New face steps up to chancellorship position

Appointed chancellor a man of many talents

By Kris Wagner
NEWS EDITOR

UW-Stevens Point's newly appointed chancellor, Thomas F. George, has been in a university-type atmosphere since graduating from high school. In fact since moving to Stevens Point this summer he has been living on campus while waiting for his wife, Barbara, to move to the area.

"I'm always here (UWSP)," said Chancellor George who often bikes around the area.

Formerly the provost and academic vice president at Washington State University (WSU), one of George's duties was distributing a half billion dollar budget. While serving at WSU he implemented ideas that led to programs such as Virtual WSU (a system that uses computer and the internet to teach coursework), a 5-year campaign toward fund raising, a teacher portfolio program, and increasing the university's diversity. He was also part of a group that created a program that guaranteed a bachelor's degree in four years.

"A lot of students want to finish in four years," said George on the program which began this semester at WSU.

A native of Philadelphia, George, began his higher learning by receiving a bachelor's degree from Gettysburg

George sets agenda for university's future

With a mission to make UW-Stevens Point as best as possible, Chancellor Thomas George brings in a lifetime of university experience, strong leadership qualities, and three major challenges to achieve in the next few years.

George, 49, succeeded Keith R. Sanders, who resigned to become senior vice president for administration of the UW-System. Howard Thoyre, provost and vice chancellor served as interim chancellor until a new chancellor was found.

"UWSP has an excellent reputation," said Chancellor George who assumes the position of UW-Stevens Point's twelfth chancellor earlier this summer.

George has three major areas that he hopes to address in the next couple of years: faculty-led improvement, a broadened financial base and technology-enhanced learning.

On August 29, George addressed major challenges to faculty, staff and students. His first challenge, faculty-led improvement, focuses on student centered learning

"Faculty-led improvement requires involvement in the scholarly activities that strengthen classroom teaching and foster student research," said George. "It also includes an awareness of regional and state economic needs, attention to diversity and equal opportunity, interest in mutually-beneficial relationship with other educational institutions, and participation in community service."

Spud Bowl kicks off home season

A celebration for one of the most important agricultural products in the area will take place this weekend. The product- potatoes and the celebration- UW-Stevens Point's twelfth annual Spud Bowl this Saturday.

The Pointers take on Iowa Wesleyan Tigers in their first home game of the season.

Besides the game, many other events will take place at the pre-game picnic.

According to Stevens Point Business Council's staff assistant Jennifer Szczytko, "Spud Bowl brings the community and university together for a celebration."

The Spud Bowl will kickoff with the Spuds and Suds Picnic (all-u-can-eat) at the Goerke Complex from 4 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. The annual event will have a specialty potato menu that features an old fashioned potato cake along with other picnic foods.

Along with food there will live music, UWSP Spudlympics, potato art, and an appearance from Alice in Dairyland, Miss Holly Meudt.

"Spudlympics is an opportunity for student organizations to take part in community events," said Greg Diekroeger, Assistant Director for Campus Activities.

The Spudlympics offer many different potato sport feats for students to participate in. None of the feats can be "revealed until Saturday night," Diekroeger added.

Following the pre-game party the Pointers (1-0) will play their first home game will face Wesleyan (1-0) on Goerke Field at 7 p.m.

This year, four $1,000 scholarships will be awarded to UWSP students. Since the first Spud Bowl a total of $28,500 in scholarships have been awarded to 36 individuals. Scholarships are awarded to students who are from agri-business and farming backgrounds.

Tickets are available at the Portage County Business Council, the UWSP Arts & Athletics Ticket Office and at the event.

Convocation humbles the natural world

By Kris Wagner

A gymnasium full of students, faculty, and spectators were taken back to a quiet place on the shore of Lake Superior as convocation's guest speaker spoke of the insights and experiences she had there just a few years earlier.

Ann Linnea, 1996 UW-Stevens Point's Convocation guest speaker, brought forth many questions that almost everyone needs to ask about their lives during the university's opening ceremony.

Linnea asked the audience to ask these questions about themselves: "What do you love? Are you doing the most of it and how are you making it more central to your life?"

In Linnea's speech she recommended that everyone should base their design on passion and logic.

Linnea is an environmentalist who in 1992 circumnavigated Lake Superior in a 65 day sea kayak.

She described her journey in a book entitled "Deep Water Passage-A Spiritual Journey at Mid-Life." A naturalist and teacher for three decades Linnea holds a bachelor's degree from Iowa State University and a master's degree from the University of Idaho.

Tree stands in memory of student

A memorial ceremony was held at the University Center (UC) last Sunday in dedication of a UW- Stevens Point graduate who died earlier this summer.

Tonya Beck, a 1996 Communication graduate, died after being caught in a fire in her apartment located in Appleton, WI. Beck's fiancée and roommate also lost their lives in the summer mishap.

The ceremony was held for friends who couldn't attend the funeral services. A tree was planted, in the memory of Beck, between the Communication Building and the UC.

"(The ceremony) was sad, but it was good," said Carrie Peckover who was one of approximately 26 attendees. The ceremony was also attended by Beck's parents.

A plaque, located in the UC, will be started for UWSP students who have died in similar mishaps. Beck will be the first on the plaque.

Beck was a member of the basketball cheerleading team and a sister of Delta Epsilon.

Primaries lead to close call

Due to the close call in the Portage County sheriff's vote, a recount is being requested by Sheriff Peter Thrun.

Only 32 votes separated Thrun from the winner Stan Potocki. On Wednesday Thrun requested a recount because of the close margin.

If the winning stands Potocki will take the new sheriff position on Jan. 6, 1997. There is no other candidate for sheriff on the November ballot.

The sheriff's election wasn't the only local election that was affected by the polls.

Republican Scott West defeated three primary candidates taking over 40 percent of the votes. West ran against Republicans David Zien, Don Schlomann and Charles Wenzel.

Because of West's victory, he will run against David Obey, who defeated West in the 7th Congressional District by 8% in 1994.

"If each day we used feeling and commitment to make the decisions that are pulled before us, I believe that we would find us more acquainted with the world around us."

The convocation speech was not the only highlight at the ceremony. Eight UW- Steven Point faculty and academic staff members were recognized for outstanding teaching, scholarship and service. The recipients of the awards were:

Agenda

The second major challenge is to broaden financial base in two critical areas legislative advocacy and university fund-raising.

