area. Their first nests are often destroyed by late winter snowstorms.

Kestrels are choosing their nesting sites, and tom turkeys should begin gobbling and setting up their territories soon. Wood duck houses should be in place and ready for guests by now, and all bird houses should be cleaned and repaired.

Fox are now being sighted frequently as they seek companions for the breeding season. Gray partridge coveys have begun dispersing. Pairs are becoming increasingly common as these upland game birds begin their breeding season.

Take some time to observe the changing of the seasons.

A reminder that fishing shanties north of Highway 64 must be removed from the ice by Friday, March 15. After that date, only shelters that can be carried off the ice at the end of each day's fishing may be used.

All litter frozen into the ice must be removed along with the permanent shelters. All permanent shanties south of Highway 64 should have been removed by March 5. Many lakes are now getting slush on them and many southern waters are considered unsafe.

Fishing has been pretty slow. Large bluegills are being taken on the Spread Eagle Chain in Florence County. Crappies are starting to provide good action during nighttime hours on Shawano County Lakes; some nice catches of perch are coming from Big Silver Lake in Waushara County.

Prarie chickens dance at area booming grounds

by Jim Schneider
Contributor

With the return of spring and the melting of the snow, the annual mating ritual of the greater prairie chicken (Tympanuchus cupido pinnatus) begins.

Starting in late February, early March the male prairie chickens begin their traditional pilgrimage to display areas known as booming grounds. Each male will stake claim to a particular territory within a booming ground. The boundaries of each territory are vigorously defended against adjacent males.

The male chickens will return to their territories each morning during the mating season. The display continues until late areas. One is the Buena Vista marsh, which is 10 miles south of Stevens Point. The other is known as the Paul J. Olson Prairie Chicken Management Area, which is approximately 10 miles west of Stevens Point. Both areas are being managed specifically for the greater prairie chicken by the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources.

To get a good estimation of the number of prairie chickens on these areas, volunteers, under the direction of UWSP emeritus wildlife professor Dr. Raymond Anderson, go out each morning to find all booming grounds and to count chickens. They count them from the road using binoculars or by sitting in blinds next to hard to see booming grounds. These observations are important in determining the state's prairie chicken population.

You can be a part of this worthwhile project. Volunteers are needed each year to sit in blinds and observe the prairie chickens on their booming grounds. If you are a UWSP student, come to room 302 of the College of Natural Resources and sign up for an observation date.

A $3 reservation fee (refunded upon participation) and a 45-minute briefing session is required. Non-students must contact Dr. Raymond K. Anderson at (715) 346-3665 and he will set you up. Observers are needed for April and May and vacancies are filling up quickly. Come see the prairie put on a magnificent show.

Grants available for fish rearing ponds

Grants to renovate fish rearing ponds in northern Wisconsin are available from the Department of Natural Resources. A total of $125,000 is available for groups or individuals to refurbish ponds to raise walleye or muskellunge.

The 1989-91 state budget appropriated $125,000 for each year of the biennium for grants to renovate unused or underused fish rearing ponds in off-reservation areas of the ceded territory, which is approximately the northern third of Wisconsin.

"The grant program helps northern sports groups fix up their existing ponds so they can raise walleye and muskellunge for stocking," said Ron Poff, operations chief for the DNR's Bureau of Fisheries Management.

The grants can only be used for renovation (not operation) of ponds that were in existence before Aug. 9, 1989. Renovation activities covered by the grants include repairing of dams, dikes or other water retaining structures, and replacing or repairing pumps or other equipment. Other associated costs necessary to restore the pond may also be covered by the grants. The department is authorized to issue individual grants of up to $30,000. Applications should be submitted before May 1, 1991, to be considered for the grants. Application materials are available from:

Grant recipients enter into a five-year cooperative agreement with the department. Department fisheries professionals advise the grantees on rearing techniques to insure that walleye and muskellunge from the ponds are stocked according to department guidelines.

"When the ponds are ready to use, the department provides the fish for rearing and the equipment to distribute the fish when they are large enough for stocking," added Poff.

WRITE-IN CANDIDATES ARE ENCOURAGED

Botts/Olkowski Pres/VP candidate

EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITY

We believe students have the right to educational opportunity, and we will do everything in our power to uphold this right.

*Fight against tuition increases, indirect charges, and cuts in financial aid programs.

*Promote cultural and social awareness and openness by encouraging all students and organizations to sponsor and participate in activities and programming.

*Create a Non-Traditional Student Affairs Director and require all SGA Executive Board members to hold at least one of their office hours during the evening to accommodate this growing population.

*Use every means of communication possible to keep students informed on issues and to solicit their opinions and ideas. (Firing Line visitation program, publication of SGA names and phone numbers, information booths in colleges, news media announcements).

CAMPUS ENVIRONMENT

We believe that in order to be successful academically, socially, and physically, students must have a healthy campus environment.

*Expand campus recycling policy to include types of plastics (especially in the residence halls).

*Address the effectiveness of snow removal including sanding and salting.

*Create and encourage the formation of voluntary student patrols and expand and unify the campus escort service to ensure safety for all.

STUDENT CONCERNS

We believe student concerns are not being heard, considered, or addressed adequately in many areas.

*Open university parking lots at 6 p.m. instead of 7 p.m. to accommodate night class commuters.

*Oppose metering and permitting on-campus streets by the city and work with the mayor and city council to find solutions having the least impact on students.

*Push for long-term parking solutions that incorporate greenspace, recreational needs, and aesthetics.

*Place students as a top priority in the University Strategic Plan.

*Put pressure on food service to accommodate the students' needs both programmatically and financially. We will do our best to listen and follow through with ideas and concerns you voice to us. We can't promise to solve the world problems, but be assured we will be out there fighting the hardest to make this campus better for all.

Kunze/Paquet-Pres/VP Candidate

We feel we can make at least one campaign promise. We will be "The Students' Voice" in all matters concerning students on the UWSP campus. Experience is a key factor also; we would like to put our experience to work for you. We have gained experience through our involvements. We promise to use our experience, skills, leadership, programming and most importantly your voice to make the Student Government Association the best it can be for all students.

We want to see a strength in the student voice and greater approachability of the Student Government Association by having greater student participation in university decisions affecting students. Decisions and concerns will be voiced by ALL students, not just 30 senators of Student Government. We will accomplish this goal by having open forums in the Encore at least twice each semester, and in the concourse once each month. This will allow you to voice your concerns, make suggestions and ideas to us, and will enable us to follow up on those comments and be aware of student needs and wants.

We want to expand programming on campus to include more cultural diversity and educational and non-traditional programming for the variety of students on campus. We will be bringing at least three programs out of each area of student government including women's affairs, minority affairs, legislative affairs, and academic affairs. We also plan to include an additional affairs committee called Non-traditional Affairs. We feel that this is a definite necessity for our campus and the thirty percent of the non-traditional students on campus.

We will focus on student safety on campus and within the city. A student representative will be seated on the city council to discuss not only safety issues, but city issues concerning the UWSP student body. We plan to structure a university escort service available for all students, and to work with city and university administration to increase the lighting of streets both on and off campus.

Last, we will increase student empowerment and participation regarding issues at city, state, and national levels. We will keep students aware and informed of all issues concerning the student body and act in the best interest of the student.

