This year we celebrate the centenary of an epic year in American history. One hundred years ago, the FORTY NINER fearlessly followed the setting sun into a frontier land beset with perils and problems. Though we glory in the memory of the pioneers, we still look upon the world around us today as boundless in opportunity for the eager and the willing.

The true FORTY-NINER of the present century is the graduating student who must venture into the world of conflicting ideas and cope with problems of terrific import in the history of man. As teacher, as parent, and as citizen he must be open-minded, open-hearted and courageous.

We know that CSTC'ers have these qualities and the vitality to determine a future no less bold than that of 1849. To them we offer this record of their activities and their progress along the way.

STUDENT HOUSING

With September, comes the student. The dorm, sporting a new coat of paint, welcomes the new and old students; private homes are opened to the endless stream of men and women coming to our college from all corners of the state; and trailers are moved in or reopened in "Gasoline Alley." Just like the forty-niner, the student is a prospector too; his room is the starting and finishing point of his expeditions in the endless search for knowledge.

Home Is Where The Heart Is

ON AND OFF THE CAMPUS

"Free period this morning? I'll meet you for coffee." The College Eat Shop and the Campus Cafe have become familiar places where we can always find a booth overflowing with friends, books and noise. Although these places are a far cry from the "Silver Dollar" and the Gibson Restaurants of a century ago, they provide the same thing — friendly company, for as long as one cares to stay.

Where Old Friends Meet

SEPTEMBER

The 49'ers — gold diggers — seeking to "pan-out" a future in the realm of education. In 1849, the prospector sought his fortune on a frontier that has since vanished. The eager students at the left seek a fortune whose coin is the gold of understanding on an unlimited frontier — the American college.

With determination the Y-Dubs set out as the prospectors of old to achieve their aims of promoting better friendship among the girls of different religions and of providing recreation for them. Overseeing this work were Mrs. William Hansen and Miss Miriam Moser.

Their first attempt, the annual tea for Freshmen, had shining results. Their second, the Sadie Hawkins Day Dance, unearthed fields of sparkling entertainment.

Their most important undertaking of the year was sponsoring informative talks by ministers of the various churches.

OCTOBER

All work and no play would undoubtedly have made Jake, the forty-niner, a dull individual indeed. No less vivid than the antics a century ago are the activities of CSTC'ers during Homecoming weekend. Sharing the feature spot with the game is the election and crowning of the Homecoming queen. Evidence of the long and heated campaign is the galaxy of posters and photos plugging the various candidates.

FOOTBALL

Football began early with a new coach and a group of giants just out of high school, together with the Mutt and Jeff team that had fared very well for the past two or three years under the able guidance of Coach George Berg. Spring practice gave the boys a preview of Coach Hale Quandt's new style of football and, to all involved, it looked like an unbeatable system. The spring season closed with Captain Dick Berndt's team nosing out Captain Boots Derezinski's club by a 14-13 count.

This season started to verify our prediction as the powerful 1500 pound line crushed the preachers of Mission House 21-0. One of the few bright spots in the next three games was "Tiny" Neitzel, who bowled over all resistance without any trouble, to make the majority of tackles. It was evident that our team had been weakened by the loss of Parsons and Kulick, the two first rate quarterbacks who withdrew from school the week before the first game. Then for our homecoming, when Platteville invaded Point, all the energy that had been saved was released. Jimmy, "the rabbit"

Koehn, who is about the size of a big jack rabbit and runs like one, went through the opposing line. His elusive swivel hips, driving legs and change of pace are reasons for his being on the all conference team during his first two years of competition. Joe Haidvolg caught passes that would have been a credit to Don Hutson; and George Emmerich plowed from his fullback spot as if he were being prodded with a hot poker. End "Stuts" Hanke, who had a great day, made the most spectacular play of the game as he dropped a Platteville ball carrier behind the goal for a safety. After the Pointers had crushed Platteville, they rambled on to win three games in a row. Oshkosh was next to feel the wrath of our Pointers. It was at Oshkosh's homecoming that Dehlinger played "Dillinger". Early in the third quarter he stole the "hog hide" and ran it all the way to the Titan's thirteen yard stripe. From then on, it was Point all the way as 21 points were racked up that last half.