"Obviously, I'm not happy with the current budget," said George.

To help boost the university's budget the chancellor, along with others, will attempt to acquire new state tax dollars to fund the university's priorities as well as finding external fund-raising from individuals, corporations, and federal/state agencies.

The last major goal George hopes to address is enhanced learning by technology.

"Technology is a creative way to enhance student's learning," said George.

George hopes to continue moving forward in technological advancement by acquiring more tools and skills in the years to come.

Some of the qualities that the newly appointed chancellor believes will help him are the expertise in raising funds, a strong academic program, and the ability to get involved with the campus and the community.

"I think that UWSP will continue to be at the cutting edge," said George.

Active or Inactive?

For legal and practical reasons, student organizations need to be re-recognized each fall to maintain formal recognition status. To complete the re-recognition process, the following is required:

1. A list of current officers WITH addresses and phone numbers.
2. An Advisor Contract Form which your advisor needs to sign, stating that he/she will advise your group (forms are available in the Campus Activities/Student Involvement Office).
3. A copy of your constitution if changes have been made within the past three years. (Note: Constitutions need to be updated a minimum of once every three years.)
4. MANDATORY ATTENDANCE at ONE of two re-recognition meetings (PRESIDENTS or DESIGNEES) scheduled on Tuesday, September 24 and Wednesday, September 25 at 7PM in Room 125 of the University Center.

Services will NOT be provided to your organization until the above process has been completed. Please re-register AS SOON AS POSSIBLE in the Campus Activities/Student Involvement Office, University Center.

Groups not re-recognized by Friday, September 27 will appear under the INACTIVE SECTION of the Student Organization Directory. PLEASE VISIT THE CAMPUS ACTIVITIES/STUDENT INVOLVEMENT OFFICE TO REMAIN ACTIVE!

Seinfeld takes back seat to no one

By Mike Beacom
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

For the past three years, cast and crew for the hit NBC television show, "Frasier", have walked away with the Emmy award for best comedic show of the year.

The cast of characters, led by star Kelsey Grammer and talented David Hyde Pierce, along with the writing staff have been fantastic these past three seasons and are worthy of the highest of praise.

But I cannot quite honestly say that "Frasier" has deserved each one of its three Emmys, especially this year's. Unfortunately for "Frasier", NBC has a better situation comedy in its season line up every year: "Seinfeld".

A show which made itself so popular for being about absolutely nothing, "Seinfeld" hasn't lost a step or bright new idea since it first aired its pilot in July of 1989.

Not only can its actors act and its writers make us cramp up from laughing, but its concept and cast are easy for the common or most complex person to relate to.

In all of us there is a part of each one of "Seinfeld's" main characters: Jerry, George, Elaine and Kramer. And the ups and downs which occur in each of their lives compare to our struggles and conquests, day in and day out.

We all can relate to Jerry's drive towards a perfect lifestyle, continually complicated by his friendships and love life. We can, at the same time, relate to George's insecurities and 'can't do anything right' attitude.

Elaine, played by Julia Louis-Dreyfus, is the most stable character of the four. But her indecisiveness and hot temper can make her as much of an outcast as the rest of the bunch.

Kramer is the goofball friend everyone has and is afraid to acknowledge. Kramer's character is as unique as the show.

Is there another show on television that can fill thirty minutes of humor with four people searching a parking garage for their car or take a sensitive, embarrassing topic like masturbation and turn it into a high-stakes competition?

Yet after seven successful and fresh seasons, "Seinfeld" has only won one Emmy for best comedy (1993) and has grabbed only three supporting actor Emmys (Michael Richards for Kramer '93, '94, Louis-Dreyfus '96).

The show's best acting arguably comes from one family, the Costanzas. George and his parents, Frank and Estelle, are the epitome of a family in dire need of therapy. George, played by Jason Alexander, is given the toughest situations in the show to face: unemployment, moving back in with his parents, an unwanted engagement, and doubts about his own sexuality.

Alexander handles George's character and baggage extremely well in every conflict. It will be a tragedy if show co-creators Jerry Seinfeld and Larry David decide to call it quits after this year, and Alexander does not have an Emmy to place on his mantel after eight seasons of near flawless acting.

The major disappointment came last Sunday night when "Seinfeld" lost out to "Frasier". It was perhaps "Seinfeld's" finest year yet. When critics argued that the show would no longer be able to out do itself, "Seinfeld" took their show to another level with memorable shows like, "the soup nazi."

That's why "Seinfeld" is the greatest sitcom in television history. When other shows look for ways to stay near the top, Seinfeld looks for ways to reach new and higher plateaus.

Council urges vote in their favor

In the upcoming student government elections, UW-Stevens Point students have the opportunity to continue support for the nation's oldest and most effective state student association, The United Council of UW Students, founded in 1960 on the Stevens Point campus.

Wisconsin's only statewide student advocacy and research organization, United Council is funded by a student referendum with a mandatory refundable fee of 95 cents per student per semester.

So, what does your 95 cents actually get you? United Council employs eight staff members who advocate for students at the UW System, state and federal level, and it links students statewide by offering information, guidance, research and service on student issues.

All United Council policy is determined by student delegates from member campuses who meet regularly to take positions on issues and direct the work of the staff.

United Council is a national leader for its work on federal financial aid and voter registration. Working with student government associations from across Wisconsin and the nation, United Council used grassroots support from students and parents, in addition to direct lobbying, to help restore $4.9 billion in financial aid awards last year.

Because student participation in the electoral process is critical, United Council is coordinating a statewide, nonpartisan Learn to Vote*Vote to Learn. The Students Are Voting Everywhere '96 campaign is an attempt to involve students through registration, education and get-out-the-vote effort.

United Council regularly lobbies the state legislature, the Governor's office and the Board of Regents in a consistent effort to control tuition increases and bolster financial aid programs. United Council has always stressed the importance of shared governance in the UW System, as well as the concept that education is an investment in the future of Wisconsin.

United Council has worked to maintain and strengthen student fee autonomy, and has been a clearinghouse of information and research on student safety issues, including e-mail privacy and the use of social security numbers as student ID numbers.

