Cuts loom over UW system

Gubernatorial candidate Chvala fears budget cuts will discourage UW students

Gubernatorial candidate Chuck Chvala said a Thompson budget next year could mean a nearly 30 percent tuition increase for students and their families.

Chvala said that if elected, he "would not balance the state budget on the backs of UW students and their families."

Chvala pointed to a Legislative Fiscal Bureau study which said that if the state-funded portion of the UW budget were cut by 10 percent as has been suggested by Thompson, tuition would have to be increased by 22.6 percent next year to make up for the shortfall.

"Governor Thompson has failed to keep tuition costs under control," said Chvala. "He claims he hasn't raised taxes, but skyrocketing tuition is a tax increase he has imposed on the families of students attending Wisconsin state universities."

Chvala released UW system figures indicating that under Governor Thompson, UW tuition has increased by 59.4 percent, from $1,202 in 1986-87 to $1,916 in 1994, at the UW campuses excluding Madison and Milwaukee.

Governor Thompson has told all state agencies, including the UW, to submit budget requests that cut five and ten percent from their budgets. However, the budgets are not due to be submitted until November 15, one week after the election.

quests that cut five and ten percent from their budgets. However, the budgets are not due to be submitted until November 15, one week after the election.

According to the non-partisan Legislative Fiscal Bureau, a five percent cut in state support for the UW would raise tuition $300 per student, an 11.3 percent increase.

A ten percent cut of the state funded portion of the UW budget would increase tuition by 22.6 percent or $600 per student. A 30 percent tuition hike would amount to an average of $796 per student.

Chvala sponsored a bill during the last legislative session to cap undergraduate resident students' tuition at 33 percent of instructional costs. Tuition currently pays approximately 31 percent of instructional costs.

"I favor capping tuition to keep a college education in Wisconsin affordable. At a time when education has become the key to our economic future in an increasingly global and competitive economy, it makes no sense to price Wisconsin families out of the opportunity for a college education," said Chvala.

"Wisconsin students and their families have faced property tax increases of 77 percent under the Thompson administration and now the governor is planning to raise tuition by as much as 30 percent," Chvala said. "Increases of this magnitude will drive many students away from the UW system and a college education will be unaffordable for many families."

Chvala is running for governor against Tommy Thompson in the November election.

Jaguars to prowl UWSP campus

By Stephanie Sprangers
News Editor

Ready or not, here they come. The fifth and latest addition to the 'Cheese League', the Jacksonville Jaguars, will make Steven's Point their summer home beginning next July.

The Jacksonville Jaguars are the latest expansion team to join the National Football League (NFL).

The franchise brings with it many potential benefits for the UWSP campus and the surrounding community.

The standards of UWSP's facilities will be greatly improved. Four playing fields will be brought up to NFL standards and air-conditioning will be installed in the men's locker rooms along with brand new wooden lockers, a new paint job and improved lighting.

An ice machine, freezer, and refrigerator will be available for people using the facility.

Additional dollars will be provided to offset debt service and operating costs for the Health Enhancement Center (HEC).

The team will attract many on-lookers and paying guests to UWSP which would help fund these improved facilities. These people would stay in the residence halls which eventually will benefit the students.

The money from the rental of residence hall rooms will reduce the increases which students may pay in the future for room rental. This will provide students with an additional $50,000.

The summer training camp will provide 75 new student jobs on

Chancellor addresses important issues

In his address Friday morning, Chancellor Keith Sanders addressed the possible negative ramifications to the university from property tax reform, a billion dollar shift in state funding, which he calls "a political problem."

Faced with a five percent budget reduction during each year of the biennium, UWSP would be forced to give back $1,153,000 to the state, or a total of $2,306,000 over the two years.

Since 94 percent of the university's budget is devoted to personnel, this means that each year, UWSP would have to reduce its faculty and staff by about 23 positions. Some of these positions would be accounted for through attrition, but not all, especially in high priority areas in which personnel must be replaced.

A ten percent deallocation would amount to $4,612,000 over the biennium calling for a reduction of 90 positions, which Sanders said, optimistically, "I don't think it will happen."

Base budget reductions also have a clear impact on enrollment, he continued. A five percent budget reduction over the course of the biennium would cause a reduction of 547 in the number of students admitted in order to preserve optimum class sizes of a 19.2 to 1 student-faculty ratio.

However, if the University system continues to admit the same percentage of high school graduates, it must find a way to accommodate about 10,000 additional students in the next six years—about 400 of those would come to UWSP.

While crediting the UW-system and UWSP for having a positive impact on the state's economy, Sanders warned, "The sad irony is, the UW is unlikely to participate in the prosperity it has helped create. The spoils of victory may go to others."

He urged the crowd to "be broad in your sympathies. Don't blame the K-12 system for the billion dollar problem. ...Also Don't take the easy way out and advocate huge tuition

UWSP makes major improvements

Starting its 101st year, UWSP will have an enrollment of about 8,400 which is down 200 from last year. The freshman class will number nearly the same, about 1,360.

Students returning to campus will find several physical plant improvements, including a $2.8 million renovation of the Science Building, which hadn't been refurbished since it was built in 1963.

The improvements include new lighting, ceilings, floor tiles, paint, air conditioning and the updating of the chemistry laboratories.

Thomson and Kutzen residence halls, which house more than 500 students, will have new bathrooms, which were redone at a cost of $2 million paid for by hall rental fees.

The two halls are the ninth and tenth residential facilities on campus to undergo major remodeling over the last three years. Also, tennis courts adjacent to the residence halls have been resurfaced for $50,000.

Additional projects paid for by program revenue were installation of irrigation equipment near the residence halls with a price of $52,000, and a new roof on the University Center which cost $158,000. The next roofing project will be completed this fall on the College of Natural Resources Building.

Another project the university has been working on is a $30,000 tree planting effort. The project was funded by an urban forestry grant, the Small Business Administration, State of Wisconsin and campus parking.

Director of Space Management and Facilities Planning Carl Rasmussen says a variety of more than 200 species have been planted throughout campus at the Reserve Street mall, the visitor parking lot, the Health Enhancement Center, DeBot Center and Old Main.

