$2.1 million renovation scheduled for UC
Offices in basement will relocate
By Andrea Wetzel
ASSISTANT NEWS EDITOR
Student organizations in the basement of the University Center (UC) will relocate next semester due to renovations projected to cost approximately $2.1 million.

The Campus Activities/Student Involvement, Association for Community Tasks, Centerentainment, Residence Hall Association (RHA), and Inter Greek Council offices will relocate to the lower level of Debot Center. The Student Government Association (SGA) office will move to the third floor of Nelson Hall near the Women's Resource Center.

The renovations will add office space for more student organizations.

"When these changes are made, it will free up thousands of new square feet for additional student organizations to meet and do their work," said John Jury, executive director of the UC.

Many students think the move will be a necessary inconvenience.

90 FM makes its presence felt in Stevens Point community
Radiothon and Trivia bring station to prominence

90 FM WWSP's publicity and fundraising event Radiothon '99 raised more than $3,600 last week. This is the fourth year the station has held the event and Station Manager Jeff Bahr carried claims it to be "the biggest Radiothon revenue wise for 90 FM."

The funds raised from Radiothon support the various specialty shows, sports and other station expenses.

The two day event hosted an on-air auction with goods, services, vouchers and gift certificates from various area businesses.

Items auctioned included various clothing apparel, an autographed Green Bay Packers item, 150 pounds of potatoes, golf passes, Milwaukee Bucks tickets and free hotel rooms, CD collections and food vouchers to some restaurants and eateries.

Radiothon's on-air auction consisted of 55 separate auction blocks, each containing items donated by various businesses in the Stevens Point community.

Dieterich recovers from illness
By Joe Shead
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
It should have been a routine physical for English Professor Dan Dieterich. But it wasn't.

Last September, during a physical, doctors noticed a nodule on Dieterich's right lung. Doctors performed tests on Dieterich and couldn't determine whether or not the nodule was cancerous. Not taking any chances, Dieterich and the doctors decided to remove the nodule.

"Instead of getting better, I was getting worse," Dieterich said.

Unfortunately for Dieterich, his normal doctor wasn't in. Another doctor tested Dieterich and told him he had something similar to asthma and gave him an inhaler.

UW-SP student to speak at LGBT rally

Ryan Nelson, Student Government Association (SGA) Vice President, Ryann Nelson will speak at a rally and celebration for the recognition and pride of the Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender (LGBT) community at UW-Fox Valley today Friday.

"This is an event that is long overdue," said Emily Nelson, Fox Valley campus, SGA president. Student representatives from various UW-campuses will be present at this issue.

"I will be addressing some of the challenges I faced as a queer student on campus," said Ryan Nelson who will join five other keynote speakers.

Representative Mark Pocan, 7th District State Assembly representative will also be present at the event.

"The event aims to create awareness in the community and to break through the community's association with AIDS and urban mythology surrounding the LGBT community," said Emily Nelson, who organized the event.

Emily Nelson admits that the issue needs addressing of Fox Valley. "The LGBT Community has been criticized, and it's struggling with its acceptance in the Fox Cities areas."

She also points out that the Fox Valley and Wisconsin are not the only areas that need to address the issue, "It is a problem that spills outside of the state of Wisconsin, it needs to be addressed across the nation."

The inquirer wasn't doing the right thing.

Dieterich had a follow-up appointment with his surgeon and decided to ask the surgeon about his condition. After numerous tests, the surgeons concluded that Dieterich had massive pulmonary embolisms and blood clots in his lungs.

His heart was pumping blood to the lungs, but his lungs couldn't get the blood because he blocked arteries. This condition can be fatal.

"Heart works very hard to pump the blood, and people often die of heart failure."

WTO officials and city administrators in Seattle did not expect such a large-scale protest and were unprepared for it. By Tuesday, the police in Seattle had martial law and the National Guard was brought in on Wednesday to curb the large crowd of protesters.

Though the protests did not bring about a change of heart from WTO officials and the Clinton Administration on their move towards an extra time for the move, it will enhance productivity of the campus activity centers as a whole.”