Credit transfers, a recurring headache for many students in Wisconsin, have been made easier through United Council's work with UW System and the state legislature.

As the leader of a statewide coalition, United Council defeated an assembly bill which would have legalized discrimination against many student renters. United Council has sup-

Use caution while a tenant

By Craig Stillman
CONTRIBUTOR

As the beginning of the fall semester starts, UWSP students should know their rights as a tenant to prevent problems that may arise throughout the semester. Simple repairs or touch ups made to holes in the walls or stains on the carpet can eliminate damage fees taken out of the tenants' security deposit.

The Tenants' Rights and Responsibility pamphlet states that "Landlord-tenant relations in Wisconsin are regulated by Chapter 704, Wisconsin Statutes, and by ATCP 134, Wisconsin Administration Code." Along with regulating landlord-tenant relations this pamphlet also discloses laws that make the landlords tell their tenants of certain responsibilities provided in the lease. These laws range from types of utilities paid for by the tenant to the standards of quality needed to operate appliances efficiently (furnace must maintain a temperature of 67 degrees).

Chapter ATCP 134 also states that "The landlord must return the security deposit within 21 days after you move out. The landlord may deduct for unpaid rent or damages for which you are responsible." A violation of this code by the landlord can result in legal action taken by the tenant.

Most illegitimate fines assessed to tenants arise from the tenants' ignorance of their rights. Information on the rights and responsibilities of the tenant in the pamphlet printed by the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Trade, and Consumer Protection agency can be found in Delzell Hall.

Many recognized in high academic achievements

Becoming an outdoors woman

Workshop at Treehaven teaches outdoor skills

By Scott Van Natta
Outdoors Editor

For much of humanity's time on Earth, man has dominated the outdoors field. Well, no more.

Thanks to a relatively new workshop called Becoming an Outdoors Woman (BOW), which was held Aug. 23-25 at the Treehaven field station near Tomahawk, women have been expanding their horizons to tree stands and trout streams.

The workshop, sponsored in part by the DNR and the UW-Stevens Point College of Natural Resources, was developed in 1991 by Christine Thomas, a professor of resource management in the CNR.

Thomas got the idea for the workshop after she attended a conference in 1990 that probed why women are under-represented in outdoor pursuits.

It was concluded that women have simply not had many opportunities to learn outdoor skills that are necessary to enjoy outdoor activities.

So the BOW program was started a year later as an experiment to determine if providing an educational opportunity would be enough to welcome women to the outdoors.

The response was overwhelming and now the program has expanded to 40 states and four Canadian provinces.

Women from 18 to 70 years of age attended this year's workshop with the basic purpose of learning outdoor activities in a non-threatening environment.

There were various ability levels with some women having participated in outdoor activities for years whereas some had never touched a fishing pole.

"It was one of the smoothest workshops we ever had," said Thomas speaking of this year's three-day event.

Over 100 women from Wisconsin, Minnesota, Illinois, Michigan, Tennessee and Virginia participated in a large variety of workshops including Hunting Dog Selection and Training, Basic Fishing Skills, Dutch Oven Cooking, Rifle Marksmanship, Beginning Archery, On-River Canoeing and many others.

According to Thomas, the workshop offers patient, supportive instructors who understand the goals. The teaching is focused on the needs of the adult learners with the classes being taught in a hands-on way.

Besides Thomas, UW-Stevens Point professors Eric Anderson, John Houghton, Stan Szczytko, John Munson and Sue Kissinger all taught their own workshop.

"The women are so eager to learn that it's easy to get them involved and excited into what you are doing," said Anderson, wildlife professor and three-year veteran of BOW, who taught a course in Identification of Game Habitat.

Sue Kissinger, Associate Dean of the CNR who taught Woodworking for Wildlife for the second time, is amazed at the workshop's success and at the number of women who repeated the course.

"It's neat to see people come back," said Kissinger. She has heard many success stories dealing with women who have attended the workshop, then have put what they learned into action.

Nature Calls

By Scott Van Natta
Outdoors Editor

Well, back for another year.

Why does it seem like I just said buh-bye?

Answer: because the summer went by faster than you can read this sentence. (I guess time really does fly when you're having fun.)

I must say that I thoroughly enjoyed the summer and have already classified it as my best ever and that includes the year I went to Wisconsin Dells. Believe it.

I had the wonderful opportunity to be the summer intern at the Tomahawk Leader newspaper. And since my major is journalism, the job was all I could have hoped for and more. Not to mention it made my resume worth the paper it was printed on.

So there I was, up in Tomahawk, living in an apartment no bigger than the room you're in now, assuming you're in a relatively small room, putting 4,000 miles on my van in pursuit of interviews.

But you say, what did you do when you weren't working? Well, that didn't happen too often, but I did manage to reacquaint myself with the Dukes of Hazzard (Daisy sure is cute).

As you can imagine, Tomahawk isn't a real big town and there really isn't anything to do. (I'm sure all you native Tomahawkians could prove me wrong if you really thought about it.)

So I went fishing. What did you expect?

In fact, if there is one striking thing about northern Wisconsin, it's the plethora of lakes to fish on, and guess what — some of them even have fish in them.

If there is one thing I learned this summer, besides all that newspaper stuff, it's that fish are getting smarter, especially muskies.

Just to prove the fact, let me tell you about a couple recent muskie tournaments. First of all, there was the one in Eagle River, where over 800 people fished for 2 days and caught a grand total of 51 fish. Then there was the Muskie Madness tournament in Tomahawk that same weekend, which saw 158 people, fish for a combined 2,528 hours, and reel in four—count 'em, four muskies. (Yee-haa, the madness is more than I can handle.)

If that doesn't prove that fish are getting smarter, I don't know what does.

Since the intelligence of fish has just been proven to be higher than that of man, we may as well all go home.

Well...not yet.

I haven't talked about my fishing yet — don't worry, it won't take that long.

I learned quickly that you catch a lot fewer rocks if you use a floating or weedless lure. In fact, I caught my very first muskie (21 inches — I know, it's a baby) on a floating rapala, but you know how it is. When you go through a whole summer and catch about one fish every three weeks (that's just a random guess) so that even when you catch an 8-inch smallmouth, you consider it a major victory in your life.

While I may not have caught many fish this summer, just being up in the Northwoods was worth it.