Emergency telephones are being installed at 13 stations throughout campus. Enstalled at a cost of $104,000, the lighted phones have buttons that will connect the caller immediately with campus security.

As part of a UW system wide security initiative, a campus committee examined safety measures at UWSP and concluded there was a need for greater access to emergency communication devices.

Future projects include: a fountain behind the UC and the installment of a sculpture by artist Bruce White of Sycamore, IL in the HEC. The design and creation of the $10,000 artwork was paid for by the .02 percent set aside from the construction of new state owned buildings

A new parking lot with 42 metered spaces and 12 handicapped spots has been built on the west side of the HEC building at a cost of $60,000 and the lot on the east side of the building has been changed to a metered facility.

Two combination permit and metered lots directly across from the UC on Reserve Street are currently being expanded, adding 40 new spaces. The construction work will cost $44,000.

Laird names UWSP beneficiary

Melvin R. Laird recently named UWSP as the beneficiary on his life insurance policy, which gives the university $500,000 upon his death. The money will create the Melvin R. Laird Endowment Fund.

The fund will be used to support and further activities of the Laird Youth Leadership Foundation.

Laird also donated an additional $100,000 to help fund UWSP's Laird Leadership Day.

The six-member advisory board was formed to ensure that Laird's wishes for his programs are implemented.

"It has been my pleasure and honor to work for Mel Laird in his numerous efforts to provide opportunities for many of our state's student leaders. (He is) a generous man who cares about UWSP and Wisconsin's youth," said Englehard.

News and Publications Director, John Anderson, died at his home last Wednesday, following a lengthy illness.

Anderson had been with the University since 1967. He was in charge of the News and Publications Office on campus, which distributes news about the UWSP campus to newspapers and broadcast stations.

Anderson produced an alumni magazine twice a year and edited newsletters. He also wrote a series of articles for the Stevens Point Journal.

"He was one of the most loved members of our community. He was a wise, soft-spoken man with a remarkable sense of humor," said Chancellor Keith Sanders.

Anderson was born on July 6, 1943 and grew up in the Mondovi/Gilmantown area. He graduated from the UW-Eau Claire in 1966. He will be missed.

UC updates current smoking policy

In an effort to satisfy the needs of both the smoker and the non-smoker, the UW-Stevens Point's University Center has updated its present smoking policy.

Effective September 1, 1994, smoking will only be allowed in the rooms 101E, 101F and the Greenhouse; the glass enclosed area near the food court.

"Better containment for the present smoking policy was needed because so many people were complaining about the presence of second hand smoke in the building," said Dr. Helen Godfrey, Assistant Chancellor for Student Development and University Relations.

The new locations for smoking were proposed by the University Centers Advisory and Policy Board (UCAPB) toward the end of last spring semester, and approved by Dr. Godfrey during summer break.

"It became apparent to me that many students and faculty do smoke, therefore UCAPB's recommendation seemed to be the best immediate solution," said Dr. Godfrey. "I would like to see a smoke-free environment in the University Center, but that will be a policy change needing to go through the appropriate student and faculty governance bodies."

Ventilation systems for the affected rooms are being modified to accommodate smoking. New signs will be posted throughout the University Center, notifying facility users of the updated policy.

Spud Bowl brings fun for everyone

By Stephanie Sprangers
News Editor

Potato fans beware! Spud Bowl 1994 is here! The eighth annual Spud Bowl will be held on Saturday, September 10.

Spud Bowl celebrates the harvest of one of our area's most important agricultural products—potatoes. The event brings agribusinesses, agricultural producers and the entire Stevens Point/Plover community together while supporting UWSP student scholarships and the UWSP Athletic Department.

Since the first Spud Bowl, a total of $24,500 in scholarships have been awarded to UWSP students. The scholarships are awarded to students who are from agri-business and farming backgrounds.

This year, $1000 in scholarships will be awarded to four students who have yet to be named.

The "Spuds and Suds" pregame bash will kick off the festivities at Goerke Park at 5:00 p.m. It will feature the all-you-can-eat picnic, Spud Premier Beer, live music and UWSP student competitions. The menu includes: all-you-can-eat potatoes, bratwurst and chili. At 7:00 p.m., the Pointer football team will take on Southwest State in the

A great big thank-you from University Food Service

To the editor;

On behalf of the University Food Service, we would like to publicly thank the residence hall staff and students for making our "dishes round-up" a success. Every semester students like to "borrow" dishes, silverware, etc. from university dining facilities for their own use. This past May, collection boxes were placed in each of the residence halls in the hopes of getting some of the dishes back, and it worked! The food service area is asking students not to "borrow" dishes this year. Not only does it create problems for us, but it directly affects you, the students. First, "borrowing" leaves less dishes to be used by all students in the dining areas. Although our dishroom staff works productively, there are certain rush times during all meals when it is common to run short of certain items, especially silverware. And secondly, replacement of "borrowed" items is costly. As with any business, what costs us ripples down to cost the customers; you, the students. In conclusions, the University Food Service wishes all of you a wonderful semester, but please "borrow" your dishes and silverware from Mon and Dad!

Thank you,

University Food Service

An opinion about opinions

As this is an editorial page you no doubt expect to find a certain amount of editorializing going on here, and to those ends we hope not to disappoint. However, before we begin disseminating our views, a word from your sponsor.

By definition, an opinion is a belief that is stronger than impression, but less strong than positive knowledge.

True, an opinion may be based mostly or even wholly on 'the facts,' but it must be remembered that an opinion is only speculation, no matter how eloquently and persuasively argued, and should in no way be misconstrued as 'the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.' Certainly, opinions dictate what we eat, what we wear, who we date, what kind of car we drive, how we wear our hair, what kind of music we listen to, where we go on vacation, how we vote, and just about every other choice we make.

The fact is, for the most part, opinions are harmless idiosyncrasies that reveal themselves as preferences—some people actually like station wagons.

So, how is it that we come to believe, and sometimes cherish, these opinions? We don't just randomly choose to believe one thing and not another—though at times it seems some people do.

No, we believe what we believe because our parents do, or maybe someone else whom we hold in high esteem.

We may believe some things because we were taught them in school. Still other opinions may have been formed by a personal experience.

Most likely, our views are formed as a result of little bits of all these things.