On a rainswept Goerke field where the mud was so deep the water boy needed a canoe, the Quandtmen made Whitewater their next victim. It was Koehn and Curry again, with the help of big Joe Haidvogel, who made the Quakers "holler uncle". The victory put the Pointers on a 50-50 basis in the conference, with a better than .500 average, and with a good chance of downing Stout. But the Stout team was rough and ready and when the final whistle blew, the score was 19-19, and Point finished conference play with a .500 average. The following weekend the new bus carried our representatives to De Kalb, where the De Kalb teachers gave ours a lesson in football. This ended the Pointers' season and left only the all conference teams to be picked and a captain to be elected. "Fuzzy" Emmerich, a most likeable and deserving player, was the team's choice as captain, while Harold Neitzel's spectacular line play placed him on the all conference team. His mad charges remain in the memory of all who have seen him play and have made him a C.S.T.C. all-time great. Not much publicity is given to our unsung heroes of the line, but we had more than our share of talent with three ace centers in Gaulke, Scheel and Brunsman, all capable of bruising, line backing play. Pat Love's powerful blocks enabled Point's backs to gain through the center, and with the help of Lorenzen and Jelinek, who had only to fall down to stop any opposition from gaining over the tackle spots, our Pointers held the line. Every man was capable, and even though all were not rewarded with letters and publicity, all have played in a game or two and have a team of friends, developed by the common emotion acquired in the flush of victory or the dismalness of defeat. ....

Eau Claire won the conference championship.

Just as the discovery of gold placed California before the eyes of the people, the Fall Tea brought Omega Mu Chi sorority to the notice of all. At this tea their friendliness was extended to the new women students. This was also the first appearance of their new lace table cloth.

The Omegas are like successful miners, for while toiling to maintain high scholastic averages, they have found rich deposits of friendship in their group associations.

First semester pledges, called "Fishbait", were Esther Berndt, Marjorie Finch, and Joyce Kruger. Second semester pledges Beverly Berg, Lois Conachen, Marjorie Crosby, Marian Drewsen, Joan Fehrenbach, Gretchen Holstein, Muriel Held, Nancie Goebel, Marilyn Knope, Kathleen Pierce, Jean Robertson, Arlene Kromroy, Suzanne Swanke, and Beverly Tibbetts became "Hepcats".

The climax of their social year came at the Inter-sorority dinner dance at which the theme "Dancing In the Dark" was carried out. Other undertakings were the Knitting Bazaar in December and the Mardi Gras skit, "The Omeg Merry-ground".

The faculty advisers are Miss Bertha Glennon, Mrs. Mary Samter, and Miss Harriet Wright.

The spirited Omegas have well earned their claim of being an important organization, for they lend their group vitality to all the other associations to which their actives belong.

As 1949 marks the centennial of the historic event of 1849, so, too, does 1949 mark the 40th anniversary of the founding of the Tau Gamma Beta sorority. The birthday year began with the annual Fall Tea given in October to acquaint and reacquaint the coeds on the campus. First semester pledges, Barbara Lewis, Marjorie Lodzinski, Beatrice Maliarik, Irene Morris, Elizabeth Omernik, and Elizabeth Torzewski, survived the succeeding pledging season. The second semester brought a new social event — the Omegs and the Tau Gams sponsored an Inter-sorority dance.

Close on the heels of the dance came the Mardi Gras skit, "Shipwrecked with Singood," which made an impressive finale to an entertaining evening. The celebration of the year was the combined Pan Hell birthday dinner culminating the second semester's pledging season. Many alums came back and there was a renewal of that sense of comradeship that has long been a tenet of Tau Gamma Beta.

Pledges for the semester were Beverly Barnes, Barbara Bea, Eileen Dahnert, Ada Funk, Margaret Jones, Carla Kruse, Betty Kusserow, Virginia Marros, Dorotheanne Rebella, Grace Peterson, and Phyllis Peterson.

The Tau Gams were happy to welcome back Miss Gladys Van Arsdale, an adviser, who had been working as an educator in Germany. Miss Van Arsdale and Mrs. Mildrede Williams are the faculty advisers for the group.

Forty years have seen Tau Gamma Beta grow from the days of "hush" sororities to its present prominent position on the campus.

NOVEMBER

The Thanksgiving pause in November provides a welcome opportunity for CSTC forty-niners to trek homeward and join in the family feast and reunion.

Even while on campus, the average student is wise enough to balance his intellectual diet with activities like WAA and Glee Club. Another outlet for student energy not consumed in scholastic activity is the fall play season when Thespian "cat-walkers" unite their talents in an all-school production sponsored by College Theater.