That's right, there is more to the north than fishing -- but not much.

During my escapades to all corners of Lincoln County, I met dozens of interesting, local people, often with more color than your average rainbow.

What made it so cool was that once I met someone, I saw them everywhere.

And it didn't matter where I was. I could have been fishing in some remote corner of Lake Mohawksin (near Tomahawk), where the odds of even seeing another human being are about 8 million to one, and the one boat that would have motored by would be driven by someone I know.

I'm serious.

And they probably would have caught a 45-inch muskie with a jig and minnow and be holding the fish above their head, yelling "I usually don't keep them this small! It practically jumped into the boat! Can you believe it?!"

Uhh-huh. Dumb muskie.

Hi to Sara in Tomahawk.

Time of the harvest draws near for hunters

Deer hunting

Remaining bonus antlerless permits for the 1996 deer hunting seasons will go on sale over the counter at select Department of Natural Resources offices around the state beginning at 7:45 a.m. on Monday, Sept. 16.

Over the counter sales will continue during regular business hours until all permits are sold.

People interested in purchasing bonus permits can call 1-800-282-0367 for current updates on which units have bonus permits available.

Bonus permits are not being sold in Portage County. Nearby cities to attain permits include Wausau and Wisconsin Rapids.

Special regulations are in place this year for 19 deer management units. There will be an early four-day antlerless-only gun hunting season in those units from October 24-27. Hunters will also be required to "earn a buck," by first filling an antlerless deer permit. The regulations also provide free "special" antlerless permits and two-for-one bonus permits.

The 1996 Wisconsin deer hunting seasons are as follows: early bow season: Sept. 21 through Nov. 17; regular nine-day gun season: Nov. 23 through Dec. 1; muzzleloader season: Dec. 2 through Dec. 8; and late bow season: Dec. 7 through Dec. 31.

Goose hunting

Wisconsin's 1996 goose season could run as long as 79 days in the Exterior Zone, but the season will close early under an emergency rule if hunters reach the zone's Canada goose quota early.

"We hope the season would close no earlier than the beginning of November," said Jon Bergquist. "Compared to last year, our allowable harvest in Wisconsin has declined by about 40 percent."

The Exterior Zone season will open in the northern part at noon on Saturday, Sept. 28 and run through Dec. 15, unless closed earlier by emergency rule.

The season in the southern part will also open at noon on Saturday, Sept. 28, run through Oct. 6, then close for five days and reopen on Oct. 12 and run through Dec. 20, unless closed early by emergency rule.

The daily bag limit in all zones will be one Canada goose, with a possession limit of two.

Sturgeon season

The hook-and-line season for lake sturgeon opened on Sept. 7. The season runs through Oct. 15 on inland waters and through Nov. 1 on boundary waters.

The bag limit for sturgeon is one fish over 50 inches long.

Lake sturgeon, the biggest fish in Wisconsin, can live for more than 50 years. The state record fish, caught in 1979, weighed in at 170 pounds, 10 ounces.

Duck hunting

Wisconsin will have a 50-day duck hunting season in 1996 with a split season in the south and a continuous season in the north.

The daily bag limit will be five ducks, which may not include more than four mallards — of which only one may be a hen — one canvasback, one black duck, one pintail, two redheads and two wood ducks.

The season in the northern zone will begin at noon on Saturday, Sept. 28 and run through Saturday, Nov. 16. The season in the southern duck zone will open at noon on Saturday, Sept. 28 and run through Sunday, Oct. 6, close for five days, reopen Saturday, Oct. 12 and run through Thursday, Nov. 21.

"The split season provides waterfowl hunters a broader variety of hunting conditions, and it also helps conserve our local breeding duck population by providing more opportunity for hunters to pursue migrating ducks that move through Wisconsin later in the season," said Jon Bergquist, wetland waterfowl ecologist for the Department of Natural Resources.

Shooting hours for the duck seasons, except for the noon opener on Sept. 28, will be one half hour before sunrise to sunset. Hunters should check the 1996 Wisconsin Waterfowl Hunting regulations for zone boundaries, which were recently changed.

Ruffed grouse hunting

The ruffed grouse population in northern Wisconsin showed signs of a slight increase despite a severe winter, which should mean fair to good hunting opportunities when the season opens Sept. 14.

"This spring's drumming surveys indicate that grouse populations continued to show signs of increase," said Sam Moore, ruffed grouse specialist with the Department of Natural Resources.

Habitat is the most critical factor in sustaining ruffed grouse populations. "Grouse are generally most abundant in young aspen forests or older aspen forests with a well-developed shrub understory," said Moore.

Moore cautions hunters that the sharptail grouse may be found in the same cover as ruffed grouse, especially near open edges, during the early part of the season.

The sharp-tailed grouse season is closed statewide this year.

Turkey hunting

There were 30,625 permits available for the fall turkey hunting season, about a 25 percent reduction from what state wildlife officials had preliminarily estimated.

"Our research and climate data indicated that the cold, wet springs of 1995 and 1996 substantially reduced hen nesting success in those years," said Tom Howard, wild turkey specialist with the Department of Natural Resources.

Still, Howard adds, the 30,625 permits available for the 1996 hunt is an increase over the 29,650 available last year.

Wildlife managers had initially estimated as many as 41,050 permits might have been available this fall, but those estimates were based on a higher level of nesting success, Howard said.

"Unlike the spring hunt, when only male turkeys are legal game, hunters can take hen turkeys during the fall hunt," said Howard.

"Biologically, harvesting hens can have a negative impact on the population if productivity is poor. We reduced permit levels this fall to prevent over harvest of hens and to ensure quality spring hunting in the future."

The fall season runs from Oct. 7 through Nov. 3.

Construction on campus

Several campus construction projects greeted students as they returned to school last week.

Most notable is the $11 million remodeling of the College of Natural Resources building. The new addition will not be ready to house classes until the spring semester.

The five-story, 55,000 square foot area will provide wet and dry labs, including an herbarium, ichthyology lab, computer lab, classrooms, animal care facility, chemical storage, four rooftop greenhouses and administrative and faculty offices.

Tied to the CNR project but located northeast of campus behind parking lot J, a wood utilization laboratory building was constructed for about $300,000.

The 4,400 square foot metal building will allow for student training in the production and conversion of raw timber to finished wood products.