We are so different from one another socially, culturally and educationally, it is no wonder our opinions are so different.

The question remains; are some opinions more 'right' than others? Is there really such a thing as an objective point of view?

On one thing we can agree—the more information we have, the better informed our opinions are likely to be.

Still, the problem here is, it's literally impossible to know all there is to know about any given thing. Every second of every day things never before known are being learned.

In fact, according to Jim Appleberry, the President of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities in Washington, D.C., by the year 2040, based on the current 'extraction' rates, information will double every 73 days.

As there is more to learn, opinions based on this knowledge should, by rights, grow more 'informed' as we go.

Unfortunately, many opinion-holders cling to an idea long after that idea becomes untenable.

When these opinion-holders attempt, through persecution, intimidation or legislation, to 'convince' us of their views, these opinions are no longer 'harmless idiosyncrasies.' They become dangerous ideologies.

Pastor Martin Niemoller wrote over, while interred in a Nazi concentration camp:

In Germany they first came for the Communists and I didn't speak up, because I wasn't a Communist.

Then they came for the Jews and I didn't speak up, because I wasn't a Jew.

Then they came for the Trade Unionists and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Trade Unionist.

Then they came for the Catholics and I didn't speak up because I was a Protestant.

Then they came for me, and by that time, there was no one left to speak up.

As you can see, it's not a very good idea to ignore these opinions, however disagreeable they may be. History teaches us how tragic the consequences of such ignorance is.

No, the best defense against ignorance is education. As students here at UWSP, with a student body representing a vast array of cultures, we have the unique opportunity to gain valuable insight into the why's and wherefore's of opinion making not just here in our country, but around the globe.

By learning why we think differently, we may be better able to understand that difference. If we look closely enough, we will see that we are not as different as some would have us believe.

If we are diligent in our quest to find this common ground, maybe there will be someone left to speak up when they come after us.

Students squeeze butts in new location

You smokers on campus no doubt already know you have new digs, namely the sunroom off of Park Place, and a couple of adjacent rooms off the Lafollette Lounge.

It's nice to see the University Center's Policy Board has finally come to what seems to be an amicable agreement between the warring factions, though it remains to be seen what effect this will have once the cold weather sets in, and those 'ten o'clock people' who congregate for their smokes just outside the exits begin to head for warmer haunts.

While I was assured the new ventilation will be sufficient to "just about, but not quite, raise the hair from your head,"

I fear overcrowding may be the real hazzard here.

As there is now roughly 1600 square feet of smoking space, and something like 1200 smokers, this leaves only one and a third square feet per, to light up in.

Potentially, we could see somewhere in the neighborhood of 375 people, all at once, butts ablaze, in the sunroom alone. Of course, I'm kidding, you'd never see that many of us in there at one time; where would we set our coffee?

Anyway, we should be happy just to have someplace to light up without offending anyone. So, smoke 'em if you got 'em, and thanks again UCPB, for not booting our butts outta the joint.

Theatre Troupe In Motion

World reknown group to perform in Point

By Kerry Liethen

Imagine electrifying world issues combined with theatre and music, captured by a troupe of actors from around the globe.

Up With People is "an entertainment show that tries to make people think a little bit about world missions and understanding among nations," said Claus Bergh-Hanfen, actor and public relations personnel for Up With People.

Information regarding the theatre troupe is displayed after each show, which allows the public to find out more about the group and the program.

"The great thing is there is no need for musical or theatre experience," said Melissa Clarke, actress and public relations personnel for Up With People.

Interview sessions are set up for those interested in joining the troupe. "An interview is based on the type of person you are and how comfortable you are in your community," stated Clarke.

Up With People will hold an information and interview session Sept. 14 in Wright Lounge at the University Center.

The troupe will perform "World in Motion" at the Sentry Theater September 13 and 14 at 7:30 p.m.

Muscians Get Jazzed Up

A total of $21,000 has been raised for jazz scholarships in the past three years by enthusiastic crowds of Big Band fans who have danced on a special night each year at the Indian Crossing Casino at Waupaca's Chain O'Lakes.

About $14,000 has been raised for the jazz program at UWSP via the 1992 and 1993 casino fund-raisers. Recently another $7,000 was donated by participants; 12 musicians benefited from this year's scholarships, including local students

Stephen Kung and Tom McComb.

At the event, audiences are entertained by UWSP's Big Band Express, made up of faculty, student and alumni musicians under the direction of Robert Kase.

"The university and especially the Jazz Studies Program is indebted to all who come to dance to our music each year. We have awarded 32 music scholarships using the proceeds of the three performances," Kase said.

The UWSP Jazz Studies scholarship committee sponsors

the event.

Its members are: Terry and Sarah Woodford, Dan and Mame Heaney, Pete and Chris Nelson, Jerry and Nancy Salan, Leon Jr. and Mary Kay Schmidt.

Stevens Point committee members are Chancellor Keith and Carol Sanders of UWSP, Bob and Marilyn Worth, Anne Schierl, John and Gail Prais, and Bob and Mary Williams.

UWSP performing arts promise challenge

Comedy, controversies make theater season intoxicating

"A challenging season" is the way Theater and Dance chair Arthur Hopper describes the series of upcoming productions during the academic year at UWSP.

"At least three of the plays are not traditional theater fare, and one is a crowd-pleasing comedy," Hopper says.

"They are unique productions that will challenge audiences as well as performers."

All of them will be staged in the Jenkins Theater of the Fine Arts Center.

People interested in attending opening night performances are invited to join more than 150 area residents for First Nighters, an opportunity to socialize and have dinner before curtain time.

The cost, including five meals and plays, is $105 per person, but space is limited. Call (715) 346-3811 for further information and registration.

Curtain time is at 8 p.m., except for Sundays, when the performances begin at 4 p.m.

Opening the season will be Neil Simon's comedy, "Rumors," directed by Thomas F. Nevins.

Described by Nevins as "a wonderfully funny piece," it is light and frothy entertainment about several suburban couples who get caught up in a mad melee of rumor and misunderstandings.

It opens on Friday, October 7, and continues on October 8, 9, and 13-15.