Stephanie VanPay, an RHA delegate from SOPH. Selle added, “Despite the inconvenience and extra time for the move, it will enhance productivity and creativity of the campus activity centers as a whole.”

SGA Vice President Ryann Nelson said she did not think the move would be a setback. “I think the students will make student organization offices easier to find. Instead of walking around service areas such as trip sign-up will remain in the UC at the Information Desk. The renovations were projected to be finished in the fall of 2000.

Radio voice of Pointer hockey backs RC

Evidently, The Pointer has nothing better to do than try and rip apart an unofficial student organization that is actually showing school spirit rather than throwing house parties or scribbling illegible messages on the sidewalks.

Zak Redding's article in the Nov. 18th edition was totally off base. The Pointer has no right to make such statements, First Amendment or otherwise, until they actually cover a game in person, and not just take what they've heard. I have seen photographers from the Pointer in the press box with me, but I have yet to run into a "journalist."

Now, Nick Brilowski feels the need to keep feeding the fire. That's a big mistake in my opinion. Mr. Brilowski, in his position as Sports Editor, should have realized that the Redding article did nothing constructive, but in fact, put his "paper" on an even more remote island than it already was.

I think it would be in the best interest of The Pointer to drop this subject and move on. The team itself, needs your coverage. Not what the fans are doing in the stands. After all, after the Rowdy Crowd discussion is done, what's next? Setting down a man who's shouting at the Willett.

Cat article is good community service

I don't know if Andy Chikowski is a member of the Pointer staff but you could do a real service to the community if you would make his column into a letter to both the Stevens Point Journal and the Pointer Gazette.

I considered making copies of this article and sending these two to neighbors, both of whom have cats running free. Not wishing to turn the neighborhood into a war zone, I have resisted. Perhaps if they were to read this article they would take the necessary steps to eliminate this menace to the local bird population without the neighbors having to eliminate the cause.

-Kill WTO will will developing countries

The front page story in the Dec. 2 issue of The Pointer about the World Trade Organization protests and protests was incomplete. Cynicism about a world wide bureaucracy to control trade is justified. The WTO believes that it is more powerful than any government in the world. WTO says that this is because it is able to invidualize any one country that conflicts with the WTO's vision of how the world should operate, no matter what the people of a country may prefer.

However, it's ironic that the protests we heard from claim to support the developing countries of the world while they try to consign the entire Third World to permanent poverty? The policies promoted by the Clinton administration would keep consumer prices high here and by promoting sanctions against developing countries, limit their development and, therefore, potential markets for U.S. exports.

Late 20th century labor, safety and environmental restrictions are of no use to developing countries where their advantage is cheap labor or resources. Developing countries are attracting record levels of investment. Proposed WTO restrictions would have killed their chances for development. Delegates from those countries recognized that and killed this meeting. However, the so-called "progressives" may organize future meetings like that in Seattle. Countries in the developing world have the right to retain their sovereignty, just as the United States should. They have the right to conduct their affairs without being told what to do by labor leaders and imperialist social planners, whether they speak in the halls of the WTO or protest in the streets of Seattle or Stevens Point.

I don’t think too many people noticed the glazed-over look in my eyes during class yesterday afternoon. All I know is that 30 minutes of class came and went but I don’t remember hearing a single word the professor or anyone else said the whole time. It wasn’t because I had gotten just three hours of restless sleep the night before, or because I had been up since the wee hours of the morning writing a research paper that was due at noon, or even because my class was about the English romantic poets, but it didn’t help either.

Instead, in my mind, I was ice fishing. The wind was blowing across the lake, making the tip-up flags flutter loudly. The sun was beating down on the world of white, and my cheeks were just a little frosty. The furthest flag popped up and I was the first to make the jump.

It has been the first year in protest to the then first year in protest to the then clearing up on the 10, so I snapped out of my daze. The written word, if penned correctly, can insight emotions and images complete with sensory perceptions. John Burroughs, nature essayist, is no stranger to the powers of a literary magician.