We are concerned about you, and what your needs and wants are while you are attending UWSP. We want to work with our peers to make your experience at this institution rewarding, challenging, and memorable. We will put our experience to work for you and accomplish the student goals and expectations. We will bring back the "STUDENT" in Student Government Association.

How will the students of your college (L&S, CNR, COFAC or CPS) benefit from your representation of them in SGA?

Ginger Kyritsis -L&S: I will work REAL hard, honest!

Douglas J. Cole -L&S: The student body of the College of Letters and Science will benefit from my representation because I have served one semester as a senator already, therefore, I know how the system correctly works in the benefit of this college. When I became senator this last Fall I felt that the students of this university were not getting the best possible representation but later as I have served as senator, I had made this misconception. In the future this university may undergo changes in the manner that will affect all students on this campus, therefore, I feel that I can represent the students of the College of Letters and Science as well as the university in the most fulfilling manner whether it is during the "best of times of the worst of times."

Karen C. Resch -L&S: I believe the students of letters & science could benefit from my representing them because I intend on keeping them informed on issues which the student government discusses. I also intend to listen happily to any students comments or complaints. I recently have asked students what issues they would like discussed at future SGA meetings. Some subjects brought up were better lighted walkways by the library, better parking facilities for off campus students, as well as extending the limit in the one hour parking meters. If I was to be elected, I would bring these concerns to the attention of the other members of the student government, and offer my proposal for a possible solution.

I have attended UWSP for two years, as well as one semester at UW Madison. By attending both a large and a small university, I could offer a different perspective on issues such as college and dorm life, and potential problems, and make our university more efficient and appealing to the student body. I want the students of letters and science to become better informed on the issues of the university. By having an informed student government and student body, our university can only continue to grow in a positive direction. Edward Brognano -L&S: If I am elected to represent the students of the College of Letters and Science, I will strongly seek to serve my constituents to the best of my ability. The students of L&S would be electing a person who would not forget that I am representing them, rather than just myself. I would listen to their viewpoints on any issue facing this campus, be it environmental, economical, political, or social. They would be electing a person who knows how this university works, through its policies and procedures, and who has years of experience working with the political aspects of this university. In short, I promise to serve the students of the College of Letters and Science through fair and ethical practices.

Brian Lee Dieckhold -L&S: I feel that the L&S students would be most benefited just by the fact that I have 2 semesters of experience behind me, even though it was with CNR. I will definitely keep my peers in a top priority position and do my best to meet their requests, but I must also remember that I am supporting the system as a whole. As for specific issues, there are really too many to list. One major issue is money allocation. One must realize that everyone is going to be hurt by the squeeze on the system, and this is where experience will help. I have a good idea of where cuts are going to be made and what to consider when groups ask for money.

John P. Turzanski -L&S: I believe that the students of the College of Letters and Science will benefit by having me serve them on student senate because I am actively involved in a variety of campus organizations in both an academic and social sense and I have access to a multitude of university resources that will assist me in doing my job as a senator to the utmost. Most importantly, though, I am an open minded, flexible individual who is willing to listen to the students of my college and express their ideas and concerns in the arena of student government as well as make these interactions a continual learning experience on a personal level. If elected I would invite any student of the College of L&S to give me a call and voice their opinion on a particular issue or just let me know what kind of a job that I am doing so that I can hopefully improve and continue to look out for the best interests of the students and campus organizations affiliated with the College of Letters and Science.

Stanley R. Webster -L&S: My primary purpose to serve on SGA is to influence positive change for students of culturally diverse heritage. More often than not, we as culturally diverse students are of all ages, genders, and races, stripped of our "Liberty" of equality by the institution of "Higher" education. For some reason, we are cast into a category, called "minority." This takes away the personal dignity of being recognized as equal with the rest of society. I believe that when an institution of "Higher" education perpetuates inaccurate stereotyping, then they are part of the problem which has become embellished within society, beyond the walls of education. The Student Government Association now has an opportunity to "open the door and play an important role in addressing this particular issue of terminology from the student/people perspective. We must consider this, if the values of society are such that people of a culturally diverse heritage are labeled as being less than equal to those of another human being then how far has the institution of "higher" education come?

Christine Schullenberg -L&S: As a senator for the College of Letters and Science I feel that I could do a good job of representing the students of the college and of this campus as a whole. The students need someone who will voice their opinions and share their ideas with the university administration and faculty, and I could do this well.

Brooke Ludwig -CNR: As senator, I expect to dedicate a significant amount of time to dealing with issues important to the campus community. I am presently active in several organizations, SAF, GTU, and Fire Crew. I am also Secretary of SAF. I enjoy talking with other students and hearing them express their views and interests. I feel there is a real potential to deal effectively with some of the problems and concerns. A strong interest in this campus and a willingness to work toward the goal of making it one of Wisconsin's best is my prime motivation for seeking the position of Senator. My interests include environmental issues, greater access for handicapped persons, cultural diversity and more interaction between colleges. We have a great number of students with good ideas and new approaches to old problems. I would like to serve those people and them a voice and my support as a Senator with student government.

Natural Resources Foundation aids nongame wildlife species

The Natural Resources Foundation recently made a $14,000 donation to rehabilitate a colonial bird nesting site at Fourmile Island Natural Area in Horicon Marsh Wildlife Area, Ron Semmann, Natural Resources Foundation executive director, said.

The Natural Resources Foundation is a 25-member board of directors comprised of private citizens committed to preserving Wisconsin's conservation legacy for generations to come.

This non-profit organization makes contributions to support preservation efforts such as species reintroduction, land acquisition, education programs, and fish and wildlife habitat creation.

Biologists in the DNR's Bureau of Endangered Resources have noted a decline in the numbers of great egrets nesting at Fourmile Island. Colonies of these birds nesting there have ranged from a high of 348 in 1972 to only 75 in 1990. The number of great egret nests has been declining since 1985.

"The major immediate concern for great egrets, and other nesting birds at Fourmile Island, is the loss of suitable nesting trees," said Randy Jurewicz, DNR nongame section chief. "Other birds nesting on Fourmile Island include great blue herons, black-crowned night herons and double crested cormorants."

The donation from the Natural Resources Foundation will fund a recovery plan that includes developing artificial nesting platforms on poles erected at the site, lime neutralization of guano at the site to allow natural tree reproduction, and construction of deer exclosures around tree plantings to encourage regeneration of new nesting trees.

Fourmile Island is 15 acres in size. One quarter of the island no longer has any trees. Dutch elm disease, storms, guano impacted soils, deer browsing and increased nesting by cormorants are all reducing existing nesting sites for great egrets and great blue herons.

Undisturbed nesting islands similar to Fourmile Island are rare in the heavily populated Horicon Marsh area.

The Natural Resources Foundation donation will be added to other monies and work done by other agencies to complete this project by the end of this summer.

Projects like this expand other work done by the Bureau of Endangered Resources through funds made available by donations on the Wisconsin Income Tax checkoff.

DNR seeks recycling markets

The Department of Natural Resources needs help searching for new markets for recyclable goods.