In mid-November James Woodland of the theater faculty will direct Steven Sondheim's

"Assassins," a controversial musical evoking fraternity of presidential assassins and would-be assassins across a hundred years of U.S. history.

Opening on November 11, it will continue on November 12, 13, and 15-19.

"Our Country's Good" by Timberlake Wertenbaker, a drama set in an Australian penal colony, will be directed by Carolyn Blackinton of the theater faculty.

A theatrical piece, funny and disturbing at the same time, it includes a play-within-a-play. The production will run from February 17-19 and 23-25.

William Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew," directed by Robert Baruch, may be seen on March 31, April 1, 2, and 6-8.

Described by the director as "a battle of equals," the comedy remains controversial to this day.

"They are unique productions that will challenge audiences as well as performers."

The April 2 performance will be at 7 p.m.

The annual Danstage, with works choreographed by dance faculty members Susan Hughes Gingrasso, Jan Karlen, Tobin Moeller, and James Moore, will be staged in the Jenkins Theater by students and faculty.

This year, the event will showcase the work of a guest choreographer, Debra Loewen, artistic director of the Wild Space Dance Company in Milwaukee.

She will restage sections of "Field Work," one of her recent pieces based on a contemporary perspective of rural Wisconsin life and of the people who farm the land.

The performances will be on May 5-7 and 11-13.

Danstage will be one of the featured events of UWSP's celebration of the Arts and Communication Week, May 1-6.

The special centennial celebration will include performances and speakers throughout the week, as well as the Wisconsin State Music Association Festival on Saturday.

Season tickets are available at $35 each for the public, $30 for senior citizens and UWSP faculty and staff, and $15 for students.

Individual seats for the musical are $12, $9.50 and $6.50, and individual tickets for the other shows are $9, $7 and $5.

Studio Theater productions will be staged throughout the year, most of them in a smaller, more intimate setting.

The plays will include "Keely and Du," directed by Jason Hall, a senior from Oshkosh, on March 8-11.

"After Image," the annual dance concert choreographed and performed by students, will be held in the Jenkins Theater on December 2 and 3. Individual ticket prices are $6 for the public, and $4 and $3 for the other performances.

Two Players-sponsored productions, "Cat's Paw," directed by senior Ian Pfister of Sheboygan, will be staged on Friday and Saturday, December 16 and 17, and "The Widow's Blind Date," directed by Steve Martin, a senior from Ripon, will be presented on February 3 and 4.

Big bands jam for amnesty

Two days of love, music and human rights awareness are how organizers of this weekend's Jamnesty II concert are describing the event.

Following on the heels of the highly successful music fest five years ago, Stevens Point Amnesty International groups have assembled state and area bands to entertain audiences and promote international human rights.

Jamnesty II is scheduled to run from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. both Saturday and Sunday at Pfiffner Park in Stevens Point.

Slated to appear Saturday at Jamnest II are the Stonetones, Petrified Alien Brain, Schroeder's Cat, Hobnob, Ladybeard, and Moon.

Sunday's lineup includes Fuzzdally aka Pascal's Neighbor, Red Fish Blue Fish, Mary Snyder, Freakshow, and World Burning.

Festival Coordinator Alexander Schultz is excited about the range of musical offerings.

"There should be plenty of music to satisfy everybody from R&B, to acoustic folk, to punk, ska, and every type of rock styling.

We've been real impressed that so many good groups would get involved in such a good cause."

Schultz hopes that Jamnesty II will provide more than just great music.

"Our hope is to get the word out that human rights atrocities are taking place around the world, and we need to work together to stop these actions.

It is my hope that by bringing people together for a two-day open air concert, we might get the year's efforts off to a real energized start."

State Amnesty Coordinator Michael Daehn adds, "along with super tunes, there will be lots of info available on the types of work AIUSA is involved with, including the former Yugoslavian campaign.

There will also be petition and letter-writing tables set up featuring actual current cases."

Concert donation pins are available for $3 at the following locations: Graham Lane Music

Festival of India to benefit scholarship fund

Area residents can experience the ancient culture of South Asia at the seventh annual Festival of India from 5:00 to 8:30 p.m., Saturday September 10, at Stevens Point Area Senior High School.

Proceeds of the event are used to support students at the P.N. Doshi Women's College in Bombay, India, which serves the city's most destitute women.

The festival is sponsored by UWSP, the South-Asia Society, and SPASH. Last year, about $5,000 was raised to help finance costs of about 200 women at the college.

Between 5 and 7 p.m., a buffet dinner featuring gourmet Asian food, including tandoori chicken, will be served.

The event will offer a variety of activities such as henna painting, palm reading, street games, yoga workshop, children's stories, puppet shows, horoscopes, gift stalls and exhibits.

From 7 to 8:30 p.m., Usha Jain will play the sitar, Marcus Wise will play the drums, and other performers will dance classical and folk pieces.

Tickets are $6.50 for adults and $3.50 for children between six and twelve.

"Beau Jest" heads north

Theater students at UWSP will be "heading up north" this fall to become stars at the Sand Lake Dinner Theater in Lac du Flambeau.

For six weekends during September and October, Dillman's Sand Lake Lodge will host dinner theatre productions of "Beau Jest," a romantic comedy directed by Arthur Hopper and starring UWSP students.

The performances are on Fridays and Saturdays, Sept. 9 and 10, 16 - 17, 23 - 24, Sept. 30 and Oct. 1, 7 - 8, 14 - 15.

The events are co-sponsored by UWSP and Dillman's Creative Arts Foundation, an organization which sponsors arts workshops and will now host plays at the lodge.

Hopper calls Dillman's "one of the finest family resorts in the nation."

For the UWSP students who will be housed and fed at the lodge and paid a stipend, the dinner theater experience will allow them to have a unique professional opportunity, Hopper said.

In addition, it will add to UWSP's outreach function in the northern part of the state and it will help to promote Dillman's Creative Arts Foundation.

Hopper said he hopes to see many of the central Wisconsin residents take advantage of this weekend getaway at the beautiful resort about two hours away from Stevens Point.

At the Sand Lake Lodge, choices of two dinner packages, a lunch package (each $24) or an overnight package ($99) will be available to participants.