Volleyball, basketball, and softball made up the athletic program of the WAA for the year. In addition, the WAA'ers put on their annual Christmas Cheer, complete with refreshments and entertainment. They also dug for those necessary "nuggets" by selling decals and pompoms at Homecoming.

Miss Myrtle Spande, faculty adviser to the group the first semester, took a position in Oregon, transferring the advisership to Miss Adeline Levin, head of the women's physical education department, for the second semester.

Second semester, College Theatre was incorporated into Alpha Psi Omega, the national honorary dramatic society, as the Eta Delta cast. All of its members were eligible because they had participated in major roles in at least two three-act plays. The activities of the group were directed by Leland Burroughs. The new officers elected were John Zylka, president, William Joanis, vice-president, Jean Zahner, secretary, and Phyllis Kasper, business manager. Shakespeare's MIDSUMMER NIGHTS DREAM was produced with an outstanding cast.

Though it did not labor with picks and shovels, the Pan Hell Council laid open the ground work for all Greek activities. Composed of the president and one representative from each Greek organization, the council set aside the dates for the sorority teas, the Greek rushing and pledging seasons, and planned the Pan Hell formals. Guided by Dean Pfiffner and Dean Steiner, it governed the four social Greek organizations.

OH SUSANNAH is still heard today and has become one of the most popular numbers of the Men's Glee Club. These modern ambassadors of song have thrilled audiences all over the state and have spread their fame and good will far and wide. Soloists with the group were Harry Howland, Norvin Holm, Lawrence McKinnon, Thomas Koss, and Wayne Salter.

The college men flocked to join the ranks of these melody-wise men and the organization numbered seventy-two. Of this number forty-five made up the traveling group. The club is directed by Mr. Norman Knutzen.

Memorable occasions for the group were the Homecoming Concert when they appeared in their new jackets, and the Spring Concert when organ accompaniment was used for several of their numbers.

DECEMBER

The meaning of Christmas is ever the same down through the centuries. "Peace on earth, good will toward men" warms the hearts of CSTC'ers, and that theme finds its place in the art and music on the campus. Focal point in our observance is the Christmas concert presented by combined glee clubs, chorus, and orchestra. The art department too, comes in for its share of the credit in preparing for this expressive panorama.

ALPHA KAPPA LAMBDA

Alpha Kappa Lambda, the Conservation club on the campus, is in the embryonic stage of development, having been instituted at CSTC just two years ago. This year saw the club's membership doubled and the scope of its activities expanded, which proves that AKL is forging ahead to new horizons in true pioneer spirit.

The main objective of the organization is directed toward promoting conservation education, while one of its aims is to serve the Conservation Department through research, public relations, and committee services.

AKL's activities for the past year included research projects, field trips, and various instructive meetings conducted by conservation experts. Then, on the lighter side, the conservationists had their annual smelt fry and their venison steak dinner. Among their other activities were the "Sportsmen's Ball" and the Mardi Gras skit of "Circus Freaks."

SCHMEECKLE DOES THE HONORS

SOUP'S ON!

Conservation

Central State Teachers college maintains, for the second year, the record of being the only school of its kind in the country to graduate majors in conservation. The course was instituted last year at this college by the efforts of Fred J. Schmeeckle, director of conservation education, and other members of the conservation department at CSTC.

With the realization of the need for persons schooled in conservation methods, an intensive publicity program was carried on resulting in the present large enrollment in the conservation field at CSTC.

The conservation department recently acquired control of a 40 acre area of forest land to the northeast of Stevens Point. Here the conservationists work in their "outdoor labs" testing soil, replanting trees, and experimenting with soil erosion, — all types of projects are fostered pertaining to various phases of conservation work.

This department is outstanding in its development and can well be made analogous to those progressive "forty-niners."

The Mixed Chorus is composed of students who are interested in singing good music. Under the direction of Mr. Peter J. Michelsen the chorus sang a wide variety of selections ranging from the classical numbers to popular music.

Throughout central Wisconsin the Central State music department has been known for its outstanding Christmas concert. This concert is built around the symphony and the chorus of mixed voices. Each year the participants strive for perfection in the singing of the traditional hymns and carols. Soloists this year were Suzanne Swanke, Joan Fehrenbach, Nancie Goebel, Gretchen Holstein, Joyce West, Carla Kruse, Harriet Marking, John Kowaleski, and Richard Schmidt.