"The key to recycling's success is markets," said Department Recycling Markets Specialist Janet Niewold. "We are looking for businesses that take recycled materials and use them to manufacture useful products."

Niewold said the department sent a questionnaire to the many businesses statewide that it already knows about.

"But we need to hear from other businesses and industries, the ones that are new to buying used materials," she said.

The search will result in an updated version of "Markets for Wisconsin's Recycled Materials," a DNR-produced directory of business locations in or near Wisconsin that purchase recyclable materials. The project is part of the department's recycling initiative mandated by Wisconsin Act 335, the state waste reduction and recycling law.

The directory helps local community recycling programs find markets for the used goods they collect from households and businesses. It also helps Wisconsin businesses find buyers for items they no longer want. Scrap metals, plastics, cardboard and pallets are examples of items that can be used by one business and used again by another.

Niewold said the directory can be used in combination with two private-sector waste exchanges serving Wisconsin: Great Lakes Exchange, Waste Systems Institute, 400 Ann St. NW, Suite 201-A, Grand Rapids, MI 49504-2054, (616) 363-3262; and The Industrial Material Exchange Service, P.O. Box 19276, Springfield, IL 62796, (217) 782-0450.

The new directory, scheduled for completion this spring, will include first time listings of businesses that take in and make useful products out of antifreeze, catalytic converters, microfilm and glass, paper, oil, pallets, rags, solvents and tires. There is also a section on lawn clippings, leaves, peat, animal manures and other compostable materials.

Associated Recyclers of Wisconsin, a statewide industry group, and other recycling experts are helping the department produce a directory that is easy to use and that meets the business community's needs. Additional ideas for the directory and its distribution are welcome.

The DNR district recycling specialists are the contacts for directory suggestions and for businesses that want to be added to the listings but did not receive Niewold's questionnaire. New listings can be added until March 25. Later additions will be added to future editions.

Nominations sought for award

The Wisconsin Conservation Congress is asking conservation clubs and sportspersons throughout the state to help select the recipient of its first "Conservation Educator of the Year" award by submitting nominations.

The award was created this year to honor Wisconsin conservationists who dedicate themselves to educating others about the wise use and conservation of Wisconsin's natural resources and environment.

It will be presented annually at the general meeting of the congress, which is held on the last weekend of May. This year the Congress meeting runs from May 31-June 1.

"Through this award, the Conservation Congress will recognize Wisconsin teachers, sportspersons or youth group leaders that are active in promoting and teaching conservation education, ethics, safety or outdoor skills," said Ruel Fleming, chair of the awards committee.

"It will highlight the many hours of service these outstanding conservation educators have put in, the innovative programs which they have developed, and the number of adults or youth their efforts have impacted," said Fleming.

Nominations should be sent to the conservation Congress chair in the county in which the nominee resides by Saturday, March 30. For the name and address of county chairpersons, call either Johanna Fabke, (608)267-3134, or Mary Hamel, (608) 267-7409.

An individual can be nominated by simply sending a letter outlining the educator's years of service, the number of people he or she has helped to educate and the innovations or programs developed by the educator. The nominator's name, address and phone number should be included.

The Wisconsin Conservation Congress, created by the Legislature in 1933, is a statutory citizen advisory body that provides input to the Natural Resources Board on fish and game management and conservation issues.

Group sexual experience was safe and funny

by Julie Apker

Contributor

Over 150 UWSP students participated in a "group sexual experience" last Wednesday evening. Their efforts were led by comedienne/educator Suzi Landolphi as part of her show, "Hot, Sexy and Safer," a program that is dedicated to (safer) sex education and AIDS awareness.

The two-hour plus program was spiced by humor, audience participation and facts about sex and AIDS that would make many college students blush. Landolphi, a former video film producer, put on a show that left the audience laughing but also a little wiser about safe sex and the AIDS virus.

Her blunt approach to sexual issues and sex organs have entertained and educated college audiences on campuses across the nation for the past three years. During her program, Landolphi dragged embarrassed students on stage to demonstrate skits ranging from acting out stereotypical sex roles to putting green condoms on their heads.

She announced at the start of the evening, "We talk around sex, not about it- because we are uncomfortable with our sexuality... I'm here to dispel the myths." Landolphi defined the issue of safe sex as a three-part process involving open communication, honesty and trust. She stressed the importance of verbalizing your needs and concerns with your partner before having any sexual contact.

To further illustrate this point, she blindfolded a male volunteer and nonverbally tried to communicate to him to act as if he was swimming on stage. After several failed attempts, the entertainer finally told the student what to do and he immediately performed an admirable front crawl.

Landolphi declared early on in her presentation, "There is no such thing as casual contact. People are making up their own standards to justify their behavior. It's time to talk about the risks, so if you choose to take them, you are informed about the consequences, and that makes us all smarter."

Mixed into her spicy remarks about "weenies", "nu-nus" and sexual relationships, Landolphi revealed some startling statistics about the number of sexually transmitted diseases (STD'S). For instance, STD cases are rapidly increasing on college campuses around the country with no sign of slowing down. She also cited the fact that the fastest growing HIV (human immunodeficiency virus)-related group of people is heterosexual women. Landolphi clearly stated that AIDS does not come from kissing or toilet seats, but from unprotected vaginal or anal intercourse, oral sex, or sharing intravenous needles.

According to the performer, there is no such thing as a "risk group," because AIDS can happen to anyone. "Superstuds as well as gay men are equally 'at risk.'" This term leads people into thinking this fatal disease can't happen to them, and that's a lie."

When commenting on safe sex practices, Landolphi emphasized personal self esteem, "Like yourself, intellectually and physically, because the more you like who you are, the more you will take care of yourself." The comedienne displayed condoms throughout her presentation, closing the show by helping an audience member blow one up around his head.

Amid the laughter and running off stage, Landolphi took a moment to be serious about a topic close to her. She revealed that her brother was tested and found HIV positive two months

Post-college, pre-job dressing

by Angela Laun

Contributor

You have finally graduated from college, the time for the all important job interview has arrived. How can you dress for success? According to Jim Lukowicz and Dianne Somers at a dress for success seminar, conservative attire is the safest way to go.

Speaking about mens' clothing, Lukowicz, owner of Parkinsons, claims, "Dark with quiet undertones is where the action really is. Vested suits at this point and time are no longer.

They seem to come around every 15 years." According to Lukowicz, the trends last about seven years.

Another factor to consider is how much to spend on the suit. "Don't buy for the price only," Lukowicz advised. "The bottom line is you get what you pay for."

Lukowicz suggests starting at a midlevel priced store and letting the experts tell you what is going on in the industry. "If you dress with confidence, I think you'll be confident," said Lukowicz.

Somers, owner of The Golden Peacock, added some suggestions for women. "There's one impression that you make...and you have to make sure that's the right one."

Somers stressed the importance of personal appearance. "You have to look at yourself very critically when you're going into the job market. One of the most important things is a good haircut. You want makeup that looks like you're barely wearing any."

Somers also emphasized the importance of having a confident attitude and a willingness to cooperate.

This program was the second in a series of "Business Basics" sponsored by Fast Track and held every Thursday at 4:30 in the UC.

Feature-length compilation to show best animation

The second animation celebration: The Movie, a new feature-length compilation showcasing the best of animation from around the world, will be opening at the Program Banquet Room in the U.C.