Reservations are available through the Creative Arts Foundation, Box 98 F, Lac du Flambeau, WI 54538.

REASONS WHY GOING BACK TO UWSP THIS FALL WILL BE MORE REWARDING THAN OTHERS

10. You've had it up to here with this TV trial thing.
9. The summer just hasn't been the same after the World Cup.
8. You found out that enrolled in your Comm 101 class is campus beloved Forrest Gump.
7. UWSP's Centennial Celebration and free cake.
6. Less mud than Woodstock.
5. Chancellor Keith Sanders called to play third base for our own minor league ball team: The Stevens Point Tsunamis.
4. You'll be getting back to UWSP's answer to Clinton's Health Care Bill, which has been, and always will be, providing quality coverage for 100% of the students through our economical Health Enhancement Center.
3. Corn crops are just way out of hand.
2. All of the beautiful flowers.

Education project awards money to states

An Environmental Education (EE) initiatives project, based at UWSP and funded by several national agencies, has awarded grants totaling $85,000 to five states attempting to build comprehensive EE programs.

Iowa, Illinois, Kentucky, Louisiana and Hawaii were chosen from among 26 applicants to participate in the Demonstration States Program of the National Environmental Education Advocacy Project (NEEAP).

"It was very encouraging to see such a good response to this program," said Richard Wilke, director of NEEAP and associate dean of the College of Natural Resources.

"There is a lot of positive activity happening in each of the states we received applications from," he said.

The funds were made available from the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation, the U.S. Forest Service and the Environmental Protection Agency.

Other groups such as the National Wildlife Federation and the North American Association for Environmental Education have provided financial support to help fund the project.

"We also are trying to facilitate networking among state level EE advocates and representatives of environmental, conservation, business and education groups," Wilke stated.

In addition to grant monies and networking, demonstration states are receiving publicity, workshop development assistance and consulting as part of the one-year program.

According to Wilke, proposed initiatives in each state span a wide range of possibilities.

Iowa is working to develop and pass the SEEDS ACT (State Environmental Education Development Strategy), which would represent the most comprehensive state program for EE in the nation.

SEEDS includes a grants program, state funding, teacher training and an office of adult EE.

Louisiana is working to inventory EE initiatives and resources available in the state. Kentucky plans to conduct a series of original workshops. Illinois is drafting policies to guide the future of EE. A summer advocacy conference kicks off organizing efforts in Hawaii.

The associate dean hopes the five participants will only be the tip of the iceberg. "We want to be able to assist more states in the future. These five could become models for strengthening EE efforts in many neighboring states," he said.

A handbook, "Promoting Environmental Education in Your Home State and Local Community," written by Wilke and graduate student Abby Ruskey of Silver City, New Mexico, is another product of the NEEAP project.

More information about the handbook, featuring case studies of successful grassroots initiatives, or the states program is available by calling (715) 346-4179.

Deer season approaching

The unseen, silent deer archery hunt begins Saturday, September 17, as fall colors paint the woods in orange, yellows, reds, purple and brown against the green conifers and blue sky.

It is a quiet time when pesky insects are absent and squirrels hunt acorns on the forest floor and drop cones from tall pines to hide their winter store.

Geese blare their calls in the sky above. Their movement says they know something that men don't know about the weather up north. The bow hunter sees, listens, and waits. There appears to be much to wait for this year.

The deer herd has prospered for the past two winters. In central Wisconsin, it is unusual to see a doe with fewer than two fawns.

Hunters will find a rapidly growing, but young deer herd, according to Wildlife Supervisor Arlyn Loomans, for the Department of Natural Resources' North Central District.

The 1994 acorn crop is much poorer than a year ago. Hunting deer along oak ridges will not be as advantageous as it was last year when Wisconsin had an extremely good acorn crop, observed Loomans.

Northern Wisconsin bow hunters will have a one deer bag limit with no eligibility to purchase a bonus archery tag in 1994.

A broad band of deer management units in east central, southern, and southwestern Wisconsin have a two-bag limit, only one of which may be a buck with antlers larger than three inches.

Three metropolitan deer management units around Milwaukee, Madison, and La Crosse will allow bow hunters to harvest up to four deer each.

The early deer bow season ends November 13 and resumes on December 3. Altogether, bow deer hunters will have 87 days, including 13 weekends to enjoy their sport.

The hunt begins with sneakers and ends with snowshoes.

McReynolds receives recognition

A faculty member at UWSP has been recognized for the outstanding doctoral dissertation of the year in a vocational education program at UW-Madison.

Charles McReynolds shared the Russel J. Hosler Award in the Department of Continuing and Vocational Education with Judith Adrian of Madison.

McReynolds, who has been the director of the Treehaven Field Station since 1985, studied attributes of leadership among environmental center administrators.

He spent about two days at 20 centers across the country, spending time with their chiefs, who had been nominated by national peers for the visits.

McReynolds commended his nine-member staff at Treehaven for its forward-looking attitude and leadership.

Part of this leadership will be to secure supporters for construction of additional visitor housing and a library/laboratory building.

Women learn outdoor skills

UWSP's Treehaven Field Station near Tomahawk will be the site where women will participate in a weekend of outdoor skills training, Friday through Sunday, September 9 - 11.

The program, "Becoming an Outdoors Woman," is primarily aimed at women, but is open to anyone 18 years or older.

This is an opportunity to learn skills related to hunting and angling that will include use of the shotgun, beginning camping skills, map and compass, rifle marksmanship, muzzle-loader, fly-fishing and fly-taping, beginning archery, wilderness medicines, nature photography and other outdoor pursuits.

The program is sponsored by UWSP's College of Natural Resources, Archery Manufacturer's Organization, the National Shooting Sports Foundation, the National Rifle Association, Gander Mountain Inc., Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation, and Safari Club International and its Nebraska Chapter.

Other sponsors include the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources, American Sportfishing Association, Waukesha County Conservation Alliance, Safari Club International - Wisconsin Chapter, Wisconsin Waterfowlers and the Wisconsin Wildlife Federation.

program. The first workshop of its kind held anywhere in the nation was held in Wisconsin in 1991.

During the next two years, seven more programs were held in five different states with more than 100 women participating in each.

This year, 17 states and the Province of Manitoba are holding clinics.