Burroughs was born in Roxbury, New York April 3, 1837 at the base of the Catskill Mountains. At the age of 17, Burroughs, with his sharp mind and patient demeanor, earned a teaching position and began writing about nature for various magazines. Marrying Ursula North at the age of 20, Burroughs was convinced the path of an author lay before him.

"I sometimes think I will not make the kind of husband that will always suit you," he writes to his new wife "If I live, I shall be an author. My life will be one of study. It may be a weakness in me to cherish the thoughts I do, but I can't help it."

"John Burroughs did perhaps more than anyone else to open our eyes to the beauty of nature" - Clyde Fisher, past Curator of the American Museum of Natural History

Six years later with newborn son, Julian, in tow, the Burroughs’ moved to Washington D.C. Accepting a position for the U.S. Department of Treasury, Burroughs pursued his interests in botany and ornithology. Burroughs’ first novel, Notes on Walt Whitman as Poet and Person, marked the beginning of his publishing career. Perhaps his best-known piece, Waker Robin, brought great literary praise that was later to encompass 23 volumes. The dominant theme in Burroughs’ writings was nature.

Many times, with my nose buried deep in a novel, a word, phrase or thought reaches out to tap on my brain, politely repeating "Remember!"

Needless to say, I never do. However, John Burroughs' passage from Birds and Poets is the epitome of literary perfection. In fact it would be a disgrace not to stop and meditate upon this passage. Without further ado, John Burroughs.

"There are those who look at Nature from the standpoint of conventional and artificial life—from parlor windows and through gilt-edged poems—the sentimentalists.

Hockey earns split on East Coast road trip

Point moves up in D-III rankings

By Mike Peck

Sports Reporter

The Pointer men's hockey team split its huge weekend series against a pair of national powers.

Friday, the Pointers squared off with the five-time defending national champions and second-ranked Middlebury College. Led by goaltender Bob Gould's 29 saves, Stevens Point scored two third period goals to lead the Pointers over the Panthers 3-1.

"After bearing Middlebury, we knew that we could go out and play anybody, anywhere," said head coach Joe Baldarotta. "They have a lot of respect for them and we feel that we gained some respect from them," said Baldarotta.

Due to their successful road trip, the Pointers vaulted into second place in the nation, while Middlebury fell to fifth place overall. UW-SP heads into this weekend's home games with a 9-2-0 record.

Point knocks off Superior after falling to Eau Claire

By Michelle Tesmer

Sports Reporter

The UW-Stevens Point women's basketball team was in desperate need of a victory Wednesday night heading into its match-up with UW-Superior at the Berg Gym.

"We wanted to be 1-1, but I like where we're sitting," she said.

Jessica Ott tried to spark a second half run for UW-SP by hitting a three and a jumper in back-to-back plays to pull within 11 points, but Eau Claire countered with a 24-5 run of its own. On finished the game with 15 points.

UW-SP managed to battle back themselves, taking a 30-29 lead into halftime. The 55-45 edge was trimmed to a 9-point lead at 46-36.

Eau Claire's lead remained at 58-54 for the game. Coach Shirley Eigner, "They just flat out beat us to the ball. That's desire and determination—it has nothing to do with skill or talent.

"Anderson is not aazzle-dazzle player. She just did all the little things right."

The loss dropped the Pointers to 0-2 in division play at the time, but Eigner was not discouraged.

Boelk will compete against America's best in August

By Jessica Burda
SPORTS EDITOR

Taking their sports to the next level, several Pointer athletes have moved beyond college competition into the leagues of professional football, basketball, hockey and baseball to become some of America's elite athletes.

Boelk, a native of Merril, Wis., said, "I just thought about conference meets and nationals, nothing really beyond college swimming." In fact, Boelk set a new meet and pool record in the 100 backstroke with a 49.96 second performance in the 100 backstroke proved to be the catalyst for an opportunity the Pointer swimmer assumed was out of reach.

"I never really thought about it and I was really, really surprised," said Boelk, who looks forward to just attending the meet and watching the other qualifiers.