The movie will run Friday, March 22 - Monday, March 25, with 7:00 p.m. and 9:00 p.m. shows daily, 5:00 p.m. matinees on Saturday and Sunday, as well as special midnight shows on Friday and Saturday.

This 105-minute animated feature is composed of the most popular films chosen from more than 1500 films entered in competition at the second and third Los Angeles International Animation Celebrations.

The films in competition were judged by a panel of world renowned animation experts who awarded cash prizes to the winning animators.

The Second Animation Celebration: The Movie includes the best of both competitions and complements the annual International Tourney of Animation by providing animation fans with an additional opportunity to see more new animation as well as entertaining films by well known animators not represented in previous tourneys.

The Second Animation Celebration: The Movie consists of 24 films from a half a dozen countries, including the Soviet Union, and represents a vast range of animation styles and techniques including computer animation, clay animation, pixilation, and traditional cel animation.

Among the highlights featured in "The Second Animation Celebration: The Movie:" will be various "Simpsons" episodes and the first computer-animated film to win an Academy Award, "Tin Toy."

ago. Circumstances similar to her own inspired the speaker to take her message on the road to universities and high schools around the country.

In her final remarks, the normally enthusiastic entertainer grew solemn. "You are the first generation to have all the facts. If you can do one thing you couldn't do yesterday that will take you closer to safer sex, whether it's using a condom or talking to someone you love, then I have been successful."

The evening's events were commented on positively by the majority of students attending. Many shared senior Steve Schuetz's view of "quite stimulating and entertaining." But perhaps sophomore Joan Whitcomb summed up the audience consensus best by stating, "Suzi was effective because she brought up all kinds of issues in a humorous way, which makes it easier to discuss and understand."

"Hot, Sexy, and Safer" was sponsored by a number of UWSP organizations, including the Women's Resource Center. Students interested in finding out more information about safer sex or AIDS may contact the UWSP Health Center or visit the FIRST AIDS station located in the University Center.

Spring Break plans should be made soon

by Tamara Obermeier
Contributor

The countdown is on to March 29, 1991. There are 12 days of classes left until Spring Break, but the hum of excitement can already be heard around campus. Many students will be closing the books and heading for the beaches.

There is no need to worry if you haven't made arrangements yet because there are three organizations right on campus to help you plan a spring break to remember.

Sarah Ann Nuck of the University Travel Service can arrange flights to any destination and provide hotel accommodations. She named the top three spring break hot spots as Daytona Beach in Florida, South Padre Island off the coast of Texas, and Acapulco, Mexico, respectively.

There has been an unusually high increase in air fares this year. "The higher rates are not necessarily due to fuel prices, but the airlines have been taking a loss the past few years as a result of their low rates.

They seem to be trying to make up for it this year," Nuck said. Air fare to Daytona runs around $300- $400, to South

Padre Island from $295-$325, and a seven day air and hotel package to Acapulco is about $550-$700.

Nuck also said it is tough to get the lowest air fare this year because many families are filling the seats with Easter holiday traveling. The best fares are going fast, however there is still time to make reservations.

In addition to the Travel Service, the University Activities Board (UAB) has three spring break bus trips planned. Brian Drevs, travel and leisure coordinator, said packages were put together for Daytona or Panama City beaches in Florida, and to South Padre Island.

"We usually plan an exotic trip like to Jamaica, however, because of the situation in the Gulf, we kept the trips within the States," Drevs asserted.

These packages also reflect higher prices than last year and Drevs blames it on an increase in fuel prices and inflation. Despite the higher prices, the UAB has had its biggest turnout in five years with these packages.

The trips are offered with or without bus transportation and include seven nights stay in a hotel or condominium, depending on the package. Panama City Beach costs $225 with transportation and $135 without. Daytona Beach rates are $234 and $144, and South Padre Island is $384 and $264, respectively.

Reservations and payments must be made by March 14. More information is available in the UAB office located on the lower level of the University Center.

Tours offered by hometown brewers

by Bill Horbach
Contributor

Fifty years ago there were more than 50 small town breweries in Wisconsin; today there are only seven left. One such brewery is here in Stevens Point.

The Stevens Point Brewery which is located on the corner of Beer and Water Streets has been brewing beer since 1857.

Probably the best way to learn about the Point Brewery is to take one of their famous tours. It has been described by many as the best one of its kind in the country. I've had two such occasions to take this tour.

This tour was fun yet very educational. Both times that I've been on the tour I was escorted by Jim Kozlowski, who was sales manager at the brewery but who has since moved to a similar position with the distributorship.

Jim had this to say about the tour, "People who have taken our tour and others like it, prefer ours because they get to see how a brewery runs and works up close and personal."

The tour starts off by showing the actual brewing house where the beer is brewed. The Point Brewery brews four different types of beer. These include Point Special, Point Light, Point Bach and Eagle Premium beer.

The brewery also produces a beer called "Spud Premium" which is marketed every fall in conjunction with the UWSP's first home football game, affectionately known as "The Spud Bowl." This beer is brewed with potatoes.

After seeing where the beer is brewed tourists observe the bottling and packaging of these products. Following this guests are allowed to sample the beer in the brewery's Friendship Room. This room contains one of the best collections of Wisconsin Breweraia, which is a collection of famous and not so famous beer paraphernalia from Wisconsin. The tour concludes with a trip around the souvenir shop.

The Stevens Point Brewery has tours Monday - Friday at 11:00 a.m. and Saturdays at 11:00 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Reservations are suggested. The number to call is (715) 344-9310.

A-STUART OBSERVATION

Just when I thought it would be safe to turn on the TV on a Sunday afternoon and not have to sit through six hours of football, along comes the World Football League.

Don't get me wrong, but that doesn't mean that I'm so addicted to it that I need a weekly dose the whole year to keep me going.

Do the middle class males really need another reason to sit at their favorite bars on Sunday guzzling beer, eating pork rinds and telling dirty jokes about their wives while watching football? I think not.

I'd also like to know why we haven't heard more about this league or will it be just a few select European teams with the majority coming from the United States.

I don't know about you but I'd really like to see teams from countries such as Japan, Africa or hell, even Iraq compete in this league. I can just imagine games with teams like the Baghdad Scuds versus the Louisville Patriots, or seeing Nasaki Hashamoto from Japan doing the Moto shuffle in the end zone.

Maybe this league is just a ploy by all the Ed Bundy types in this world who continually hang onto their one shining moment of glory in a high school game and are thoroughly convinced that if given the chance they could be the greatest football player since Lynn Dickey.

Or could it be that all the scabs who played during the football strike and got so addicted to the crowds actually thought they were good and decided to form their own league not realizing that no one really gave a shit what really happened to them.

I think the last thing that this world needs is an International Football League. Why did they have to pick a sport that the United States is such a dominate force in. Why didn't they start the World Rugby League or the World Soccer League?

It was probably because the United States was too afraid to see our asses get kicked all over the field by other less superior nations. Or maybe it's just me being paranoid, again.

Have a stellar day.

When men talk about women

by Sarah Sell

Contributor

As seniors in college, my roommates and I have been around long enough to guess what guys really talk about when women aren't around.