The $11 million CNR expansion project won't be completed until next spring. (Photo by Carrie Reuter)

Back with an attitude

By Kerry Liethen
FEATURES EDITOR

Car accident, a fight with my best friend, senior, and back at The Pointer. These four things are reasons why I'm sporting a new attitude this year.

The 1996 year started out kind of rocky for me because in February I was rear-ended, a half a block from my parents house nonetheless, by a complete ditz. Now there are a few people out there that may say I do not have the right to address this woman so harshly. Normally, I might agree with that, but I found out the ditz had her license taken away for driving with an open container (it wasn't filled with Kool-Aid folks), driving while intoxicated, and just the everyday speeding ticket. In addition, the ditz woman's insurance company is trying to stiff me on the settlement claim. Justice will not be served in my case.

Secondly, when the end of May rolled around I decided to have some fun and visit my best friend, Chris, in Oshkosh. Well, let's just say after the little visit I didn't feel like sending him a F.T.D. bouquet anytime soon. Usually, when Chris and I fight we go out drinking, forget what we argued about, and drop it-very healthy for our friendship.

This problem of ours dissolved this previous month and our friendship is back on track, although for a few months I felt like the Queen of Hearts from Alice in Wonderland. All I could say was "off with their heads" to anyone that encountered my path.

Of course, when it came to say our apologies to one another we did it with style by drinking cheap wine, good beer, and singing Abba Gold until everyone's ears in the apartment complex started to bleed.

Next, I just found out last week that I'm a senior. After my anxiety attack was over with and my head was pried out of a brown paper bag, I realized that this may be a good thing. Not that being a senior gives me the right to have an attitude, because it is not and anyone that says this deserves a good kick in the pants. For some reason I feel that I have struggled, had a couple K.O.s, but survived, which in my opinion, is justification of my attitude adjustment.

Finally, is the fact that I'm back at The Pointer. How I ended up being Features Editor again is a mystery to me. Two years ago I took on the position not knowing what I was getting into. It turned out that I bit off more than I could chew and suffered greatly for it. Now I'm back, and for some reason I'm not afraid of what to do, say, or write for that matter. So beware this writer may bite.

The band Framing Amy with Matthew's Uncle is set to perform at 8 p.m. in the University Center's Encore. Cost is $2 with student I.D.

Theatre and Dance set to open new season

Two one-act plays will open a new season for the Department of Theatre and Dance at the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point. The plays, "On Tidy Endings" and "Black Comedy," directed by Robert Baruch, professor of theatre at UWSP, will open Oct. 4 in the Jenkins Theatre of the Fine Arts Center.

A sensitive play about human relationships, "On Tidy Endings," by Harvey Fierstein, combines humor and compassion. The plot deals with an AIDS victim's two survivors: his divorced wife and the man in whose arms he died. The second play, "Black Comedy," by Peter Shaffer, promises to be an evening of hilarious fun, according to Baruch.

The title comes from the fact that when the stage is dark to the audience, it is light for the characters. When a fuse blows, the stage becomes dark to the characters, but illuminated for the audience. The resulting miscommunications and mishaps provide the entertainment.

The plays will be performed Oct. 4 through 6 and 10 through 12. For all mainstage productions, opening night performances are at 8 p.m. Sunday performances are matinees at 2 p.m.

All other performances are at 7:30 p.m. Mainstage productions are in the Jenkins Theatre of the Fine Arts Center.

The second production of the season will be accompanied by the UWSP Jazz Band. A musical comedy with an up-tempo jazz score, "City of Angels" is directed by Arthur Hopper, chair of the theatre and dance department.

Set in 1940s Hollywood, the show chronicles the misadventures of a young novelist attempting to write a detective movie of the "Mickey Spillane" genre. The play, which won six Tony Awards, including Best Musical in 1990, was written by Larry Gelbart, with music by Cy Coleman and lyrics by David Zippel. It will be performed Nov. 15 to 17 and 20 to 23.

"The Lady's Not for Burning" by Christopher Fry, a poetic comedy set in the 15th century, will be directed by Thomas Nevins. When it was first performed in the 1950s, John Cielgud had the leading role. It has been frequently revived because of its dramatic poetry, high-spirited characters, and its unique look at criminal justice.

The poetic comedy will be performed on Feb. 21 through 23 and Feb. 27 through March 1.

A contemporary drama by David Hare, "The Secret Rapture" will be directed by Adrienne Krstansky of the theatre and dance faculty. The play examines British politics of the 1980s and families caught in the struggles of corruption, loneliness, and Christian morality. "It is a powerful piece of theatre with a surprise ending that will remain with you long after the final curtain," according to Hopper.

The drama will be performed April 11 through 13 and 17 through 19.

Danstage '97, an annual dance concert will blend a variety of dance styles. Works by two guest choreographers will supplement the work of faculty choreographers Mary Martin Fehrenbach, Susan Gingrasso, Joan Karlen and James Moore. Performances are May 2, 3, 4, 8, 9, and 10.

Studio theatre productions will again include Afterimages, a showcase of dance works choreographed by students. It will be presented Dec. 12 and 13 in the Jenkins Theatre.

The studio theatre production "Gershwin on Broadway" will be presented March 11 to 15. The musical review will feature works of George and Ira Gershwin.

Players sponsored productions include "Romance/Romance," directed by Jeremy Doucette, Feb. 6, 7, and 8, and "Lonely Planet," directed by Craig Haen, March 19 and 20.

People interested in combining opening-night performances with socializing and dining may join First Nighters. The group of more than 150 participants meets for a meal

Fixation on footwear is a campus craze

By Jason Rogowski
CONTRIBUTOR

The first day of classes brought with them the anticipation of individuality, freedom from parents, and the right to wear sandals. Tuesday morning was cold, dull, and gray with puddles of rain dotting the campus. I felt I dressed appropriately: long sleeved shirt, jeans, and tennis shoes, but when I sat down in my first class and looked at my fellow students it seemed I wore the wrong footwear. Maybe I missed the memo but most of the people's feet I cast my eyes upon wore sandals. The sandals came in many different styles and names: Adidas, Nike, Teva, and the cheap ones from Payless Shoe Source. I also saw someone wearing bedroom slippers!