A training program for state agency personnel interested in expanding the program to their states will be held in conjunction with the Wisconsin workshop. Representatives from at least six other states are expected to attend.

"The watchword for the weekend is fun," Thomas says.

In addition to the skills sessions, there will be an outdoor fashion show, an evening program on how to tell outdoor stories and door prizes.

Thinking Naturally

By Anne Harrison

Outdoors Editor

As the summer camping season winds down, it is time to retell old stories and relive moments spent close to nature.

What is it about camping that beckons to nature enthusiasts? Is it the occasional cold rain or the sore back from sleeping on a rock? Or is it the sense of 'roughing it' in the wild?

Somehow, the rigors of camping renew our spirits and relieve some of the tension built up from city life.

Perhaps the most enjoyment from camping comes after the fact. Camping memories die hard. I find myself recounting tales with old friends, sharing laughs and grimacing at the misery we once endured.

One of the most often told camping stories is the one where someone forgot something. Of course, this something is never a small, insignificant object; it is usually an essential ingredient to the trip.

Consequences for forgetting something are particularly painful for wearied campers if the object is food or a tool used in food preparation. Cooking pancakes over an open fire becomes challenging when the griddle is back at home.

I am convinced that creativity ascends to new levels in these situations. Campers become inventors as necessity drives the wheels of the mind, making spoons spatulas and coffee cans cooking pots.

Of course, camping these days means that you are never far from a convenience store stocked full of marshmallows and bug spray. The hardy camper should be on guard against campgrounds offering 'amenities'. Included in these comforts are such cushy things as bathrooms (with showers), electricity and grocery stores.

What it comes down to, however, is one's definition of camping. Some people prefer the cushioned beds of a camper to the hard ground under a tent. Others reserve the esteemed title of camping for only the roughest, most challenging experiences in the true outbacks of our country.

Most people, however, will agree on one thing: camping is a great escape. Nature works wonders on those tangled in city living, causing neck cramps and stress veins to yield to smiles and sighs.

Summer may be over, but the time for camping is plentiful. So grab a tent and a friend and enjoy one of America's favorite pastimes.

McClain-Ruelle accepts position as Associate Dean of Education

Leslie McClain-Ruelle assumed duty as the Associate Dean and the head of the School of Education at UWSP.

She is succeeding Ed Sontag, who resigned from the position and will be teaching full time as a member of the special education faculty. Joan North, Dean of the College of Professional Studies, made the three-year appointment based on the unanimous support of the School of Education faculty.

McClain-Ruelle has served UWSP since 1985 as an assistant professor in the School of Education. In 1990, she was promoted to Associate Professor. In these positions, she has taught courses in reading education, while also advising graduate and undergraduate students.

As the new head of the School of Education, McClain-Ruelle hopes to continue the collaborations with area school districts and to support the SOE faculty in their work with these districts.

"We hope to continue to explore improved ways of meeting the needs of our undergraduate students as well as the needs of the practitioners in the field," said McClain-Ruelle.

In addition to teaching, she was co-recipient of a grant from the Wisconsin Humanities Council to help direct a summer institute entitled "Understanding Values Through Literature". She has also made presentations on topics concerning reading education at numerous state and national conferences.

McClain-Ruelle served as the editor of the Wisconsin State Reading Journal from 1989 to 1994 and since 1987 has served on the UWSP Faculty Senate as a College of Professional Studies representative.

She has degrees from the University of Kansas and Pittsburgh State University. She received her Ph.D. from the University of Kansas in 1985.

Before coming to UWSP, McClain-Ruelle was an English teacher for grades 7-12 in Kansas and taught courses at the University of Kansas and Ottawa University.

Cheese League-here we come!

NFL expansion Jaguars set to call UWSP its summer home

By Brett Christopherson
Sports Editor

UWSP officials can finally relax, smile, and of course, say cheese.

A four-year wait came to a successful end for UWSP with the August 24th announcement that the National Football League expansion Jacksonville Jaguars will hold their summer training camp on the UWSP campus beginning next July.

The announcement came before a capacity crowd in the Melvin Laird room in the University Center.

Chancellor Keith Sanders, Governor Tommy Thompson, Jaguars president David Seldin, and Jaguars vice president of football operations Michael Huyghue were all on hand to sign a one-year contract as well as celebrate the arrival of the newest member to the Cheese League.

"I couldn't be more proud that the NFL's newest team has chosen Wisconsin as its summer home," Thompson said. "I congratulate the people of Stevens Point for their hard work and partnership with my administration to make this happen."

Thompson also added a touch of humor to the already joyous occasion.

"When I landed in Stevens Point, I knew our search was over. We feel that we will have the best training camp out of all the teams in the Cheese League."

Michael Huyghue

"Isn't it great that people from Florida are coming to Stevens Point for the weather," he said. "What a great day."

Sanders was equally as happy with the announcement.

"Needless to say, we are absolutely delighted with the outcome," he said. "The Jaguars will have one of the best places in the nation to train."

Stevens Point becomes the new-what the Grapefruit and Cactus Leagues are to Major League Baseball," Thompson said. "Just as baseball fans flock to Arizona and Florida for spring training, of new equipment for a grand total of $205,000 raised in an effort to bring the Jaguars to Stevens Point.

Jacksonville officials took their time in deciding where to conduct their summer training camp, citing weather as a major concern.

"We were looking for both weather conditions and areas where we could have a productive training camp," Huyghue said.

UW-Eau Claire and UW-Whitewater were also being considered by the Jaguars, however, once Huyghue arrived in Stevens Point, the decision was easy.

"When I landed in Stevens Point, I knew our search was over," he said. "The facilities were outstanding and the people really gave us a feel that they were going to welcome us. We feel that we will have the best training camp out of all the teams in the Cheese League."

Pointing towards a championship

Both the UWSP men's and women's cross country teams are looking to hit the upcoming season in full stride as both squads get ready to host the Pointer Classic on Saturday at Iverson Park.

On the men's side, head coach Rick Witt is hoping his experienced team can bring home a conference championship.

"I feel like we've really got the people to make some things happen this year," Witt said. "We've got some experienced runners back who have competed at the national level in both cross country and track."