After developing many close friendships with guys, we have had many opportunities to listen to conversations that go on within a group of guys.

When women aren't around, men say exactly, to a large degree, what women are afraid they say: They gawk, drool, wink, slobber, trade T&A observations and dirty jokes, exchange fantasies, bite their knuckles and roll their eyes when attractive women walk by. They speculate how certain women would be as bedmates, and write bad moods and negative responses off to PMS.

I think that guys just talk that way because it's fun and they don't really know how to talk with other guys about anything else.

It's expected of them, when you get right down to it. They can talk about other things like music or classes for a while, but it's never long before they get around to someone's looks or chest size.

Man talk basically means engaging in mindless banter; it's the signal men give to let other men know they're members of the same tribe. It's a time when guys can engage in crude, patronizing talk about women and have fun. I think women realize this and accept it as a normal thing for guys to do.

On the other hand, I don't believe that men are completely alone when making comments about the opposite sex. I think that some females can be just as bad as guys. I just think that most of the time girls are a little less obvious about it.

International Dinner attracted a large and diverse crowd

by Eric Meyer
Copy Editor

UWSP foreign students and members of the International Club shared a small piece of the world with 420 guests who attended the twenty-first annual International Dinner on Saturday, March 9.

The dinner included 11 different menu items from around the world and was followed by an hour long entertainment segment featuring songs and dances from Poland, Palestine, Korea, Indonesia, Japan, Singapore, Malaysia, China, and Cameroon.

International Dinner Chairman Kaed Chechatwala thought the dinner went well. "It was a great dinner. People (outside the club) actually came and offered to help. It made my job a lot easier," said Chechatwala. "I liked the food very much," said Mui Sel Ko foreign student office assistant at Nelson Hall. "I went with my host family and even though the food was different from what they are used to, they still liked it very much," said Ko.

Served were ngor hiang (bean curd roll) - Singapore, acar (pickled vegetables) - Malaysia, kartoffelsalat (potato salad) - Germany, mau shu vegetables - China, tong katsu (pork cutlet) -

Japan, chicken in rujak sauce - Indonesia, shish kebab - Turkey, jap che (beef vegetables with noodles) - Korea, orechovii tort (walnut cake) - USSR, mocha punch - Columbia, and tea.

Masters of ceremonies Alphonsus Chung and Duong Duong began the evening by welcoming the guests in eight different languages and by providing a brief history of the International Club. Remarks by Chechatwala and International Club Advisor Professor William Clark, followed.

Chancellor Sanders briefly addressed the audience after the dinner guests had finished their meal. The audience watched the entertainment attentively and began clapping during the fifth act, a lively dance performed by Peter Akwichek and Evans Alomepe of Cameroon. Several students, incited by the performance, danced along in the back of the room.

International Club Vice-president Alphonsus Chung, called the entertainment "spirited, vibrant, enthusiastic, and culturally diverse." While Chung enjoyed all the performances, he found the "Flower Drum Song" dance from Malaysia, Singapore and China to be particularly colorful and interesting.

Students and the community enjoyed exotic cuisine at the Twenty-first International Dinner. Over 400 guest attended the event.

Chung noted that the cheongsam, kebayas, and sarises worn by the performers are normally worn during formal occasions in the countries from which the costumes originate.

Chechatwala described the performances as entertaining and enthusiastic. "When we started planning for this dinner, we knew what had to be done and we all went the extra mile," he said.

Constance Fang, foreign student special programs director, and one of three advisors for the group, agreed. "I think it went very well and that our guests enjoyed it very much. They were impressed with the students' efforts. They enjoyed it and thought the food and service were good. We would like to thank the people at Allen center, the student managers, and especially Vivian Berger, the food service manager, for being there," said Fang.

An appreciation dinner will be held at Friday, March 15 at 6 p.m. in Nelson Hall. Everyone who volunteered his or her time is welcome to attend.

Ski Team

The driver admitted to exceeding the speed limit and the members involved also admitted to purchasing alcohol in Stevens Point and drinking it in the vehicle. Four students were involved but conflicting stories about unauthorized female passengers exist.

The Ski Team was traveling to Rice Lake for competition on Feb. 2. The race was rescheduled to take place at Afton Elps, Minnesota.

"During the investigation, it was found that the vehicle had twice as many miles as estimated on it," said Don Burling, director of Protective Services, "which was probably due to driving to Minnesota instead of their original destination."

Protective Services has referred the incident to Student Conduct, Campus Activities, Transportation and Student Government Association (SGA).

The SOURCE Committee of SGA suspended all transportation funding.

"Something like this happens once a year or so. It's very rare," said Steve Schuetz, vice-president of SGA.

DeBot enacts recycling plan

by Jeremy Krause

Contributor

"We have the potential to be a bottle of poison for the environment so it's important that we watch whatever we're doing," said Tom Janikowski, assistant manager of DeBot.

DeBot Center, often labeled as a big waste producer, is doing its part to better the environment. DeBot may recycle more than any other building on campus. DeBot has decreased their garbage output by 45 percent even though they are not operating at full volume right now.

DeBot's recycling plan has been in effect for over a year. The plan consists of three stages which include: identifying which materials can be recycled; making plans to recycle them; and eliminating non-recyclable materials and replacing them with recyclable ones.

DeBot has reached the third stage of their plan. They are eliminating the use of any waxed cartons, styrofoam and waxed paper.

DeBot recycles 300 pounds of cardboard daily, 200 pounds of paper weekly, ten pounds of plastic weekly, 300 pounds of tin weekly, and ten pounds of aluminum weekly.

Certain companies will not recycle soiled napkins or certain types of plastics. The disposable salt and pepper shakers are not recyclable and recyclable shakers have not been found. Reusable shakers are not used because of the high rate of theft.

"We're working on installing bins in the dining rooms to recycle non-soiled napkins," said Janikowski.

DeBot management has been encouraging their student employees to recycle. Students who do not follow the procedures will receive written warnings if they violate recyclable policies.

"We're dedicated to taking the lead," said Janikowski.

"I think that DeBot has sent a message to its student workers that this recycling program will be a policy with bite," said Eric Meyer, student manager.

New ways to recycle materials at DeBot are always being researched. It is hoped that in the future everything may be recycled.

Any questions or comments are always welcome in the DeBot office located in the far dining room.

Student suggestions change UC

by Jodi Ott

News Editor

A suggestion box located to the west of the Campus Information Desk in the University Center (UC) has produced many changes in the building.

"It's a student-run building. There is no profit and it is not state-owned so the students are the ones who should make the changes," said Jackie Jacquejurewicz, student building manager of the UC.

About 20 suggestions are reviewed a month. If the suggestion deals with unrelated issues, it is then sent to the proper department. Most students who give a suggestion are contacted about it.

The person with the best suggestion each month wins five "Jerry Bucks" which is money that can be spent on food in the UC.

"Sometimes we get a good suggestion but it just isn't cost or time beneficial to implement," said Jacquejurewicz.

One suggestion was to replace the paper toweling in the restrooms with air dryers. In three weeks, this suggestion saved $700 for the UC but more students complained and wanted the paper toweling returned.