While my eyes were fixed upon the sandals of fellow classmates I was reminded of three reasons why I don't like sandals. First, I don't enjoy looking at people's gnarly toes. Even if there is a fresh coat of paint on them I still can't stand to look at them.

The shoe was invented to keep people from vomiting on the sight of gnarly, funny shaped, discolored toes. Another toe style that annoys me is if a person's toe next to the big toe is longer than the big toe. It is weird to see all the other toes scrunched up and the second toe is longer than all of them.

My second reason for disliking sandals came during my next class, where forty of us were packed like sardines and there was no fresh air. Feet stink!

The top reason toenails are ingrown is because they are trying to get away from the funky smell of feet. People should not be allowed to wear sandals in enclosed areas such as buses, restaurants, and classrooms.

Third, there is a right and a wrong time to wear sandals, and Tuesday was not one of the times. Tuesday was wet and cold. Puddles were everywhere and people's funny looking, stinky feet were getting wet.

Everyone knows what a dog smells like when it gets wet, and that smell happens to feet when they get wet. A fully enclosed shoe needed to be worn on Tuesday, but instead people shared their stinky, wet feet with everyone.

I think the trend of wearing sandals needs to be put in the attic of fashion mistakes with bell bottoms, butterfly neck polyester shirts, and polo shirts with sweaters tied around the neck.

PRINTS EXHIBITION

"Parts of the Performance," an exhibition of prints, will open Sunday, Sept 15, at the Carlsten Art Gallery at the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point.

The works by Frances Myers combine photocopy collage prints and wall installations of cloth, wood, metal and other materials.

There will be a reception on Sunday from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. The exhibition will run through Oct. 11. For more information, contact the student gallery director, Suzanne Woods Lomira, at (715) 346-4797.

Myers specializes in printmaking around themes involving rituals. She defines rituals as "those acts, ceremonies and their attendant artifacts which either bind people's feelings into existing orders of society, or aid them in becoming critical and independent of it." This show includes works which speak, rituals in Roman Catholicism and rituals surrounding special occasions and holidays.

Myers is an associate professor at UW-Madison. She received her bachelor's and two master's degrees from UW-Madison. She also studied at the San Francisco Art Institute.

UW- Stevens Point alumna joins New York dance company

A Stevens Point native and alumna of the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point has been chosen from among hundreds of aspiring artists to join a prestigious dance company in New York City.

Adriane Fang, daughter of Marcus and Constance Fang, 1700 Church St., a 1994 graduate of UWSP with a double major in dance and psychology, has joined Doug Varone and Dancers.

She was chosen as the best from among 400 young dancers who auditioned for the company.

A New York resident for about two years, Fang has performed with two or three smaller dance groups while she took classes at NYU and supported herself with temporary office jobs.

After Varone saw one of the performances, he invited her to audition. From the original 400 applicants, she advanced to become one of six finalists to be interviewed.

Following the interviews, she was asked to join Varone and his troupe, one of the top ensembles in the country.

Susan Gingrasso of the UWSP dance faculty believes Fang was selected for a number of reasons, including her exceptional abilities, her intelligence and her broad-based background in both psychology and dance.

"It's important for today's artists to be highly skilled in several fields."

-Susan Gingrasso

"Her talents blossomed at UWSP through her accomplishments in psychology and her dance work with Joan Karlen and with Robin Moeller in the area of Laban movement analysis. It is important for today's artists to be highly skilled in several fields."

Fang began rehearsing with the ten year-old company last week. Touring extensively throughout the world, they perform at major festivals and venues such as The Joyce Center for the Performing Arts, the Tokyo Festival, The American Center in Paris and the American Dance Festival in Durham, North Carolina.

During the 1996 season, the company travels to Asia, Europe, and South America, as well as on two extended tours of the U.S.

Varone has been awarded choreography fellowships from the National Endowment to the Arts, including a three-year fellowship, the highest individual award granted by the NEA Dance Program.

He also has choreographed extensively for the theatre, television, and film, including A&E's "The Planets", nominated for an international Emmy Award, a cable ACE Award and a Grammy Award.

While at UWSP, Fang was recognized by the National Dance Association as the outstanding undergraduate dance major at the institution. She also minored in music and German.

The BOW program is in the process of hiring a full-time coordinator, which would enable mini-courses and follow-up clinics to be conducted, something that many including Kissinger would like to see.

"It's a great environment in which to learn and a safe way to try new things," she said.

Women have their choice of taking classes that focus on three areas: shooting and hunting, fishing, and non-harvest activities.

There are also fun-filled evening activities that include story telling, fish and game tasting, outdoor equipment fairs and outdoor clothing fashion shows.

According to Thomas, the women enjoy living at Treehaven and always give positive evaluations of the program. As one former student said, "This was the most rewarding experience I have ever participated in."

Hall wins silver medal in Atlanta

By Joe Trawitzki
CONTRIBUTOR

Not many people can say they have had a more exciting summer than UW-SP student Dennis Hall.

Hall not only served as an inspiration to the U. S. Greco-Roman wrestling team while en route to a silver medal, but he and his wife, Chrissy, also experienced the birth of his first child less than two weeks later.

As the defending World Champion, the 25-year old Neosho native went to Atlanta as the best hope for a gold medal for the U.S. Fate held a different plan for Hall.

"I went to Atlanta and did the best I could, giving everything I had to give and then some. It was a great experience wrestling in front of the home crowd.

"Sometimes things don't work out the way you want, but you adjust. I didn't get my gold, but I'll take the silver and treasure it forever," Hall commented.

Dennis wrestled his best, and came as close as anyone could to winning the first American gold since 1984.

Hall won two extremely close matches to reach the finals. He scored a 3-2 victory over South Korea's Park Chi-Ho. After receiving a quarter-final bye, Hall reached the finals beating China's Zetian Sheng, who came back to win the bronze, 1-0. Both matches went the distance, including overtime.

The gold-medal match featured a rematch of the 1995 World Championship match. However, the outcome was extremely different this time around as Hall lost a 4-1 decision to Youri Melnitchenko of Kazakhstan.

"Melnitchenko is a real tough competitor, and he just got the best of me that time. Hopefully next time it'll be the other way around," Hall stated.

Despite not winning the gold, Hall felt very prepared for the match. His intense style of training focused on the physical and mental aspects of the tough sport.