Overall, Witt is excited as he's ever been for a season to get underway.

"La Crosse will likely be the favorite going in, the one to beat," he said. "But we feel that we can compete with them, maybe not right away, but by the end of the season."

The women, meanwhile, head into the upcoming campaign with a mature and confident outlook.

"1993 was supposed to be a rebuilding season for us," said head coach Len Hill. "Not only did we have a fairly good season, but the experience some of our runners gained will be valuable coming into this season."

As was the case with the men, the women return a host of quality runners, but Hill remains cautiously optimistic.

"Our season will definitely be a progressive one, with runners getting back to full strength gradually," he said. "Some won't need much work to get rolling but others will first come on in October. If everything falls into place, we could be very good."

Tennis crushes Marian in opener

UWSP women's tennis head coach Nancy Page has already seen plenty to be excited about, and that's only after one match.

The Pointers opened their season last Saturday with a resounding 8-1 victory over Marian

Tammy Oudenhoven (#5), and Michelle DeGodt (#6) all posted wins while the team of Danyel Sweo and Amy Gibbs struggled early but rebounded for the win at #1 doubles.

"Right now, the only sure spots are Stenmark

"Marian was a good opening match for us; it gets a lot tougher from here on out."

College in Stevens Point, using 12 different players.

"There's no doubt that we have quite a bit of depth this season," said Page, beginning her ninth season as the Pointers' head coach. "We have a lot of play ahead of us to determine what positions everyone will play. We have some outstanding veterans returning, but the freshmen are strong and will definitely challenge for varsity spots."

Veterans Heather Stenmark (#1 singles), Carmel Thorsen (#4), and the team of Sweo and Gibbs," Page said. "Thorsen and Oudenhoven also played very well."

"Marian was a good opening match for us," said Page. "All the singles players won by decisive margins. But the big plus was seeing 12 players in one match. It gets a lot tougher from here on out."

The Pointers get a further test this weekend when they play in the highly competitive Chippewa Valley Open in Eau Claire.

Conference champs begin title defense

By Brett Christopherson

The UWSP women's soccer team opened a season full of high expectations last weekend, splitting a pair of games at the DePauw Classic in Greencastle, Indiana.

The Pointers (1-1) opened the tournament with a 3-0 victory over Gustavus Adolphus on Saturday before falling to Wilmington College, 3-0, on Sunday.

"This was a quality tournament to start the season," said head coach Sheila Miech. "There were four elite Division III schools here."

UWSP started quickly against Gustavus Adolphus as Becky Brem and Jenny Probst each scored goals to give the Pointers a 2-0 lead at the half.

Probst added another goal in the second half while the Pointer defense continued to stymie Gustavus Adolphus, as Stevens Point cruised for the 3-0 win.

"We played well in the first half, but we dropped off a bit in the second," Miech said. "Our speed helped us, but the game was really fairly even."

Fatigue played a part in the Pointers loss to Wilmington College as UWSP was unable to penetrate the Quaker defense.

The game was a scoreless battle after the first half, but the Quakers exploded for three unanswered goals to stop UWSP, 3-0.

"Taking nothing away from them, they are a good team, but we were a little sluggish and tired," Miech said. "It was a very even game, but they just got the goals."

The Pointers resume their season on Friday as they travel to St. Paul, Minnesota to take on Macalester College. Game time is slated for 7 p.m.

A new attitude

Women's volleyball; ready for change

A definite "newness" has been sweeping through the UWSP volleyball program.

As the team prepares for its 1994 season, the squad appears primed to escape the hard times of the last several seasons and concentrate on bringing the program up to the level of Wisconsin Women's Intercollegiate Athletic Conference contender.

But it won't be an overnight change, according to first-year letterwinners, nine from the 1993 team and two from 1992.

Back from 1993 are setter Joliene Heiden, back row specialist Sabina Carroll, outside hitters Stacy Hyding, Micky Bartolac, Peggy Hartl, and Angie Martin, and middle hitters Tara Raddatz, Laura Konopacki, and Sarah Marymee.

Returning from 1992 are setter Jody Soderberg and outside hitter Heidi Stephens.

"There is some definite talent on this team. We need them to learn how to work together, and that will take some patience."

Julie Johnson

"In no way does anyone on this team, myself included, think that we're going to take off and challenge for the conference championship this season," said Johnson. "But there is a high level of excitement and anticipation that things will start going in the right direction. Setting a positive attitude and turning things around is the main goal of the team and the coaching staff."

Johnson takes over a team that has seen tough times over the last few seasons, including an 8-24 record last season and a cumulative 19-game conference regular season losing streak.

"I've only been with the team a little while, but I'm impressed with the skill level and the work ethic," Johnson said. "We need work as a team, but once the teamwork aspect kicks in, I think it looks promising."