Many students expressed concern about the use of styrofoam cups by the University Food Service. Students can bring in their own mug to be filled with a beverage and get ten cents off the price. The Corner Market is now selling UWSP mugs for just two dollars that can also be used.

Requests for caffeine-free pepsi were granted and WWSP 90FM is played in the Concourse. A pencil sharpener may be installed since students have asked for that.

A meeting will be held Thursday, March 14, at 4 p.m. in the Blue Room of the UC to discuss the smoking policy in the La Follette Lounge. Students have complained about the smoke and the UC Policy Board will look into resolving the problem. One alternative is to just have smoking on one side of the room.

All students are invited to attend the meeting. More suggestions are also encouraged.

Hockey advances to NCAA final four

Looking to win the national championship for third straight year.

By Kris Kasinski

Sports Editor

The UWSP hockey team captured the NCAA Division III quarterfinal series over the weekend and earned themselves a chance to "win it all" for the third consecutive year.

The series sweep of Lake forest college allowed the Pointers to move on to the final four playoff to be held in Elmira, New York this Friday and Saturday.

The Pointers, seeded number one among the four remaining teams, square off against number four seeded Babson college of Massachusetts at 4:00 p.m. on Friday. Number three seeded Mankato State will face host Elmira (number two) in the 7:30 p.m. face-off Friday. The losers of the games will play at 4:00 p.m. on Saturday for third place and the winners will play at 7:30 p.m. for the National title. All games will be played at Elmira's Murray Center (3,500).

The Pointers outscored the Forresters of Lake forest 15-4 on the series to come away with the sweep. On Friday, UWSP came away with a commanding 9-1 victory, and Saturday tallied a 6-3 victory.

UWSP 9 Lake Forest 1

In Friday's victory the Pointers were led by Scott Krueger and Paul Caufield. Krueger picked up two goals and two assists while Caufield recorded his fifth hat trick of the season and one assist. Caufield's three-goal effort also set a UWSP all-time single season goal scoring record, improving his total to 36 goals this season. In addition, he tied the career goals scoring record of 96, which was set by former Pointer standout Ralph Barahona.

Jared Redders also broke into the Pointer all-time record books by picking up two assists, breaking the assists in a single season record for defensemen. The two assists brought his season total to 26, which is one better than the record of 25 previously held by Tim Coghlin.

Swimmers finish ninth at National meet

By Deby Fullmer

Contributor

The UWSP men's and women's swim teams traveled to Seattle, Washington for the National meet on March 6-9.

"This was the fastest meet in the history of NAIA swimming. I think every record (out of 40 events) except about six were broken this year. It was extremely tough to make the top 16 to swim in the finals at night," commented Head Coach Red Blair.

The 200 medley relays for the men's and women's team took 6th place. The men's team consisted of Nino Pisciotta, Matt Boyce, Juan Cabrera, and Jerry Curtin with a time of 1:37.07. The women's team swam their relay in 1:53.88 with swimmers by Nan Werdin, Tiffany Hubbard, Jenny Ersbo and Beth Welch.

The 200 individual medley was swum by Pisciotta (5th), Cabrera (14th), and Jeff Davis (16th).

Tim Lehmann took 13th at 21.61 in the 50 free having a lifetime best swim in the prelims of 21.51.

The women's 800 free relay consisting of Werdin, Hubbard, Meyer, and Ersbo took 11th place with the men's team of Pisciotta, Curtin, Schreiber, and Davis taking 13th.

Hubbard, Welch, Benson and Ersbo swam the 200 free relay for the women to get 9th place, with Lehmann, Cabrera, Curtin, and Pisciotta swimming for the men to get 13th place.

A lifetime best swim earned Kevin Gelwicks a 7th in the 100 breaststroke with Matt Boyce and Jeff Davis placing 10th and 14th respectively.

"We couldn't get going on the men's side. We needed a spark and never got it," stated Blair.

"We're going to be compared with how we did last year, however, the same team that took 2nd last year would've placed 5th or 6th this year. The men had a good year, it just wasn't "great." Kevin Gelwicks, Tim Lehmann and others had great swims at the meet and I don't want to take away from them," said Blair.

Mary Meyer earned 11th place in the 1650 with a lifetime, best swim at 18:18.13.

Nan Werdin took 4th in the 100 fly to create a new school record with a time of 59.55. Jenny Ersbo swam a 1:00.26 to take 8th in the 100 fly.

Juan Cabrera took 3rd in his 100 fly with a time of 51.52 with Jerry Curtin placing 12th at 52.38.

Nino Pisciotta placed 7th in the 400 individual medley with a time of 4:11.11.

The men's 400 medley relay of Pisciotta, Gelwicks, Cabrera, and Davis took 7th with the women's relay of Werdin, Hubbard, Ersbo, and Welch taking 9th. The women's 400 medley relay created a new school record with a time of 4:12.00.

Another school record was broken by Nan Werdin in the 200 backstroke when she swam 2:14.92 to take 7th place.

Kevin Gelwicks and Matt Boyce swam the 200 breaststroke to bring home 6th and 7th place, respectively.

The highest finish ever in a national meet for the women's team was achieved by Nan Werdin in the 200 fly as she took 2nd place with a time of 2:09.30 setting a new school record.

Cabrera led the men in the 200 fly by placing 7th with Pisciotta and Curtin placing 12th and 16th respectively.

The women's 400 free relay of Hubbard, Welch, Benson, and Ersbo placed 13th and the men's team of Lehmann, Davis, Curtin, and Pisciotta placed 14th.

"The women had a great national meet breaking into the top 10 which was a great stride for them. Nan Werdin, Jenny Ersbo, and Mary Meyer scored individually and our relays did a fantastic job," said Blair. Nan Werdin did an outstanding job as she swam in the top 8 of every event she was entered in, and she now holds four individual school records. The women had a great year."

The Pointer scoring in Friday's game began at the 10:25 mark of the first period when Frank Cirone put the Pointers up to 1-0. He was assisted by Al Bouschor. Caufield scored his first of three goals at the 16:36 mark with assists from Tim Hale and Dan Bailey to put the Pointers up 2-0. With just seconds remaining in the period, Lake Forest answered with their only goal of the night to bring the score to 2-1 after the first period.

The second period belonged to UWSP as they put the puck in the net five times to raise the score to 7-1 after two periods of play.

Mike Green got things going in the period at the 1:46 mark with an assist from Hale. Just three minutes later Krueger beat Forester goalie Dan Vacco to increase the lead to 4-1. He was assisted by Bouschor and Bailey.

Krueger's second goal came at the 12:55 mark with assists from Bailey and Caufield. Both of Krueger's goals were on the power play. Mike Stahley answered with his own power play goal less than two minutes later to boost the lead to 6-1. Krueger and Bouschor assisted on the goal.

Caufield rounded out the scoring with his second goal of the night with just 27 seconds remaining. He was assisted by Hale and Monte Conrad.

The third period brought about a new Lake Forest goalie but the Pointers managed to come away with two more goals to finish the game with the 9-1 blowout.

Mick Kempffer on a power play with assists from Todd Tretter and Jared Redders and Caufield with assists from Tretter and Krueger rounded out the game scoring.

Todd Chin had 20 saves in the winning effort and Lake Forest goalies Vacco and Dave Kulik combined for 37 saves.