The chorus had a membership of about sixty voices and met twice a week. Grace Peterson was accompanist for the organization and was assisted by Muriel Held.

Wesley, the Methodist organization on campus, has been successful in maintaining contact between the Church and college students. It has promoted Christian fellowship and leadership, and has provided an opportunity for better understanding and fuller expression of Christian life.

Its activities have been divided into those of worship which included the impressive Candlelight Service and Wesley Forum, and social affairs like the traveling supper, Chickagami party, penny fair, and hayride. Five deputation teams "followed the trail" to small churches where they conducted the services, thus beginning a new enterprise for Wesleyans.

La Verne Collum was sent as a state delegate to the Ecumenical Student Conference in Lawrence, Kansas. These projects were all under the guidance of Rev. Jans Vander Graff and faculty advisers, Dr. A. S. Lyness and Mr. Arol Epple.

The Lutheran Students' association on the campus, with Reverend Orville Wold as spiritual adviser, had as one of its main activities this year a "deputy team." This team, headed by three members, Art Witalison, Elizabeth Swenson and Carla Kruse, went to various churches in the Lutheran League giving talks to promote LSA.

This year's theme, "If We Obey Him," was the subject of the regular discussion meetings of the group. The LSA'ers always have as their outstanding event of the year the outdoor communion breakfast at which the new officers for the coming year are installed.

SENIOR BALL

The theme centered around the song "Memories." These pleasant memories were brought vividly to mind by decorations of various school activities on the walls — activities that the seniors had participated in during their years at CSTC.

This December dance, with music by Gail Shepardson, was another "memory" to record in the list of enjoyable experiences of the seniors in their upward journey of college life, the first step being their entrance into college, and the last step — the long-coveted mortar board and diploma.

Sigma Tau Delta, symbolizing Sincerity, Truth and Design, aims to foster these qualities in the writing of its members. The local chapter, Psi Beta, is limited to twenty-five members. These are selected from the majors and minors in English who maintain a "B" average in that field and evidence outstanding ability in composition. The honorary English fraternity also encourages creative writing in the entire student body and offers a medium of publication for their work in the annual magazine FLIGHT.

Highlights in the year's activities included an evening at Norman E. Knutzen's Pike Lake cottage and a candlelight initiation ceremony.

Leland M. Burroughs is faculty adviser for the organization.

The professional organization of the home economics department at CSTC is the Home Economics club. The club strives to promote professional attitudes and social poise among the members.

The Home Economics club was under the leadership of Lorraine Meyer first semester, and Dorothy Schmidt second semester. Activities included the annual Christmas sale for which the "Home Ecs" make and contribute all articles, a home freezer demonstration, and the sale of "Folkways in Foods," the centennial recipe book.

Miss Bessie May Allen is the group adviser.

JANUARY

CSTC'ers love the active life — both on the hardcourt and in the bleachers. Physical talents stifled in the pursuit of intellectual goals are released periodically in an athletic program designed to meet the needs of all students.

On the other hand, the forty-niner spent an exhausting day at work and sought his outlet in less boisterous parlor sports.

But even during winter months scholastic activities are stepped up. Primary council, Roundtable, Forum and Rural Life offer opportunities for garnering professional information and for forming friendships among those of similar interests.

Coach Hale Quandt had a good turnout for basketball which included five returning lettermen from his title sharing quintet of last year.

Conference play opened as the Pointers went to Platteville only to be downed on their cracker box floor by a 51-47 count. Joe Haidvogel's nose and a Platteville player's elbow tried to occupy the same space at the same time; obligingly, Joe's nose gave way in the form of a fracture. He still managed to lead the scorers with 15 points, in spite of the handicap. Revenge was sweet, for when Platteville came here the Pioneers fell 61-60. Curry's terrific speed and team play were deciding factors, together with Hartman's eye which netted him 15 points.

Whitewater swapped games with us also as they felt the Pointers' bite here 58-47. The officials called 63 personal fouls during the contest and sent six Quakers to the showers with five each. Four of these six were starters. They evened the defeat on their floor 56-55 as we lost control of the rebound when Ludwig and Fick left via the "five times bad boy" route.

The Oshkosh Titans, after drubbing our boys on their court, came to the P. J. Jacobs gym for a reversed decision. Wagner was the local hero as he dumped in 21 points. Bill Ludwig and the Titans' Ritchie were ejected from the game for attempting to strangle one another.