Hall constantly worked out two times a day, stepping it up to three times a few months before the major tournaments. He also worked with a sports psychologist, B.V. Hendricks of Georgia, for the last 18 months.

Besides being a leader on the mat, Hall, the team's co-captain, lead off the mat as well. Before the Olympics, Hall shaved his head to gain a mental edge over opponents. The rest of the team followed suit as a tribute to their leader.

Although Hall plans to continue wrestling internationally at least through the 2000 Olympics, wrestling is no longer the only priority in life.

The Halls now have Tyler William in their life. Tyler William was born in Hartford at 2:40 a.m. on August 3, 1996, a healthy 19.5 inches and 7 pounds five ounces.

"That was a wonderful experience seeing Tyler born. It puts everything in perspective. I would rather have him than any medal in the world," Hall said.

Besides international wrestling and a family to keep Dennis busy, he will return to Stevens Point to help coach the wrestling team as well as finish his degree.

Hall has 3 full semesters before graduation with a degree in Heath and Wellness, but admits "Who knows when I'll finish, but I'll get it done."

Those words of perseverance ring true throughout Hall's life just as he seems sure he will someday get Olympic gold.

With the Packers' 39-13 rout of the Philadelphia Eagles on Monday night, talk of Super Bowl XXXI has increased just when everyone thought it couldn't get any bigger.

Even before the team crushed its first two opponents, almost every national publication, from Sports Illustrated to The Sporting News, was picking the green and gold to be in New Orleans on January 26, 1997.

However, there is still one team that is standing in the Packers' way, and this team has ended Green Bay's season the last three years: The Dallas Cowboys.

Dallas has defeated the Packers seven straight times in Texas Stadium, but the Pack has another chance to break the streak on Monday, November 18th. They desperately need to win that game for the Super Bowl talk to be warranted.

Green Bay has made tremendous strides to get themselves closer to the Cowboys in the off-season, while free-agent losses and injuries to Dallas have helped even the playing field as well.

For the Pack, both the resigning of tight ends Mark Chmura and Keith Jackson and the acquisitions of Santana Dotson and Eugene Robinson have bolstered the weapons on both the offensive and defensive sides of the ball.

Dallas coach Barry Switzer even admitted he had the thinnest team in football with off-season losses of four defensive starters and the likely season ending injury to Jay Novacek.

Switzer and owner Jerry Jones claim the loss of Larry Brown is insignificant because of the return of Pro Bowl cornerback Kevin Smith from achilles tendon surgery. However, with Deion Sanders playing both ways full time until Michael Irvin gets back, the chance of injury to him is greatly increased. If he or Smith got hurt, they have no significant backup to fill in at the corner position.

The losses of Russell Maryland, and Darrin Smith will also hurt depth. Dallas signed former Packer Fred Strickland to replace Smith at the middle linebacker position, but many Green Bay fans agree that the move was a downgrade in personnel.

The Packers also have the toughest schedule in the NFL, so none of their other games will be gimmies. And even though Ron Wolf says his team is only concentrating on winning its division right now, home-field advantage throughout the playoffs is definitely a high priority.

I'm sure everyone in Wisconsin would prefer to see Dallas playing the NFC Championship game at Lambeau Field in January instead of back home in Texas Stadium.

Bennett named new hoops coach

By Joshua Morby
CONTRIBUTOR

On May 24, UW-SP named Jack Bennett men's head basketball coach.

Bennett, 47, brother of UW-Madison's head coach Dick Bennett, comes to Point with 26 years of coaching experience.

"Once the position popped there was some mutual interest and the more I got into it the better I felt," said Bennett.

Bennett's head coaching career began in the high school ranks.

He spent two seasons as a head coach at Park Falls HS, four seasons at Marinette HS, and seven years as head coach of WI Rapids HS.

Bennett then moved up to the college game as an assistant coach at UW-Eau Claire, where he spent five years.

Bennett then went back to coach in high school, as he spent six seasons as the head coach of Rhinelander HS.

Overall, Bennett's teams finished in the top three of their respective conferences in 17 of 19 seasons at the high school level and all five seasons at UW-Eau Claire.

Bennett will keep the staff of former coach Bob Parker who resigned in late March.

Point's top assistant, Ken Koelbl said, "The team is very happy to have Jack Bennett as our coach. He has strong leadership skills and work ethics that will carry us to a higher level."

Athletic Director Frank O'Brien also had high praise for

Bennett

Bennett, saying, "He has won everywhere he has gone."

The Jack Bennett era begins on November 17th as the Pointers open their season in the Terry Porter Classic in Quandt Gym.

Golf begins new program

By Ryan Lins
CONTRIBUTOR

The difficulties and challenges of starting up a new inter-collegiate program sport are numerous.

UW-SP Women's Golf coach Scott Frazier is trying to overcome them quickly.

Coach Frazier combed the state, and sent out dozens of letters to come up with a competitive 11 person squad.

"I'm trying to put this into perspective," said Frazier. "Six months ago we had no team, no schedule, no golf facility. Now we have 11 ladies ready to hit the links."

"So our expectations are to have a great experience on the first UW-SP Woman's Golf team ever. If we can be competitive, all the better," added Frazier.

On their inaugural performance, the Lady Pointers tied with St. Olaf college for a respectable ninth place out of a talented field of fourteen teams.

Rachel Plens, the only golfer on the team with collegiate experience, led the team with an impressive score of 174 (9th overall).

Plens' outstanding round earned the sophomore from Kenosha the honor of WWIAC golf athlete of the week.

Senior Jodie Duffe also shot a competitive score of 197.

The Lady Pointers next play on Sept. 13-14 on the friendly fairways of Sentry-World and Wisconsin River golf courses for the Stevens Point Invitational.

Some definitions for a successful season may not come in the win-loss column this year, but instead in personal improvements and an aim towards consistent play.

"Our goal (this season) is to get four or five players shooting consistent, error-free golf around the 90 level," states coach Frazier.

Pritchard promoted

By Mike Kemmeter
SPORTS EDITOR

The UW-SP baseball program filled its coaching vacancy with a familiar face last week in announcing the hiring of Scott Pritchard.