"It's pretty damn exciting," said Pointer head coach Al Boelk, Randy's older brother.

Wheaton "solid" for Pointers

The Point swimming and diving team competed in its mid-season shave and taper meet at the Wheaton College Invitational Saturday. Both the men and the women teams placed second at the nine-team invitational.

"The focus of this meet was 100% individual," head coach Al Boelk said. "This isn't logical for winning the meet, but I wanted each person to choose the events that they wanted to swim, rested and shaved so they could get their best times." The men took second with 649.5 points to UW-Milwaukee with 893 points. The Pointers qualified four relays for nationals, while Randy Boelk and Jeremy Francioli both qualified in individual events.

The only other top finisher for the Pointers was Nathan Ugoretz. Ugoretz placed sixth at 149 pounds after losing to Corey Crandell of Truman State University 7-3. The Pointer wrestling team will compete at Wisconsin Open

SPORTS REPORTER

The Pointer wrestling team competed in the Wisconsin Open held at UW-Parkside Sunday. Redshirt sophomore Mark Burger, a native of Merrill, Wis., led the Pointers with a third place finish in the heavyweight division.

Kapping took fifth place after earning a 5-2 decision over Andrew Melton of UW-La Crosse.

The only other top finisher for the Pointers was Nathan Ugoretz. Ugoretz placed sixth at 149 pounds after losing to Corey Crandell of Truman State University 7-3. The Pointers travel to UW-Platteville this Thursday to wrestle in a conference meet against the Pioneers.

Count
Audubon societies conduct the counts in their areas, but some are run by interested individuals, alone or with a few of their birding friends.

Apart from its attraction as a social, sporting and competitive event, the count reveals interesting and scientifically useful information on the distribution patterns of various bird species and the overall health of the environment.

As the first century of the Count ends, it continues to grow in importance as a means of monitoring the status of resident and migratory bird populations across the Western Hemisphere.

Count data from 1900 to the present are available through the BirdSource website, a cooperative project of the National Audubon Society and the Cornell Laboratory of Ornithology.

For more information about Christmas Bird Counts in Wisconsin, including information about any local count, contact Bill Hilsenhoff. He can be called at (608)836-4720.

Environmentalists of today remember Rachel Carson, Thoreau and Muir. Richard Frisbie, head of Hope Fann Press and Bookshop Sites Burroughs religious connotations as a chord of distaste among readers of this generation.

Edward J. Renehan Jr., author of John Burroughs: An American Naturalist suggests Burroughs' silent, nonactive role in the movement contributed to a lapse in memory.

Still, John Burroughs Sanctuary prospers, offering hiking, bird watching and nature observation year-round. Goals of the association encompass keeping his memory alive, to encourage nature writing and to honor Slabsides, now an historic landmark.

Mary Agazzi was second in the 100 freestyle and third in the 50 freestyle.

“Over all it was a solid meet,” added Coach Boelk.

The Pointers have a dual meet this Saturday at 1:00 in Oshkosh.

Gabe Frank appeared to get a steal but the official away from the play ruled that he was out of bounds, giving the ball back to the Blugolds, a call that didn’t sit well with Pointer coach Jack Bennett.

“That call was very crucial,” Bennett said, “because the wrong official made the call. He made the call from beyond mid-court and in front of the Eau Claire bench.”

Point was also on the wrong end of a non-call late in regulation when it appeared that a Blugold player traveled with the ball, but no call was made.

“When you try to put yourself in position to win, you want to have the opportunity to have the players decide the ballgame,” Bennett added. “There was nothing wanting in the effort or desire. It was just a classic college basketball game.”

The Pointers were dealt a huge blow when Katalin Kadima’s arthroscopic surgery on Monday revealed more damage than was first believed. He will miss the remainder of the season.

“I had no idea I would find myself in the middle of tear gas for voicing my opinion,” said Churness.

Churness added, “The physical pain of the tear gas was nothing compared to the feeling of another human being attempting to torture another for no just reason.”