Milwaukee was the only conference team to beat us on our own floor. The Quandtmen's biggest victory of the season came as they downed the league leading Superior club 58-53.

The last game of the year saw our team travel to Stout to be overcome by the Blue Devils 65-53 in a game slowed by 64 fouls. Gene Polzin paced our scorers with 15 points. It was the last appearance of Bob Hartman and George Flugaur, who both ended brilliant four year campaigns. High point man for the year was Chet Polka, a freshman guard from Mosinee, with 165 points. Tom Curry, as fast and clever a forward as can be found, was second with 137. The team suffered a hard blow at the semester change when Haidvogel left school, but quickly recovered when Bill "Moose" Ludwig enrolled. The leading fouler was Gene "I'm innocent" Fick with 76.

The Collegians, the "B" team, played preliminary exhibitions before the varsity games and had quite a successful season. Their most exciting game proved to be the defeating of the intramural champion Raiders by a hair's breadth.

GRAMMAR ROUND TABLE

Officers

President ..... Harry Howland
Vice-president ..... Anne Huntzicker
Secretary-Treasurer ..... Mary Due

The purpose of the Round Table is to consider topics of teacher education which are of interest to students enrolled in the Intermediate and Junior High School Divisions. It also tries to better acquaint each member with the other members of this organization.

Some of the topics for discussion were the status of the teaching profession in general, the status of the teachers of this department in relation to those in other departments, "feuds" in the teaching profession, teacher qualifications and associations with children.

The social event of the year was a Valentine Party. The advisers for the Round Table are Miss Mary Ullman and Dr. Quincy Doudna.

The Forum is the professional organization for all students in the Division of Secondary Education. The avowed policy of the Forum has been to cultivate here in college an interest in the attitudes, habits and pedagogical ethics required by the active teacher.

At regularly scheduled meetings current problems of interest to students in this given field of education are discussed and clarified.

The director of the department, Mr. R. M. Rightsell, has dispelled many perplexing problems besetting the young students and has guided them on their way to becoming successful teachers.

The Rural Life club, the professional organization of the Rural Division, strives to acquaint its members with the problems of rural teaching. The meetings this year combined discussions on various problems, the most important being the re-organization of school districts, and social entertainment, usually group singing or square dancing. Bernice Yonkee did the calling for the dances, and it is believed that she put the oldtimers to shame.

This organization is under the supervision of Miss May Roach and Dr. Quincy Doudna.

The Rural Demonstration School under the direction of Mrs. Marjorie Kerst, includes grades one to six. This typical one room school is pupiled by the children from a neighboring rural district.

Tuesday, stories for primary children were read over "Our Book Corner." Wednesday, the faculty and students discussed social, political, and economic problems over the "College Round Table." On Thursday the "Radio Workshop Players" presented dramatic productions which they directed and produced themselves. Friday, the listening audience heard the "Music Album" which featured classical and semi-classical music.

The functions of the Workshop, besides presenting enjoyable and interesting programs, are to give its participants valuable experience in program directing, disc recording, wire recording, script writing, and broadcasting.

At Christmas time the Workshop gave a party for the faculty and its members.

Newman Club, the Catholic organization on campus, met every second and fourth Thursday of the month. There the students enjoyed well planned programs which combined informative talks and social activities.

Their undertakings of the year which reflected the religious aspect of their organization were monthly group communions, a question box, and a breakfast on Palm Sunday. On the social side, they gave a scavenger hunt after their initiation ceremony, a Christmas party, and sponsored a March of Dimes Dance. For the Mardi Gras, they presented an original skit on the problems of a ne'er-do-well bachelor.

Guiding this organization were Rev. Stanley Chilicki, spiritual adviser, and Miss May Roach, faculty adviser.

FEBRUARY

St. Valentine initiated a beautiful tradition which warmed men's hearts even before 1849 and which is recalled today with a sympathetic chuckle for any inseparable twosome. Love and life on the campus has a deeper meaning for many, and evidence of it may be found in the families in the Trailer Court as well as in the sharing of a momentary regard by two freshies in the student lounge. The social frats and sororities, here, provide much of the backing for the formal parties and dances which are enjoyed by everyone on the campus.

The Student Council anticipated an active year, and so began by appointing students to the various committees; athletic, social, bus and allocation. After supervising the class elections in the fall, they planned the gala Homecoming activities ranging from the bonfire to the election of the Homecoming Queen and the big dance.