"The Pointers are really on a roll which was my biggest fear coming in here," said Lake Forest coach Tony Fritz. "They're relentless and that's what makes them so good. Right now, they're playing better than anyone in the country."

UWSP 6 Lake Forest 3

For the second time in as many games, Frank Cirone got the Pointers on the scoreboard first. With assists from Green and Bouschor, Cirone put the Pointers up 1-0 at the 4:18 mark of the first period. Lake Forest tied the score at the 15:15 mark of the period, but just over one minute later, Cirone answered with his second goal of the night and third of the series to put UWSP ahead 2-1. He was assisted by Kempffer and Bouschor. This assist for Bouschor gave him five on the weekend.

In the second period, the Pointers scored two power play goals less than two minutes apart to put themselves up 4-1.

Krueger scored at the 6:17 mark with assists from Caufield and Stahley and Jeff Marshall scored at the 7:31 mark with assists from Trette and Green. Lake Forest brought themselves within two at the 13:28 mark with their own goal to bring the score to 4-2 after the second period.

Lake Forest brought the score to 4-3 just 23 seconds into the third period but the Pointers scored twice in the period to secure the win. Krueger scored his fourth goal in the series at the 8:47 mark and Hale scored at the 17:06 mark to cap the victory. Krueger was assisted by Caufield and Stahley and Hale was assisted by Green and Bill Horbach.

Todd Chin had 25 saves in the Pointer net and Lake Forest goalie Dan Vacco had 34 saves.

"I think being there before really helped us in this series," said Pointer Head Coach Mark Mazzoleni. "This was our fourth straight trip to the NCAA tournament while Lake Forest was making their first appearance. I think that was the factor in the series."

The Pointers will have a chance to show their experience in the National tournament this weekend as they face off against Babson College of Massachusetts Friday at 3:00 (4:00 p.m. eastern time). Be sure to catch the action on campus radio 90 FM UWSP beginning at 2:45 p.m. with the pre-game. If the Pointers win the first round, they will play at 6:30 p.m. on Saturday. The losers of the first round will play Saturday at 3:00 p.m. (4:00 p.m. Eastern) for third place.

Track men and women perform well at nationals

By Ginger Parker
Sportswriter

Last weekend the UWSP men's and women's track teams participated in the NCAA Division III Indoor Track and Field National tournament held at Wesleyan University in Middletown, Connecticut.

The men finished 13th overall in a field of 35 teams which included WSUC teams as well, UW-LaCrosse finished first, scoring 58 points in 13 events.

"We were very happy with the results of the meet. We went out there hoping to make some All Americans, and all four performed well," said head coach Rick Witt.

"A couple of guys had a virus and weren't feeling well, but not to make excuses, we still ran well. I was pleased with the fact that the guys didn't let that bother them."

Dean Bryan led the way for the UWSP men. He finished 2nd in the 400 meter dash. His final performance time was :50.12. Mark Dunzo from M.I.T. finished ahead of Bryan with a time of :49.37.

The men also took a 5th place finish in the 1,600 meter relay. Andy Valla, Ryan Herbert, John Ceplina, and Bryan ran the race in a time of 3:25.02 for their final performance. First place was captured by Lincoln, PA with a time of 3:17.37. UW-LaCrosse finished second while North Central rounded up third place.

"Our times were not super, but it was a slow track. But the time isn't important in nationals, it's the place you finish. With sending only four people, we hoped to score as many points as possible, and I was pleased to finish as high as we did," said coach Witt.

"We hoped to finish in the top ten, and we came close, but with only four participants, you really can't help it. Also, if we would have been healthier, I think we could have hit the top 10."

The women also had a nice performance, finishing 16th in a field of 34 teams. Cortland State University College finished first for the women and UW-Oshkosh picked up a second place finish.

Beth Mears was the top winner for the UWSP women. In the shot put, Mears threw 43'5

Beth Mears

3/4 to capture 3rd place in the event. She placed behind Kelly Newman from Bethel, MN and Stephanie Bostwick of UW-Oshkosh. Mears also competed in the 55-meter dash, but was disqualified after a false start.

"It was unfortunate that Beth false started because the runners were told that they were in a certain lane and heat, and they really were in a different one. So when she was called, she still had her sweats on and had to hurry to the line and get set and then she just jumped too early," commented coach Len Hill.

"In the shot she threw average, not poorly but not well. The two that beat her threw very well and earned their wins."

Suzy Jandrin competed in the 5,00 meter run, but did not place in her field with a time of 18:20.49. Tammi Langton competed in the 800 meter run but also did not place. She ran the race in a time of 2:22.39.

"Tami (Langton) is a petite girl, and at nationals, its elbows up and there's a lot of pushing and shoving and that hurt. She is not built for that," said Hill.

"Suzy (Jandrin) ran as well as she does. She was just 2 seconds short of her personal best. Overall, it wasn't a great meet for us, but it wasn't bad. We had some bad things happen to us, but with the pressures of nationals, that can be expected."

This Friday and Saturday the men will return to action. They will host the Wisconsin State University Conference Indoor Track and Field Championships in the UWSP Health Enhancement Center.

"The meet this weekend, next to nationals will probably be the best indoor track meet around. The WSUC is a dominating conference, and with all the teams coming in this weekend, it will prove to be a great meet," said coach Witt.

Women's Softball prepares for spring trip to Florida

First year coach Stellwagon optimistic

By Kevin Crary
Sports Information Asst.

The UW-Stevens Point softball team, champions of the Wisconsin Women's Intercollegiate Athletic Conference a year ago, will open their campaign with a six-day 10 game schedule in Occoee, Florida beginning with a pair of games on Monday, March 18.

The Pointers, who lost nine starting seniors from last year's WWIAC championship squad, will face some of the toughest teams in the nation during their annual spring trip, including 1990 Division III runnerup Trenton State College of New Jersey in their first game on Monday (2:15p.m.)

"Our Florida trip will definitely be a tough one because we will be playing some of the top teams in the country," said first year coach Sharon Stellwagon. "We are a young team this year but not a team that's totally inexperienced. We have eight returning letter winners, and even though they didn't play a whole lot of games last season, they were still part of last year's conference championship team and gained a lot of experience in that respect." The 1991 Pointers, who finished 19-13 last season after losses to Luther College and Coe College (both of Iowa) in the NCAA West Regional Playoffs, were represented by five all-conference players. This year's team will rely on top returners Ellen Paul (pitcher), and Lisa Mortensen (left field).

Paul, the lone senior on this year's squad, compiled a 9-6 record in 16 appearances last season, including four shutouts. The Stevens Point native also posted a 2.32 earned run average while striking out 19 batters. Mortensen, a junior from Menasha, was 8 of 21, including two triples, for a .381 average (third on the team).

Other top returners for the Pointers include junior shortstop Christina Peters (Wisconsin Rapids), who went 20 for 57 at the plate for a .351 average, while scoring 21 runs and hitting in 26 others, and sophomore catcher Kelly Anklam (Tigerton), who batted .333 and scored 10 runs.

"We'll be inconsistent this season, because we're young," said Stellwagon. "But with a young and inexperienced team you almost have to expect the ups and downs. But on the other side, we have a very enthusiastic group of athletes. People that are excited about playing college softball and are willing to put in the time and make the commitment it takes to be a good team."