Leading the return are 11

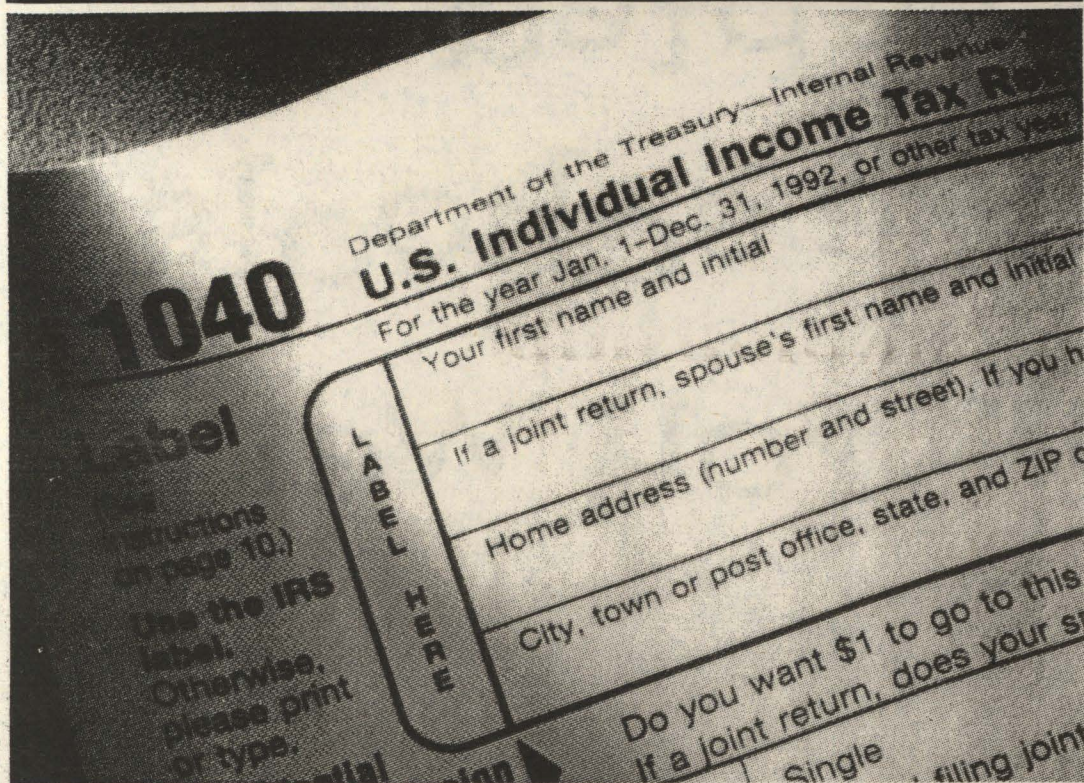

The lone newcomer to the program is middle hitter Kathy Olsen, a sophomore who did not play last season.

"There is some definite talent on this team," Johnson said. "What we need is for the team to learn how to work together, regardless of what six players are on the court at a given time. That will take some patience both on my part and that of the players part, but it will come."

The team is still in the process of setting goals for things such as victories and conference tournament finishes, but Johnson points out that the goals will be a team decision.

"We're really trying to stress confidence, both in themselves and in their teammates," Johnson said. "Doing everything possible as a team—setting goals, winning and losing—is key to that confidence level. We're going to be very realistic about the goals. But we want them to be challenging."

PRINCIPLES of SOUND RETIREMENT INVESTING

UNFORTUNATELY, THIS IS WHERE PEOPLE ARE PUTTING TOO MANY RETIREMENT DOLLARS.

Every year, a lot of people make a huge mistake on their taxes. They don't take advantage of tax deferral and wind up sending Uncle Sam money they could be saving for retirement.

Fortunately, that's a mistake you can easily avoid with TIAA-CREF SRAs. SRAs not only ease your current tax bite, they offer a remarkably easy way to build retirement income—especially for the "extras" that your regular pension and Social Security benefits may not cover. Because your contributions are made in before-tax dollars, you pay less taxes now. And since all earnings on your SRA are tax-deferred as well, the money you don't send to Washington works even harder for you. Down the road, that can make a dramatic difference in your quality of life.

What else makes SRAs so special? A range of allocation choices—from the guaranteed security of TIAA to the diversified investment accounts of CREF's variable annuity—all backed by the nation's number one retirement system.

Why write off the chance for a more rewarding retirement? Call today and learn more about how TIAA-CREF SRAs can help you enjoy many happy returns.

Benefit now from tax deferral. Call our SRA hotline 1 800-842-2733, ext. 8016.

Ensuring the future for those who shape it.™

CREF certificates are distributed by TIAA-CREF Individual and Institutional Services. For more complete information, including charges and expenses, call 1 800-842-2733, ext. 8016 for a prospectus. Read the prospectus carefully before you invest or send money.

The view from over the hill

By Terry Kluck

The Fam

Ah yes. the beginning of a new shool year. It's great, isn't it? Allow me to introduce myself. I am Terry, sister member of the UWSP Mid-life Society (an esoteric group whose members go by the handle "Non-trads"). I'm a thirty-something, incredibly intelligent, brunette mother of three, though I like to pretend I'm a dizzy blonde struggling through each day as if it were her first. I'm a fourth-year student, and having finally achieved junior status, and hard on my way to graduation sometime after my sixth year. Of course, this should not be seen as a mark against my intelligence, but instead as a merit toward my fertility--time off from school for childbirth and all.

I plan to be here, in this corner of our new and improved school newspaper each and every week, entertaining and informing you the best of my abilities. Though I hope this isn't necessary, I'd like to pre-register myself as an individual who does not intentionally bruise the egos of those individuals or groups who find their way into my composition. However, through experience, I've learned that some readers bruise very easily (especially men--no insult intended), and I feel a need to identify myself as an innocent who calls them as she sees them, and is more than willing to take the flack for it.

So, what can you expect to find here? Information hot off the press in the Non-traditional Student Services Office. For example, we have some scholarship applications available in the office (UC 131) at this time. Please pick them up ASAP, as impending application deadlines have been shown to cause unnecessary stress. Check the door for office hours, or call (346-2045) and leave your name and address and we'll get an application out to you.

You can also expect to share in my trials and triumphs as a non-trad student, some experiences which will certainly be familiar to students of all ages. Sure, I'll be bitching and whining now and again, but go ahead and bitch back; it's good for the soul.

In the course of my lifetime, God has smiled on me many times in His oh-so-amusing way, and I'm sure He's got much more in store. I'd like to share these things with you, in order that you, too, may find His Hand, joy buzzer in place, gleefully at work in your entangled and tortured day-to-day existence.

ACTIVE OR INACTIVE?

For legal and practical reasons, student organizations need to be rerecognized each fall to maintain formal recognition status. To complete the recognition process, the following is required:

- 1) A list of current officers with addresses and phone numbers.
- 2) An Advisor Contract Form which your advisor needs to sign, stating that he/she will advise your group (forms are available in the Campus Activities Office).
- 3) A copy of your constitution if changes have been made.
- 4) Attendance at ONE of two rerecognition meetings (PRESIDENTS ONLY) scheduled on September 12th and 13th, 7PM in room 125/125A of the University Center.

Services will NOT be provided to your organization until the above process has been completed. Please reregister, AS SOON AS POSSIBLE, in the Campus Activities Office, University Center.

Groups not rerecognized by Friday, September 23, will have their organization appear under the INACTIVE SECTION of the Student Organization Listing. PLEASE VISIT CAMPUS ACTIVITIES TO REMAIN ACTIVE