During National Education Week they cooperated with the high school in regard to posters, movies and recordings for the radio station. They also backed the X-Ray mobile unit and sold Christmas Seals.

The membership of this governing body is composed of four representatives from each class and one from each professional organization.

"Give us the good ole days when men were men" doesn't apply now, for the Phi Sigs can certainly be compared to the hardy men of old. Phi Sigma Epsilon, a chapter of the National Educational fraternity, strives to promote scholastic averages, sportsmanship and social activities among college men. They are advised by Fred Schmeekle.

Primarily a social group, they began their year by pledging Elliott Riggs, Larry McKinnon, Ralph Crain, Louis Jacoboski, Jerry Kitzrow, Don Yahr and Al Bowers. At the initiation ceremony, Governor-elect Oscar Rennebohm and Regent Wilson Delzell became honorary members of the frat.

The Phi Sig Pep band added much spirit to the pep meetings and football games. They and other members traveled to the Whitewater game and met with the League of College Men, a prospective chapter. They also were guests of the Sigma chapter at DeKalb, Illinois.

Second semester Bob Bestul, Howard Kumbier, Norris Lindquist, Bob Petranek, James Dalnodar, Don Guzman and Clarence Karier pledged and wore the traditional red bow ties.

The high point of the year's activities was the annual Phi Sig Style Show. The show was outstanding for the lively music of its orchestra and its rollicking entertainment. The money from the show was placed in the fund for a chapter house.

The reunion at Homecoming, the Christmas party at Johnny's, and a post-game dance with music by Harry Hemstock and his Jive Five, were other events enjoyed by the frat.

The year ended with the annual fraternity dinner dance which was given jointly with the Chi Delts for the first time.

At the meetings of Chi Delta Rho fraternity last fall, many decisions important to the group were made. First of all the revised constitution was accepted. The question of a frat house was looked into, then dropped. Homecoming came along and they decided to sponsor a candidate for Queen. It was a wise choice, for they turned up with the winner, Irene Morris. An alumni meeting was held during the Homecoming weekend, and bombs were purchased for after football games.

Lanterns may not be used commonly now, but they have become standard equipment for the Chi Delt pledges. First semester pledges were Bill Bart, Lee Bruner, Everett Humke, Dick Green, Robert Stenerson, Robert Sauter, Richard Lorenzen, George Gynn, Richard Kowaleski, Arthur Witalison, and Roland Rothman. Second semester Ed Pliska, Wilmar Cox, Alex Aschenbrenner, Jerry Jelinek, Ed Furstenberg, Lloyd Peterson, Robert Morgan, John Luhm, Harry Howland, Wilbur Nimz, Jerry Scheel, Lawrence Eagleburger, Norbert Ley and Donald Hendrick were seen carrying the blue and white paddles and wearing the burlap underwear.

Dr. Harold Tolo, Mr. Gilbert Faust, Mr. Norman Knutzen and Mr. Raymond Rightsell advise the fraternity.

Other events of importance were the Chi Delt dance featuring music by Ray Cording, and the meeting with the chapter at Whitewater to discuss and compare common ideas and problems. The Chi Delt dinner dance ended the year's activities.

NELSON HALL

The Dorm is the "home away from home" for one hundred and eighteen co-eds. It is a self-governing body and all of its rules and regulations are made by the girls themselves with the guidance of the Dorm Council and their director Mrs. Margaret Angel. The rooms furnished with blond wood furniture are the comfortable settings for their everyday living. The spacious living room, dining room, smoker, rec room, and the laundry provide the girls with all the comforts and conveniences of home. Nelson Hall is also the scene of many functions such as the Open House, the formal Christmas and Easter dinners, and numerous banquets and meetings.

MARCH

The month of March always blows in a whirl of activities, and campus life blooms forth in harmony with the approaching spring. "Getting things started," as illustrated above, sometimes proves a task, but students here are "on the ball" when it comes to supporting any proposition for a worthwhile activity, as their long list of clubs, frats, publications, and radio broadcasts will verify.

One of the obstacles in the social course is the fraternity and sorority pledging. The neophytes brave it nobly and usually win favor in the eyes of the ever-lordly actives.