An assistant coach for the past three years with the Pointers, Pritchard should be acquainted with the program he inherited from Guy Otte. Otte left the Pointers to work in the Mosinee School District.

"I'm very excited. My goal is to develop a team that will someday challenge for the conference championship. That will be done with hard work and take some time but, it can be done. We have a good nucleus of players returning to take on that challenge," said Pritchard.

Before he became an assistant coach, Pritchard played catcher for four years at UW-SP. He hit .200 with 21 RBI's in 54 games as a Pointer. Pritchard graduated in 1993 with a bachelors degree in Economics. He will continue his studies in Physical Education while coaching.

Pritchard was also a coach with Stevens Point American Legion. He was an assistant coach with the Post 6 Legion team and the head coach of the Junior Sixers team for the past two years.

"I'm excited about Scott as our head baseball coach because he obviously has a real passion for the game. I'm confident that with his work ethic, he will help the program be successful," said UW-SP Athletic Director Frank O'Brien.

By Charlie Sensenbrenner

Fresh faces abound these days on the cleat-torn grass of the women's soccer field.

Nine returning letter winners hope to lead a talented crew of 19 first-year players to the Wisconsin Women's Intercollegiate Athletic Conference Championship for a fourth consecutive title.

This team is markedly different in make-up then the experienced squads coach Sheila Miech has won with in the past; however, her expectations remain high.

"We don't have the veteran leadership we've had in the past. But we're still very excited about the season."

Though the Pointers lack quantity of returning players, they more than make up for it with quality.

Senior Savonte Walker, a first team All-WWIAC, All State, and second team Regional All-American goalkeeper, was durable and nearly impossible to score upon in 1995.

While playing every minute of the season, she earned a paltry 0.48 goals-against-average and notched 13 shutouts.

Erin Lienweber led the charge on the offensive end with nine goals and ten assists to earn second team All-WWIAC and All-State honors.

"Savonte and Erin are our captains," said Miech, "With their experience under fire the younger players will look to them."

Junior Kim Cwik earned first team All-State and second team

After sitting out of conference play last season, the Stevens Point Rugby Football Club picked up right where they left off, edging conference foe Marquette University in the final minutes of the match 18-17.

Despite losing out on a season of experience, the club remembered how the game is played.

Before being suspended, the team had qualified for the national tournament two straight years, including a state championship in 1994.

"It was an encouraging first game back after sitting out for so long. The match went off really well. It was a wholesome family event. However, the matched showed we have to really work on our personal fitness," coach Mike Williams commented.

The match served as a test of endurance for Point, who trailed most of the match.

The smaller Marquette team tried to use its physical conditioning as the deciding factor, but Point was more determined to demonstrate themselves as one of the top teams once again.

Trailing 17-15 with four minutes remaining, Jason Young capitalized on a Marquette penalty. He made a three point drop kick to give SPRFC a 19-17 lead.

Football blanks Stout 28-0

By Nick Brilowski
CONTRIBUTOR

Led by a strong rushing performance from Stan Strama and Nate Harms and a ferocious defense, the UW-Stevens Point football team got their 1996 season off on the right foot by defeating the UW-Stout Blue Devils 28-0 in a WSUC tilt on Saturday night in Menomonie.

Despite an off night from standout quarterback Tom Fitzgerald, the Pointers managed to rack up 436 yards of offense, with 329 of them coming on the ground.

Strama led the charge with 131 yards on just 13 carries while backfield mate Harms pitched in 122 yards in 15 carries.

Though Fitzgerald was just 8-27 for 91 yards through the air, he was able to add to the rushing attack with 5 rushes for 44 yards.

"We're really happy with the football game, with it being the conference opener," said UW-SP head coach John Miech.

The victory gave Miech, now in his ninth year, his 56th win at Stevens Point. That ties him for first all-time at the school with Duaine Counsell.

Harms got Point's second series of the game going when he broke free for a 42 yard prance on the first play.

Strama started off the scoring seven plays later with a 3 yard plunge with 5:54 remaining in the opening quarter. Fred Galecke's point after made the score 7-0.

After the defense held three plays and out, Fitzgerald completed an eleven play, 69 yard drive with a three yard run. The extra point gave the Pointers a 14-0 lead with 2:09 left in the first.

The score remained the same until Strama broke free again, this time on a 12 yard scamper to help push the lead to 21-0 at the 8:31 mark in the third quarter.

The four play, 82 yard series was highlighted by a beautiful 61 yard run by Strama which set up the TD two plays later.

Then, after a Jason Aguire interception, Jose Banda capped off a five play, 66 yard drive with an 18 yard touchdown catch from Fitzgerald with 5:06 to play in the third to finish off the scoring.

"Stout feared Tom Fitzgerald. So with their coverages, they were basically saying: Run. What's neat about that is we can," added Miech.

Through it all, the defense was stellar, allowing only 199 yards. A mere 56 of those came on the ground in 30 carries.

The Dogs D also forced nine Stout punts, while recording four sacks, intercepting three passes, recovering one fumble, and allowing the Blue Devils to convert on only 2 of 17 third down opportunities.

Clint Kriewaldt and Nate VanZeeland led the way with each being in on twelve tackles. Mark Fetzer recorded two sacks, and Eric Grudzinski and Ryan Krcmar both had interceptions.

"Anytime you can shut out an opponent in this conference, it's a task that doesn't occur very often," Miech said in praising his defense.

The Pointers will return to action on Saturday, September 14 taking on Iowa Wesleyan College at Goerke Field at 7 p.m. in the home opener and the tenth annual Spud Bowl.

In any sport, it takes game experience before a young team is comfortable playing together.

The Pointers opened with tough losses in San Antonio to Trinity University 3-0 and Southwestern University 2-1.

However, back in Wisconsin, the Pointers showed talent and heart in an impressive 2-1 victory in overtime at River Falls.

Point battled back from a first half deficit with 33 shots on goal versus 11 by UWRF.

Erin Leinweber had an assist to Laura Gissibl in the second half for the first score. Then with 1:49 left in overtime, Gissibl fed Kelly Morgan the winning goal.

UWSP played their home opener on Wednesday versus St. Mary's University.

This weekend the Pointers will host the University of St. Thomas at 3 P.M. on Saturday and UW-Platteville at 1 P.M. on Sunday at the Pointer Soccer Bowl.