Professor Brophy-Baerman summarizes some of the sentiments of the protesters with this statement, “In short, this is a closed, undemocratic system of international rule-making that drains the life out of the power of the people to govern themselves.”

The city of Seattle faces an estimated $2 million in damages from the rally.

Students to present Shakespeare comedy

"The Complete Works of William Shakespeare (Abridged)," a comedy consisting of 37 plays in 97 minutes, will be staged this month at UW-Stevens Point.

Performances will be Thursday through Saturday, Dec. 9-11 at 7:30 p.m. in the Studio Theatre of the Fine Arts Building. Cost of admission is $5 for non-students and $3 for all students. Tickets are available at the Arts and Athletics Ticket Office in Ogg Lower Gym lobby or by calling (715) 346-4100 or 1-800-838-3378. Tickets may also be purchased at the ticket outlet in the CenterPoint Marketplace for an additional 50-cent service charge.

The cast members will perform the play at four high schools in the state after it is closed at UW-SP. Public performances are scheduled in Monticello on Jan. 4, DeForest on Jan. 5, Appleton West High School on Jan. 6, and Wisconsin Rapids West Junior High School on Jan. 7.

"Most people have a fear of Shakespeare's work and find it off-putting," said the play's director, Scott Dela Cruz of Wisconsin Rapids. "This is a fun way to look at his work, even if you haven't liked it in the past."

The production opens as a lecture given by three gentlemen played by Donny Neuflue, Mike Hansha, and Adam Prugh. They begin a review of Shakespeare's plays. They illustrate the drama by putting on bits of period costume, one character dressing as a woman to assume all the female roles. The plot soon becomes a fast, funny, and physical condemnation of Shakespeare's work.

Dela Cruz saw the production while on a semester abroad in London. He thought it was hysterically funny and decided to bring the play to UW-SP.

The longest running comedy in London's West End theater district, the script was developed by Adam Long, Daniel Singer, Jess Winfield and Reed Martin who have performed it on tours in the U.S. as "The Reduced Shakespeare Company." The group has also produced condensed versions of the Bible, Shakespeare's sonnets, and the history of the English language.

The play is sponsored by Players, the student organization of UW-SP's Department of Theatre and Dance.

From the Lifestyle Assistants
By Elisabeth Herbner
UW-SP LIFESTYLE ASSISTANT

Are you getting enough vitamins?

It's 7:30 in the morning. The alarm goes off. You hit the snooze button and finally roll out of bed 10 minutes later. So you throw on some clothes, a hat and if the people in your class are lucky, you will have brushed your teeth. Most students wouldn't find anything wrong with this picture, but where's breakfast? How are you going to make it through the day and actually benefit from class if you don't have energy?

Typical college students may have a less-than-nutritious diet, and may also have not-so-healthy lifestyle behaviors. Staying up late is common for a lot of students here on campus, whether it's for studying, spending time with friends or partying. Because many students eat on the run, possibly skip breakfast, don't get enough sleep, and are under constant stress, it is important to make sure that they are getting the nutrients that they need.

Students might want to consider increasing sources of vitamin C which can be found in citrus fruits, berries, green and leafy vegetables, tomatoes, cauliflower and potatoes, just to name a few. Vegetables, whole grains and eggs are a good source of Vitamin E, which is also important for college students. Women should also make sure they get enough iron and both men and women need adequate calcium. Good sources of iron include dried peaches, red meat, egg yolks, beans, spinach and oatmeal. Milk and milk products, all cheeses, peanuts and green vegetables are all excellent sources of calcium.

So instead of reaching for the soda and potato chips, try an apple and some milk to get the nutrients your body needs to help you make it through the day.

Although everyone should be getting vitamins and minerals the natural way, through foods, sometimes it is not possible for college students. To maintain proper body functioning, UW-Stevens Point Health Services recommends that students take a multivitamin sometimes with extra supplements of certain vitamins and minerals depending on gender, activity level, medications being taken (including the oral contraceptive) and other factors. In general, men should not take extra iron, even the amount found in a multiple vitamin with iron. A multivitamin, such as Centrum, One a Day, or Nature Made is a good place to start and can be purchased almost anywhere, like County Market or Kmart. The UW-SP Health Service also sells vitamins in the pharmacy for a reasonable rate.