The "baby" of campus organizations at CSTC is the newly-activated Social Science club. The club was organized to enable the history, geography, economics, political science and social science majors and minors to meet on a common level and promote interest in present social and human relations problems. A constitution was drawn up and ratified early in December empowering the club to get well underway the second semester.

The program this year featured speakers on subjects of interest to prospective teachers of social sciences. These well-planned programs drew the interest and attention of the members and other students alike, throughout the club's year. History and social science faculty members serve as advisers for the Social Science club.

Braving unknown problems, the women students of CSTC set forth to establish an organization for all college women. A temporary board under the guidance of Mrs. Pfiffner drew up a constitution and provided for elections second semester. They also planned a Halloween Party and arranged that two Milwaukee girls could talk to the women about the Milwaukee State organization.

Second semester's activities began under the newly elected officers with a tea for new students. During Co-etiquette week posters were placed in the halls, and on Senior Day they sponsored a social hour. Other events were the sending of representatives to the Whitewater meeting, the Easter program, and the All Women's Banquet.

MARDI GRAS

Come to the Mardi Gras! Hours of practice finally show results. We traveled around to far off countries with the Tau Gam's "Singood The Sailor," and toured our own country with the Omeg Merry-Go-Round. A little homespun corn, combined with natural talent made this year's College Theater-sponsored Mardi Gras a successful event. Just as the "Forty-niners" needed entertainment to take their minds off more serious matters, so do our modern prospectors. The Mardi Gras filled the bill.

INTRAMURALS

The intramural program mushroomed as coach George Berg offered an assortment of activities. Medals were given to the individuals of the winning team. Wilbur Gierl led the GHI team of the alphabetical league to victory in touch football. In basketball, the defending champion Sixfooters dropped to third place. The Raiders went undefeated to win the Independent title. The Pointers' league title was captured by the ABCs. Donald Olsen and Art Smieja took first and second place respectively, sinking 75 and 68 out of 100 free throws. Volleyball inspired 12 teams and baseball followed, giving a large portion of the student body the opportunity to participate.

APRIL

April and the first breath of spring bring renewed vigor and the zest for such activities as band and Glee club trips. The experiences and incidents occurring on these good-will ventures are priceless, as all members will agree.

In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns (and a young lady's fancy, also) to proms and all the associated frills and thrills. The Junior Prom and the Chi Delt dinner-dance were gala affairs and brought the spring social season to a delightful close.

JUNIOR PROM

With a background of magnolia blossoms and murals depicting life on a southern plantation, the Junior class carried out its theme "Sleepy Time Down South" at its annual promenade. Queen Mary Stewart and King Everett Humke led the grand march, followed by other class officers. As the music of Howie Emerson drifted through the hall, a large crowd of students and faculty members assembled.

For the "green horns" who attended their first Junior Prom this year, this dance will stand out as a major event. For the graduating students of the school, it will stand out as another pleasant memory. As usual, the Juniors came through with a successful dance.

Moved by the roving American spirit, the band loaded its covered wagon — the bus — and toured the state, playing concerts everywhere. But its black and gold clad members were not fired with the desire to obtain wealth, they wished only to spread the riches of their musical talents and abilities.

Spurred on by their energetic director Peter J. Michelsen, they were heard at every important function ranging from pep meetings to graduation exercises. Their repertoire included loud and spirited marches, jazz renditions, and symphonic arrangements.

Besides touring and giving concerts for the college enjoyment — (and their concerts WERE enjoyed) — this excellent musical group sponsored a Music Clinic for high school bands, the Band Home-coming banquet and concert, and the Band banquet. Genial hard-working president of the band is Walter Peterson.

The most important event of the year was the Christmas Concert, given in cooperation with the Mixed Chorus. In the spring concert season the college bus was seen taking the girls on "good will" jaunts around the state.

Every girl belonged to the organization because of a love for singing and music. Grace Peterson served as president.

CSTC'ers are familiar with the annual Sigma Zeta award given to an outstanding student in science, but not many know that Sigma Zeta was awarded the "Founder's Cup" at the 1948 National Conclave. The cup was presented to the group for their consistent active work in the fraternity. Gilbert W. Faust, of CSTC, is the present National Recorder-treasurer.

Through the efforts of the local Zeta chapter, Stevens Point and CSTC were the hosts for the 1949 National Conclave.

Sigma Zeta sponsored a Junior Academy of Science as a major project this year.