Stellwagon will be assisted by former Pointer standout Tammy Kuester, who is in her first year as an assistant coach. Kuester, a member of last year's championship team, was a one-time All American and two-time All-Conference centerfielder during her four years at UWSP.

The Pointers will end their spring trip on Saturday, March 23 with a pair of games against St. Francis and Montclair and will remain idle until they travel to Depere on April 4 for a nono-conference game against the Green Knights of St. Norbert College.

Soccer takes second at Point Classic

By J. Patrick
Contributor

The UWSP men's soccer club hosted their second annual Point Classic Indoor Soccer Tournament this past weekend in the Quandt fieldhouse.

The 16 team tournament was won by the Madison Lions, who defeated TWK for the championship in an exciting overtime match, 1-0. One member of TWK, Paul Herold, is a UWSP graduate.

The UWSP team finished second in their division and advanced to the playoffs, but were defeated by the Neenah Strikers in a heartbreaking triple overtime, sudden death shootout.

The Pointers were in a division with The Sabres (Fond du Lac), Northland Blizzard (Ashland), and The Cyclones (Waukesha), with Northland taking first place in the division.

The leading goal scorer during the weekend for the Pointers was Jim Fetherston, who picked up five goals in four games over the weekend. Other Pointers who scored were Jon Eynon (4 goals), Jason Duex (2 goals), Brian Woodbury, John Runge and Corey Fischer.

Fischer, a sophomore captain on the team, was selected as a member of the 15 player All Tournament Team.

Three other Stevens Point area teams with ties to UWSP participated in the Point Classic. The Point Alums, a team comprised of graduating and former UWSP players went 1-2 for the weekend, with the two losses coming from the two teams that ended up in the championship match. Four players from the Point Alums made the All Tournament Team.

The final Stevens Point team in the Point Classic was Panthers FC, a team comprised of former and current SPASH students. They too went 0-3, but team member John Dietrich was selected to the All Tournament team as well. Dietrich plans on attending UWSP this fall and playing for the UWSP soccer team.

"I was extremely happy the way the tournament went this year," said Tournament Director John Clark. "The crowd support was excellent. The spectators that came out to watch the games saw some top-notch soccer and some really exciting and skilled play. It just goes to show that soccer in Stevens Point continues to grow and grow."

The next action for the UWSP team is when they travel to Duluth to participate in the annual UM-Duluth Indoor Soccer Tournament, April 6-7.

Swimming

Jay Stevens represented the UWSP divers on the 1 and 3 meter boards. He placed 12th on the 1 meter board.

"There were some problems with the running of the meet during the preliminary rounds of diving. It would have been easy for Jay to become distracted and lose concentration but he didn't. Jay's dives were fantastic in the finals as he moved himself up five spots from 17th in the prelims to 12th place," said Head Diving Coach Scott Thoma.

In the final results, the UWSP men finished 9th with 197 points, and the UWSP women finished with 148 points, also in 9th.

Volleyball falls to St. Olaf

By Jason Smith
Contributor

The UWSP men's volleyball team was defeated by St. Olaf College on Sunday in Eau Claire in a crossover match 10-15, 15-4, 9-15, 15-3, 11-15 to fall to 9-1 overall.

The Pointers remain 7-0 in divisional play. St. Olaf, last year's conference tournament runner-up, improved to 4-4.

Mike Johnston led the attack with 14 kills and 15 blocks.

"I really hoped something like this wouldn't happen, but unfortunately it did," said co-captain Jason Smith. "We haven't been practicing well, and I knew it would be a hard match but I thought we could slide through with a win. We've had quite a few people sick, and that doesn't help, but make no excuses, we beat ourselves."

The Pointers next match is Sunday, March 17 against UW-LaCrosse at 2:00 p.m. in Berg Gym. Admission is FREE!

The Pointers are beginning to plan their conference tournament weekend to be held at MacCalister College on the weekend of April 27-28 in Minneapolis.

For information, call Jason Smith or Scott Towne at 345-7148.

Pointer skaters optimistic going into final four

by Victoria Christian
Contributor

Since Mark Mazzoleni stepped into the position of Head Hockey Coach at UWSP in 1985, nothing but success has come to this university athletic program. With the help of Associate Head Coach Joe Baldarotta, Mazzoleni has definitely turned the Point hockey program around.

Since Mazzoleni, the Pointers have seized two National Collegiate Athletic Association Division III titles, back to back. Currently the Pointers are seeded number one in the nation and are looking toward their third straight title.

"The national championships are the highlights of my life as a coach," said Mazzoleni in an interview with the Stevens Point Journal last week.

The UWSP hockey team claimed their first national title in the 1988-89 season. The Pointers traveled to New York and defeated Rochester Institute of Technology (RIT). The first game of the series ended in a tie at three goals a piece. But the next night Point came away with a 4-3 victory and its first national title.

Junior defenseman and assistant captain, Monte Conrad, compares his team then to the team he's a part of now. "Even though we're a young team this year, the last three weekends we've really pulled together as a team. The feelings as a team, as a family, are as strong as the first time we won the national title."

UWSP snatched their second title away from Plattsburgh State (NY) in a close series last March, here in Stevens Point at the K.B. Willet Arena. Point demolished their opponent Friday night by a score of 10-1. But Plattsburgh surprised the Pointers with an outstanding performance Saturday night to come away with a 6-3 victory.

The championship was decided by a mini-game in which Stevens Point only scored once but the defense held off a barrage of shots on junior goalie Todd Chin to keep Plattsburgh scoreless and give UWSP the victory.

Sophomore center/left wing Jeff Marshall comments, "Winning that national title was the best feeling of my life. To win a national championship; that's all I've ever played for."

Marshall became an instant hero when he scored the championship-winning goal against Plattsburgh. "We've got the ability to win it again this year, we're peaking at the right time of the season. Everything's in the past because it really all comes down to one weekend. Whoever plays the best and makes the fewest mistakes is going to win it."

Newcomer, junior defenseman, Dan Bailey agrees with Marshall, "We're starting to reach the goals we set for the team and ourselves at the beginning of the year. Everything's coming together and the freshmen are really contributing."

UWSP travels to Elmira, N.Y., to defend their national title where they will clash head on with Babson Mass., Friday Hear ye! Hear ye! On fourteen March, nineteen hundred-ninety one, Miss Heidi B. Westphal will celebrate her birthday. She's a sweetie, so wish her well. Happy Birthday, Lil' sis!

Smooch, let's make this Spring Break the best ever! I can't wait to see you in the bikini!

Wanted: Someone who will speed up the 65 days left before graduation, and someone who is good at taking exams. Need not be the same person. Ask for anyone with a confused look on his or her face.

Congratulations to Sarah Newton, The newly appointed Editor-in-Chief of The Pointer for the 1991-92 school year. On behalf of the entire staff, I would just like to say -- HA! We have you now my little pretty. Where do you think you're going? Oh no, you're ours now, destined to return a changed person.

Hey Homeboy, Pull Over! Say, what's that you got in there? Hmm? A double-olive burger from Hot 'n Now? That looks good-ood.