End of the World As We Know It...

by Pat "Penguin" Rothfuss
The Gift That Keeps on Giving

Here's a few helpful hints for dealing with the end of the year.

End of Semester crunch
Make a list

Write down all the things you need to accomplish in the next two weeks. Make sure to include time for sleep, roommate abuse, and the occasional panic-attack brought on by the fear that there is a devil clown living under your bed.

Buy Ramen TM
Ramen is a magical food. It is cheap, lightweight, stores indefinitely, and can be unwrapped, cooked and eaten in less than five minutes. This last factor is of special use at this time in the semester. All that time you would have wasted eating real food can now be better spent avoiding your end-of-the-semester projects.

Eat Penguin Caffeinated Mints
If Prometheus had been a student, he would have stolen Penguin Mints from the Gods.

Penguins combine a lovely stimulant with fresh breath. The perfect thing for keeping you minty and alert all the way through finals. You can buy them in the school store in the UC.

What a Glorious Sunset!!!
By Kelvin Chen

A projection of a young man's body floating in a pool of water greets the audience as he eerily recalls the events leading to his death. Scenic elements cut forward to a car chase and next thing the audience sees is a monster of a stage prop. Occupying the entire stage - the interior of a Baroque mansion - the set demands the attention of the audience, very much like the wings to the young man into the place - "You there! Why don't you come on in?"

The story focuses very much on the relationship between Joe Gillis - a struggling screenwriter, and Norma Desmond, a demented faded movie star from the silent era. The current production is the second since the first production closed due to the expensive production cost of lifting the mansion set from state to state.

Petula Clark leads the current cast after having won raving reviews for her performance as Norma Desmond in London. Best remembered for her 60's hit - Downtown in the United States, Clark was a singer until the stage acting bug bit her. She has since performed the role of Maria in Sound of Music as well as Mrs. Johnstone in Blood Brothers. Clark's Norma is one bent on the end of campiness which is pretty good, although his touching presence to the audience, very much like the wings to the young man into the place - "You there! Why don't you come on in?"

Despite Clark's stunning performance, the whole production of this show seems to have lost its touch of grandiosity and excesses found in the earlier productions with its multi-million dollar set, although it is now a much trimmer production. Everything on stage yells "Get Out of My Face!" in your face from the palm trees to the actors.

The musical is richly entertaining despite its film noir themes. The lyrics are inventive, catchy and often contain key words and themes taken off the film version, while the music contains the typical "hummable" quality found often in most Lloyd Webber musicals - (Think of Cats, Evita, Phantom et al.). Add the florid orchestrations in, and Sunset Boulevard is a coup de theatre.

Sunset Boulevard will be playing at the Weidner Center in Green bay, WI from Jan. 4 to Jan. 9, 2000. For more information regarding ticketing, please call 1-800-328-TKTS or visit the website at http://www.uwgb.edu/weidner.

Radiothon called in to bid on the items described on air with bids going as high as $400 for an opportunity to co-host "The Fabulous Saturday Morning Freak Show."

Other big bids included $400 for a guitar case filled with acoustic revival CDs and $275 for a Grateful Dead Band backpack with 50 new age CDs. One caller purchased both these CD packages.

"We at 90 FM are really excited, Radiothon grew up this year and I believe it will become a permanent fixture in 90 FM," said Buhrandt. Promotions Director, John Gardner accredited the success of Radiothon to the businesses who donated the items and to area community.

"Without the support of our listeners and the area businesses, Radiothon would not have been such a big success," said Gardner.

Another permanent fixture and trademark of the station is the Trivia game organized and run by the station. The writer for Trivia, Jim Oliva, or better known as Oz also revealed the theme of Trivia 2000 on Saturday during his Saturday Morning Freak Show. "Y2K - the bug strikes" will be the theme for Trivia 2000, scheduled to be held on April 14th, 15th and 16th April next year.