MAINTENANCE & HEALTH

Ever on the job, noticed in the halls and in the classrooms, sought out for keys, tools, all imaginable equipment troubles, and for occasional advice, too — that is CSTC's maintenance staff. Their effectual service merits the "Well done!" that we extend to them.

"Step in here and I'll spray your throat." — "Come in again tomorrow for a check up." — "Take these pills as indicated." — are typical prescriptions given to CSTC students by Miss Mary Neuberger, R. N., and Doctor Fred Marrs, who ably staff the medical service center at CSTC.

TESTING

Meshak, M., Crane, W., Jarnick, P.

CSTC students who are unsure of their aptitudes and who desire guidance in their vocational selections, now have at their disposal the college testing bureau. The bureau, originally established to serve the veterans entering CSTC, has been made available to all students interested in determining their abilities by means of standardized tests. Students who have taken the tests state that they are worthwhile and extremely helpful when they are uncertain of a future vocation. The bureau urges that the testing be universal throughout the college.

Riley, G., Hawkins, E. T.

MAY

The phrase "on campus" takes on a new meaning when May arrives and the lawn is a verdant carpet under a warm sun. The college classes and extra-curricular activities continue, but student participation assumes a more leisurely pace.

However the inevitable exams must be faced. Many a student is seen compromising his interest in nature with his sense of duty by cramming diligently in the shade of a venerable old oak or maple, on a sunny afternoon.

ADMINISTRATION

Our president, William C. Hansen, is a man noted for his friendliness to both students and faculty. The pressure of numerous duties and decisions involved in the successful administration of a teachers college would render the average man devoid of humor. But our president, as we know so well from his many informal talks to the student body, possesses a broad outlook and a knack for sensing the humor in everyday events.

The interests of CSTC have been adequately represented in the person of Wilson S. Delzell, member of the Board of Regents of Wisconsin Teachers colleges. In the minds of many this has been a crucial year in the history of the teachers colleges. CSTC is indeed privileged to have as its regent a man who himself has been a teacher and supervisor at one time, and is thus well prepared to understand the problems and needs of educators.

THE DEANS

Dean Elizabeth Pfiffner is always busy with the affairs of her girls.

In addition to her advisership of the Pan-Hellenic council, she teaches classes in medieval history. Coincident with the increased enrollment, Dean Pfiffner has sought to broaden the scope of social activities on campus. She has done this mainly through assisting the foundation of a Women's Self-Governing association on the campus and the "coffee klutches" held in her office to which students are invited at random.

Dean Herbert R. Steiner, a jovial and able faculty member, doubles as head of the History department. The duties of the Dean of Men are numerous and varied but Mr. Steiner still finds time to be the life of any campus party.

Those who have had the opportunity to hear his lectures in the classroom find learning an enjoyable experience. Perhaps his droll humor and understanding of the "students' angle" are traceable to the fact that he was once a student at CSTC.

The division heads pictured above unite their efforts with those of the education staff shown below to produce the well-prepared teachers and graduates pictured in the next section.

This year the grads are shown together with the faculty of their respective division or department, because that is the way in which they are naturally associated. This arrangement emphasizes the oft-spoken truth that in a small college the student knows his teacher and benefits from this friendly relationship.

FACULTY AT EASE

JUNE

To the strains of "Pomp and Circumstance" the graduates arrive for their last laurels on the campus. Although they've "struck gold" at the end of four years of notable prospecting, they do not stop in their quest of values, understandings, and knowledge. This goal is only one along the way; but it represents scholastic achievement, worthwhile activities, and unforgettable friendships.

The fond regards of faculty and undergraduates go with those who leave, along with a wish that they may return often in the future to their Alma Mater — CSTC.

TRAINING SCHOOL

TRAINING SCHOOL

CSTC's prospective teachers found in the Training school priceless nuggets of advice and guidance in their chosen profession. The supervising staff, under Dr. Raymond E. Gotham, was always available with a word of caution, a suggestion, or a pat on the back. From kindergarten through ninth grade, classroom experiences were provided that proved no less delightful to student teachers than to pupils.

When the time for placement rolls around each year, CSTC graduates step forward, secure in the confidence that they have a sound foundation in the art of teaching.

Electricity Works for Peanuts!

In today's expressive slang, peanuts means a very small amount of money. Like your electric bill. It really is peanuts, isn't it—compared to most other items in your family budget?

As a matter of fact, the average American family gets twice as much electricity for its money today as it did 20 years ago!
